MAN'S LIFE.

Man's life is but a working day
Whose tasks are set aright;
A time to work, a time to pray,
And then a quiet night.
And then, please God, a quiet night
Where palms are green and robes are white:
A long-drawn breath, a balm for sorrow,
And all things lovely on the morrow.

—Christina G. Rosetti.

ARE YOU IN LOVE WITH YOUR WORK?

If you are not in love with your work, you are having a hard time. Your shoulders are burdened with a heavy load, and you have to drive yourself day by day through an unending round of tiresome and laborious work. There is no song in your heart, and there is very little joy in life. You never seem to be getting anywhere, and the constant query of your perturbed spirit is, "What's the use?" The present is a time of worry and disappointment, and the future seems hopeless.

The man who loves his work will never do that work in a mechanical or perfunctory way. Difficult tasks will seem easy because there is a joy in doing them. Obstacles in the way will not discourage, because they will disappear in the face of enthusiastic energy. The smallness of reward, or the lack of reward, will not dampen the ardor of the man who loves his work, because his heart is throbbing with earnestness and zeal.

When a man puts his heart into his work, he gets his life from it. If he does not put his heart into it, it takes all heart out of him. Success cannot follow where obligation crowds out privilege. There is a great difference between having something to do, and having to do something. The perfunctory worker is always looking for pay-day. The money he gets is the only thing that makes his task endurable at all, and he is always imagining that he could do something else better.

How is it with you—are you in love with your work?

THE HUMOR OF IT.

Last year, certain classes of citizens of New Orleans, in advocating the return of horse racing to the city, laid great emphasis upon the so-called guarantees of the racing interests that the "sport" would be conducted in a perfectly honest and "clean" way. The humor of the situation lies in the fact that the sporting pages of the New Orleans newspapers recently have been full of reports of various kinds of crookedness at the tracks and the necessity the officials have been put to of taking drastic action in certain notorious cases. Still, there are some people who will contend seriously that horse racing is an ennobling and uplifting sport!

FACE FORWARD.

This issue of the New Orleans Christian Advocate is No. 1 of Volume 66. This is a reminder of the long and honorable record of a faithful servant of the Church. Through all kinds of circumstances, under varying conditions of prosperity and hardship, it has, week by week, under the management of competent and consecrated men, gone into the homes of the Methodist people of Louisiana and Mississippi, carrying its messages of instruction and inspiration and cheer, striving as best it could to fulfill its mission and minister to the religious and spiritual needs of those whom it tries to serve. The testimony of those who have read its pages through all these years is to the effect that it has not failed altogether in the performance of its duty.

But we are more concerned about the future than we are about the past. We thank God for whatever of good has been accomplished in the days gone by—but we thank him more for the opportunities that lie ahead of us. It is an inspiration to live in days like these, and it is a glorious privilege to have a part in the work of making the world a fit place for setting up the Kingdom of God. We conceive of the Church paper as an important and efficient means of helping forward every good movement. Its usefulness is conditioned largely by the extent of its circulation, but even in a restricted sphere, it carries a heavy obligation and a correspondingly heavy responsibility. We are not so sanguine as to hope that we shall be able to attain our ideal of a Church journal, but we are hopeful of making reasonable progress in that direction. At the very least, we expect to maintain the position of the Advocate as a staunch defender of the Faith and a helper of every good cause.

We are counting confidently upon the sympathy and co-operation of the preachers of our three Conferences in every effort to make the Advocate more efficient as a servant of the Church in the future than it has been in the past. To that end, its circulation should be largely increased. The question, as we view it, is not at all one of maintaining the Conference organ; it is a question of putting our people in possession of the information that they need in order that they may make the Church what it ought to be. We do not plead for an increased circulation in order that the paper may be strengthened financially; we plead for it in order that it may accomplish creditably the purpose for which it was founded. We ask the help of our friends to extend the circulation of the Advocate, not that it may eke out a miserable existence, but that it may vigorously and effectively re-enforce the Church in its great program of extending the Kingdom of God. The paper needs the support of the people, to be sure; but much more do the people need the paper. If they do not need it, we cannot conceive that it has any mission at all.

We enter upon the new year hopefully and enthusiastically. We look forward eagerly to the tasks that beckon to us.

We believe the year 1919 will see great things accomplished by and for the Church of God. And it is our earnest prayer that Volume 66 of the Advocate may have some small part in bringing those things to pass.

THE CONFERENCE CENTENARY SECRETARIES.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Dr. D. C. Hull, and Rev. Ben P. Jaco have been appointed by their respective Conferences, the Louisiana, the Mississippi and the North Mississippi, to have charge of the interests of the great Centenary Movement within their bounds. We do not know any men who have a heavier responsibility resting upon them than have these brethren—but we have every confidence that they will do all that is expected of them, and more. All of them have been thoroughly tested in responsible positions before, and they have never failed "to deliver the goods." And we have no fear of the outcome in this case.

But what we want especially to say now is that it will be a tragedy for us to assume that these men, gifted though they are, can do what they have been appointed to do without the sympathetic and hearty co-operation of the ministry and membership of the Methodist Church in Louisiana and Mississippi.

We believe they will receive that co-operation. This is a great work the Church has undertaken. It is of such kind as should appeal to us as Christian men and women interested in the coming of the Kingdom of God. It has been planned carefully, and it is being carried forward in a business-like way. The hearty endorsement of the General Conference has been re-enforced by the action of the Annual Conferences, and the Movement stands to-day as a program of action that covers the entire field of the Church's activities.

Our Secretaries will do their full duty—let us be sure that we do ours.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE STREET CAR CONDUCTOR.

The other day we were on one of the crowded street cars of New Orleans. The passengers were packed into the car from one end to the other. There was not room for one more—the old saying to the contrary, notwithstanding. The car had to stop at the crossings on Canal Street, but the doors could not be opened—the jam on the inside was so great. The first passenger that got off after the car left Canal Street, went out through a window—there was no chance for him to get to the door. The people were wedged in, in all sorts of uncomfortable positions. The air was almost suffocating. But in spite of it all, strange as it may seem, everybody in the car was in a good humor. Why? Because the conductor had the gift of being pleasant. He was in a good humor himself, and he radiated cheerfulness in the most unfavorable surroundings. He laughed and joked and said witty things—and he saved a difficult situation. His good humor was contagious, and that ride on a crowded car was actually pleasant. When we came to our corner, we paused a moment to express appreciation of his cheerfulness. He said, "Oh, well, it's the best way." So it is.

TO PRAY:

To pray—not ask an alms of fate,
Nor beg, nor placate, but to bring
An offering, to give myself,
For this is prayer.
To pray—not toward the earth or sky,
But to that Friend within my soul,
To that strong Life I feel so near,
The God in me.
To pray—not for the gain or it,
But for the joy of it. To laugh,
To weep with God, to learn His call,
And answer back.
To pray—to hope, to fear, to fail;
And then when all is lost, save prayer,
O, Soul of mine, to pray again,
And then be strong!

GOD COMFORTING MEN.

To some this seems a strange and not very wholesome thing. They can understand God reproving men for sin, they can understand God urging upon men the necessity of reformation, they can understand Him pointing out to them a thousand unfulfilled duties, but the vision of a God who sits down beside a discouraged, weak and sinful man and comforts him is to them something which is almost an impossibility. And yet this thought runs through nearly the whole of the Old Testament, and is reproduced with greater emphasis in the New Testament. And in the modern Acts of the Apostles we find the story still being told of how God comforts men. And so long as man continues as he is and God remains the same, we shall find the story repeated in every clime and in every age.

For men need comfort. Even the Elijahs grow discouraged. Even the Peters grow afraid. Even the Christ needs comfort and help. We see the strong man stepping along so sturdily and so bravely that to us he becomes the incarnation of strength, and we never dream that even that man has his hours of weakness, when he sorely needs the kindly word and the help of a stronger hand. Often such men hide their weakness so well that not even their best friends know how much they long for a helping hand. And it is better so. The rank and file must never know that the commander has lost all hope. The frightened children must never know how terribly afraid is the brave, timid, little mother who comforts them so much. We bury our fears in our own hearts that we may not infect others; and it is wisest and bravest to do so. And yet we are all human. A man may be covered with gold lace and decorations, but he is still human. We may occupy the most exalted position, we may have minds trained to the highest possible limit, we may have wealth such as the world never before knew, but back of it all lies our humanity, with its human weakness.

But to many the strange part is not that man should need comfort, but that God should comfort him. Long ago men spoke of Christ as the friend of sinners, but even yet this idea has not fully penetrated our theological teaching. We have even known men who preached with great enthusiasm and conviction the doctrine that Christ had died for all men, who yet somehow failed to grasp the idea that God really loves sinners. And the Church of Jesus Christ in some cases has yet some distance to go before it reaches the truth that God is really the world's great Comforter.

For does not conscience itself stand in the way? When we know that we have been foolish, and ignorant, and even wilfully sinful, and we reach the point where we suffer for our folly, surely we have no right to look up towards the heavens and expect an infinitely pure God to stoop to comfort us! And conscience itself bars the way, and says plainly we don't deserve comfort. And yet it is true that to weak, ignorant, sinning humanity the loving Father stoops with comforting words, and we hear again the words of our Lord, "Thy sins, which are many, are all forgiven." These words have never lost their sweetness and their power to comfort human souls, even the most unworthy.

We have wondered sometimes, as we have listened to the preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ, if we have really stressed enough the comforting feature of it. We love to read those immortal words of Christ, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest"; but it may be that we forget sometimes that the congregations which face the preacher to-day are just as weary and heavy laden, and just as needy of rest as were those who listened to the words of our Lord. The modern man needs education, he needs spiritual stimulus, he needs a knowledge of his duty; but he needs also the encouragement and comfort which our Lord's words so freely supply, and he needs to realize that the God whom he worships is the Father of sinful men, more ready to comfort than He is to condemn.—The Christian Guardian.

THREE QUESTIONS.

By the Lord Bishop of London.

There are three questions to ask yourself about your work which every one of us is all the better for asking. The first is: "Is there anything now in my life, any habit, anything which I am doing, any quarrel which I am keeping up, anything obviously left undone, which I shall remember, and which will shame and sting, five minutes after death?" How I should long to have this quiet morning back when I could alter it! "Oh, if only I had," we shall say, "one day of the old life that I might get that stinging memory off my mind and have some blest memory of forgiveness instead!"

Then secondly, I should be forced to ask this question: Could I have done anything more than I have done for the Savior with whom I shall then be face to face, with the marks of the Cross still upon Him? How I shall long then to have one week back, that I might live a perfect week of service and self-sacrifice in return for what He has done for me! "This have I done for thee." He will ask, "What hast thou done for Me?" And how poor and how apathetic and how weak will much of our service be! How thin it will seem! How we shall long, five minutes after death, when we see our Savior face to face to have done something more and something more perfectly, with more abandonment of service!

And then, thirdly, shall we not long, when we think over those we have met in this world—shall we not long to have done something more for them? Dives, selfish life as he had lived, turned his mind to his brothers. Might he go and teach them, that they might not also come into his place of torment? How much we shall long to have had a stronger, purer influence upon those with whom our lives have been knit up! It ought to make us more prayerful about them, more careful so to act towards them that we may lay up happy memories for five minutes after death in all that affects other souls joined and knit with our own.

If with thoughts like these, we turn back to our work in life, and go back to it inspired and strengthened to try and do it better, then, my brothers, we need not fear death. No one wants young men or women in the prime of life to wish to die. "O Paradise, O Paradise, 'tis weary waiting here," is not a hymn that should be sung by them. It is a beautiful hymn to read to the dying, and I have read it many a time to them as they are longing to die, in their distress and pain. But it is not a hymn for those in the prime of life. "Weary waiting here!"—it ought not to be weary waiting here. There is too much to do, and too much to do for God. But when death does come, then death ought to come to the Christian as a friend. God will give us the grace to die by, as He gives us the grace to live by. "My little sister Death," St. Francis used to call death. It will be passing from a full and happy life here to a full and happier life there, and from the wonders and glories of God's world here to the still greater wonders and still greater glories of the life of the world to come.—From a Sermon.

"THE JOHN B. MEYERS MEMORIAL FUND."

By Rev. W. W. Holmes.

The late John B. Meyers, of New Orleans, made liberal provision in his will for the poor and the orphans of his city. They were near to his great, loving heart. He made many generous gifts in their behalf while he was alive, and in his going they were not forgotten. He seemed to have had only one idea with reference to the scope of his bequest, namely, that it should be accessible to all of those for whom it was intended. He was confident that the poor and the orphans of New Orleans could be reached in no more effective way than through the Churches, so a bequest of $1000 each was made to all of the Churches in the city, Protestant and Catholic. Brother Meyers loved the Churches and had unbounded faith in their ability to minister to the poor. This good man will be greatly missed, for there was no worthy cause in which he was not interested and to which he did not contribute. He was scrupulous in observing the law of tithing. With him there was always money in the Lord's treasury and to spare.

The Louisiana Annual Conference, at its recent session, adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas the late John B. Meyers, member of the Franklin Street Methodist Episcopal Church, this city, made a bequest of $1000 to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to be used for the orphans and the poor in the city of New Orleans, and a bequest of $200 for the Foreign Missions of our Church; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we cherish and honor the name of the good man who has gone from us, and deeply appreciate his splendid gifts, and commend his example as worthy of imitation.

"Resolved further, That we authorize S. H. Meyer, treasurer of the Louisiana Legal Conference, to receive the $1000 and hold it, with interest accruing through investment, as a John B. Meyers Memorial Fund, till the fund can be used in such a way as to give the largest expression to the intent and desire of the donor.

"Resolved further, That the final direction and distribution of the fund be given by the New Orleans Methodist Preachers' Meeting."

"OVER THERE."

By Rev. Elmer C. Gunn.

Dear Editor: Just about the time of the signing of the armistice, it was the good fortune of your humble servant to board, under the direction of the powers that be in the good old U. S. A., the great French liner, La France, one of the largest and fastest of the many transports in the service, and, about 4 o'clock on a beautiful afternoon in this November, slip quietly down North River, past the Statue of Liberty and out on the great deep, bound for the shores of France, to help in his small way in the great work of the reorganization of Europe, so that the future will be safe from the curse of war. Just outside the harbor from which our ship departed, the convoys took their places here and there about us, making us feel that the protecting arm of the greatest country on earth would see to it that our voyage was as safe as it could possibly be made. Our trip across was made in the quickest time that war conditions will permit, the ship on which we found ourselves being one of a very few in the work of transportation which was so swift that even in the darkest hours of the submarine menace it was not necessary to convoy it all the way across. So, on the morning of the third day, when we awoke, and when those who were able to look out did so, they reported that our convoy had disappeared, and that we were alone on the boundless deep. Your humble servant was not in a condition to enjoy the magnificence of the deep blue scenery, nor to care materially whether the ship on which he then was must make the trip alone, or with a convoy, or accompanied even by hostile submarines, it being the case that he was seasick. He wants to say that all he ever heard about the inglorious disease known as seasickness is true, except that it may have been just a little too conservative to suit his case.

About the fifth day out the writer was able to raise his head and begin to renew his interest in life. The food served him, being distinctly French, seemed to be all right for other passengers, but for him during most of the voyage it was a miserable failure. Finally, however, it began to take on a semblance of real food, and the last day he ate sparingly, and with but little relish, of a few of the many dishes offered him, but he was never able to negotiate the cheese.

Brest was the port for which we were bound, and on the morning of the seventh day out from the States we saw the gray hills surrounding that city come slowly into view. By mid-afternoon, and when we had been out of the city from which we sailed less than seven days, our feet were planted in the little city of Brest, which is one of the oldest, though by no means one of the cleanest or most beautiful, of the cities of France. Brest is in Brittany, in the "Silvery Glades of Gaul," and has been used by the United States as the chief port of debarkation since troops from that country began to flow into France in the early days of our war with Germany. Where our government has touched this country, she has left her mark. The flag of the United States flies only over spots that have been cleaned up, made practical, made healthful by her engineers and medical men. One need only see tracks of the boys "over here" in order to read the story of the tremendous work done by our leaders since the decree went out to send an army to France.

In Gaul and Brittany, think of it! It makes one feel queer, to say the least of it, to stand and look out across the hills where Julius Caesar found much of his fame. Then, when one remembers that here among these same hills our forbears are said to have been naked savages when Jesus Christ died on the Cross of Calvary, he feels that for its traditions and its history alone it is a land worth fighting for and dying for, if necessary, to free it from the menace that has darkened it these last few years. Most of the people one sees are peasants; many, many hundreds of them wear mourning; some of them have lost so much they never can look the world in the face with the smile that comes from a happy heart, but they know enough of the world situation to realize that America is their friend, and they welcome our soldiers gladly and treat them royally. Everywhere there are prisoners of war dressed in green, indicating that America captured them, or in dull gray, showing that they work for France.

After a stay of a few days at Brest, we were ordered to Le Mans, a city of some sixty-five thousand inhabitants, located on the Etat (State) railway, about one hundred miles southwest of Paris, towards Brest. Here, in Chateau d'Aux, the Chaplains' School is located, and from here the chaplains are appointed to field or hospital work. Armies of occupation must be sent into the conquered territory, and the United States must do her part. We are eagerly awaiting orders to report to our organizations.

From all that we have seen, we are of the opinion that the work before us is monumental in its scope. The soldiers, being freed from danger of death in the trenches, many of them being homesick, and all of them still surrounded by all the temptations consequent to army life, are, of course, harder to reach with a gospel message. They constitute the finest army the world ever saw; their ideals must be kept high, their lives clean, their souls pure; and it is the work of the chaplains to help do this. Ours is a great opportunity, and there never was a time in the history of this awful struggle when the prayers of the home people were needed more than now. Don't let up in your petitions; keep your letters of courage, faith and devotion coming to the boys even more regularly than before, and in God's name and for His sake help us do the work which we feel we cannot do without your co-operation.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

Some one has said that "Disappointment is the grandmother of reflection," and that is only a quaint way of putting what we recognize at a second glance as a familiar truth. For, while the first result of a disappointment is likely to be sorrowful complaints and perhaps tears, a little sober afterthought often convinces us that the experience has a brighter as well as a darker side. Sometimes reflection shows us that we have been making a mountain out of a mole hill, and that the trifle we missed was not worth making ourselves unhappy about. Sometimes we even see that what we sought was "better lost than won," and that the disappointment we wept over was really a blessing in disguise. God's greater plan for us and for all things is, so to speak, outside our little plans, and it is always working forward to fulfillment. Reflection may help us to understand that our failure was a concession to the success of God's wiser purpose, and that, in itself, ought to content us, for all God's plans are the deep-laid schemes of a loving Father for our highest good. But the most useful discipline of disappointment is to show us our own shortcomings. Perhaps our methods have been crude and faulty, perhaps we have not put our whole heart into the task before us. Nobody with a resolute spirit accepts failure tamely, and a bitter disappointment not infrequently paves the way to more successful effort.—East and West.

MR. DANIELS' THREE FAVORITE BOOKS AND HOW THEY HELPED BUILD UP THE NAVY.

By Howard A. Banks.

(Mr. Banks, now Associate Editor of the Sunday School Times, was, for four years, Secretary Daniels' private secretary.—Editor).

"The very grindstone 'ull go on turning a bit after you loose it," exclaimed Adam Bede, contemptuously, to the clock-watching workmen who were dropping their tools before the village clock finished striking six. Isn't that true of the influence of a good book? After it has served its purpose to its immediate generation, it stimulates the lives of men who look into its pages to see how things went in the old times. This is a study by his former private secretary of how three books have left their imprint on one of the best men in American public life.

The keel of the career of the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, is laid in three books. All are works of fiction. Rarely have three novels wrought such an influence upon the life of any man as these three have wrought on his. These books are "Adam Bede," by George Eliot; "The Circuit Rider," by Edward Eggleston; and "Put Yourself in His Place," by Charles Reade.

While not a bookworm, the Secretary has read as widely as any other busy man of our day. He has reached up to the library shelf as frequently as any other man who has been as active in journalism and politics as he.

But these are his three favorite books. He read them early in life, and has read and re-read them. Those who are intimately associated with him have heard him refer to them and quote from them more than he does from any other books. The first two have to do with Methodism, the denominational mold into which his religious life has flowed. The third named he likes because it interprets to him, more or less unconsciously, the catholicity of his faith.

There is a single character in each book that has gripped his life. In "Adam Bede," it is Dinah Morris, the demure, unselfish, self-sacrificing little woman preacher of the early "Methodies"—that is, of the Methodists in England soon after John Wesley laid down his long and useful life. In "The Circuit Rider," it is the character of Mort Goodwin, the young Ohio circuit rider, and in him Mr. Daniels sees blended the great Methodist pioneers of the early days, like Francis Asbury and Peter Cartwright. And in "Put Yourself in His Place," it is the character of Dr. Amboyne which Mr. Daniels admired. Dr. Amboyne is to the Secretary of the Navy the incarnation of the Golden Rule.

Mr. Daniels seems to see in Amboyne a combination of the characters of Dinah Morris and Mort Goodwin, a linking together of sweetness and strength. Dr. Amboyne's work for the betterment of the old factory community in England in which he lived seems to him to illustrate in community uplift what Methodism has meant for the world.

These three books are novels written with a purpose. But it surely never could have entered into the heads of George Eliot, Edward Eggleston and Charles Reade, as they wrote, that they were helping to build up the American Navy. How could each of these authors ever imagine that her or his work would profoundly influence a North Carolina boy, destined to climb upon the stepping-stone of journalism into a Cabinet position at the most critical period in the world's history? Yet the threads of these works of fiction are woven into the character of that boy, inspired by a good Methodist mother to serve, in some useful way, both his God and his country.

Mr. Daniels is a Methodist from intense conviction. It is true enough that he was brought up in a Methodist family, but he was sufficiently possessed of a questioning mind to wish to satisfy himself by his own studies just how firmly his denominational convictions were planted in the Word of God itself. While he has read very closely after Wesley, and plunged very thoroughly into the theology of his Church, there is little doubt that Adam Bede and The Circuit Rider have done as much as theology to confirm him in his belief.

These stories, so true to the life of the times in which they were staged, showed him the practical value of Methodism. They showed him that it was a faith for the common people, bringing Christ himself down into lives of toil and suffering.

I think he likes Dinah Morris, for one thing, because she had the courage to preach, though I am sure he would want every woman preacher to be as certain of her "call" as Dinah. I do not know whether this had anything to do with his championship of woman suffrage or not. At any rate, he was one of the first men in public life to espouse that cause, and was upholding it when he was making speeches, soon after he came to the Navy Department, on the Pacific coast and elsewhere.

Whether he got it from Dinah Morris or not, Mr. Daniels thoroughly believes in the Christian giving his testimony. I was once traveling with him to Canton, Ohio, where he was to make an address in a whirlwind Y. M. C. A. campaign. In the course of a conversation about these things, he said that every man ought to have some special, definite service for God. He stated that previous to his coming to Washington he had been teaching a class of students from the North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College at Raleigh. I suggested that it would have been a fine thing if he had continued his Sunday school teaching at the Mt. Vernon Methodist Church, which he attended, in the Capital City. No, he said; the burden of that work would have been too great for him with his Cabinet duties, but he had made up his mind to make use of every opportunity, like this one that was just at hand, to give his testimony as a Christian man.

And I think that whenever he did speak a good word for Jesus Christ, and that has been many, many times during his secretaryship of the Navy, he had ever in his conscious or subconscious mind that wonderful picture of Dinah Morris preaching to the dull-lived villagers on Hayslope Green.

She is beginning her sermon:

"'The spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor.' Jesus Christ spoke those words—he said he came to preach the gospel to the poor: I don't know whether you ever thought about those words much; but I will tell you when I first remember hearing them. It was on just such a sort of evening as this, when I was a little girl, and my aunt as brought me up, took me to hear a good man preach out of doors, just as we are here.

"I remember his face well; he was a very old man, and had very long white hair; his voice was very soft and beautiful, not like any voice I had ever heard before. I was a little girl, and scarce knew anything, and this old man seemed to me such a different sort of a man from anybody I had ever seen before, that I thought he had perhaps come down from the sky to preach to us, and I said, 'Aunt, will he go back to the sky to-night, like the picture in the Bible?'

"The man of God was Mr. Wesley, who spent his life doing what our blessed Lord did—preaching the Gospel to the poor—and he entered into his rest eight years ago. I came to know more about him years after, but I was a foolish, thoughtless child then, and I remember only one thing he told us in his sermon. He told us as 'gospel' meant 'good news.' The Gospel, you know, is what the Bible tells us about God."

The conversion of the rollicking and reckless Bessy Cranage was the practical result of this sermon on the Green; and it is the practical help of the Gospel to the common people that always appeals to Mr. Daniels.

And Methodism, as Dinah Morris preached it, was a flower of faith that bore transplanting so well. Its founder brought it across the Atlantic. It flourished on American soil! The Circuit Rider tells all about that. There was just as much help in the "good news" for the bold, danger-surrounded pioneers of the frontiers of the new Republic as there was to the stolid toilers in English villages or factory towns.

Eggleston in his book draws a fine picture of Bishop Asbury presiding over the Conference at Hickory Ridge. Asbury was one of Mr. Daniels' heroes, and I never saw him more pleased than when President Wilson, just about the time of the sinking of the Lusitania, left his busy desk at the White House to attend a meeting of the Baltimore Conference in Washington and paid a marvelous tribute to that heroic circuit rider.

There is little doubt that the character of Dinah Morris has had much to do with the Secretary's broad sympathies—which led him to look into the welfare of the enlisted man. A law he secured enables a hundred bluejacks to go to Annapolis every year, provided they can stand the preliminary examinations; and in other ways doors have opened wider to them than ever before.

The Secretary was wrestling with a difficult court-martial problem one day. The Judge-Advocate General of the Navy, Captain Ridley McLean, was standing by, and he and the Secretary were discussing the merits of the case. As I came up the Secretary asked my judgment. I gave it, but after a few minutes of thought, the Secretary said, "We must put ourselves in that fellow's place."

He was thinking of Dr. Amboyne in Charles Reade's novel. I have heard him quote that word time and again when he was being misunderstood and misrepresented because of his constructive work in the Navy.

In settling labor problems in that old English city where the manufacture of cutlery was the principal industry, Dr. Amboyne always got the other man's point of view, and it was wonderful what an adjuster he would become, and how he could bring men together who were about to fly at each other's throats. This wise old philosopher had two mottoes, "Put yourself in his place," and "There is a key to every lock." No wonder a workman said to him one day, "Talking with you is like drinking sunshine."

At the closing exercises of the United States Naval Medical School at Washington, on April 15, 1915, Mr. Daniels held up the character of Dr. Amboyne to the graduating class. "No man," he said to them, "in any profession has such an opportunity to make his life Amboyneable!"

"I like to read about Moses best, in th' Old Testament," said Adam Bede one day. "He carried a hard business well through." And so did Josephus Daniels in preparing the Navy for the World War, and in handling it sussessfully in the conflict. What George Eliot says of her hero might well be applied to Mr. Daniels, too:

"His work had always been a part of his religion, and from very early days he saw clearly that good carpentry was God's will."—Sunday School Times.

"SUPERANNUATED."

Dear Brother Carley: I was greatly surprised at being superannuated at the late session of the North Mississippi Executive Conference. Certainly I was not entitled to that honored relation, and had I been present it would have been my duty to object to the utmost.

The presiding elder of the Tuscaloosa District, North Alabama Conference, happened to be in my town when the crushing information came to me, and instantly offered me Coaling, a charge near to Tuscaloosa, on the A. & C. S. R. R. Later, I was offered a place in the Columbus District by my former presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Duren, but felt compelled to decline the offer, being committed already at Coaling.

I am sorry, and completely nonplussed, but have a pleasant beginning at Coaling, with three new names for church membership at the first Sunday services, and something in money for parsonage improvements. I am thankful to be very well indeed, as is true of Mrs. Williams, and to enter upon my work here in the usual way, and am hoping to make gains, and to be found faithful, and have the favor of Him who has "all power," and can make good on the promise, "I am with you."

THE LITTLE BROWN LEAF.

A little brown leaf, as it fell to the ground,
Sighed, "Now, what good can I be?
My service is over, for summer has fled,
There's nothing to do but to cover my head
Under snow. Ah, poor little me!"
But it fell on a flower and kept it from frost
The whole long winter through;
So that down on the ground, as way up in the tree,
The little leaf spent its life cheerfully,
Doing the best it could do.

THE GOVERNOR'S STORY.

As Jeff Gardner came down the academy steps his heart was pounding with pleasure. It was the happiest moment of his life. It had just been announced in chapel that he was the winner of the first honors of the senior class.

But he had not walked two blocks until the chilling recollection came that they did not cheer when his name was read. There was a little perfunctory hand-clapping, but nothing fine and spontaneous like last year, when Cyrus Field won.

Directly the pleasure was all gone, and, as often before, he was moodily wondering why he had no fellowship with the other students, why he was always left out, why none seemed to care at either his failure or success. Like most moody, sensitive, self-conscious people, he failed to see that he shut himself out by shutting himself up. He gave none of himself to them, and, of course, they had little interest in him. But Jeff thought resentfully that it was because of his poverty and humble family.

Two men sat in front of a store, talking overcarelessly, as men often do, and the boy overheard.

"It won't do him any good," remarked the other. "He's got too much of the old man in him. Old Jim Gardner has always failed at everything he tried, and Jeff is just like him. He will never be anything but old man Gardner's boy."

The bell rang, and he tried to make himself go back to his class. But what was the use? He was only old Jim Gardner's boy.

An hour later a seventeen-year-old boy, dinner pail on arm, his shoulders bent like an old man's trudged down the road toward home.

The Gardner's lived on a small, rocky farm, three miles south of town. It was nearly noon when Jeff reached home. His father was in the yard hammering at the wheel of the market wagon. The vegetables intended for the early morning market were still in the wagon box, wilted and wizened, until they would scarcely be salable at all. They were second-rate vegetables, anyway, reflected Jeff, bitterly. The Gardner's never had anything that was first class.

Just as the wheel seemed almost mended the father struck it a little too hard with his hammer and broke a felly. The work had to be done over again. Jeff turned into the house sick.

In the desolate little sitting-room he noticed his father's glasses among the litter of papers and old magazines on the table. Beside the shelf of worn books sat the one rocking-chair where his father had left it, for old man Gardner loved his books.

Jeff felt for the first time angry at his father—angry because of the poverty and failure which had branded him merely "Old Jim Gardner's son."

"Why away from school?" asked Mr. Gardner, timidly, at dinner. He was a mild, apologetic little man.

"I am not going any more."

"Why not, son?" The father spoke in ineffectual surprise.

"Oh, what's the use?" said Jeff, angrily. "It won't do any good. The Gardners always fail—none of us ever amount to anything."

The father looked at him wistfully a moment, tried to speak, but his lips trembled, and he pushed back his chair and left the table. Jeff's aunt—his mother had been dead many years—expostulated with him in a querulous way. She was a hopeless slattern, with a pitiful little whine tacked to the end of her words.

Jeff paid no attention to her, not even considering it worth while to reply. He got up, took his hat, and struck out upon the open road in the opposite direction to town.

Occasionally he got work. At times he centered all his energies on his task and did remarkably well, for he was both strong and deft. But always, when near success, the thought came, "Oh, well, I'm only old Jim Gardner's son—what's the use?" His courage would slip away; he would grow listless and careless, and directly lose his job.

For two years he tried nearly everything. He worked on a farm for a few months, then at a sawmill. He clerked in a store, was a newsboy on a train, canvassed for a book, and did dozens of odd jobs.

Sometimes he would fiercely declare, "I will succeed," but always when at the point of success came that haunting obsession, "I can't—I'm only old Jim Gardner's boy—none of us ever succeed." The oftener he failed the less grew his energy and self-confidence. He had shifted around until his clothes were shabby and he wore a cringing, hangdog look. He had never written to his father, for his heart was bitter, and he blamed him for all his failure.

At last he reached bottom, and was tramping the city searching for work—anything to pay for a meal and a bed. "Old Jim Gardner's boy, Old Jim Gardner's boy," sounded mockingly from the clanging noises of the street. "Old Jim Gardner's boy" was written in his cringing, halting attitude as he asked vainly for work.

For a week he lived on one meal a day, and slept wherever the police would let him—on vacant lots, in feed yards, in boxes.

Then one day a man met him and looked him over sympathetically.

"The city is no place for a boy like you," he said. "It will be winter soon and you'll freeze and starve. Go to the country. There is plenty of work gathering corn there now."

"I can't," he answered dully; I've nothing to go on."

"Here," and the man gave him three dollars; "that will take you a hundred miles into the country. Go down there to that depot and catch the first train."

Jeff sat by the window as that car sped along and wondered if he really could get a job gathering corn—it was November now—if he only could it would mean plenty to eat and some place to sleep.

The train slowed down for a station. There was the music of a band and the sound of much cheering. As the train stopped the passengers put their heads from the window to see.

"It is the new governor," some one said; "there he comes."

A fine, strong, warm-hearted looking man entered the car, and took the first vacant chair by the aisle. It happened to be beside Jeff.

Something of the forlorn, pathetically bitter look about the boy must have stirred his sympathy, for he began to talk directly that the train was in motion.

"In hard luck, my boy?" He laid a strong, firm hand on Jeff's knee.

"Yes."

"Well, keep up hope and work on. You will pull through after a while."

Something in his sympathy touched the boy, and almost unconsciously he told his story of failure—only he did not mention his father.

"I know what it is," said the governor, and his eyes grew reminiscent. "I came to America from Ireland when I was fifteen. I was a country boy and knew nothing of the way of a city—and I was not strong. I could not work on the streets or the railroads. I walked the hot pavements many days, trying for work.

"At last I got a place in the kitchen of a cheap restaurant. The heat was terrible. The horrid smell of the steaming, spoiled food was worse; and the curses of the cooks and waiters nearly drove me mad.

"I was sensitive, and afraid I would not please. They worked me almost to death, and abused me fearfully for my ignorance and awkwardness.

"I slept in a little airless hall over the restaurant, where the heat made the nights more hideous than the days.

"One day I slipped on the greasy floor and dropped a large bowl of hot tomato soup. The proprietor heard the crash and rushed in, snarling like a mad dog. He grabbed me by the neck and rubbed my face in the soup on the floor, and he rubbed the stuff into my hair and clothes, and down my neck, then kicked me out into the street.

"I was in a horrible plight, and as I walked the street, rage and despondency fought within me. I decided that I would kill the proprietor and then go and jump into the river.

"When it grew dark I stole a knife and started back to the restaurant. Under a corner light I came face to face with a young man, who stopped and spoke to me.

"'In hard luck, partner?' he asked. He had the gentlest eyes and the sweetest smile of any man I ever saw.

"'Yes,' I said, 'I'm out of a job.' I did not tell him what I had started to do. He talked with me a few minutes. 'Come with me,' he said, 'and I'll try to get you a job.'

"He taught in a night school, and I waited at the foot of the stairs for two hours while he gave his lessons. Then he took me to his room. I guess it was not much of a room, but it seemed like heaven to me then, for it had a window that opened to the outside air.

"Next morning he gave me one of his suits of clothes—he had only two. He was a small man, so his clothes just fit me—I was only sixteen. He walked with me all day hunting a job, and finally found one. After I started to work he got me interested in the night school."

The governor paused a minute. "And I was not the only one he saved. There were dozens of others."

He ran his hand across his forehead and his lips trembled slightly as he added:

"You know, lad, I'd rather see that man than any one in the world. For twenty years I have inquired in every city or town in which I stop, but I can not find him anywhere."

"What was his name?" asked Jeff, stirred by the story.

"James Gardner—we used to call him Jimmy."

It was a hundred miles across country to his home. He walked every mile of the way, and the evening of the third day came into town with his head held high and his step firm, as though ready for a race.

Unmindful of his worn and shabby appearance, he greeted several acquaintances heartily as he passed down the main street. But his greetings were brief; he was started for the little farm three miles south of town.

It was daylight when he reached the house. His father was walking disconsolately up and down the yard, his head drooped forward, an absent, weary look on his face.

With a rush Jeff cleared the fence and crossed the yard. With a terrific grip his arms went about the little man and held him tight.

"And you have really come back to me, my son?" said the father, tremulously.

"Yes"—and Jeff's voice rang—"I have come back to you and victory.—Selected.

OUR DEAD IN FRANCE.

The eye is to be congratulated on coming into its own just how, so much is its importance as a medium for receiving knowledge being recognized. This little member is being catered to as never before. The ever-increasing popularity of motion pictures, and the thousands of dollars spent every month on illustrations for the magazine stories which we read, to make up the picture supplements that our eyes feast on, or to render advertising columns tempting and catchy, all show the trend of the age.

It was decidedly a step forward when the fact was established that four-fifths of all our impressions are recorded through the sense of sight. Its value has been demonstrated in endless ways. Untold teaching devices have originated with this principle, and the path to learning is less thorny for the kiddies in school. Indeed, life is brighter for everyone all round.

But each new possession brings its responsibilities, even in the acquisition of a bit of knowledge, and we are bound to ask ourselves where the results of all this appeal to the eye will lead us. Those who know Germany from the inside tell us that the moral decline which has been in progress there for the last decade had its beginnings in the deterioration of her literature and art. A critic who went to Germany for the express purpose of making a study of modern art there tells us of the "current degradation of morals" which stared at one from art exhibits and bookshop windows, was rampant in theatres, and even made itself felt in the gross, over-fed faces of the people one met.

No country can rise above its literature and art, for what the individuals read and admire is bound, in time, to be reflected in the character of the whole nation. We are accustomed to concede more to the written line than the one that is drawn, more to the story than its illustration; but one is as much the natural expression of the people as the other. That is, of the masses of the people; and it is on the common people, not the aristocracy, that the foundations of nations are laid in these days. Everyone, unfortunately, is not able to read with understanding; but he must be extremely ignorant or hopelessly dull who cannot extract some meaning from a pleasing picture, and the most frivolous will pause to look at it. It behooves us, therefore, to consider whether we on this side of the Atlantic are qualified to throw stones at Germany. Is the spirit of our modern art in general uplifting and elevating in tone? This may seem a trifling question, but in reality it is one of vital importance, and one which, if not looked squarely in the face now, will have to be confronted later. What sort of work is the public demanding just now from our artists and illustrators? A walk through any bookstall, with a careful survey of the covers of the periodicals displayed there, will give one an idea, as well as the host of glaring posters on signboards and outside theaters, which cannot be evaded.

I once read a criticism by an English writer on the young woman usually pictured on American magazine covers, in which he deplored her as an unhealthy, unnatural type. Possibly he had at that particular time been flooded with what we might call the second-rate periodicals, and yet, judging by their increasing numbers, they are really first in popularity with the reading public on both sides of the border. While we admit that there is a vast difference between the typical American or Canadian beauty and the English, we are loath to acknowledge that the young woman mentioned in this case is our national ideal. But if we keep on buying and admiring her on magazine covers or wherever she may be displayed, the chances are that she will in time become our type.

Frankness, they tell us, is the spirit of the age; but while there may be a certain amount of it desirable in the printed page, there is no possible excuse for carrying it into the pictured one. Laws against vice are growing more rigid every year, and yet runaway girls have increased fifty per cent since the war began. It is because of this insidious and powerful attack through the channel of the eye. Parents who are most careful in regard to the reading matter their children have access to are slow to realize their responsibility where pictures are concerned. The mother of a family of seven boys, living far inland, was distressed and puzzled when she was called upon to part with one after another of them at the call of the sea. A friend who was sympathizing with her as she bade the seventh farewell chanced on the explanation of the mystery. A large marine painting hung in a prominent place in the living-room. It was a beautiful and strikingly realistic delineation of the sea in its most majestic aspect.

"Have you had that long?" she enquired, pointing to the picture.

"It was a wedding gift," answered the anxious mother, "and has hung there ever since."

The boys themselves could not, perhaps, have told how they grew to love the water; so subtle, and yet none the less potent, is the influence of a picture.

Our young people of to-day are, as they should be, modern in their tastes. They demand pictures and they will have them—bright, colorful and lifelike representations of the subjects which most appeal to them. The time has come for a rigid censorship, not only of moving pictures, but also of every poster and picture exposed to public view. If we are lax in this matter now we lay up untold trouble for the future. And we must cultivate a national taste for the best. If our young people want pictures, why should they not have this craving satisfied first in their own homes? The pictures we force them to gaze at must not be merely harmless, they must be a source of uplift and inspiration. If there be any of us who still cling to the ancient steel engravings, beflowered old mottoes, unnaturally colored paintings, or perhaps a whole family of enlarged photographs, let us take them down. We cannot all import our art in the shape of priceless old masterpieces from Europe, but there are happily plenty of good copies of the world's greatest pictures within reach of all.

These are days when we must cease to think in small things, or rather when we must think of them only in their relation to the welfare of the country as a whole. This is the time to begin to conserve every force and bend every energy, not only to win the war, but to prepare for the upbuilding of the nation in the period which will follow peace. While our men are fighting and those at home working toward this end, it is our duty to see that no influence which can possibly be counteracted shall be allowed to undermine our national moral and physical strength.—Grace Tomkinson, in The Christian Guardian.

THE POWER OF EVIL.

A test was recently made in one of our munitions factories which forcefully illustrates the power that can be exerted by even a tiny agency when continuously repeated.

Here is the story as it is gleaned from the newspaper account: A great bar of steel weighing upward of six hundred pounds and something over eight feet in length was suspended vertically by a slender chain. Near by a small bottle cork was hung, attached to a silken cord. The purpose of the test was to see if the action of the cork when lightly swung against the great steel bar could possibly set it in motion. Again and again the cork was swung gently against the bar; but for a while the pendant steel seemed to remain motionless. At the end of ten minutes, however, when the cork had been tapped against the bar hundreds of times, a sort of nervous chill appeared to run through the bar. Another brief space, and the chill was followed by distinct vibrations, which increased in force till at the end of twenty-five minutes the great bar was swinging like the pendulum of a clock.

No one, even the strongest of us, is able in his own strength to withstand the constantly exerted power of evil, even though at first it may seem but an insignificant power. It is the divine hand that holds us steady and true.—Selected.

Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN NOTICE

The Publishing Committee of the Advocate at its meeting last October planned for an Advocate Campaign during the latter part of January and forepart of February similar to the Campaign of last year.

The following brethren were appointed to supervise the patronizing Conferences, planning the Campaign and pushing the same to a successful issue, viz.: Revs. J. H. Felts for the North Mississippi Conference, J. R. Jones for the Mississippi Conference, and Dr. J. M. Henry for the Louisiana Conference.

Each of the Conferences has unanimously endorsed this Campaign and I am hoping that each Commissioner shall find a hearty response from the brethren of the varied Conferences.

It is now high time to lay out our plans and get in touch with the pastors, appoint our committees and press the work.

Each Conference is to plan its own work as it deems best, working out the details of the Campaign. Last year a minimum number of new subscribers was allotted to each charge.

The GOAL for the Conferences is as follows: North Mississippi and Mississippi Conferences, 1500 each; Louisiana Conference, 1000. Let us go over the mark!

One item that we wish especially stressed this year is the securing of renewals. The Advocate office will furnish any brother so desiring with a list of the subscribers at his individual postoffice, so that he can see after the renewals. This is urgent, by reason of the fact that the law will not permit the management to continue delinquents as in the past but must drop them from the mailing lists, as they become delinquent.

I shall be glad to have word from the Commissioners of their progress in the work, and am ready to aid them or our pastors as I may be able.

JNO. F. FOSTER, Campaign Manager.

THE FIRST ROUND OF PASTORAL VISITS.

All our preachers will, very properly, begin the new year by making as complete a round of pastoral visits as they can. They will try to go into every home represented in the membership of their charges, and into many others where the way seems open. They will do this, not only to strengthen the bonds of social fellowship, but also to perform that ministry of service which leads people to the Church and to Christ. Many of our preachers are serving their old charges—the work of getting acquainted and of becoming identified with the life of the community has already been done; others, however, are in new places and among strangers—they must become familiar with their surroundings, learn to know their people and estimate the possibilities of the situation before they can go forward. The first round of pastoral visits is important from any point of view. It gives the preacher a fine opportunity to do some very specific things.

In the first place the earnest shepherd of the souls of men will be able, by tactful inquiry, to learn what are the family devotional habits of his people and to lay such emphasis upon the value and the necessity of devotional life in the home as will at least lead his people to think seriously upon these things. It is a matter of common knowledge that the family altar has practically disappeared from the modern home. All too few of our people observe regular periods of devotional Bible reading, seasons of meditation and prayer which are absolutely necessary for the maintenance of the highest type of spiritual life are so infrequently observed. And yet it may be that the minds of men and women are turning more eagerly than ever before to the Source from which all strength comes, and that they are ready for the kindly exhortation, the sympathetic suggestion of the preacher that they give themselves definitely and systematically to the practice of religion in the home.

In the second place the first round of pastoral visits gives the preacher an excellent opportunity to lay emphasis upon the importance of attending the public services of the Church. We have often felt that a great many of us are a little too lax in our teaching at this point. The fact that we ourselves are to do the preaching is of course a little embarrassing, when we come to urge people to attend the services, and we frequently content ourselves with a cordial invitation to be present when it is convenient to do so. Has not the time come for us to press heavily upon the conscience of our people the fact that attendance upon the services of the Church is a duty that cannot be safely neglected? Going to church should not be a matter of convenience, any more than going to business is. It is one of the means by which we are to maintain our religious and spiritual life—it is a means of spiritual nourishment—and unless we make use of it, we are bound to suffer. In the first round, we can properly stir up our people on this point.

In the third place, the first round of visits is an appropriate time to make inquiries concerning the use of Christian literature in the home. Our people generally, perhaps, read more than we think they do. Magazines and newspapers are to be found nearly everywhere, and books are coming to be read more and more. But it is the kind of literature our people are reading that we need to be concerned about. The membership of our Church will never be in a position to respond to the calls that the Church is putting forth now, unless it is an informed membership. Much information is, of course, given from the pulpit; but the surest and best way to let our people know what is going on in the Church 365 days in the year, is to get them to read the Church papers. The knowledge they will gain thereby will not only react favorably upon their own lives, but it will also show itself in a more intelligent interest in the organized activities of the Church. The preacher himself will find his work less arduous, and the spirit of intelligent cooperation will help him throughout the year.

These early weeks of the year will mean much to the preacher and to the people if they are employed in laying the foundation for an aggressive and well ordered program of work for the future.

THE EDITOR'S VACATION.

It came unexpectedly; it lasted longer than we wanted it to last; we are glad it is over. We are speaking of a recent vacation, strange as it may seem. It was a kind of enforced vacation—if we could have had our way about it, we never should have taken it. But we couldn't have our way.

We decided rather suddenly one day, being busy in the office at the time, to stop work for awhile. There was much work needing to be done, but we didn't care for it. There was nobody else to do it, either, but that made no difference. At the time, we didn't care particularly whether it was ever done or not.

We got in to leave the office—then we sat down and waited awhile. We wouldn't work—but we didn't feel like going away. Maybe we had a kind of sub-conscious feeling that it would be pleasant just to sit there and see the work go undone. We could have seen, by looking out of the window, many interesting sights—people and automobiles and street cars, and trays and such like—but we felt no interest in what was going on outside. Finally, though, we decided to go home—we would surprise the good wife and the little daughter by appearing at an unusual hour. They didn't know we had been mind to take a vacation. We had peculiar sensations as we thought about it. A kind of lonesome feeling crept over us. Then we felt chilly—or was it hot? Strange pains began to make themselves felt—achings of the bones, even of the marrow in the bones.

We went home, and having got there, we went to bed—in mid-afternoon we went to bed. It was a delightful place to go—but we were not happy. Who ever heard of spending a vacation in bed? But we stayed there. Perhaps we could have got up—but what was the use? It didn't make much difference—none in fact—whether we stayed in bed or got in. We finally decided to stay there indefinitely. Some of our friends dropped in to see us. One of them was a doctor. He seemed to think we were doing nothing out of the ordinary—quitting good hard work to go to bed. He said a good many people were doing it. We were not hungry, but he gave us a little piece of glass to suck. Then he took it away from us and examined it carefully, and gently murmured, "Uh-huh." Then he made notes on a little slip of paper and gave it to the wife. She left the room, but came back pretty soon with some capsules and such truck. The truth dawned upon us. Kind reader, we had the "flu." We kept it several days—in fact, for five days we lay there in bed taking good care of it. At last, though, we let it go—kindly and gently and gradually.

Our vacation is over and we are glad of it. The memory of it lingers with us, and we still "go gently" lest it return. But we are beginning to take a little interest in life again. Perhaps, in time we shall feel like doing a full day's work. But at any rate, hereafter, we shall try to take our vacations without any trimmings.

We extend our sincere sympathy to all those who have had, have now, or may in the future have the "flu."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

According to the Christian World, of London, Sir Douglas Haig is a Presbyterian.

Rev. D. B. Boddie, well known in Louisiana and Arkansas, is now pastor of our church at Kirbyville, Texas.

The Christmas Roll Call for the Red Cross has added millions of members to that organization. Have you joined?

Rev. J. W. Ramsey requests us to state that his new postoffice address is Lockhart, Miss., where correspondents may address him.

Rev. S. J. McLean, of Farmerville, La., writes that he is among a good people—they have given him a generous "pounding" since he arrived at his new field of labor.

Rev. G. R. Ellis, of Seminary, Miss., writes as follows: "I have been a subscriber to the Advocate about forty years, and it has been, under God, a great blessing to me and my family."

All seats in Trinity Church, New York, will, hereafter, be free. This changes a policy that has been followed in that historic church for 221 years. Dr. W. T. Manning is the rector.

Rev. R. O. Brown, and Rev. B. P. Fullilove, the new pastors of First Church, Corinth, and South Side, Corinth, respectively, have reached their new fields of labor, and are energetically at work.

We have received a card bearing this beautifully engraved inscription: "Oliver McDonald Clegg, December 7, 1918." We extend congratulations to the happy parents, Rev. and Mrs. Leland Clegg.

The congregation of the First Methodist Church, New Orleans, will tender their new pastor, Rev. R. H. Harper, and his wife, a reception in the church parlors on Friday evening, January 10.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, the famous evangelist, former Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, died on Christmas day. Funeral services were held in New York on December 29.

Rev. A. L. Davenport is beginning his fourth year on the Corinth Circuit, North Mississippi Conference. He writes appreciatively of his people, and states that the outlook for the year is very bright.

Rev. P. H. Fontaine spent the Christmas holidays in New Orleans visiting relatives. We had the pleasure of shaking hands with Brother and Sister Fontaine at the Carrollton Avenue Church last Sunday.

Dr. H. M. Whaling, of Bastrop, Texas, presented his wife a $500 Church Extension Annuity Bond, secured from the Board of Church Extension, just before the holidays: This was a very appropriate Christmas gift.

Rev. H. A. Gatlin, writing from Tylertown, Miss., says that he has not been able to do anything since Conference because he has been laid up with the influenza. He was taken sick the day after he got home from Conference.

Rev. L. F. Alford is greatly pleased with his new appointment at Laurel, Miss. He writes that he feels very much as if he were getting back home, as he served that charge some nine years ago. The people gave him a cordial reception.

Rev. A. C. McCorkle, of the North Mississippi Conference, writing from Durant, Miss., states that he has already secured one $50 Liberty Bond for the Centenary cause; and that he hopes to get more soon. This is a good beginning.

During the past year the student members of the Missionary Union of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago contributed $3205 for foreign and home missions. Of this amount, $2960 was divided equally among 37 different mission boards—$80 to each.

Rev. J. C. Ellis writes that he and his family were cordially received by the good people of New Augusta, Miss., when they arrived there on Dec. 19. They were met at the train and escorted to the parsonage, where a fine supper was awaiting them.

Rev. H. S. Johns, chaplain of the Louisiana State Penitentiary, was unable to attend the sessions of the Louisiana Conference on account of an attack of the influenza. He was greatly missed. We are glad to be able to report that he has recovered his health.

The Alabama Christian Advocate announces that its subscription list has reached the magnificent total of 17,000. The goal has been set at 20,000, and we doubt not that it will be reached. We heartily congratulate all concerned on this remarkable record in Church journalism.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Louisiana Conference Centenary Secretary, is meeting with the preachers of the New Orleans District at First Church to-day to plan for the Centenary campaign within the bounds of the District. He will hold similar meetings in the other Districts in the near future.

A regrettable error occurred in our account of the proceedings of the Mississippi Conference in the statement that Rev. H. R. McKee located; it should have been Rev. H. K. McKee. Brother H. R. McKee is happily situated in his new work at Meridian, Miss., and is preaching to growing congregations.

Rev. John M. Sprihger, superintendent of the Congo Mission of the M. E. Church, whose headquarters are Elizabethville, Belgian Congo, Africa, passed through New Orleans last week on his way to New York, where he goes to engage in the work of the Centenary Movement. He worshiped with our First Church congregation last Sunday.

Rev. R. V. Fulton, in a letter dated December 23, writes as follows from Pineville, La.: "We have been well received by the excellent people of this charge. The ladies had the parsonage in readiness for our reception, with a nice, warm dinner on the table, and numerous good things to eat stored in the pantry. The prospects are bright for a good year."

Mr. W. M. Spinks, of Ruston, La., who was elected Conference lay leader at the recent session of the Louisiana Conference, has found it necessary, on account of his removal to Memphis, Tenn., to resign that position. The presiding elders, at their recent meeting in Alexandria, appointed Mr. R. O. Randle, of Monroe, to the position.

Rev. B. W. Lewis has been royally received by the good people of Flora, Miss. Needless to say, he is greatly pleased with his work.

Rev. J. E. Gray writes from Magnolia, Miss., that he has been warmly welcomed by the good people of that thriving little city, and that he faces a very inviting field of labor.

Rev. L. L. Roberts, the new pastor of First Church, Laurel, Miss., writes that he has been most cordially received, and that the outlook for a great year in the work is encouraging.

Rev. H. E. Carter, formerly of Magee, Miss., writes that he has been transferred to the North Mississippi Conference and stationed at Tunica. He is greatly pleased with his appointment.

The Texarkanian, of Texarkana, Ark., states that Dr. Theodore Copeland, the new pastor of First Church, Texarkana, has made a fine beginning in that important pastorate. The people are delighted with his preaching, and they like him as a man.

Rev. C. C. Evans, who was assigned to Canton at the recent session of the Mississippi Conference, has been cordially received by the people of his new charge, and he reports that the outlook for the year's work is most encouraging. He pays high tribute to his predecessor, Rev. J. D. Ellis.

The Bolivar Commercial, published at Cleveland, Miss., in its issue of December 27 pays high tribute to Rev. T. M. Bradley, who was returned to Cleveland as pastor for the third year. He is spoken of as a very useful and helpful factor in the community life of the town, as well as in the Church. We know the tribute is well deserved.

Rev. R. T. Ware, of the Louisiana Conference, informs us that it has been arranged for him and Rev. Henry T. Young to exchange appointments. Brother Ware will serve the Mooringsport charge, and Brother Young, the Jena charge. Brother Ware requests us to state that his postoffice address will be Mooringsport, La. He is delighted with the outlook for the year.

According to an exchange, the Virginia Conference has purchased the Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate from Bishop James Cannon, Jr., for $16,400 and renamed it the Richmond Christian Advocate. Rev. G. H. Lambeth has been elected editor, at a salary of $4000 a year. The Conference assumed an assessment of $25,000, to cover a period of five years, to pay the initial cost of the paper and to supplement its support.

The presiding elders of the Louisiana Conference held a meeting at Alexandria, La., on December 27 to consider plans for carrying the Centenary Movement to a successful conclusion. Rev. N. E. Joyner, the Conference Centenary Secretary, was in attendance. The whole matter was carefully considered, and great interest was manifested. We predict that the Louisiana Conference, under the energetic leadership of Brother Joyner and the presiding elders, will more than reach the goal that has been set.

One of the best business men in the South has recently sent to the Board of Church Extension, $10,000 in Liberty Bonds, on the annuity plan, by which he establishes a perpetual memorial for himself and wife. He and his wife, being well advanced in years, receive nearly twice as high rate of interest as the Government pays. These Bonds will be sold to the best advantage and the money loaned out at 4 per cent to build churches. How much good this money will do during the next two hundred years, no man can estimate.

Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, presiding elder of the Port Gibson District, authorizes us to state that changes in appointments have been made since Conference by which Rev. G. S. Harmon will remain at Poplarville instead of going to Crawford Street, Vicksburg, and Rev. N. B. Harmon will go to Crawford Street insead of to Poplarville. He also authorizes us to state that Dr. H. Walter Featherstun and Rev. T. J. O'Neil have exchanged appointments, so that Dr. Featherstun will go to Utica and Brother O'Neil will go to Rolling Fork.

The announcement of the first round of quarterly conferences for the Alexandria District, Louisiana Conference, Rev. Briscoe Carter, presiding elder, reached the office too late to appear in full in this week's Advocate. We give the first few appointments here—the full list will appear next week: LeCompte and Cheneyville, at LeCompte, Jan. 5, 6; Merryville, Jan. 11, 12, a. m.; De Ridder, Jan. 12, p. m.; Carson, Jan. 13, p. m.; Group Meeting, at DeRidder, Jan. 14. The group meeting at DeRidder will be attended by the pastors and laymen of the following charges: Merryville, Carson, Longville, Elizabeth, Leesville.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Rev. J. L. Nabors, Kossuth, Miss., 2; T. M. Babington, Franklinton, La., 5; Rev. B. P. Jaco, Winona, Miss., 3; Rev. B. F. Jones, Lumberton, Miss., 2; Rev. Olin Ray, Tunica, Miss., 3; Rev. T. H. Dorsey, Corinth, Miss., 4; Rev. J. T. McCafferty, Starkville, Miss., 3.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Help your money to grow.

MRS. W. H. HARTWELL.

Mrs. W. H. Hartwell, the daughter of Rev. David and Mrs. Melissa Wiggins, of the Mississippi Conference, was born in Smith County, Miss., March 20, 1846. She was reared in a large family, one of eight childdren, and grew to young womanhood in the parsonage homes of her father's pastorates. In her early childhood she united with the Church in which she had been reared, and which she always loved so much. Old Sharon Female College, of happy memory in South Mississippi, gave her, as it gave to many others, an excellent education, which well fitted her for life's duties. She graduated from this college in 1865. At twenty years of age, on Feb. 7, 1866, she was married to Mr. Wm. Henry Hartwell, who preceded her to the glory world by a few years. There were born to them seven children, all of whom are still living—Mrs. Edward Blackstone, Mrs. B. E. Eskridge, Mr. L. M. Hartwell, Mrs. H. M. Spencer, Mr. E. W. Hartwell, Mr. W. H. Hartwell, and Miss Lillie Hartwell. She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Spencer, at Port Gibson, Miss., Oct. 21, 1918, and was buried at Water Valley, beside her husband, the day following. Rev. J. W. Dorman, her loved pastor, conducted the obsequies.

This brief chronicle records the dates and larger events of her beautiful and saintly life. It gives no indication of the great and utterly unselfish service she so modestly and willingly gave to her generation. Indeed, that record is only in heaven, and no one man can make accounting for it. But it would be as well an ungrateful as unfeeling generation that did not make some attempt fittingly to record her rare qualities.

The writer of this memoir was her pastor for four years at Water Valley, where she lived for many years in the latter part of her life. It has never been his privilege to be associated with one who contributed more largely to the higher Christian ideals. Possessed of a most refined and sensitive nature, she had cultured it with the noblest acquirements. Kind and gentle, she had learned the secret of Isaiah's admonition that "in quietness and confidence shall be thy strength." At times, in the retreat of her home, she would appear almost mystical in her thought; but when one saw her in the currents of life, ministering to any who had need of her ministries, one could know her to be the most practical of all. In the commonplaces, she spoke the language of ordinary usage; but when she came to speak of the higher and rarer things of life and of God it was with another language. And when she spoke of these great themes upon which her quiet, waiting soul had meditated, it was not with borrowed thought of foreign words. She did not tell what others had seen and told, but what she herself had beheld with her own eyes. We knew that she had stood above the clouds on some high peak and had looked on enchanting beauty. Her face would be glorious, like that of Moses coming down from the mount of God, and her garments would have the odor of myrrh, and alloes, and cassia out of the ivory palaces. Without the technique of the poet, she yet had his soul and beautiful dreams and imagery.

Her devotion to her Church and its various activities was unmeasured. A careful reader of Christian literature, she was well informed concerning the far-flung battle line of the Christian forces, and there was never an advance movement of the Kingdom which did not enlist her keen interest and active support. She was specially interested in the missions, both at home and abroad, which the Church established. In the Sunday school work of the Church, she was a careful student and a genius at instruction. Her beautiful patience and sublime simplicity, with her passionate love of child life, gave her unusual qualifications for teaching children. As the superintendent of the beginners' department in the large school at the First Methodist Church of Water Valley, she gave the church a great upward impetus. Though in poor health, and for many years a great sufferer, she was a regular attendant on the stated services of the Church. Often she was in her place under conditions which would have deterred the most faithful and devoted.

The investment of her rare gifts in the work of the Church at Water Valley was of such sort as to evoke from the entire Church the warmest love for her. As an expression of their affection, and as a token of their appreciation of her untiring and ceaseless service, the membership of the Church and Sunday school presented to her a beautiful loving cup, with the inscription, "She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness."

No family ever had a truer or more devoted mother. Both by precept and example, she pointed and led the way to the highest excellence. Her memory will be to her children their most sacred heritage, and a continual inspiration to the highest things.

But she now sleeps in God. Infinitely happy the awakening! The path of the just is as a shining light, shining more and more unto the perfect day.

BORROWED HOME NO INDUCEMENT TO KOREAN NEW WOMAN.

The new woman of Korea who has come under Christian influence has today a true sense of right and independence of judgment. The Korea Mission Field tells the story of a Korean girl who was betrothed by her father while yet a child. The young man was taken into the home to work for his future bride. In the meanwhile the father sent the girl to a Christian school where she later accepted Christ. Upon her graduation her father concluded that she was too good for the man to whom he had betrothed her, and that a marriage much more advantageous could be arranged. However, he found that the Christian experience and education had created in his daughter a true sense of duty. This modern Rachel was not going to allow her Jacob to be cheated out of his prize, and no matter what alluring propositions for a husband were made to her, she insisted firmly that her father must fulfill the contract.

The next day after the wedding the girl was taken according to custom to pay her respects to her husband's family. She was much surprised to be shown into the fine room of a prosperous looking house, since she knew that her husband's family were quite poor. It turned out that the room had been borrowed from a relative, for the bridegroom was ashamed to take his genteel bride to the squalid home of his father. The girl, however, proudly replied that she would not stay in a borrowed house, and insisted upon being taken to the house of her father-in-law. This Korean new woman is at present the school mistress of a large Christian school.—Bulletin.

Wonderful Egg Producer.

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 9251 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF.

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.—Adv.

The value of iron in medicine has long been known, but never more appreciated than to-day.

People are learning that in Peptiron—a real iron tonic—this most useful metal is so happily combined that it is acceptable to all, even those who, for some reason or other, have been unable to take it in the past.

Peptiron is an agreeable, easily assimilated, non-constipating preparation of iron, nux, pepsin, and other tonics and digestive, and is giving great satisfaction.

In cases where blood-cleansing and liver-stimulating as well as nerve-strengthening are needed, Peptiron is very effectively and economically supplemented with Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills. These three medicines form the Triple Combination Treatment to which the C. I. Hood Co. is now calling attention as especially beneficial to sufferers from impure blood, weak, unstrung nerves, torpid and sluggish liver, or a generally run-down condition.—Adv.

MADE HIM SICK, THEN CURED HIM.

One night, while sitting around the fireside, Miss Edna Hale, the baby girl in the P. H. Hale family, suggested that some one should get busy and raise funds with which to dress up their pastor. The idea seemed to appeal to Miss Mittie Hale, an older sister, who got earnestly engaged in the work and successfuily canvassed Florence, while Brothers P. H. Hale and J. H. Singletary looked after the other churches and secured forty-four dollars and fifty cents. Of course this movement was a secret to the pastor until the day arrived for the dressing, when suddeniy he was invited to take a trip to Jackson, and suffer himself to be dressed up. He did so, humbly as a lamb. What do you think? This preacher left Jackson with a thirty-five dollar suit of clothes, eight dollar pair of shoes and a John B. Stetson hat costing seven and a half dollars. You ought to have seen him. He had to pinch himself to see if it were Williams. You don't know how anxious he was for the day to arrive for him to leave for Conference; but lo! and behold! the next morning he found himself with a high fever, and consequentiy he did not get to go to Conference. Some said he had the "flu," but his wife said, "He could not stand to be dressed up and got sick."

Well, something had to be done to cure the preacher; so Mrs. Bennie Therrell, a good Baptist lady, solved the problem by getting busy and collecting a nice lot of edibles and sundry things, and when she learned that the preacher had been returned to Florence, she and quite a host of other friends came and gave him a splendid "pounding," one that does good. In a few choice words, Prof. Brock, our beloved teacher, forcefuily and gracefully presented the presents.

The pastor and famiiy, who did not have words with which to express themseives, set before their good friends all the pecans they could eat. We ali enjoyed ourselves and the good friends went home rejoicing because they had healed the sick preacher. He has been up and going ever since. May God bless those good people.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Dear Brother Carley: Greetings of the season. I hope you have a bright, happy, and successful new year. I have a little matter that I want to teli you about, which, if it should materialize, would amount to a good deal. There is a person here who has several hundred two-year-old paper-shell pecan trees for sale at seventy-five cents each. They will bear in six years. If the pastors of Louisiana and Mississippi could be induced to buy two or more of these trees, or get some member of their congregations to do so, and set them out in the parsonage yards, in just a few years there would be a good supply of pecans for the pastors and their families. From October until February is the time to set these trees out. I will gladiy receive all orders for said trees and deliver same to the owner of the trees and guarantee shipment of same as long as they last.

I suggested this idea to the owner of the trees and she agreed to furnish them at the low rate of seventy-five cents each for said purpose. My point is to get the brethren to buy these trees at a bargain and thereby make parsonage folk glad in the years to come.

We arrived here safely and are busy. I expect to have a great year.

MRS. JULIA McKEOWN.

The subject of this notice was born in Charlotte, N. C., January 1, 1843. She was married to James P. McKeown, on February 22, 1869. She passed to the Great Beyond Nov. 16, 1918.

It was the privilege of the writer to know her for some years, and in her life she ever exemplified the true worth of our glorious religion. She gave her heart to God early in life and rejoiced in the consciousness of her salvation. As a Christian, she was humbie and faithful in the discharge of her duties. She took a iively interest in the work of the Master, and especiaiiy did she enjoy the Sabbath school, entering into it with zest and cheerfuiness.

As a wife, she was true and loving, in whom "the heart of her husband did safely trust, for she did him good and not evil all the days of her life."

As a mother, she was self-denying and patient, "looking well to the ways of her household." As a friend, she was faithful and true. She suffered much a few weeks before her departure, but she bore it all with Christ-like patience, without murmuring. Her trust in Him was beautiful and unshaken.

Great is her reward in heaven. Sleep on "Mother McKeown,"

Thou wert a child of God,
Thy work on earth is done,
Thy body dweils beneath the sod,
Thy soui, beyond the sun.

Whereas our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom removed from our midst last Wednesday night, our friend and comrade, Robert S. Ball; therefore be it resoived:

That the League has iost one of its most valuable officers and members, whose absence we deplore, whose association we miss.

Resoived further, That the Church and community have lost one of their most lovable Christian characters, who was worthy of our imitation.

Resolved further, That we extend our sympathy to his family and bereaved ones, and ask them to look to our Heaveniy Father to guide them over these dark places in life.

Resolved further, That we furnish a copy of these resolutions to the family, one to the New Orleans Christian Advocate, one to the Simpson County News, one to the D'Lo Herald, and a copy be spread on the minutes of our League.

WE MUST HELP.

The country of the Garden of Eden, of Christ's ministry and Paul's missionary labors—a territory roughly as large as the United States east of the Mississippi River—has been for many years the scene of the most barbarous and bloody atrocities known to modern civilization. The story of the deliberate massacre of hundreds of thousands of Christian Armenians by the Ottoman government is as familiar to us as the tragic war history of Belgium.

But the last four years have seen this suffering multiplied, so that now four million starving, homeless war refugees are scattered over Armenia, Syria, Persia, and other districts of the "Near East." Up to the signing of the armistice, oniy about one million, or one-fourth, of these have been accessible to relief workers. To meet the desperate need of these war sufferers the American Committee for Relief in the Near East, the oniy organized agency for relief in these countries, is pianning to ask the American people for $30,000,000 during the week of January 12-19. President Wilson has issued a proclamation appealing to the generosity of the public in behalf of the campaign.

About the authenticity of the reports of Turkish persecution, Dr. Samuel T. Dutton, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Near East Relief, said, "Crueities more diaboiicai than any in history have been perpetrated by the Ottoman government, and have been reported by absoiutely trustworthy eye-witnesses at the American Embassy in Constantinople. The unreaiity of such persecution to an American, as well as the thousands of miles between us and this greatest crime of civiiization, has kept many Americans, so far, from feeling this demand upon their humanity and justice, keenly."

Regarding the present actual state of the peoples of the Near East, Dr. Dutton said, "Starvation has become so common in these lands that one of our workers sent the following report, 'Heroic men and women who have strained every energy to save lives, now have the unthinkable task of picking out those who shall perish.' This is the human pressure back of the slogan, 'They shall not perish,' being used in the campaign for thirty million dollars."

Dr. Dutton was asked if he believed the American people were tired of giving. He said, "America's money is going out of her pockets faster than ever in her history, because it is America's part in this frightful world cataclysm. It is to these people we owe in part the debt of our untouched homes, our unviolated families, and our almost normally conducted industries. For these things are thirty millions of dollars an adequate return? When the American people come to realize the situation in the Near East as it actually is, I think not."

In concluding his comment upon the President's urgent appeal Dr. Dutton said, "As the President is trying to lead the nation to a just peace, so he desires that America shall lead the world in this supreme effort to save and rehabilitate the Christian peoples who, because they have clung to their faith, have been compelled to pass through the surpassing travail of the war."

Hellam, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and a displacement. I felt all run down and was very weak. I had been treated by a physician without results, so decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and felt better right away. I am keeping house since last April and doing all my housework, where before I was unable to do any work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly the best medicine a woman can take when in this condition. I give you permission to publish this letter."—Mrs. E. R. CRUMLING, R. No. 1, Hellam, Pa.

SALIENT POINTS IN THE FIGHT FOR PROHIBITION.

Militant Friends, in 1685, started a movement to prevent drunkenness at funerals.

First part of the nineteenth century the churches and States generally took action, punishing drunkenness. Abstinence societies were founded.

Coffee ration allowed as option to United States soldiers instead of rum ration.

Maine adopted prohibition in 1850, other States following up to 1860, in advance of public sentiment, Maine alone remaining dry.

Woman's Christian Temperance Union organized in 1874, gathering together a great body of earnest and able women of the nation. Temperance instruction was subsequently put in public school courses and in Sunday schools. Activity among church boards of temperance increased.

Anti-Saloon League organized in 1893, combining a large constituency of temperance people of both sexes, all denominations and all political parties. Organization pushed everywhere to elect dry legislators.

Canteen abolished in 1901.

Local prohibition under option laws as a stepping stone to State and national prohibition had been adopted by forty-two States by 1909 and eight States had passed on to State prohibition.

German-American Alliance granted charter by Congress in 1907. Combine later made with United States Brewers' Association, to work together. Brewers paid Alliance bills and supported same legislative candidates.

By 1912 the majority of counties in the United States were dry and had begun to elect dry legislators. Many county jails closed.

Eleven thousand saloonkeepers ousted in 1908 and 80,000 within three years.

Dry population in 1910 was 41,500,000.

Conference of governors, congressmen, judges and other public men follows Anti-Saloon League convention in Washington, D. C., December, 1911, to plan interstate law campaign to protect dry States.

Dry States numbered nine in 1913 and seventeen others had fifty to ninety per cent of population in dry territory.

Navy dry order issued by Secretary Daniels, 1913.

Interstate shipments in violation of a State law stopped by Webb-Kenyon law, passed over veto of President Taft, March 1, 1913.

National convention on prohibition called by Anti-Saloon League at Columbus, O., November, 1913, at which campaign for national prohibition amendment was planned and committee of one thousand sent to Washington, D. C., to present the request.

Hobson resolution to submit prohibition amendment to national constitution received majority of eight votes in Congress, December 22, 1914, but failed to get two-thirds majority.

Total of nineteen dry States in 1916. Dry area in United States eighty per cent. Population therein 51,000,000.

January 8.—Prohibition of interstate shipments held valid by the United States Supreme Court.

Congress prohibited circulation of liquor ads. in United States mails and adopted bone-dry provisions, protecting all prohibition States.

July.—Dry army order published by the government.

Porto Rico voted dry.

Dry zones created about war camps and industries.

August 1.—United States Senate votes to submit national amendment.

September 7.—Distilleries closed under food bill. Closing of breweries sidetracked by the President, who was empowered to close them at will.

December 17.—National prohibition amendment submitted to the States by two-thirds vote of Congress.

Ratification.

Of the thirty-one States which are now prohibition States, nine ratified the prohibition amendment since Jan. 1, 1918. Rest expected to ratify. Also five wet States ratified. Only thirty-six required to make amendment effective. At least three and perhaps six other States elected ratification Legislatures, so the chances are that above forty States will have ratified by the end of January, 1919. One year following in January, 1920, the United States will be constitutionally dry—the answer to the prayers of millions of broken hearts, the culmination of the Church's crusade of a century.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP.

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets To-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.—Adv.

BANISH CATARRH

Hyomei Will Relieve You or Nothing to Pay.

When you make up your mind to get rid of disgusting Catarrh, follow this advice:

Go to your druggist; ask him for a HYOMEI Outfit (pronounce it High-o-me). This outfit consists of a bottle of HYOMEI (liquid), a hard rubber pocket inhaler, a medicine dropper, and full instructions for use. Pour a few drops into the inhaler, and breath it a few minutes each day, according to directions.

HYOMEI relieves Catarrh because it reaches every nook, corner, and crevice of the membrane of the nose, throat, and bronchial tubes. Stomach dosing, sprays, douches, and ointments don't kill the germs because they don't get where the germs are. As the publisher of this paper knows, if you are not satisfied with Hyomei in cases of Catarrh and colds of the head, Catarrhal Coughs, Bronchial Catarrh, Spasmodic Croup, Catarrhal Laryngitis or Hay Fever your money will be cheerfully refunded. Refuse substitutes. If your druggist does not sell it, we will send you a complete outfit, charges prepaid, for $1.15 Address, Booth's HYOMEI CO., Ithaca, N. Y.

HELP THE STARVING CHILDREN.

"Give while they live," "Save a child's life to-day," "Dollars or Deaths," "We will not let you starve," have been familiar headings in recent advertisements which were making an appeal to the children of America for more than 400,000 starving children in Bible Lands. The Christmas season is the time for the gifts of at least $2,000,000. The Sunday schools of the land have been communicated with four times from the office of the Armenian and Syrian Relief Committee, 1 Madison Avenue, New York. Under the able direction of W. C. Pearce, of the International Sunday School Association, most of the Sunday schools were visited on one of the early Sundays in December. All over this country Sunday schools are now prepared to render the Christmas service, "Magi of To-day." Of course the people are ready to give, for many have already sent in their contributions. The need is so great that every one is appealed to co-operate to their very fullest ability. We know that the children are starving over there in the land where Jesus lived. No one should pass by on the other side or even look with mere curiosity at the terrible sight of these dying children. Every one must act the real part of "The Good Samaritan," and in giving remember that the Samaritan not only thought of to-day but also of to-morrow ere he continued on his journey.

If any Sunday school superintendent has as yet made no preparation to have a "giving Christmas" in his school, let him begin at once to make even an eleventh hour preparation. Last year only 30,000 out of the 176,000 schools in America made any contribution for this work. The various denominations, almost without exception, are co-operating in these projected plans. In the office in New York from first to last there have been men and women working to get each school in their own denomination lined up for service in this work. The General In Chief is Rev. George T. Webb, D.D., Secretary of the Sunday School Council. That Sunday school room on the 26th floor of the Metropolitan Tower is a regular bee hive for activity. The shipping room is now working to its fullest capacity in honoring the orders for supplies that have been coming in, and soon the treasury department will be working overtime receiving and acknowledging the gifts that will total $2,000,000. This money will be received in amounts both large and small. Last year a man who read one of the advertisements wrote his check for $1000, pinned it to the ad. and sent it to the office in New York without any further comment.

Many Sunday schools in the fields that are under the direction of the World's Sunday School Association sent, what was for them, very liberal gifts. Japan Sunday schools forwarded $460, Brazil $1875, and Egypt the royal amount of $2,518.63. It takes much time as well as labor to accomplish such results. $1400 came from Brazil in October. It was mailed from Rio de Janeiro in July, and the Secretary spoke of the difficulties of getting returns from such a country as Brazil where direct means of communication are so often lacking. In Palestine these funds are being administered by a real Sunday school man, Major Stephen Trowbridge, who holds a high commission in the British army while he is acting for the Red Cross. At other times Major Trowbridge is known as Rev. Stephen V. Trowbridge, Field Secretary for Moslem Lands, representing the World's Sunday School Association. Mr. Trowbridge was loaned to the Armenian and Syrian Relief Fund for work in Palestine, where he distributed over $50,000 each month. A very interesting series of pictures has been sent of his work. In one he is seen handing out slices of bread to a group of refugee children in Jerusalem, while another photograph shows Major Trowbridge telling the story of David and Goliath to the same company of eager children. Hungry children are poor listeners over there as well as over here. These children who to-day are being saved from starvation will in no distant future be saved unto Jesus Christ, in whose name these ministrations are taking place.

Influenza has broken out again in some States and Christmas plans cannot be kept. Other reasons may interfere with taking this special gift at this time. The need is so great that each school is urgently requested to arrange a giving day for these starving children in Bible lands, even if that time is carried well into the new year. Children will be starving and needing your gifts whenever you are able to complete your plans. Gifts however small will be appreciated and amounts of great size are an absolute necessity. Five dollars will provide food for a child for a month and many schools are adopting a child abroad and sending their contributions regularly and continuously. The statement of old is still truth for to-day. "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

RESULTS OF "THE CHILDREN'S YEAR."

That the new national consciousness of children's needs developed by Children's Year has begun to show permanent results, is indicated in the annual report of the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, which has just been made public. The campaign was inaugurated with the beginning of the second year of the war in an effort to save babies' lives and to raise the standards for the health, education, and work of older children. The work has been done in co-operation with the child welfare committees of the Council of National Defense. "It is impossible," Miss Julia C. Lathrop, Chief of the Children's Bureau, writes, "to speak with too much appreciation of the power of this great body of volunteers."

Between six and seven million children have been weighed and measured. Many local committees have succeeded in providing follow-up measures to help parents in their endeavors to remedy defects which the tests have revealed. Scientific diets have been prescribed for many of the children whose examinations indicated that they were undernourished. In a number of places, public funds have been appropriated for permanent work for children as a result of the Children's Year, and many health centers, prenatal clinics, traveling clinics, and like measures for the better care of children have been established.

Through the weighing and measuring tests, the report points out, general attention has, for the first time, been drawn to the needs of the child of pre-school age, long known as the "neglected age." The claims of infants and the needs of mothers for better prenatal and confinement care have been given wide publicity by local committees working for a healthier childhood.

The older children have been given special attention. In order to afford older children opportunity to gauge their physical development tests of physical efficiency were made part of the recreation drive held in the summer. The drive included many other features, planned with the purpose of giving boys and girls a chance to develop wholesome interests and play under healthy, decent conditions.

The present drive of Children's Year is the Back-to-School campaign. It is now going forward in 36 States, and is an effort to get out of industry and back to school the many young boys and girls who left because of war conditions.—Children's Bureau Bulletin, Department of Labor.

FOOT TROUBLES

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, E. P. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.—Adv.

Aches and Pains of rheumatism are not permanently, but only temporarily, relieved by external remedies. Why not use an internal remedy—Hood's Sarsaparilla, which corrects the acidity of the blood on which rheumatism depends and cures the disease?—Adv.

TIME OUT.

Bless Her Heart!

The lady who likes children was gushing over Helen, aged three.

"How old are you, darling?" she asked.

"I isn't old," said Helen; "I'm nearly new."—Exchange.

A Close Diagnosis.

"I don't like your heart action," the doctor said, applying the stethoscope again. "You have had some trouble with angina pectoris."

"You're partly right, doctor," said the young man, sheepishly, "only that ain't her name."—Indianapolis Medical Journal.

Where It Helps.

"Do you think early rising is good for your health?" asked the languid city visitor.

"I don't know about my health," replied Farmer Cobbles, "but next to sun, rain, and fertilizer, it's the best thing there is for crops."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

He thought He Knew.

A glue factory stands near a certain railway. Its charms are not for the nose, and therefore a lady often carried with her a bottle of lavender salts. One morning an old farmer took the seat beside her. As the train neared the factory the lady opened her bottle of salts. Soon the whole car was filled with the horrible odor. The farmer put up with it as long as he could, then shouted, "Madam, would you mind puttin' the cork in that ere bottle?"—New York Tribune.

Cost Enough.

Sam, the chore man, returned from the city with a scarfpin that contained a "diamond" of no usual size. It was the pride of his heart and the envy of his village companions. He treated all inquiries from them as to its value and its authenticity with high scorn.

His employer, after a week of basking in its radiance, asked Sam about its history.

"Sam," he said, "is it a real diamond?"

"Well," said Sam, "if it ain't I've been skun out of a half-dollar."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

FIRST AID TO DIGESTION

In cases of indigestion or dyspepsia the contents of the stomach, for lack of a proper supply of digestive juices, first ferment, forming gases, and later decompose. This process is attended with more or less discomfort and reacts to the injury of all the digestive organs, with the result of poisoning the entire system, a condition known as auto-intoxication. Three prime considerations arise in treatment of such conditions:

First, the process of decomposition must be arrested, by neutralizing the acid condition of the stomach, thus giving prompt relief from pain.

Second, the salivary glands and other glands which produce the various digestive juices must be stimulated into active secretion in order that the food may be properly digested.

Third, the stomach nerves must be toned up into a healthy state and inflammatory conditions of the membranous lining allayed.

Mi-o-na tablets do this work with remarkable efficiency. So good are they for quick relief and for permanent restoration that they are sold only under guarantee of satisfactory results to the user. Your druggists charges 60c per package, but is under instructions to refund to any customer who is not amply satisfied. Sunday School

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

December has been a very busy month in many ways. I have not been in the field as much as at other times, but have had several good and, I hope, effective trips.

I had the pleasure of spending the third Sunday on the Shiloh charge. Shiloh, Cross Roads and Lodabar were visited.

I organized a teacher-training class—that is, I got 5 of the teachers to sign the cards pledging to take the course, and they promised to have a class. The money was made up to purchase little red chairs for the Beginners' Department and graded literature was ordered for it.

They pledged the Centenary Offering for the Sunday school and promised to hold the Missionary Programs.

Cross Roads organized a Cradle Roll and ordered the outfit. Two teachers pledged to take the teacher-training work. They promised to have a Standard Missionary School.

Lodabar school organized a Cradle Roll. Three of the teachers promised to take the teacher-training work. They also promised to make their school a Standard Missionary School.

The De Soto school was visited the fourth Sunday. I organized one teacher-training class with six pupils. All of these are now officers or teachers in the school, with possibly the exception of one. They agreed to make their school a Standard Missionary School. They pledged the holding a meeting of the Workers' Council once a month. I organized one Senior Wesley Bible Class with five pupils. They took a $5 mission special to start with. Graded the Beginners' Department and ordered the literature for it.

The New Prospect school, on the Trenton charge, has put the Graded literature in for the Beginners, Juniors and Intermediates. This is a fine forward step. I enjoyed the privilege of ordering the literature for them. Twenty books ordered and about $6 of other supplies.

Pray for me, brethren. I need your prayers as never before.

Your brother in Him,
JOHN C. CHAMBERS.
Shubuta, Miss.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"It's as certain as shootin'—your scholars is goin' to imertate you; consequently you better be wuth imertatin'."

"Fellow-teachers, we ain't teachin' things outen a book so much's teachin' livin' bein's on their way to heaven er hell, an' whar they brings up finally depends mightily on your teachin'."

"Th' Bunktown 'lectric light plant can't 'luminate no houses 'thout the's a point o'contact 'tween the plant an' the house. Jes so, yer teachin's not much 'count ef y' ain't got a point o' contact."

THE Y. W. C. A. IN PEACE.

The coming of peace brings grave problems. At all the big plants of industry where women have been employed, new workers have been arriving, to find work, and girls who have been receiving thirty dollars a week are reduced to twelve. The Young Women's Christian Association, which has recreation centers at these plants, has been requested by the agents of the factories to keep the club centers open as usual, advising and caring for the girls, till the last readjustment is made, and the last girl has gone home.

If, as anticipated, the munition plants will be taken over by private capital, and women will be employed in paper mills, dye factories, motor plants, etc., the Y. W. C. A. will continue to operate club centers for the women, for they will be exposed to the same hardships as during the war.

These clubs, or service centers, will include, as in time of war, an Information Bureau, Educational Classes, Recreational Opportunities, and Week-End Camping Places. The managers of these plants will continue to need the help of the Y. W. C. A., for they will not longer have the help of the government. There must be more of these centers because of greater need. There will be strikes in readjustment; and women of understanding must be available to give help. The standards won by American women now will become the standards of all nations. The program is 100-fold larger than the one necessary in war time.

"Reason cries, 'If God were good He could not look upon the sin and misery of men and live; His heart would break.' The Church points to the cross and says, 'God's heart did break.'" resulting in an injured finger, a stubbed toe, a splinter or any other of the numberless petty injuries tht are likely to happen any day, may not seem serious at first but when neglected and aided by the careless touch of a dirty hand may become infected and develop into an ugly sore and blood poison. Don't play with fate. Apply Gray's Ointment immediately and freely in all skin injuries. It gives immediate relief, soothes the pain, wards off blood poison and immediately begins its healing effect. Its constant use for ninety-nine years has made it a family word in every household. Ask your druggist or write W. F. Gray & Co., 800 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for sample.—Adv.

A SLIP OF THE KNIFE

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

Mrs. H. M. Patton, Waverly, Mo., writes: "I fed two boxes of 'More Eggs' to my hens and broke the egg record. I got 1,500 eggs from 160 hens in exactly 21 days." You can do as well. In fact, any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker write E. J. Reefer, poultry man, 6231 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

GETTING DOWN TO WORK.

The man whose nerves do not tingle with eagerness to get down to work in times like these is most phlegmatically constituted. Yesterday, fighters were being called for—and the response to the call was prompt and adequate. But the victory has been won, and now the world needs workers. There is a kind of glamour about going to war—though we would not detract in the slightest degree from the heroism of those who so freely offered their lives for their country. But work is often looked upon as drudgery. It is nothing of the kind. It is a tonic to body and mind and spirit. It may weary—but it produces happiness. What are tired muscles and aching limbs at the end of a day that has seen difficult tasks disposed of? Sleep comes easily and refreshingly, and a new day dawns with a light that heartens and cheers. The earnest workman sings a happy song as he goes to his work. He is doing his part in the reconstruction of the world. No passer-by can point the finger of scorn at him and say, "slacker!" He is hastening to meet the world's need, and the world welcomes him. He does not have to sing—the song will sing itself in his heart.

BIG BUSINESS.

Big business consists of two things: a big idea, and a big program to realize the idea. Back of both of these is, of course, a big man or a group of men. As a matter of fact, it takes big men to originate big ideas and formulate big programs.

It goes without saying that "big business" does not often develop suddenly or quickly. It is a process of growth—"first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear." The various business enterprises of to-day, that are commonly thought of when "big business" is mentioned, all illustrate the idea of gradual development.

We may say, too, that it takes big men to carry out the plans that are based upon the big ideas that lie back of all big business. There are, to be sure, minor positions to be filled, where mediocre men may find a sufficient field for the exercise of their limited abilities; but even here, energy and skill and faithfulness are essential if the business is to be developed to its fullest capacity.

We take it that the establishment of the Kingdom of God on earth is the biggest enterprise that has ever enlisted the interest of men. The dreams of empire of the most ambitious kings and emperors fade into insignificance in comparison with it. It involves all the peoples of earth, extensively, and all the powers of man, intensively. It embraces every form of legitimate activity in which men may engage. It is all-inclusive. It is an idea that could have originated only in the mind of the Eternal; its execution could have been inaugurated by no less than the Son of God.

But it is an idea that can be grasped by men, and it can be carried into execution only by the co-operation of the human with the Divine. The Church is the institution of divine origin into which men are organized for the purposes of the Kingdom and through which they work together with God for the coming of the Kingdom.

It follows that any place in the Church, from that of mere membership to that of official position, is to be looked upon as imposing heavy responsibility, offering great opportunity, and conferring high honor. This leads us to say that ministers of the gospel are called to positions in an organization by the side of which any other association of men is puny and insignificant. The psalmist had the right conception when he said, "I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness." He realized that he was a part of a system, an organization, than which there was no greater. Outwardly, "the tents of wickedness" were beautiful to look upon, being elaborately and expensively constructed, and conveying the impression of great wealth and worldly prosperity; we can easily understand how powerfully they would appeal to one who would look upon the purely material as a mark of eminence. Perhaps some preachers to-day look with more or less envious eyes upon those who are high up in "big business," enjoying the luxuries and pleasures that great wealth can provide. But the psalmist, wise in his own generation, knew that his position was inferior to none other.

So it is to-day; the Church is the biggest organization on earth. It is the concrete expression of an idea that originated in the Divine Mind; it has developed a program in comparison with which the plans of merely human organizations are not to be considered; it is "big business" raised to the nth power.

Is there a Church member, a minister, anywhere who does not realize this? Is there anybody connected with the Church of God in any capacity, who assumes an apologetic attitude, or feels embarrassment in the presence of the princes of commerce and industry? Let him awake to a realization of his true position; let him hold up his head, and stand confidently in the presence of earth's greatest. He may not be arrogant, but he may be bold. "I am a citizen of Rome," was a proud boast in olden times, and the dignity of that profession was recognized everywhere. Much more may the citizen of the Kingdom to-day proclaim his citizenship with the confident assurance that he need not stand abashed in any presence.

THE DEATH OF THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

On Monday morning, January 6, Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt passed away unexpectedly at his home, Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, N. Y. His death came as a shock not only to the people of the United States, but also to the entire world. He was generally looked upon as the great apostle of the strenuous life, and his whole career was marked by the qualities that are characteristic of an energetic and dominating personality. He was pre-eminently a man of action, though he was a diligent student of the difficult problems of national life, and a writer whose opinions were sought after and respected everywhere.

In his political life, he was both ardently admired and cordially hated. So vigorous was he in the expression and maintenance of his own views that it was almost impossible to assume an attitude of indifference toward him. But, friend and foe alike, now that the inevitable hour has arrived, unite in paying tribute to his memory and extolling his virtues.

He undoubtedly was a great American. Though the son of wealthy parents, there was nothing of the snob about him. He was democratic in his feelings and in his manner. His indomitable pluck is illustrated by his determination to overcome the handicap of a weak body as a youth by proper exercise and careful physical training. So successful was he that he became highly proficient in athletics. His love of outdoor life made him famous as a ranchman, hunter, naturalist and traveler. His courage was both physical and moral. He was always ready for a fight for the things he considered vital, and his opponents never expected him to do less than his best in his efforts to defeat them. He was intensely patriotic. He ardently advocated a policy of preparedness at a time when its wisdom was not clearly seen by a great many people. In the war with Germany, his impetuous temperament expressed itself in forcible denunciation of the atrocities of the Huns and fervent pleas that the United States take vigorous action against them. He gave four sons to the war, one of whom, Quentin, his youngest, met his death in France. In so many ways did he display what are thought of as characteristic American traits that he was frequently referred to as the typical American.

Those who were not in agreement with him in many of his views recognized his greatness as a man and as a citizen of our great country. His influence will long abide as a rich heritage to the public and private life of the nation.

CRITICISM OF THE Y. M. C. A.

Many of our readers have probably seen recently in the public press criticisms of the work of the Y. M. C. A., made by soldiers returning from France. We confess that these criticisms, made in detail by those who professed to be in a position to know whereof they spoke, distressed us greatly. We are especially glad, therefore, to be able to summarize the answers to those criticisms as made by Dr. John R. Mott, the chief executive of that great organization. Dr. Mott faced the criticisms fairly and fearlessly, and his answers may be taken as giving the exact facts in the case.

It was charged that the Y. M. C. A. failed to keep in touch with the wounded and ill in the hospitals. In answer, Dr. Mott states that the Y. M. C. A. entered into a definite agreement with the Red Cross that the Red Cross should concern itself with the care of the wounded and ill; the Y. M. C. A. and kindred organizations, with the

THE BOND OF YEARS.

Has the passing year been sad?
Are its pages stained with tears?
Does the coming year but add
To the burden of your fears?
Do the smiling days, now gone,
Linger like a perfumed dream?
Breaks the future like a dawn,
With a hope-inspiring gleam?
Sad or glad the fading year,
Rich or wan the dawning day:
God was there, and still is here,
And his love abides alway.

ENCOURAGEMENT TO PRAYER.

Here is the gracious exhortation of the Epistle to the Hebrews, "Let us therefore draw near with boldness unto the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy, and may find grace to help us in time of need." And lest anyone misapprehend the meaning of that word boldness, it may be said at once that the manner of our "drawing near," is to be a spirit not of presumption or irreverent familiarity, but of the fullest confidence and the utmost frankness. There need be no hesitation on the ground of personal unworthiness. There need be no fear that our case will not bo understood or that we shall be driven away empty-handed because of our sins. We need not seek to hide personal failures and weaknesses from the eye of Him with whom we have to do. We shall gain a full hearing and a sympathetic response.

"Jesus we know and He is on the throne." And thus we know that there is welcome for the sinner and grace for timely aid. Jesus shared our lot. He paid the price of devotion to the will of God. He put his shoulder to the burden of human sin and the pressure of it made Him cry, "Father, if it be Thy will, let this cup pass." Angels ministered unto Him, enabling Him to bear up under His triai. And the worst was yet to come. "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" He had to trust God in the dark. Yes, Jesus knows and Jesus is King. The throne to which we are invited to come is occupied by the sympathizing Jesus. He went through it all and through much more than we have to contend with. Let us, therefore, draw near. Let us do so with perfect confidence. We can dare to be perfectly frank. We may state our case in all its appalling sinfulness and need. He who drank the cup to the dregs, understands.

"There is mercy for the sinner and more graces for the good." All the fulness of the divine nature is pledged to our weakness and unworthiness. Christ has declared the significance of all that God is as committed to our service. In Christ, God gives us all—we were going to say, all that He is and has. And that means infinite mercy and God's boundless love—energy for just the support we need when we need it. We are encouragead to pray with the utmost confidence and frankness by the assurance that "the heart of the Eternal is most wonderfully kind," and that God's hand is extended with emergency aid. Have we accused God, as did a doubly bereaved man a few days ago, of being a devil? Have we rebelled at God's dealings with us and hardened our hearts in well-nigh blasphemous protests? We can afford to be perfectly frank even about that. We are urged to be so. The throne of the divine justice and holiness and glory is a throno of grace. Love that has its own motive, love for the unworthy and ill-deserving, is regnant there. We are assured of being understood, of receiving mercy and finding grace. It is the royal offer of our great lover, God, whose heart of love Jesus has revealed and opened to believers as a fountain of grace.

The sanie sun that melts the wax hardens the clay, and thus, if men choose, they may have the fatal power of going on without tasting the sweetness of God's mercy and without help for crying need. God did His very best for us in Christ and His rich promises are urgent appeals to us to seek and find His sufficient grace. But God will not force His mercy on the wilful. The throne of grace is set up. The cry of need shall find an ear. The heart of God beats with mercy. The hand of God is laden with spiritual succor. But we must draw near. We must hold fast our confidence or, at any rate, be perfectly frank. We must draw near, even though we put the worst foot forward. We may, like Jacob, at the ford of Jabbok, have it out with God, once and for all. We may struggle until we are broken and until we can but cling and cry, "I will not let Thee go until Thou bless me." And the biessing shali be ours and though henceforth we walk with halting step, it will be with saving health of soul and like a prince of God. The sin that wrought such ruin shall be trampled under foot. The crushing sorrow shall be transfigured. The dark way shall be light. Our fellowship will be with the Father and with His Son Jesus Christ. It will be mercy all the way and grace for grace, always in the nick of time.

"O Cross, that liftest up my head,
I dare not ask to fly from Thee;
I lay in dust life's glory dead,
And from the ground there blossoms red
Life that shall endless be."

—Rev. Simon Blocker, in The Christian Intelligencer.

MAKING THE FAMILY COUNT.

How splendidly Joseph's influence worked to the reuniting and harmonizing and re-establishing of his father's family. If it had not been for him, for his brotheriiness and filiai spirit, for his unselfishness and his strong character and great ability, Jacob's family might have scattered to the four winds of heaven.

Nothing is finer to see in this world than a large family held together by mutuai appreciation and love, each showing a due regard for the common good, and all cherishing a high family ideal and tradition. But where there is such it very frequently happens that it has not been attained unto in any easy-going accidental sort of way, but generally there have been one or two members of the family whose unselfishness and devotion and very special and earnest effort have made such a splendid result possible. Sometimes it may be a father, or a mother, or an older sister, but whoever of the family group has helped to achieve such a result deserves the highest of esteem and gratitude, for a family approaching anywhere near to the ideal in comradeship and cooperation in realizing noble traditions is one of the finest and most helpful things to be found in all our modern life.

To belong to such a family is a great and inestimable privilege. It helps to give a purpose and a satisfaction to life that are difficult to realize through any other medium. The companionships of such a family are the things that any member of it will cherish as he cherishes few other things that life brings, and they are as well among the great mouiding and inspiring influences in the history of those who enjoy them. There is something very reai and aimost tangibie in a fine family tradition, a tradition of honor and usefulness and high service to the public good. And many a man has found that such a tradition has stood him in good stead in a day of temptation to selfishness and self-seeking. And as members of families, there is nothing better that we can employ ourselves at than in seeking to maintain or to raise the spirit and ideal and the great mastering purpose that may be made to root themselves in a very real and abiding way in the family group. What better thing could a man wish for himself and for those who are closest to him by the ties of blood than a realization that his family has established a tradition for high and honorable and unselfish living? And such a thing is possible, and such a tradition may be given a very positive actuality.

But membership in such a family is not only a privilege, it is as well a great opportunity. A family may be made to count in a wonderful way in the life of the community, or the church, or the nation, and the influence which it exerts may be very much more than the combined influence of the different members of it considered only as members of society. What a good home can do for the elevation and moulding of the life of the community, and what a good family—good in the very finest and best way—can do to make all of life good can scarcely be estimated. In making the promise to Jacob that in him and his seed all the nations of the earth were to be blessed, God intended to crown the family and to speak of it as one of the very speciai channels of grace and blessing to the world.

In all our planning and suggesting in regard to making the world better we mustn't forget that one of the most effective and far-reaching methods that can be used to that good end is the multiplying over and over and over again of the number of good homes in which are nurtured families with high ideals of life and service. And it doesn't make so very much difference what else we may do, if we allow home life and family life to break up and degenerate, we will not get very far along in our purpose.

We ought to make the home and the family count for more, and the hopeful side of any such effort and ideal lies in the fact that each one of us can begin right off in and with his own. We do not need to elaborate and work out some wonderful scheme of political or economic reform, but we can begin at once by trying to be better husbands and fathers, better mothers and wives, better sons and daughters. In making the family count for more and stand for better things we will touch life helpfuliy at the very source and center of its being.—Wm. Black, in The Christian Guardian.

THE HOUR IS COME.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D.D.

"The hour is come, that the Son of Man should be glorified."—John 12:23.

If there was ever a time since these words were spoken by Jesus when they fit the occasion, that time is now. In a pre-eminent sense, "the hour is come that the Son of Man should be glorified." Thls is a strategic time, an "age on ages telling," an era unparalleled in the history of man for the spread of the gospel and the conquest of the world for Christ. The opportunity is so wide, so favorable, so manifestly providential, so urgent, that it is a repetition of the ancient command, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward."

It is the opportunity of a restless, unsatisfied, and hungry world. No fact is more striking to the student of history than the moral condition of the Roman Empire at the beginning of the Christian era. Men had lost faith in the old beliefs of the Roman people. The Empire was a seething cauldron of superstition. There was never so much religion, and so little spiritual life. Rome had her Pantheon where every "god" was welcome, and yet she believed in none. Pilate's sneering question to Jesus when he stood at his bar, "What is truth?" summed up the opinion and expressed the spirit of the age. The myths and legends of outgrown superstition, banished from the centers of intelligence, lingered among the ignorant and lowly, so that the very name of

"pagan" became the synonym of a vanishing religion. Yet nothing had been found to put in its place. The refined agnosticism of Cicero and Seneca, and the coarse infidelity of Lucretius, alike disappointed the public mind. Epicurean and Stoic; each confessed the failure of philosophy to give man spiritual rest and peace. Christianity in the beginning spoke to a world of unrest.

And Christianity speaks to a world of unrest today. The old, historic heathen faiths are acknowledged failures. By their fruits ye shall know them. They have not lifted the race. They have in them no initiative, no inspiration, no spiritual dynamic. They are exhausted volcanoes of moral error, looming in barren desolation over the landscapes of history and crumbling to the dust. Mahomet is prostrate and his scimitar is broken. Buddha is asleep, and they cannot wake him. Brahma is vanishing into his "Nirvana," and science is rapidly weaving the shroud of oblivion for Hindoo mysticism.

"Peor and Baalim forsake their temples dim,
With that twice battered god of Palestine.
Nor is Osiris seen in Memphian grove or green,
Trampling the unshowered grass with lowings loud."

But Christianity is as fresh as when it first leaped down from the sky, trailing clouds of glory, to redeem the world. Jesus still has the dew of his youth from the womb of the morning. His Church, with all its encumbering imperfections, has the "swing of conquest" in its movements and the program of conquest in its heart. Disillusioned of the sophistries of a "new theology" made in Germany by the shock of this world war, we are realizing afresh that what a weary world needs is just what the Church has to give, a gospel of love, the "power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

But there is no time to be lost. If we are to seize the tide of opportunity at its flood, we must instantly mobilize all our forces. Thirty-five millions of dollars sounds great, but there is something greater than that, and it is the power of the Holy Ghost. The Church in the beginning had no mission "boards" or revenues, or any of the mechanism of modern organized activity. Without money, without arms, without learning, without social prestige, almost without organization; with all the odium of the Cross to handicap their movements and the powers of the world in league against them, but with the consciousness of the presence of the risen Christ, the imperial peasants projected plans immeasurably grander than had ever engaged the human mind before; and proceeded to carry them out with a faith and courage that astounded the world. We must recover their spirit. More than we need the thirty-five millions, and in order to get it, we need the Church on its knees. We can pray "old Satan's kingdom down," and if we can revive vital religion we can win the world for Christ.

AFTER THE WAR.

By L. P. Brown.

I knew well a preacher of elegance, who was always given one of the best appointments, but at the very beginning of the Sam Jones era of revivals and after, through his entire ministry, was proverbial for saying, "I am not in favor of or in sympathy with these extra and extraordinary revival efforts. I believe in a continuous revival, conversions at the regular, stated services of the Church." Observation and the Conference Minutes, running through years of his ministry, gave evidence of a dearth of conversions and of accessions upon profession of faith. At one of our General Conferences, where a question that seemed vital to our entire Methodism was under a most heated discussion, feeling on either side being strong and high, a lay member suggested, through a motion, that a halt be called and the entire body, for at least a few minutes, engage in silent prayer. The presiding Bishop, with promptness and courtesy, said, addressing the member by name, "My brother, that motion is unnecessary. We are all now in a constant state of prayer." Of course, that settled the motion, and the acrimonious discussion continued.

I have just read a statistical resume of one of our recent Annual Conferences, as given in the public print, from which I gather the following data: Number of members, 57,979; number of preachers, 108; number of Sunday school officers, teachers and scholars, 35,740; collected for salaries of presiding elders, $17,357; collected for salaries of preachers in charge, $148,632; collected for foreign missions (only), $12,658; number of houses of worship, 554; value of houses of worship, $1,327,175. Accessions to the Church on profession of faith are not on the list, but the Minutes of the preceding year (1917) give only 2,981, and for 1916, 2985. These returns give evidence of paucity in comparison with the amount invested and paid. A careful, impartial survey of our leading city and larger town churches will show a dearth of family altars, an increase in the dance, the card table and diversions that cannot be taken in the name of the Lord.

In some cases, the young people of the Church and their older chaperones are seemingly surging along as being unbridled and unhindered. Sometimes the very officiary live under self-enacted standards far below the normal of a revival church. License to do as they think and interpret is the role of life of many—active and prominent in church work and its activities and equally as active and forward in the forbidden things of the world.

The armistice, as far as the clash of arms is concerned, has been signed, and hostilities have ceased. In many cases, the young men of our land went forth from so-called Christian homes, where the profession and not possession was the reality. Camp life, with its strict regimen, dangers from disease and battle, scenes among the wounded and dying; earnest, heart-to-heart talks and exemplary lives of the Y. M. C. A. soldiers; earnest, spiritual, practical preaching of camp pastors, have brought thousands of them to know in real conversion Christ as a personal Savior and a factor in their day-by-day life. In more than one of our cities, from the fashionable dance hall (not with the demi monde, but from the upper circle homes) have come the gilded invitations and persistent solicitation for attendance of some of the first returns of these noble young men. May I add that some have already been engulfed and have fallen! The situation is truly real. The facts stand out in bold relief. Look where we may and frame excuses as we please, souls are in the balance. The solution is not on the material side, but on the spiritual. General revival force is imperative. At any cost, the Bible standards should be erected and enforced. Camouflage and policy must give way to prayer and honest doing as God sees.

The cry of the Church should be—to the knees for real conversions. Mr. Moody, while a guest in our home not a great while before his call to come up higher, said with his peculiar emphasis, "I think if I had with certainty but three years to live, I would never preach another sermon to the world. I would turn my every effort to the Church. The only hope for the salvation of the world is first to reach and save the Church." He had been talking of the sins of the pew and the pulpit's need of the baptism of the Holy Spirit. Closet prayer, agony of soul, introspection on the part of the pulpit and pew, alone will bring the full realization of our great spiritual need.

Nineteen-nineteen ought to be made epochal in Methodism's history for its soul-saving within and without its membership. From a layman's standpoint, these suggestions come, not in a spirit of controversy, but from a heart of prayer and love.

THE LITTLE ROCK CONFERENCE.

By Rev. Theodore Copeland, D.D.

On Wednesday night, Dec. 4, the recent session of the Little Rock Conference was held at Hot Springs, Ark., as the prevailing epidemic made it impossible for the good people of Magnolia to entertain that body. The boards and committees were busy Tuesday and Wednesday, shaping their work and rounding up in time for the opening session, Wednesday evening, by Bishop Mouzon. The Bishop's address on the "Changing Order" was timely and inspiring. His familiarity with present world conditions, his conviction of the obligations confronting the Church, his ringing appeal for closer union of all the forces of Christianity, gripped his audience with tremendous power.

The business of the Conference was dispatched with marvelous rapidity, together with thoroughness which attended all the details that needed consideration. The ease and efficiency with which the Bishop conducted all the business of the Conference favorably impressed both preachers and laymen. The reports of the presiding elders were highly gratifying, as they showed that Methodism in this territory is advancing by leaps and bounds. The sturdy men who compose this body are gifted with those qualities which insure success in any field to which they may be assigned.

On Thursday night the Bishop delivered another powerful address. All his utterances grew out of profound learning, world-wide vision, and supreme optimism. So easily and smoothly was the minute business of the Conference conducted that the appointments were read Friday at noon, and so far as I could learn no one complained of a hard assignment. The Bishop carried with him the love and confidence of all the brethren.

Drs. E. B. Chappell, Stonewall Anderson, O. E. Goddard and Ivan Lee Holt favored us with their presence, and, while the exigency of the occasion forbade lengthy speeches from these representative men, we all knew they were there, and appreciated the interests they represented.

Hendrix College was represented by Dr. J. H. Reynolds, Galloway College by Dr. J. M. Williams, and Arkadelphia College by Dr. J. M. Workman. These flourishing institutions are the pride of the Conference, and are doing work which will make for the betterment of the youth of our country.

Dr. James Thomas goes on the Little Rock District—a man of superb intellect, broad sympathy, and deep devotion to his work.

Dr. Forney Hutchinson was transferred to the East Oklahoma Conference, and stationed at St. Luke, Oklahoma City. He has done a monumental work in Arkansas, where he held responsible positions with great fidelity, and success has crowned his labors.

The Centenary program had right of way and the Conference raised its allotment to $1,000,000.

We were unanimous in our vote ratifying the action of the General Conference granting full laity rights to women.

This scribe was glad the Conference met in Hot Springs. When I consider this city, its beautiful location, its superb surroundings, its ideal waters, and its generous, enterprising people, I realize something of the rapture which thrilled the hearts of the ancient seers and prophets as they painted the charming loveliness of the Elysian Fields, or the Hesperian Gardens, or the Islands of the Blest. At Hot Springs, I formed some of the strongest attachments and happiest associations of my itinerant life. It was my good fortune to be pastor of Central Church while its magnificent building was being constructed. I found there many noble men and women, whose loyalty, devotion and liberality were highly gratifying, and whose names are written in the Lamb's Book of Life.

TRIPLE C.

By Luther E. Todd.

President Wilson has to his credit many soul-stirring words which have electrified the hearts of millions. But he never uttered a more thrilling sentence than when, speaking of the American Red Cross, he said to the people of this Nation: "I summon you to the comradeship."

The Red Cross has millions of adherents throughout the world. Once each year it "calls the roll" and requests everybody who has a heart for the needs of humanity to register his interest by paying a dollar.

The M. E. Church, South, has nearly 1000 superannuated preachers, and about 1000 widows and orphans of deceased preachers. They are known as Conference Claimants. A superannuated preacher is one who, because of age or physical impairment, has been retired from active service. He does not have charge of a church, draws no salary, and is dependent upon the small allowance that his Annual Conference pays him each year, which at present is about $200. The widow and orphans of a deceased preacher receive an average of about $125 annually.

Many of these Conference Claimants want for the bare necessities of life, though they have given their best years in unstinted service to the Church which permits them to suffer. The last General Conference created the Board of Finance to provide an adequate support for them. The Board was authorized to raise $10,000,000 as a Superannuate Endowment Fund. It has located in St. Louis, Mo., secured a charter, and is now at work. But it is not permitted, by order of the General Conference, to begin a general campaign personally to solicit every member of the Church for subscriptions, until the Missionary Centenary Campaign, and also a campaign in the interest of Christian education, are completed. This means that the Board of Finance cannot attempt its work in an organized way for four years.

Therefore, attention is called to the following simple and permissible plan, which will at least serve to get the just claim of the Conference Claimants before the people. It is desired to form a comradeship, of those interested in the cause of the superannuated preachers and the widows and orphans of deceased preachers, which will be similar to that of the American Red Cross. It will be known as "The Triple C" (Conference Claimants Club). Here is the plan:

(1) Join. Send your name and address with one dollar to the Board of Finance, 801-3 Mercantile Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. When received, your name will be enrolled as a member of "Triple C," and your dollar will be credited to the Superannuate Endowment Fund.

(2) Invite Others To Join. There are at least a few individuals in every community who will most gladly come into this comradeship, if some person with initiative will show them the way. Therefore, let every member of "Triple C" induce his friends and acquaintances to become members.

(3) Annual Roll Call. Once each year the roll will be called and every member will have the opportunity to pay another dollar, thus certifying his continued interest. But if one now joins "Triple C" and pays a dollar, one does not obligate one's self to pay an additional dollar at each annual roll call, unless one wishes to do so. It will be entirely voluntary (operating the same as the Red Cross).

(4) Keep The Board Informed. As the just cause of the Conference Claimants becomes known to members and friends of the M. E. Church, South, there will be many to manifest an inclination to make donations to it in various forms, and they should be reported by members of "The Triple C" to the Board of Finance. In this way opportunity will be given to the Board to cultivate and encourage those who show such disposition. If this service is faithfully performed, it will mean that thousands will make gifts which otherwise will not be secured.

In the name of the aged, worn-out, and superannuated preachers, in behalf of the "Mothers in Israel" who are the companions in bonds of these preachers, and for the sake of the widows and helpless, orphaned children of preachers who have answered the last roll call, I appeal to the members and friends of the M. E. Church, South, to come into this holy comradeship. I am not asking for much now, but a whole-hearted response to this simple request will set in motion a wave of loving service that will ultimately sweep the Church with mighty power, until its record of neglect of these faithful servants will be forever obliterated.

Bishops, Connectional Officers, Editors, Presiding Elders, Pastors, Members, Friends, of the M. E. Church, South: I appeal to you! If your Board of Finance is not free at present to organize a campaign to raise the ten million dollar Superannuate Endowment Fund, will you not at least help it to realize its purpose of a loving and serving comradeship that will guarantee easy access to said Fund when the time comes to secure it?

Join "The Triple C." Be a comrade. Send your name, address, and your dollar to The Board of Finance, 801-3 Mercantile Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. Do it now.

CHRISTMAS OFFERING FOR ARMENIAN AND SYRIAN CHILDREN.

The Christmas offerings of our Sunday schools for the relief of the Armenian and Syrian children coming to this office indicate that some of our schools have broken all records in their offerings. But much more is needed. Many of our schools have been closed because of the influenza epidemic and will not reopen for weeks, some not until spring. These and other schools which have not taken this offering can do so at their earliest opportunity, as relief will be needed for these starving children throughout the winter.

If desired, our schools can report what they have raised for this purpose as a "missionary special," but, of course, this cannot be credited on the Centenary offering, as no provision was made in the Centenary plans to cover this emergency call. The consciousness of the schools that they have responded to the call of Jesus, through the cries of these suffering children, is its own reward.

GETTING CLOSER TO GOD.

Sometimes a feeling of selfishness comes over one when he is spending his brief period of rest and freedom from his daily routine and tasks. He recalls those who are left behind, and is inclined to say that it is a pity that so many who need the benefits of the "in-the-open" life cannot obtain them. In every congested center of population there are thousands upon thousands of care-encumbered men and women whose lives would be wonderfully brightened if they could get away to the hill country, and to the lake country, and roam over the flower-carpeted fields for a few weeks. But they are held back by the tether of business, the cares of the family, the ever-pressing problem of tomorrow's demands—and a thousand other things that block the road that runs out into "the country."

But, on the other hand, is it not a fine thing that so many can and do go; and, further, that so many hundreds and thousands of humanity lovers give gladly out of their wealth, or out of their slender purses, or out of their poverty, in order that others, upon whom the need is especially pressing, may rejoice for a season in the freedom, good air and other recreating powers of the Out-of-Doors?

What memories one brings back with him from the mountains, prairies, woods, fields, lakes and ocean! The renewed stores of physical energy received are valuable, but the refreshing of soul that comes from that subtle and perchance unconscious communion with God, that one may enjoy whose spirit is properly attuned, is an asset of the foremost quality. Memory keeps alive the blessings of a happy outing among God's wonders, and the influence of those "days off" abides long after the vacation period is over. These "treasures of the humble heart," as Henry van Dyke calls these things of the Out-of-Doors that keep tugging away at us, have a permanent element in them. They do not pass out of life as they pass out of sight. The inward eye beholds them in their undimmed beauty, and they enrich the soul always.

This is what this lover of nature says he hopes will come to him when he can no longer move freely among these delights of the out-of-door life, but must part at last from the green fields and the clear waters:

Let me not creep
Into some darkened room and hide
From all that makes the world so bright and dear;
But throw the windows wide
To welcome in the light;
And while I clasp a well-beloved hand.
Let me once more have sight
Of the deep sky, and the far-smiling land—
Then gently fall on sleep,
And breathe my body back to nature's care,
My spirit out to Thee, God of the open air.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

All pastors whose postoffice does not appear in the name of the charge will kindly furnish me their addresses, that same may appear correctly in the Conference Directory.

Should any adjustments of appointments have been made since Conference, the Editor of the Minutes will appreciate it should the elders furnish him the facts.

Any correction in the dates, etc., in the Chronological Table would also be appreciated.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE AT NATCHEZ, MISS., POSTPONED.

Our missionary conference which was to have been held in Natchez, January 14-18, has had to be postponed indefinitely until after Council, on account of the spread of influenza. As soon as a new date can be set, it will be announced in the Missionary Column.

WHAT ARE YOU GETTING OUT OF LIFE?

Who gets the most out of life? The rich man? No; not at all. The poor man? No; not at all. This particular test has no relation whatever to mere wealth, or the absence of it. It goes much deeper and reaches much higher. That man gets the most out of life who puts the most into it. For life is an affair of investment, and the thing invested is not the dollars so much as personality; and that personality, to yield a good dividend for the investment, must be employed in terms of service.

There are thousands of people who have no money—or very little—to spend in doing good; at least that is what they say. But the fact is that about everybody could find some money for that sort of an investment if he were to make diligent search among his possessions. All right. If you have no money to invest in that way, why not make investment of other things that are more useful than money? There are chances for fine service everywhere. You must not be indifferent to them. Everyone must do what he can for the benefit of all. No man has a right to fold his arms and look on while others sweat with toil of sacrifice.—Exchange.

Missionary Centenary

EIGHT DAY DRIVE

FOR THIRTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS

April 27-May 3, 1919

To Pastors and All others Interested in the great EIGHT-DAY DRIVE of the Centenary, in which we will raise our $35,000,000 Fund:

The STANDARD PLAN of organization in the CONFERENCE, in the DISTRICT, and in the LOCAL CHURCH has been carefully worked out and is now being printed.

This Standard Plan provides that a Campaign Director for the Eight-Day Drive be appointed in each CONFERENCE, each DISTRICT, and each LOCAL CHURCH, in consultation with the Presiding Elders. Pastors and duly constituted committees.

These Campaign Directors and the Pastors will be called into successive COUNCILS, where the STANDARD PLAN will be explained in full detail. Hold the forces steady until these Councils are called.

JANUARY — The Councils for Conference Campaign Directors will be held in January, and the Standard Plan explained.

FEBRUARY — The Councils for District Campaign Directors will be held in February, and the Standard Plan explained.

MARCH — The Councils for Local Church Campaign Directors and Pastors will be held in March, and the Standard Plan explained.

APRIL — The Local Church Campaign Directors will then be ready in April to organize the men and women of the local churches for the Eight-Day Drive to be conducted April 27-May 3.

The whole Church is on fire with zeal for the Eight-Day Drive. Our only fear is that some churches, in their zeal, will start organizing and soliciting prematurely. Our appeal is, HOLD STEADY!

The above calendar will give you plenty of time in which to organize your church completely.

Wait for the Standard Plan—THEN FOLLOW IT!

Director-General.

JACKSON DISTRICT ITEMS.

By the District Reporter.

The Capital City District was considerably shaken up in the personnel of its preachers by the Conference in McComb. Two four-year men, E. P. Pikes and W. H. Lewis, were moved from our bounds, Pikes going to another Conference and Lewis being stationed at Brookhaven. J. B. King and C. H. Herring were placed on the superannuate roll. G. G. Yeager and C. H. Ellis were moved within the bounds of the District, Yeager changing from Mendenhall to Vaughan and Ellis from Lintonia to Harrisville.

The following were moved into our district: J. W. Chisholm to Brandon, C. C. Evans to Canton, B. W. Lewis to Flora, H. F. Tolle to Capitol Street, J. L. Smith to Mendenhall, S. F. Harkey to Terry, L. E. Alford to Yazoo City, and J. T. McVey to Lake City.

Of the two preachers in the Conference returned for the fifth year, one, A. S. Oliver, is in this district. Oliver has done a great work at Eden too. Church membership increased over 50 per cent, property enhanced greatly in value, a new brick church is soon to be completed, and the ministerial support fund is more than doubled.

At the call of our presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Morse, the District Stewards and preachers met at Galloway Memorial on December 31 to attend to duties assigned them. The presiding elder's salary was fixed at $3000, a substantial increase over last year. A small assessment for the upkeep of the district parsonage was made, and several matters relative to the change in the laws of the Church governing connectional and Conference finances were explained.

The quota assigned to the Jackson District to raise for the Missionary Centenary movement was announced as $155,000. This will be later assigned to the charges, and the preachers are getting ready for the drive.

The assessments for the Conference and connectional claims were properly prorated to the charges.

The ladies of Galloway Memorial served luncheon in the basement of the church to those in attendance.

After satisfying the needs of the body, several after-dinner speeches were called for. C. W. Crisler spoke of the need and prospects for a Methodist hospital in the State. Mrs. C. B. Galloway, who was serving, also added some words to the real necessity of such a move, and that the time was ripe to act. A Methodist hospital in Mississippi will soon be a reality.

C. S. Bennett, a layman from Eden, told some of his experiences in both temporal and spiritual matters in connection with tithing. At first he did not believe either in it or in missions. But when he was convinced and saw the light, he believed for one not to tithe is robbing God. He said for last year his tithe money averaged about $1 a day, and that it was a very pleasant experience when just a few days before he balanced accounts for the year with the Lord. He said further: "In tithing do not go into it from a speculative standpoint; but just let the Lord come first." Also "The preachers are the smallest paid people for the good they do of all people in the world."

G. R. Bennett, of Canton, another active layman said that he had been tithing for two years. He thinks that the people need more light on the subject. The preachers do not preach on it enough, and explain it to the people.

W. H. Bradley, from Flora, said: "When I began tithing I was always hard up and in debt. But things have come good to me since. God is going to give to us as we pay to Him."

H. F. Tolle related how an Advocate campaign was put over at his charge at Laurel last year. Through the fact he worked over 40 new subscribers were secured in a short time, and four Bibles as premiums were earned by the campaigners. It would be a good thing for those interested to get Brother Tolle's plan. Write him at Jackson.

B. F. Lewis, manager of our Orphans' Home, told of some of the important phases of his work. He stressed the necessity of preachers being very careful to look into cases where they are sought to endorse applications for placing orphan children in private homes.

L. E. Alford spoke of the importance of the Church Extension work. He has a big church debt to wrestle with at Yazoo City. But which, Luke raise it. Millsaps boys, when given a chance, always have and always will make good.

Brother Morse told of a challenge from the presiding elder of the Brookhaven District to outstrip us in the year's work. The two districts are about equal in numerical and financial strength. Jackson District has accepted the challenge. Our Beloved urged above everything else that we make the district go "over the top" spiritually, to which suggestion there were hearty "Amens" from all the brethren. Now for an honest rivalry between these two districts in building up the kingdom of God among men.

The delightful luncheon provided by the ladies of Galloway Memorial and their beautiful manner of serving it called up in the mind of Brother L. E. Alford pleasant memories of old college days at Millsaps, when the "shack" boys were often remembered by the noble-hearted women of Jackson, who from time to time furnished the boys with boxes of choice edibles, which relieved the monotony of "shack fare." Brother Alford's heart grew tender and his voice husky as these old memories were recalled. But Alford would not tell who got Dr. Murrah's turkey or what boys made way with that freezer of ice cream Mrs. Murrah had prepared for her guests. It looks as if "Time would tell." But none of those "shack" boys will tell those secrets.

On Thursday, Jan. 2, after a rain that lasted fully 16 hours, the Jackson District was wrapped in the mantle of a snow over 10 inches deep. This scribe never saw the like before, and he is past 40 years of age.

ISOM.

A LETTER FROM MEMPHIS.

Dear Brother Carley: I am not unmindful of my promise to you to write a word for the Advocate after getting settled in my new home.

Although this city is not within your territory, yet there are several of us here who still feel closely related to the Advocate and its readers. It has been a happy surprise to me to meet in my congregations some of my good friends from Louisiana, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Le Seur and Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, former parishioners in Alexandria; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dawson, for whom I officiated at the hymeneal altar in Homer, and Brother W. M. Spinks, of Ruston, who is soon to move with his family to this city to reside.

We also have here a number of distinguished Mississippians, among whom are Bishop Murrah, Dr. S. H. Spraggins, pastor of our First Church; Dr. T. W. Lewis, my predecessor at St. John's; R. W. Bailey, chairman of our Official Board; Mrs. Franklin, niece of the late Major Millsaps, and others.

It was a genuine pleasure to meet my good friend Joyner at the conference of Missionary Secretaries. He is a big man wisely selected for a big job. When I get time I am going to write up the Louisiana Conference, for sixteen years of intimate association with the men there gave an opportunity to discover as true men, great men, godly men as can be found anywhere. What better service could be rendered the Church than to enable it to discover some of these men? Doubtless the greatest thing that William Jennings Bryan ever did was to help the Democratic Convention to discover Woodrow Wilson and put him in the White House to lead the world safely through its greatest crisis. Now somebody may think that I am biased by sentiment. Possibly so, for just as the little boy with "one brick" is a degree of ownership in the magnificent church in which he has invested five cents so I confess an undying love for the State and the Conference in which he has invested sixteen years of my heart's devotion and my life's best efforts.

The new pastor and his family were cordially received by the good people of St. John's, and the pastor is already very much in love with his people and his work.

Under the wise leadership of such able men as Dr. Thompson, Dr. T. E. Sharp, and Dr. T. W. Lewis St. John's Church has come to a place of great strength and large possibilities for usefulness. We have a plant that could hardly be improved upon, situated in the heart of the best residential part of the city, and a large and growing membership of excellent people whom God has blessed with every equipment for rendering to him the most efficient service. We are, therefore, expecting to see St. John's Church fill a place of ever increasing usefulness in the Master's service.

Mr. Editor, you are giving us a good paper; it is always a welcome visitor to our desk. It is with keen interest that we read its columns.

With New Year's greetings for the Editor and all the readers of the Advocate, I remain,

Cordially yours,

WILLIAM H. COLEMAN.

Pastor St. John's Methodist Church.

THE PEACE THAT CLINGS

The prophet speaks of the perfect peace that comes to the man "whose mind is stayed on Thee." It is not the man whose mind is contented or stationary. That mind may be a stagnant mind. It is like the boulder in the open field. If the rock had eyes, it might see; it might admire the field and the sky and the song of birds, but it is a rock without blessing, a rock without helpfulness, a rock without a soul. Winter and summer and cold and heat and day and night, it is still a rock, always a rock and nothing but a rock. The prophet is talking about another sort of peace, the peace of mind stayed upon God. It is that sort of a mind that rejoices in God. To be stayed on Him is conscious strength and constant strength; the consciousness of the strength that has Jesus at the heart of it and also at the circumference of it. It is the one way to be blest, and the one way to be a blessing. The mind that is not "stayed" lacks reliability; it lacks centralization; it lacks unity of action and definiteness of Christlike purpose.

Dr. Matheson once said that peace comes by the thing to which it is fastened, something that is constantly moving. Said he: "What would be the difference between a soul bound to a rock and a soul bound to a star? The soul bound to the rock would be stationary; the soul bound to the star would be ever on the wing. The world's peace is standing still; God's is moving on. The world's peace is silence; God's is a living voice." The inference is therefore plain that "the peace of God descends on every man as it descended on Jesus on the midst of the waters." When he is resting in Jesus he is doing his best for Jesus. The peace that comes by "staying" is the peace that manifests itself by acting. Lean hard and you will work hard. United Presbyterian.

TOUGHENED IN LIFE'S STORM.

Some one tells of a noted violin maker who always went into the forests himself and chose his violin woods from the north side of the tree. Is not this a precious suggestion to those living in the north rooms of the school of experience, working out the problems of faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity?

Therefore be of good cheer, beloved! The work of the world is being done by those toughened in the storms of life. God knows where his choice ones of timber grow. Record of Christian Work.

No one really knows the richness of Christ's love who has not tried to love and serve men as He did.—J. A. Clapperton.

FAIRY TALES.

The fairies have never a penny to spend,
They haven't a thing put by,
But theirs is the dower of bird and of flower
And theirs are the earth and the sky
And though you should live in a palace of gold
Or sleep in a dried up otter,
You could never be poor as the fairies are,
And never as rich.

Since ever and ever the world began
They have danced like a ribbon of flame,
They have sung their song through the centuries long
And yet it is never the same
And though you be foolish or though you be wise,
With hair of silver or gold
You could never be young as the fairies are,
And never as old.

SOME KINDS OF SLAVES

Harold laid down his book.

"It must be awful to be a slave," he said.

His father did not answer.

"Don't you think it must be?" asked Harold.

His father looked up. "Is it?" he asked.

Harold looked surprised. "Why what do you mean?" he asked. "You act as if I were an authority on the matter. I don't know anything about it except what I have been reading. I am not a slave."

Mr. Edwards smiled. "No?" he asked.

"I rather guess not," said Harold, indignantly, "and this is a free country. No one could make a slave of me."

"No one but yourself," amended his father.

"Why, father, what do you mean? I couldn't make a slave of myself, could I?"

His father regarded him steadily for a moment. "Whom did I hear saying that he simply could not get up this morning on time?" he asked.

"It was cold," said Harold, defensively.

"No colder than yesterday morning, and you hopped right out then."

"But yesterday morning we were going nutting and I had to jump right out or the boys would have gone and left me."

"Then it wasn't the cold. Did you really feel as if you couldn't get up?"

"Yes, I really did try two or three times, but I couldn't stir."

"Then it seems to me that you might to know something about this slave business."

"Why, father, what has that to do with slavery?"

"A great deal. Slavery is a condition of bondage to another individual or to a habit. In your case you were a slave to inclination—a self-made slavery."

"But I never thought of that as slavery. Am I really a slave every time I let my wishes conquer?"

"I think you are," answered his father; "at any time that you feel yourself incapable of action or resistance you are acknowledging your bondage."

Harold frowned. "I don't like that idea," he said; "a person ought to be stronger of purpose than of body."

"He ought to be," agreed his father, "but there are more people who are weak slaves of habit than there are actual slaves in the generally accepted sense of the word. And I do not know which is the more miserable."

"They say that Howard Thair is a slave to the cigarette habit," said Harold slowly.

"I am afraid he is," said his father, "but first of all he was a slave to his own weakness of character. That is the sad part about being a mental or moral slave. At first we are slaves to our own weakness and then some malignant master gains the whip hand over us, and because we could not conquer our own spirit we are doomed. Howard was one of the brightest boys in town with a future most promising. He was given a splendid education and training along the line he chose for his lifework. Now he is a weakling—a slave to nicotine, and his health is ruined and his fine, keen mind is being destroyed."

Harold looked frightened. "I am afraid I am a slave to a good many inclinations," he said. "I never thought much about it before, but I can think of a dozen ways that I am weak. Of course there doesn't seem to be any harm to my habits, but I don't like to feel that I can't conquer them."

"Then why not conquer them, just to show that you are still strong and your own master?" asked his father. "I remember there used to be a line in our old schoolbooks about habit's being a cable."

"Habit is a cable—we weave a thread of it each day until it becomes so strong we cannot break it," quoted Harold promptly.

"That's right. And, there was another. 'There are slaves that dare not be in the right with two or three.' That is another thought worth dwelling upon."

Harold nodded. "I'm going to quit this business of being a slave," he announced, "and to begin it I am going to go and study my lessons for tomorrow right away. I have been in the habit of leaving them until the last thing at night lately and I guess that is the reason my marks have been poor. I never can study so well just before bedtime, you know."

"Perhaps that may influence that getting up habit also," said his father, smilingly.

Harold squared his shoulders manfully. "It it doesn't, I will," he said. "I am not going to be a slave to myself any longer."

And he went to hunt up his schoolbooks.

A LESSON IN SELF-CONTROL

One day Jamie was down in the yard helping mamma to hang out the clothes. To be sure, Jamie wasn't big enough to help very much. She couldn't lift even one end of the heavy basket. But she could hand mamma the towels and small pieces, one at a time, and pick up clothes-pins that dropped and be ready to run errands. She enjoyed helping mamma as much as she could, even if she wasn't very big, and she meant to help still more when she was older.

Pretty soon they heard baby May laughing the merriest little laugh. They had left her asleep upstairs, and there were so many folks in the house that they thought she would be well taken care of. But papa had gone down to the shop and big sister was busy in the kitchen, thinking Polly would play with baby when she awoke, while Polly thinking big sister was in charge had gone off to play.

So after awhile baby was wide awake and lonesome. Nobody came to her. She looked all around the room, but there was no one there. Then she began to call, "Mamma, mamma!" but no one answered. Then she began to cry. Mamma was hanging out the last piece of the last basket of clothes. Jamie was standing at her mother's side, looking down the long back yard. Suddenly mamma's clothes-pins as well as her words were having. Every time she threw out her arms she stood on her tiptoes and looked forward until it seemed as though she would surely follow it down the long yard.

But mamma and Jamie did not hear at all the laughing Jamie would have stopped but it was for when she saw the window baby was not there but she took from mamma's arms a face that was not hers.

"Hush!" said mamma quietly, "you'll scare baby." Not a word but a sound of fear. "There, there," she rocked without hearing baby and mamma, upon the gate and up the stairs calling, "Where is little May calling her at the bottom of the darkness of baby talk just as she was used to."

Baby though I was all a part of the game and crowed and shouted and threw dozens of clothes pins down on her smiling mamma. "She didn't know what a prayer there was in the fact that those arms were opened wide to catch her if she should fall before the stairs was reached." At last she was caught and hugged close to a heart full of thanksgiving and Jamie feeling rather limp after those moments of suspense was glad to creep into that embrace too.

"Little daughter," said mamma, "learn self-control from this experience. If you or I had cried out or frightened baby by letting her see that we were frightened she would have started and fallen down those long stairs without a doubt. The people who do brave deeds and who save lives are not the ones who scream the minute anything goes wrong. A man or woman or even a little child can stay brave and calm and think what is the wisest thing to do and how to help others from becoming frightened and so be very, very helpful."—San Francisco Call.

LOVE

What is the measure of the love we owe to others? It is the measure of what we think is owing to ourselves. "Love him as thyself." Observe it may use such a word, the equity of the divine rule. It makes us the judge of what we ought to do. It imposes upon us no duty that we have not already acknowledged for ourselves.—Dean Stanley.

Bracing as a North Wind

AT the end of a hard day, just sit down to a cup of Luzianne Coffee. See how you pick up with every savory sip. Luzianne is far, far different from any other coffee. It's got something that all the others seem to lack. And it's packed in dust-proof, moisture-proof cans that bring Luzianne to your kitchen just the same as when it left the roaster. But a can and try it for yourself. An iron-clad, air-tight guarantee says that if you are not entirely satisfied with Luzianne your grocer will give you back your money. And he will.

Editorial

SUPPORT FOR SUPERANNUATED PREACHERS.

Dr. Luther E. Todd, Secretary of the Board of Finance, is maintaining a high degree of efficiency in performing the duties that fall upon him in connection with his office. This is easily explained by the fact that Dr. Todd is unusually well qualified for the work to which he has been called, and by the further fact that adequate provision for the support of our worn-out preachers and the widows and orphans of deceased preachers is one of the most important tasks confronting the Church.

We do not know to what extent the lack of adequate provision for the support of worn-out ministers has affected the number of candidates for the ministry. But we do know there is general complaint that fewer men are entering the ministry than are actually needed; and we can readily understand how a perfectly conscientious, high-strung young man would hesitate to enter the ranks of this high calling if he could visualize the thousands of able and heroic men who have been left practically to shift for themselves after having served the Church through the years of their strength.

We hope the readers of the Advocate will consider carefully the communications from Dr. Todd that appear from time to time in these columns, and that they will heartily support the plans he is proposing for the creation of a fund that will give our veterans what is due them in simple justice.

ENLIST AND TRAIN THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

In some communities the young people have no special encouragement to identify themselves with the Church or to engage in its activities. Their special needs seem not to be considered, their nature is not understood, and their perfectly normal tendencies are either ignored or condemned.

This is a serious matter. No church can continue to grow that is not constantly renewing its strength by the addition of members who may be properly trained for positions of leadership later on. Naturally, these future leaders should be developed from the boys and girls, the young men and the young women who, by every consideration, logically belong to the church as its resources in reserve. But these resources too often have disappeared by the time the need of them is most urgent.

Some preachers, and laymen, too, profess not to have the time to devote to the young people that is necessary to enlist them in the work of the Church and maintain their interest in it. They would be nearer the truth if they should say they had time for nothing else. Either position is, of course, one-sided.

But the Church of the future will be made up of the young people of to-day. And that Church will be strong or weak in proportion to its success in getting hold of the young people to-day. Methodism has recognized the truth of this statement by making adequate provision for the enlistment and training of its young people through the Sunday school and the Epworth League. These organizations offer a fine opportunity to the wide-awake pastor to lay hold of the most essential material in his community. By means of one or the other, or of both, he is in a position to offer to the young people those forms of social entertainment which their natures crave and which they will have, under influences that not only will not alienate them from the Church, but that will keep them vitally connected with it.

Our Sunday school work, under the enthusiastic and intelligent leadership of our Conference Sunday school field secretaries, is making gratifying progress. We hope this will be a year of renewed activity also in the Epworth League.

HOLDING DOWN THE JOB.

Too many people are "holding down" their jobs. They have become so fixed in their ways and so adjusted to the "perfectly proper" and conventional method of doing things that their "jobs" have lost semblance of life—they have been "held down" so faithfully that they have been crushed to death. The "strangle-hold" has done its work.

Jobs sometimes become bigger than the people who "hold them down." It ought not to be so, but when a man is content merely to be, to "let well enough alone," he stops growing, and anything he is connected with is likely to outgrow him. This is true in the business world, and it is true in the Church. The tragedy of some situations is in the fact that the very men who ought to be big enough to handle them properly, have failed to see that big things are developing, and having failed to see that, they see no necessity of doing anything themselves or of letting other people do something.

It's a pretty good thing to have a job—but we ought not to hold them down; let them become as big as they will.

CRITICISM OF THE Y. M. C. A.

It was charged that the Y. M. C. A. was profiting by the operation of its canteens overseas. The answer is that there has been no such profit. Although the canteens were run on a cost basis, overhead charges in some cases made prices higher than in this country. In spite of that fact, however, the Y. M. C. A. actually lost thousands of dollars.

It was further charged that the Y. M. C. A. canteens had charged for tobacco that was sent to the soldiers as a gift. The answer is that this actually happened in a few cases because packages were not properly marked. The Quartermaster's Department of the army itself did the same thing. In every case, however, where the error was discovered, full reparation was made.

It was also charged that ministers of religion in the service of the Y. M. C. A. had refused to attend to the material wants of soldiers until those soldiers had answered questions as to their spiritual attitude or condition. Dr. Mott replies that he has never heard of such a case, though he has made diligent inquiry of his associates and others who were in a position to be acquainted with the facts. He adds that the organization stands ready to recall any one of its workers who is shown to have followed such a course.

It was charged also that the Y. M. C. A. had sent men overseas who were utterly unfit for the tasks they were called upon to perform. In reply, Dr. Mott frankly admits that the organization, working under high pressure to meet urgent needs, made some mistakes in its selection of men. But in every case where an error was detected, the objectionable men were recalled immediately.

It was charged further that Y. M. C. A. workers overseas did not go to the front lines, but persistently dodged dangers. The answer to this charge is that nine of its workers have been killed by shellfire while on duty, twenty-nine have been seriously gassed or wounded, thirty-one have died, chiefly as a result of exposure or overwork, and ten have been cited for bravery, or decorated.

Other charges, not so serious, but definitely made, are likewise satisfactorily answered. Dr. Mott does not pretend that the work of the Y. M. C. A. has been perfect; but he does show that the charges brought against it are either utterly unfounded or based upon insufficient information. We are thoroughly convinced that the Y. M. C. A. has been true to its trust, and that it has dealt fairly with the people at home and the forces overseas. And we believe, if the need should ever arise again, that our people would entrust to it their millions with full confidence that it would expend them to the best advantage of all concerned.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. J. W. Jones requests us to state that his post office address is now Tillatoba, Miss., instead of Houston, Miss., as formerly.

Rev. Marion Browning writes that he expects to remain at Deming, New Mexico, about a month longer, after which he will be ready to re-enter the pastorate.

The foreign department of the Y. M. C. A. needs forty-nine secretaries, who will be sent to China, Japan, South America and India during the year 1919.

Rev. P. H. Grice, of Saucier, Miss., writes that the outlook on his charge is encouraging, though he is handicapped in his work at the present by a new outbreak of influenza.

Rev. A. C. McCorkle, writing to ask that his address be changed from Byhalia, Miss., to Durant, Miss., says that he has been warmly welcomed to his new charge.

We learn from a correspondent that four of the children of Rev. S. N. Young, our pastor at Satartia, Miss., are in bed with the influenza. We extend them our sincere sympathy, and trust that they will soon be restored to health.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, the Louisiana Conference Centenary Secretary, has rented a home for his family on the Seashore Camp Grounds. He will, however, maintain an office in New Orleans. For the present, correspondents may address him at New Orleans, in care of the Advocate office.

Mrs. Julia A. Danks, of San Francisco, Cal., recently deeded to the Board of Church Extension valuable land, for which she receives a $2500 annuity bond, bearing good interest during her lifetime. The land will be sold and the money used in the building of churches.

Messrs. Hilliard and W. L. Linfield, Jr., sons of Rev. W. L. Linfield, presiding elder of the Newton District, Mississippi Conference, called at the Advocate office on Saturday of last week. We were glad to shake hands with these fine young men.

The Richmond Christian Advocate, successor to the Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate, made its initial appearance on January 2, 1919, under the editorship of Dr. G. H. Lambeth. We welcome the new editor to his important field of labor, and congratulate him upon the excellence of his first issue.

Dr. R. A. Meek has entered vigorously upon his work as presiding elder of the Sardis District, North Mississippi Conference. In a note accompanying the announcement of his first round of quarterly conferences, he states that he has been greeted by fine audiences at various appointments. He also states that he is hearing many complimentary things about his predecessor, Rev. J. H. Holder, who has a host of friends in the District.

Dr. John A. Rice has been appointed pastor of Trinity Church, Sumter, S. C.

Rev. T. L. Houston, writing from Sturgis, Miss., speaks hopefully of the outlook in his charge. He serves a fine people.

Rev. J. R. Murff writes that he has reached his new appointment, Mathiston, Miss., and that he is greatly pleased with the outlook.

Bishop McMurry has completed his work in China and is now in Japan. He expects to sail for home about the middle of January.

Rev. H. W. Johnson, of the Millsaps Memorial and Raymond charge, Mississippi Conference, writes that everything points to a good year in his work.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., has gone to Europe to represent the Commission on Temperance and Social Service in investigating conditions in that field.

Louisiana Methodism in general and Minden Methodism in particular, suffered a great loss in the recent death of Brother J. M. Miller. He was one of the leaders in church work in his community.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, of the Louisiana Conferfercnce, is very greatly pleased with his work at Lake Charles. After four years in the presiding eldership, he finds the pastorate a most inviting field of labor.

Rev. Victor G. Clifford, writing from Enterprise, Miss., states that he and his wife have been cordially received on his new work. He finds the situation delightful, and the outlook for the new year encouraging.

The Arkansas Methodist, one of the strongest of our Conference organs, celebrates the new year by appearing with a new heading on its cover page. Dr. A. C. Millar, its editor, is one of our most forceful thinkers and writers.

Rev. H. B. Perritt, who was transferred from the Louisiana to the Mississippi Conference recently, is very happy in his new charge, Quitman, Miss. He writes that he will miss, however, the good fellowship of the Louisiana brethren. He serves a forward-looking people, which increases both his opportunity and responsibility.

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, our pastor at Cockrum, Miss., North Mississippi Conference, is now comfortably domiciled in a new, up-to-date bungalow parsonage, which the good women of the charge have newly furnished. He writes that everything is moving along nicely with him, and that the outlook for a good year is promising.

The recent press report that Bishop E. E. Hoss had suffered a stroke of paralysis at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. M. Headman, Collingswood, N. J., was an error. Bishop Hoss, in a note to the Texas Christian Advocate, states that eminent medical authority, after careful and thorough examination, pronounces him distinctly better. This will be good news to the whole Church.

Just before going to press, we received the following note from Rev. D. C. Foust, of Coldwater, Miss.: "Rev. K. P. Foust, formerly a member of the North Mississippi Conference, but who has been teaching for the past few years, died on Jan. 3, of influenza, at the South Mississippi Infirmary, Hattiesburg, Miss. He leaves a wife, two small children, father, mother and sister to mourn their loss." We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

The Senatobia charge, North Mississippi Conference, Rev. A. T. McIlwain, pastor, has increased the assessment for the pastor from $1500 to $1600. A budget, covering all the expenses of the church for the current year, has been adopted by the board of stewards, who also took into consideration the largely increased Conference collections. We have a choice congregation at Senatobia, and Brother McIlwain is much appreciated by his people.

We learn from the Midland Methodist of Jan. 1, that Rev. Lewis Powell, of the Louisville Conference, passed away on the first day of the new year. He was, at the time of his death, pastor of Crescent Hill Church, Louisville. He was buried at Aberdeen, Miss. He was, for many years, a member of the Memphis and the Tennessee Conferences.

The Advocate has learned that Dr. W. H. La Prade, the distinguished pastor of our church at Biloxi, Miss., has, upon the advice of his physician, given up his work since Conference. We understand that the physician informed him that the coast climate was likely to impair his health serlously. According to our information, Rev. H. W. Van Hook will supply the pulpit at Biloxi for the present. Dr. La Prade will make his home in Georgia.

Rev. Ruffin T. Davis, of Camden, Ark., was licensed to preach, fifty years ago at Midway Church, on the Bayou Sara Circuit, when Rev. R. D. Norsworthy was pastor and Rev. Jas. A. Godfrey was presiding elder. He was originally a member of the Mississippi Conference, but was transferred to the Little Rock Conference in 1885. He sent his subscription to the Advocate recently in order that he might become informed as to the progress of Methodism in his old home.

We acknowledge the receipt of a pamphlet, written by Dr. A. M. Muckenfuss, professor of chemistry in Emory University, detailing important investigations made by him of the problem of the vitamines. The subject matter of the pamphlet appeared originally in the Journal of the American Medical Society. Dr. Muckenfuss is well known in the Advocate territory, having been at one time professor of chemistry in Millsaps College. His wife is a daughter of the late Bishop and Mrs. C. B. Galloway.

Last fall, we offered a Bible as a premium for specified numbers of renewals and new subuscriptions to the Advocate. This offer, as was specifically stated in our announcement, was for a limited time only, and expired on November 10. We were glad to make it at a time when business was slack and subscriptions seemed harder than usual to secure. But we cannot maintain a standing offer of a premium for the simple reason that the cost would be prohibitive. We are giving as much for $1.50 as can reasonably be expected; and we are sure our friends will not find fault with us for not violating a simple rule of good business. We make this statement now, in order that there may be no misunderstanding in the future. The premium offer has expired.

A note from the presiding elder of the Shreveport District, Louisiana Conference, Rev. C. D. Atkinson, informs us that the work for the new year has started off splendidly. Noel Memorial, Mansfield, and First Church, Shreveport, have already made substantial increases in their pastors' salaries, and other charges will probably do likewise. Rev. Alonzo Early, the new Sunday school field secretary, has visited Shreveport and won all hearts. Rev. N. E. Joyner, the Conference Centenary Secretary, is scheduled for Shreveport this week. The State Conference of the Woman's Missionary Society will meet at Mansfield Feb. 13-15. The District Conference has been appointed to meet April 22-24. North Louisiana Methodism is vigorous.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Rev. H. B. Thomason, Campti, La., 4; Rev. A. H. Williams, Coaling, Ala., 4; Rev. W. C. Carlisle, Louisville, Miss., 4; Rev. J. J. Brooks, Dublin, Miss., 4; Rev. J. S. Duncan, University, Miss., 6; Rev. R. W. Evans, Carrollton, Miss. 3; Rev. W. A. Bowlin, Cockrum, Miss., 2; Rev. S. N. Young, Satartia, Miss., 2.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Help your money to grow.

"SLIGHTLY SOILED."

I noticed the phrase recently in a store window, as furnishing reason for the low price of a certain article. "Slightly Soiled— Greatly Reduced in Price." The merchant does not expect to get normal prices for goods damaged, however slightly. The purchaser insists upon a perfect article when he pays the full price. He resents a slight soiling, even. I wish we were as careful in life: as insistent upon flawlessness and immaculateness. Unfortunately we have grown accustomed to the idea that one must not expect too much of human nature. The result is that we end by expecting too little. We speak of small sins and slight soilings of spirit. If, however, a small stain on a fabric cuts the value alarmingly, what of a human soul? Jesus said, "Be ye perfect." He did not say, "Be approximately good," or "Be relatively respectable"; He challenged us with the ideal. Always He was patient with soiled hearts, but always He resented the soiling.—George Clarke Peck.

ATONEMENT.

The doctrine of the atonement is such to me that, without it, philosophy would lead by self-evident truth only to the conclusion that we, of all men, are most miserable, since we have sinned, and do not know a way of escape. There is to me such clearness that, if you say no atonement ever has been made, philosophy, to me, is not good tidings, for it is clear tidings of a necessity not met.

Joseph Cook.

A WORD FROM AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

Dear Advocate: I inclose money order for my renewal to the Advocate. I don't want to miss a single number. I have been a subscriber for 30 years. There have been six other papers coming to my home for several years, but now, since the war is over, they will all stop except the Advocate and one or two others. We have a son "over there," and, according to newspaper reports, he is now in Germany. In addition to our boy being "over there," we have done what we could to help win the war. Will the Advocate and all its readers please pray for the safe return of our boy, whom we know to be a good Christian? The sweet message of all his letters is: "Don't grieve, be cheerful; if I never return, meet me over there.'"

Wife has passed her 57th year and I my 67th year. We are on our way to heaven. The end of our journey can't be far off at best, but oh, how we would like to see our dear Samuel again before we cross over on the other shore! God bless the dear Advocate; may it live long and do great good. (Rev.) H. M. BANKS.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA.

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.—Adv.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THE COUNCIL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council will be held this year at Memphis, Tenn. The date will be February 20-27. The earlier date has been decided upon this year in order that the members may be free to give their services to the Centenary Drive and also the next Liberty Loan.

The Council Daily has a New Name.

The name of the Council Daily has been changed to Council Bulletin. This change was made because of the plan to publish the entire proceedings in one volume to be mailed at the close of the session of the Council.

This was done last year and proved much more satisfactory on account of the irregularity of the mails.

Every effort will be made to insure subscribers getting the Bulletin within a week after the close of the meeting.

Send name and address and 25 cents to Miss Lena Freeman, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

HOW TO REMOVE SOOT.

Common salt, either of the table variety, or fine grain rock salt (such as is used in making ice cream), has been found effective in removing soot and tar from the heating surface, flues, smoke-pipes or chimneys, of hot-air, hot water or steam plants in residences or apartment buildings.

Get the fire into good condition so that the fuel bed is bright or incandescent and on the hottest part of the fire spread about two or three handsful or salt; then close the fire door and open the drafts. The heating plant will immediately become filled with dense white fumes which will penetrate to every part of the furnace, smoke flues and chimney, and in from one-half to one hour the effects of the salt will disappear. Then brighten up the fire again and repeat the operation two or more times until all heating surfaces have been entirely cleaned.

Later, one application of the salt treatment once or twice a week will keep the heating surfaces in clean and efficient condition.

The chemical action will not attack iron or be in any way detrimental to your heating plant.

For larger or smaller heating plants, increase or decrease the amount of salt proportionately.

CONSERVING THE NATION'S LABOR POWER.

Among the measures of labor reconstruction now pressing for immediate action is the development by legislation of a federal-state plan for restoring to economic usefulness all workers who have been disabled in industry and establishing on an adequate permanent basis the machinery for placing them again in productive employment.

The congressional hearing was held at Washington, December 10, on the Smith-Bankhead Bill to provide vocational rehabilitation for the large and permanent army of maimed victims of industrial accidents, similar to that recently extended unanimously by Congress to disabled soldiers and sailors. Public interest in this meritorious bill should not be allowed to lag. Prompt action should be urged upon all members of Congress in advance of the legislative sessions to convene in forty States in January, most of them not to meet for two years. The way should be opened immediately for State action to provide the necessary co-operation with the Federal Government for the restoration of the crippled industrial workers to physical fitness, trade skill, and useful self-sustaining occupations.

RE-EMPLOYMENT OF SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

The United States Government, through its Labor Department, is initiating a plan by which the returning soldiers and sailors shall find opportunity for employment immediately upon their return home. Organizations are being set up in every community throughout the land under the auspices of the Government. These organizations will be Employment Bureaus for the discharged troops.

The churches can serve this excellent cause by appointing committees to co-operate with these bureaus in behalf of their respective groups of soldiers and sailors as they return.

Wonderful Egg Producer.

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 9251 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

My work as Sunday School Field Secretary has been pleasant this first month. The presiding elders have agreed to give one day of the district conference sessions to Sunday school institute work, the Secretary to plan and put on the program.

The Wesley Bible Class Federation will be held at Ruston in March.

ALONZO EARLY
Field Secretary.

Amite, La., Dec. 31, 1918.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

A happy New Year to all our Sunday school officers and teachers!

Have you seen a copy of the School Standard, the successor of the Workers' Council and Graded Magazine? It is just what our workers need. It is 75 cents a year to single subscribers and 70 cents in clubs of six. Send to Smith & Lamar for a copy.

The first thing to do is to know God, the God of the Bible, the prayer-hearing and the prayer-answering God; to know what God would have us do.

The next thing for us to do is to pray, pray until God fills us with his Spirit. Then pray for more laborers, pray God to put the spirit of prayer upon the laborers already at work. Yes, pray ten times as much as we have ever prayed—pray early, pray often, pray much, and believe that if we ask, God will do.

The Workers' Council must be brought into action. This group of workers should plan one month at a time, and think, and work, and pray the plans through to victory. We have been marking time too long; let us stop going around and around and for the sake of a lost world let us get out of the ruts and do what God expects of us.

Brother Superintendent, send me the name of the chairman of your Missionary Committee, give me the name of your church and district; for there are a dozen or more "Bethels" in the Conference. You need a chairman, secretary, and treasurer. The chairman sees that the missionary program is carried out each month; the treasurer keeps all the missionary money separate from other offerings and remits these offerings to J. J. Stowe, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn., monthly.

If you want any information as to your missionary program, write to J. L. Neill, Nashville, Tenn., or to your humble servant. You will find the program for missions in the Magazine and in the School Standard.

Send me the name of the chairman of your Missionary Committee and see what will happen.

REPORT, SUNDAY SCHOOL FIELD SECRETARY, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Last Sunday was spent here at Shubuta, and we had a most pleasant and profitable time. After the New Standard was read and examined, it was decided that those few things that were lacking would be put in and the school made a Standard school. I was delighted, and hope that there are many more schools that will follow, or that have already measured up.

Fourteen teacher-training books were ordered and ten signed the covenant to take the teacher-training work.

Write me about your work. I will be glad to go to those places where the work has never been presented, and to those places where there are no schools. Pray for me.

Yours in Him,
JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

50 EGGS A DAY.

"Since using 'More Eggs' I get 40 to 50 eggs a day instead of 8 or 9," writes A. P. Woodard, of St. Cloud, Fla. This scientific tonic has made big egg profits for thousands of poultry raisers all over the United States. Get ready now and make big profits out of your hens this winter. A $1.00 package will double the egg production and a million dollar bank guarantees to refund your money if you are not entirely satisfied. Send $1.00 now to E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, 5251 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., or send $2.25 and get 3 regular $1.00 packages on special discount for a full season's supply. Or write for his valuable free book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

NOTICE! IMPORTANT!

How much are you willing to give for peace on earth?

Can you number the dollars you have given for war?

In the Mississippi Conference, there are quite a number of companies being formed and trained for officers and privates under the standard of our Prince of Peace. We have twenty-six young women who are volunteers to go wherever most needed. At our officers' training camp—Scarritt Bible and Training School—we have eight young women.

In our colleges, there are a number of girls eager and anxious to volunteer, but they must first have the training necessary for service. To secure this training, most of these girls are working their way through school. No free training, free uniforms, etc., for these soldiers of the Cross.

It has been truly said, "There can be no lasting peace without world-wide democracy;" and again, "There can be no true democracy so long as three-fourths of this world have not heard of Christ." Then again, "Miss Bonnell's life and influence in Japan were worth more to America for peace than a fleet of armed cruisers." We have other Miss Bonnells right in our Conference. I know them. I write to them—girls willing to give their all and go to any farflung battle line in His service.

Do you believe all this? Of course you do, and have thought of it many times.

Then we must put first things first—we must understand the message of the angels as they sang that night, "Peace on earth, good will to men." We must obey our Savior's command to "Go," to "Tell," and "Send." We have started a fund that will give "a lift" to these splendid young women recruits in His army, who are longing to train efficiently and quickly and carry the "sword of peace."

Our Conferencce and Council will direct the expenditure of this fund very wisely, as you know. How much will you give toward peace? Send your check for this "Peace Fund" very quickly, for our Conference convenes soon.

Yours in the cause of young people for Christ,

Mrs. H. O. MIDDLETON,
Conf. First Vice-Pres.

Mendenhall, Miss.

HOW SHIVAR MINERAL WATER RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To relieve Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer from rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

A HAPPY PREACHER.

Dear Mr. Editor: The Plain Dealing people were exceedingly careful in trying to make us happy at the parsonage. Their generosity was shown, when Sister McGauhey said Santa would visit the parsonage pantry. So Santa came, with lots of good things to eat and gifts of various and sundry kinds.

At mail time, Christmas eve, I took our mail to the house and we opened it, finding cards of Christmas greetings, currency and checks, all seemingly reiterating our childhood Santa receptions. A big turkey was standing in the coop Christmas Eve, ready to fill his place on our table the next day.

We have no language whereby we can express our real joy and happiness and thanks to the people for their thoughtfulness of us. We wish them a Happy New Year and many more.

SOULS THAT DARE AND DO.

By Rev. A. C. Piersel, D.D.

Several years ago, Henry Fawcett, a young Englishman, accidentally lost the sight of both eyes through stray shots from his father's gun while they were out hunting together. Speaking of the matter in after years, Fawcett said—"I made up my mind inside of ten minutes after the accident to stick to my main purpose as far as in me lay." This he did—working his way through Cambridge University, subsequently becoming Professor of Political Economy therein, was afterwards appointed Postmaster-General of England, giving to the British people the Parcel-Post system.

Fosdick closes this introductory incident in his notable book on The Challenge of the Present Crisis with this remark—"He took hold of his situation by its real handle; he met it as a challenge to his strength and not as an excuse for disheartenment."

Every crisis, every problem, every perplexity of life has a handle. Notwithstanding this, many relate themselves thereto as the inhabitants of Africa related themselves to the first introduced wheel-barrows—they carried them, even loaded, on their heads. This was their custom.

The blind Milton wrote "Paradise Regained" the deaf Beethoven composed sonatas; Henry M. Stanley, born in an almshouse, was honored with burial in Westminster Abbey.

A friend remarked to an afflicted one, "Affliction does so color the life." "Yes," replied the afflicted one, "and I propose to choose the color."

The speaker once heard Maud Ballington Booth say, "I am so busy that I have no time for questions of doubt."

"Every piece of work is done by some people three times—in previous worry, in anxious performance, and in regretful retrospect," remarks Fosdick.

Regretful retrospect—that is where Lot's wife became a memorial for coming itinerants. Contrast with her attitude that of Mary the Mother of Jesus. With the great grief of Crucifixion over her, she yet met with the meeting disciples in the upper room, was comforted with the Comfort that strengthens, as well as consoles, and gave her life to ministry and to service.

Every problem of country, of community, of church, of home, of every individual, is but a challenge to the best that is within us.

That was a fine cover on a recent number of the Red Cross Magazine—a soldier helping a wounded comrade along, and saluting the Christ on the Cross by the way. A common heart-joy did make them kin. He was strengthened.

The State seal of Kansas has on it, "Per aspera ad astra"—through difficulties to the stars. It is about time for all human hearts really to live the text, and not spend too much time singing, "Will there be any stars in my crown."

They had become fast friends in the trench. The Englishman wanted to cement the friendship, now that they were to be separated, by the gift of a ring to the Frenchman, desiring to have engraved therein a sentiment of the Frenchman's choosing. And he chose, "For their sakes I sanctify myself."

Edith Cavell, the brave English nurse about to be shot by the Germans, said, "I see now that patriotism is not enough; I must die without hatred or bitterness toward anyone."

"I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me." — Central Christian Advocate.

TIME OUT.

Old School vs. New.

"Do they ring two bells for school?" asked the old gentleman of his little nephew.

"No, Uncle Harry," said the boy, "they ring the same one twice."—The American Boy.

Good Taste.

Mother—"That young man of yours is simply impossible. He doesn't like Shaw; he doesn't like Ibsen; he doesn't like Galsworthy. Whom does he like?"

Daughter (demurely) — "Me."—Boston Transcript.

American Money.

Corporal Bilkins had arrived in France after a few days in England. "How much money have you got left?" asked Corporal Wilkins. "Well, I've got four shillings, a quid, two farthings, nine pennies, a franc, half a pound, four sous, and fifty centimes; but I've only got two dollars in cash." —Camp Dodger.

A Practical Suggestion.

O.C. (presenting medal): "It gives me great pleasure, O'Connor, to pin this medal on your breast, and to tell you that I am also placing five pounds to your credit in the bank."

Private O'Connor: "Thank ye, sorr. . . Sorr!"

O.C.: "Yes?"

Private O'Connor: "If ye wouldn't mind now, sorr, couldn't ye pin the foive pounds on me breast and put the medal in the bank?"—Exchange.

Liked Noise.

A California merchant offered a pair of fine boots that he had long kept in stock to a Chinese for three dollars. The Oriental finally took them, but two days later he brought them back.

"Him no good," declared John. "Him no sing-song boot. Velly soon wear out. Me likee sing-song boot or me catchee back tree dolla'."

"Singsong boot!" exclaimed the merchant. "Me no sabee."

"Me t'ink you sabe, all lite," replied John. "Wha' fo' him boot no singee squeak! squeak! when Chinaman walkee, alle same good boot?"

When the merchant had given him in exchange for the fine boots a pair of coarse, cheap ones, that squeaked loudly, John Chinaman departed highly satisfied.—Exchange.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

Mrs. H. M. Patton, Waverly, Mo., writes: "I fed two boxes of 'More Eggs' to my hens and broke the egg record. I got 1,500 eggs from 160 hens in exactly 21 days." You can do as well. In fact, any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker write E. J. Reefer, poultry man, 6251 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Ugh! Calomel Makes You Deathly Sick

Stop using dangerous drug before it salivates you! It's horrible!

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone to-night and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

A LETTER FROM LOUISVILLE, MISS.

Dear Mr. Editor: While we were denied the association of the brethren at Conference, and the privilege of meeting you, we are pleased with our appointment and have no complaint to make about the Conference in any way. This is our third year at Louisville; this charge is developing into a strong appointment. We have a splendid people to support the work, and they have done, and are doing, nicely. We were royally received by the good people. Their expression of friendship was more than we expected. They pounded us in great shape with good things too numerous to mention, and, among other things, more than a hundred dollars in cash. We appreciate every one of those friends and pray God's blessings to abide upon each of them. I hope to have the best year in my ministry and that Louisville charge shall have the best year in its history. This board of stewards raised the pastor's salary over two hundred dollars. I will quit as I can not tell you all the good things that have happened. Come to Louisville to the Durant District Conference and we will let you talk to these good people.

God bless you and the Advocate force; you are giving us a good paper. Here goes for a great year in Jesus' name. W. C. CARLISLE, P. C.

PASSING ANOTHER MILESTONE.

The Chinese Church Launches Out in Mission Work at Home.

Historians of the future; engaged in writing the story of Christian work in China, may point back to 1918 as marking one of the great milestones in the history of the Church. 1807 stands out as the year in which Robert Morrison came to found Protestant work in China; 1842 as the year in which the treaty of Nanking began the great drive to the interior; 1900 as the year in which the Church weathered its great persecution, and 1918 as the year in which that Church began to take upon itself the burden of evangelizing the unreached portions of China.

For some time leading Chinese Christions have felt that the Church would never reach its due strength until it began to propagate its life and message in other parts of China. With more than three hundred thousand enrolled as Christians, many of them men of wealth, it would seem to indicate a lack of spiritual vigor if all the responsibility for the evangelization of China should be allowed to rest upon foreigners.

Sporadic attempts to launch a home missionary enterprise have been made, but without great success. There is it is true, a successful Christian work in Kwangtung which is largely the offspring of the Chinese Christians of America. But no extensive effort has been carried on in China owing its life to the interest of Chinese who have not lived in the atmosphere of the West.

Now the day for such an enterprise seems to be here. At the conferences held last summer, notably that at Kuling, Chinese leaders came to the conclusion that the Church was ready to support such an effort, and immediate steps were taken to make the idea a reality. In the few weeks that have elapsed large progress has been made.

Preparations for this work have been under the charge of a committee of which Dr. C. Y. Cheng, of the China Continuation Committee, is chairman; David Yui, of the Y. M. C. A., is treasurer, and Dr. W. P. Chen, editor of the Chinese Christian Advocate, secretary. Other members of the committee are Dr. Mary Stone, of Kiukiang, Miss Katie Wee, of Hongkong, Mrs. Far T. Sung, of Peking, and Miss Tsai, of Nanking.

Present plans, as considered at a meeting of the committee recently held in Shanghai, contemplate the opening of work in Yunnan. Missionaries familiar with conditions in China will at once recognize the wisdom of planting this work in this province, so little touched with Christian influences and so difficult for foreign residence. If a work of, by and for Chinese is needed anywhere, this would seem to be the place.

There will be no rushing in, however, to stake out permanent locations for work. Should present plans be carried through, two commissions, one composed of men and the other of women, will enter Yunnan this fall, to spend until next summer spying out the land.

At the head of the commission of men will be Pastor Ding Li Mei, the evangelist whose preaching and work as secretary of the Chinese Student Volunteer Movement have given him a leading place among the Protestants of China. Pastor Ding makes an ideal leader for such an enterprise. He can command the confidence of the entire Christian community, both Chinese and foreign, and can bring to the work a zeal which is sure to impress the spirit of eager evangelism on the enterprise from its beginning. With Pastor Ding there will be associated two men of his own choosing.

The women who are to lead into Yunnan are already selected. Unless future developments make necessary a change of personnel, they will be Miss Chen, of the American Board work at Peking, Dr. Hwang, of the Danforth Memorial Hospital at Kiukiang, and Miss MacMullen of the Southern Presbyterian mission at Kashing.

The plans of work as outlined for these two commissions are very different. They will enter Yunnan at different times. Pastor Ding and his party will travel throughout the province, not staying long in any one city, but seeking to discover where the work can be permanently established with most hope of return.

On the other hand, Miss MacMullen and those with her expect to go to some definite section and give their time to intensive labor. By next summer it is thus hoped to determine which form of work—itinerant evangelism or centralized—offers most for the future.

When these commissions return to Shanghai next year and report to their executive committee it is believed that they will have the material upon which to base a complete future program of work. All the Protestant Christians of China will be asked to unite in the support of this work, and there should be instant and enthusiastic response to such an appeal.

The whole enterprise, conceived in prayer and conducted in a spirit of consecration, surely marks a significant development in the life of Chinese Christianity. May it develop into a strong and permanent success. —China Christian Advocate (Dr. A. P. Parker, Associate Editor).

ARE YOU LOSING YOUR GRIP ON HEALTH

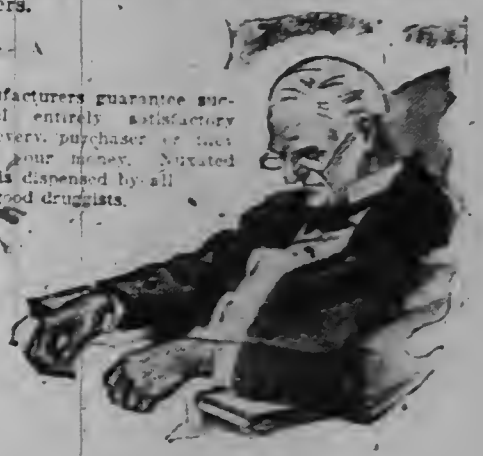
Your Blood May Be Starving for Want of Iron—Making You Weak, Nervous, Irritable and Exhausted.

Nuxated Iron, increases the Red Blood Corpuscles and builds up the strength, energy and endurance of delicate, run-down people in two weeks' time in many instances.

Thousands of men and women are impairing their constitutions, laying themselves open to illness and literally losing their grip on health, simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Lack of Iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous, and irritable. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron. It often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous run-down people in two weeks' time." Nuxated Iron is now being used by over three million people annually, including such men as Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury, and ex-Governor of Iowa; former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential nominee, Charles A. Towne; United States Commissioner of Immigration Hon. Anthony Caminette; also United States Judge G. W. Atkinson of the Court of Claims of Washington and others.

The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists.



Catarrh is a Real Enemy and Requires Vigorous Treatment

Do Not Neglect It.

When you use medicated sprays, atomizers and douches for your Catarrh, you may succeed in unstopping the choked-up air passages for the time being, but this annoying condition returns, and you have to do the same thing over and over again.

Catarrh has never yet been cured by these local applications. Have you ever experienced any real benefit from such treatment?

Throw these makeshift remedies to the winds, and get on the right treatment. Go to your drug store to-day, get a bottle of S. S. S., and commence a treatment that has been praised by sufferers for nearly half a century.

S. S. S. gets right at the source of Catarrh, and forces from the blood the germs which cause the disease. You can obtain special medical advice regarding your own case without charge by writing to Medical Director, 22 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 66—No. 3. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South Whole No. 3282.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE NEGRO WAS RIGHT.

Recent reports from Washington show that the great 14-inch American naval guns, which can hurl a 1400-pound projectile 25 miles, were very effective in destroying the transportation systems of the Germans. A Negro must have had these guns in mind when he said, "You run all day, and they kill you about supper-time."

HARD TO KEEP UP.

State legislatures are ratifying the national prohibition amendment so fast that it is hard to keep up with them. The number is now in the twenties. There is every indication that the necessary thirty-six will have ratified within a month. Good-by, John Barleycorn; you are not coming back.

NO USE, BUT—

We realize the fact that it is perfectly useless to suggest that by a little practice of the art of condensation a good many forty-five minute sermons could be reduced to thirty minutes without loss of any kind; in fact we are convinced that there would be positive gain, on the part of preacher and people alike. But some of us will continue to spread the butter on the bread thin, no matter what happens. More butter on a smaller piece of bread would taste better, though.

TOO MANY HOGS—NOT ENOUGH PORK.

We read the other day that two trainloads of hogs had been shipped from Florida to Texas for slaughtering because the packing houses in Florida were overstocked. We had an idea that there are just about enough hogs in the world to supply all legitimate needs—but evidently there is not enough pork. The prices we have to pay our butcher have a tendency to make us feel that pork is rapidly passing into the class of the great auk—extinct. If we had a farm, we'd try to raise pigs enough for home consumption.

WHAT AGE ARE WE LIVING IN?

Some recent disclosures of conditions existing on the penitentiary farms of Mississippi, made by the Governor of the State, according to the daily newspapers, makes us wonder if we are living in the twentieth century of Christian civilization. The fact that prisoners have been brutally mistreated by those in charge of them is enough to bring the blush of shame to the cheek of every good man and woman; and the revelation of the moral degradation to which the system seems to have sunk will arouse a hot wave of indignation throughout the State. So long as such conditions exist, we shall have to exercise charity in thinking of ages long since passed. Of one thing we are sure: the magnificent citizenship of Mississippi, since the facts have become known, will not be content until these conditions have been remedied, and those who are responsible for them have been brought to account for their misdoings. Prison reform has not yet accomplished all that needs to be done, but as good people become acquainted with the facts they are going to insist upon a radical reformation.

DID YOU EVER SEE THIS?

We worshiped with our Second Church congregation in this city last Sunday morning. The pastor was absent on account of illness, but a loyal layman conducted the service in a most profitable manner. But the thing that attracted our attention was this: We were seated where we could see the entire congregation. When the usual morning offering was taken, every person present in the congregation, unless our eyes deceived us, made a contribution. The congregation was not very large, it is true, but those who were there had the right idea. Giving is a part of the service into which all may enter—and it helps the devotional spirit.

MAKE THE HUNS HURRY.

The press dispatches report that Germany is considerably behind in the program of complying with the terms of the armistice. This is particularly true as concerns war materials, railroad equipment, and the repatriation of Entente prisoners. Of course the Allied military authorities know best what to do under the circumstances. They whipped the Hun and they can keep him whipped. But as we read the revelations that are continually being made of German treachery, brutality and bestial outrages, we have a feeling that the time has not yet quite come to use mercy in equal quantity with justice in dealing with the outlaws. If our memory serves us aright, the Allies have already made some concessions as to the time limit. It seems to us that the logical thing now is for the Huns to do a little hurrying.

THE HIT POCKETBOOK HOWLS.

A recent press dispatch stated that a certain Southern city was greatly exercised over the fact that the commanding officer of a neighboring military camp had issued an order forbidding the soldiers to visit the city except on official business. The explanation of the order was to the effect that although the officers of the town were cognizant of the fact that many men in the service became intoxicated while visiting the town, they seemed to be unable to remedy conditions. The military order, therefore, became necessary. The dispatch then naively adds that the question of correcting the evils complained of is now being considered. The inference is that the town officials cared more for the money the soldiers spent in it than they did for their morals. Uncle Sam does not object to his soldiers spending their money, but he does not propose to stand idly by and see them squander their manhood. Sometime people will learn that it is good business to keep a town clean.

HARD TO BELIEVE.

Our General Organ speaks of a presiding elder who said that one of the greatest difficulties he had encountered in pushing the Centenary campaign in his district was with the preachers themselves. The reason assigned was that their faith was benumbed by the magnitude of the undertaking. This may be true in some cases but it is hard for us to believe that there is a single preacher in the M. E. Church, South, who has made himself acquainted with the resources of our people, that can doubt the possibility of our carrying the Centenary program through to a successful conclusion. The plan is a big one, to be sure, as we measure such things in the Church, but it is comparatively small by the side of many commercial enterprises of the day. Watch the preachers of Louisiana and Mississsissippi Conferences throw themselves heartily into the work!

NOT IF YOU HAVE IT.

"Religion lacks thrill;" is the headline in a daily newspaper over the report of an interview with a visiting clergyman in New Orleans. The visitor proceeded to say that Christianity has failed—and he emphasized his statement by adding that he said it "with a loud voice and cheerfully." He explains his statement by adding: "All the venture has gone out of religion. The man at the front, the man in business, has always the sense of adventure, the fascination of the Great Chance. It thrills him. When Sunday comes, there is nothing but the cut and dried idea of religion." Maybe so, maybe so, but we were not aware of it before. On the other hand, we say it "cheerfully and with a loud voice:" Christianity has not failed, it has not lost its thrill, and all the venture has not gone out of it.

COMMERCIAL ASSASSINS.

Various cities throughout the country are having great difficulty in securing an adequate supply of pure milk at a reasonable price. It is generally recognized that the rate of infant mortality is directly connected with the amount and purity of this essential food supply. Almost every day we read in the New Orleans papers accounts of the arrest, trial and conviction of dairymen who persist in selling adulterated milk. This offense is a great deal more than a misdemeanor. It indicates, apparently, a perfect willingness on the part of unscrupulous men to endanger the lives of innocent and helpless children for the sake of money. It is little less than murder in theory, if not in practice. The time is coming when an outraged public will demand that such steps be taken as will protect them from commercial assassins. They have no conscience that may be appealed to; as hardened criminals, they should be made to feel the full weight of the law.

WHAT THE WORLD NEEDS.

Then hide it not, the music of thy soul,
Dear sympathy expressed with kindly voice,
But let it like a shining river roll
To deserts dry—to hearts that would rejoice.
O, let the symphony of kindly words
Sound for the poor, the friendless, and the weak
And He will bless you. He who struck the chords
Will strike again when in turn you seek.

LITTLE CONGREGATIONS.

By Wm. C. Allen.

"Our hoard is little, but our hearts are great."

—Tennyson.

One of the finest services I ever attended was held on the diminutive porch of a ranch house, 8,000 feet above sea-level, in the midst of the Rocky Mountains. The big pine trees swung over our heads in the soft autumnal air and thrust their points into the heart of the deep blue sky. The nearby patch of corn and berries rustled gentle music and was all the choir we had. Behind it towered a huge wall of glistening granite and heaped up mountains that seemed to speak of the immutability of God. About ten persons were present, including a few from nearby farms. The ministry was simple and poured forth the glad elixir of the Kingdom. It spoke of solace in sorrow, of the holy promises of Jehovah, of hope in Jesus. As it progressed, tears coursed down the faces of some of the little flock. Was not the uplift of the hour worth while? Had we not, though small in numbers, been in the presence of the King?

When our Lord ascended into heaven He left a little band, weak, needy, steeped in prayer. Its very helplessness compelled it to supplicate with potent fervor for the continued presence and aid of its vanished Leader. The physical opposition it encountered forced it to absolute dependence upon the spiritual realities alone. Surrounded by enemies and familiar with prison walls, it increased in power and numbers. Here is a lesson and challenge from the past. Can we accept it?

As a few coals placed together send forth light and heat, so do united Christian hearts glow into a living flame. Those who have dedicated themselves to Jesus rejoice in the fellowship of worship—they long for their neighbors to partake of it. There is no selfishness in the things of Christ. Their minister will not tread a lonely path when he asks others to participate in the golden hour. His people, with tactfulness born of love for their Master, will invite their neighbors to go with them to the house of prayer. Some will refuse, others will accept. Repeated effort in the spiritual realm, as in other things, brings a sure reward.

We love our country with fervid hearts. We are persuaded that without righteousness America will fall of her lofty mission to the world. Each tiny congregation constitutes a rallying place where the thunders of Sinai or the witness to the still, small voice may obtain a hearing. Probably the interpretation of the loftier patriotism is best understood by those who with open minds wait on God. But if these gatherings are to be effective, they should be rooted in unity and love. Each member then will be personally qualified to contribute to the development of the finer idealism that America proclaims. Our country is very dependent on the little groups of church people for maintaining the spiritual forces that make a nation safe and great.

The Holy Spirit gladly comes to where two or three are gathered in His name. It may be out in the countryside where winter winds sweep boisterously or when summer breezes softly play. It may be in the crowded courts of an apparently God-forgetting city or where men keep watch far away on the restless sea. It may be in the stillness of the old-time Friends' worship, where unuttered heart-melody ascends to the great white throne. It may be in some magnificent cathedral where clouds of incense and high ritual avow fealty to God. He loves all—He accepts all. But probably it is the little groups which, if they only knew it, are favored most of all. The baptism of Christ's healing waters is not always poured most abundantly upon the great assemblies. The little folk are strangely blessed of Him—no man can take away their joy.

From the small churches have gone forth men and women who have swayed the world. Every humble place of worship may become a hallowed spot more alluring than gold or fairyland. The faithful little congregations illuminate the spiritual gloom that surrounds them. Is not a dimly-burning wick better than no light at all? We answer, yes.

San Jose, Cal.

THE KIND OF PASTOR SHE WANTED

By Byron H. Stauffer

She was one of a committee of three who came to consult with me regarding a preacher for their pretty California town. The chairman said what they needed was a mixer, a man who could referee a baseball game, run in and out of the billiard rooms, tell the fellows on the hotel porch a "new one"—in short, be a hail-fellow-well-met. The other man thought they should have a financier, one who could dig up his own salary. The little woman finally remarked that she hadn't thought financing and ball-playing so important, and she didn't imagine that they stood a chance of getting a great orator. "But I did hope we could find an earnest man," she said; "one who really regards his work as shepherd of the flock in a more serious way than most of the preachers I have met since I left my girlhood home."

I have thought of her phrase a good deal. "An earnest man." A State Christian Endeavor secretary said that in three years' journeyings among churches and parsonages he could not recall having witnessed family prayer in preachers' homes more than once. He was a careful sort of man, else I should have challenged his awful statement. An earnest man! Wanted, a man who never forgets for an instant that he is an ambassador for Jesus Christ.

I met Father Minehan on a Niagara boat one summer afternoon. He was going over to spend the night with one of his laymen who had a cottage at Niagara-on-the-Lake. He said he had four families over there, and thought he would avail himself of the opportunity of saying Mass in the early morning for their benefit. It was not required, of course; it was only that he regarded his work seriously. An earnest man! Campbell Morgan stayed with a Toronto man, who afterwards said, "I wouldn't have missed it for the world. His presence has re-established the family altar in our house. He made the ten minutes of reading and prayer a wonderful occasion."

Not long ago I had in my congregation for two Sabbaths a notable pastor on his vacation. The second Sunday I asked him to take the prayer. I had never before known exactly the secret of that man's success; I know now. Oh, the wonderful power he had in prayer! He talked to his Father as one who knew the throne of grace. That prayer was as important to him as my sermon was to me. An earnest man!

Have you read the "Life of Henry Drummond," by George Adam Smith? How on fire with a zeal for souls Drummond was! In every letter he wrote to friends this flame leaped up. "I give you the beautiful text I got this morning," he tells a correspondent. "It is, 'Now the Lord my God has given me rest on every side.'" He never landed in a town without launching a movement for the uplift of its young men. Never a night was spent in a home without touching the spiritual life of its inmates. When I note how much of work for the Master was crowded into those forty-six years I am ashamed to think how much time we fritter away. An earnest man!

I was blessed by reading Newman Hall's autobiography. Down to the evening twilight of that long life the pastor of Surrey Chapel toiled. But his work was performed with zest. Wherever he went during the week he had the cure of souls in constant view.

Now that the war is ended, let us look to the task that confronts the Church. Let us not deceive ourselves by imagining that we have an intrinsically new brand of work, Brother Preacher. We are still to comfort, exhort and teach. Our commission is to lead men to the Savior, win the little ones to a righteous and helpful career, soften the pillow of dying saints. I have heard it said so often of late that there must be a new sort of Church, that the returning soldier will not put up with the old methods or the old doctrines. Let there be no confusion from these misleading assertions. The army camps will disappear, the men will put off their uniforms and return to their homes, scattering over the land. There will be no new brand of church designed for them, for nowhere will there be a rendezvous for such gatherings. The old Church will serve them; the old doctrines will be preached; the old Ten Commandments will be in force; the old privilege of coming to the Redeemer will be proclaimed. The need everywhere will be preachers who know that their Redeemer liveth, men who have been saved from their sins and who therefore can point the people to the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. Never before has there been such a demand for an earnest ministry. Oh, for a pulpit of convictions, positive and burning!—The Christian Guardian.

"OVER THERE."

By Rev. Elmer C. Gunn.

Le Mans.

Dear Mr. Editor: Did you ever hear of the City of Le Mans in France? No? Well, I never had either, until I received orders at Brest to proceed to Chateau d'Aux Loupeland, detraining at Le Mans. Obeying this order, I proceeded to Le Mans and found it to be one of the most historic and interesting of the smaller cities of France.

Le Mans, chief city of the Department of the Sarthe, is situated at the juncture of the Huisne and Sarthe Rivers, about one hundred and thirty miles southwest of Paris. In ordinary times its population was about seventy thousand, but there may be now added to this number at least as many more refugees from the war district and about one hundred thousand soldiers of the Army of the A. E. F. It has been a village, town or city for more than two thousand years.

On the main hill of the city there stood a walled village, a goodly part of which walls may be seen to-day, when Julius Caesar swept down from Italy about fifty years before the birth of the Savior of the world. The city itself first appears in history in the writings of Ptolemy in the second century. Rome began to lose her hold on this section in the fourth century, and for several hundred years this and the surrounding provinces of the ancient State of Maine furnished the battleground for the opposing tribes of Gaul and the neighboring States. In the year 510, Clovis, first King of the Franks, had his kinsman, brother of the King of Cambrai, put to death here in Le Mans. Charlemange visited the city twice, first in 778 and again in 800. In the 11th century it came into possession of William of Normandy (The Conqueror). In 1129 Geoffery the Handsome (Plantagenet), being then fifteen years old, was married by his father to Matilda, a widow thirty-five years old and daughter of Henry I, King of England. The house in which the wedding took place still stands. Here was born to this union a son, who afterwards became Henry II of England and the father of Richard Coeur de Lion, famous as a Crusader of the thirteenth century. The King of France after overcoming John, the brother and betrayer of Richard the Lion-hearted, gave the city to Berengere, widow of Richard. She died in 1230 and her tomb, with an effigy surmounting it, may now be seen in the wonderful choir of the Cathedral of St. Julien. Maine and its capitol suffered during the Hundred Years' War. First it would be ravished by the British and then by the French armies. During the French Revolution it was sacked by the Vendeen army. In 1871 the victorious armies of Germany occupied the city for three months. In the Place de Republique is a striking monument commemorating the battle between the French Army of the Loire under General Chanzy and a German army, which battle ended as most of the other battles of that inglorious time, that is, disastrously for the French. It is of interest to all Americans who visit this place to note that here Wilbur Wright, working with a Frenchman of the name of Bollee, perfected his flying machine.

By far the most interesting building in Le Mans is the Cathedral of St. Julien. It was begun in the 11th century and finished in the 15th, its construction covering a period of four hundred years. The style of architecture is Gothic and the building itself is, of course, in the form of a cross. Some of the finest glass in the world may be seen in the magnificent windows of this wonderful old building. One sees here glass of the 11th, the 13th, and the 15th centuries, but it is easy to see that the earlier is by far the better. It is a well known fact that glass, such as is found in this and other of the cathedrals of France, cannot now be made, its construction being a lost art, and that is one of the reasons why the work of the Hun in destroying the Cathedral of Rheims was so dastardly. In the Cathedral there are a number of tombs, but the most interesting is that of Berengere, widow of Richard Coeur de Lion. This tomb is to be seen in the transcept, near the magnificent organ and almost under the choir loft. In the center of the great building where the nave is crossed by the transcept one may stand and, looking up, see one hundred feet above his head the span of the arch that holds the dome. One treads softly and speaks low while in a building such as this. He reads in the curves and lines and spaces the story of the great sacrifices of the peasants of the distant ages, which sacrifices made possible the construction of this work of art. He reads there also the secret of the hold of the Roman Church on this fair land. He knows that their every interest centers here. He looks about him and sees numbers of French peasant children with teachers drilling them in the doctrines of their Church. He discovers that in addition to the Sunday schools, which meet, as do ours, on the morning of the first day of the week, two hours each week all the children of the public schools of the city gather in various classes in this great building, and their teachers, THOSE WHO TEACH THEM IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS, drill them in the faith of the Church of their fathers. Is it any wonder, dear Editor, that the Roman has a grip on this land of France? Does some one say that the cathedrals of France are only show places where strangers of other lands come to view with wonder the workmanship of other ages? Nay verily, the cathedrals of France are themselves the center of the life of those who live about them, and there never was a time in the history of the world when their priests were busier than they now are.

Don't allow the people back home to forget the members of the A. E. F. The work is still going on over here; in fact, some of it is just getting started, and the men I meet are wondering whether the interest of the good old U. S. A. will wane as the number of those returning increases. I know, of course, that it will not, but there are those among us who do not realize what the war has meant to our great country, and these are they who feel that there is danger of being forgotten. Write to the men over here! Write more regularly than ever before and write more often! Tell them of the welcome that awaits them when they return to the States. Encourage them! Some of them feel that since the war is over there is no reason why they should not be allowed to go home to-morrow. Many of them think they are being kept here uselessly. You and I know that such is not at all the case. We realize that they are needed here for the work they are doing just as much as they ever were needed during the war, and that it is simply impossible to get them home just yet. Realizing this, you must write cheerfully to the men, telling them of the brighter occurences at home. Tell them the home fires are burning just as brightly as they ever were, and tell them that the love and the cheer and the fulfilled dreams that will be theirs when they do get home will be worth all the heartache and the pain and the weariness that may have been theirs in France.

We need your co-operation and your prayers—may we not depend on you?

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE HOSPITAL COMMISSION.

The Hospital Commission, appointed at the recent session of the Mississippi Conference at McComb, held its first meeting in Jackson, Miss., January 2, with a good attendance present.

It was unanimously decided that the greatest need of the Methodist Church is a hospital located somewhere within the bounds of the Conference. Plans were immediately entered upon to erect such a hospital, modern in every detail, with every facility for the treatment of patients, including convalescent and recreational quarters, and situated at some central, easily accessible point in the State.

It is the purpose of the Commission to push the building of this hospital rapidly so as to meet the growing demands for such an institution as quickly as possible. It was decided to name the institution Methodist Hospital.

The location is to be determined by the amount of interest shown by the community seeking the hospital, by accessibility to railways, its proximity to local car lines or easy means of access, and other natural advantages. A bonus from the city seeking it will be acceptable—even expected as an evidence of interest and a pledge of continued support—but will not be the determining factor in its location.

At least four acres of ground will be required as a site. And after this has been selected an architect who has specialized in the study of hospital construction will be employed to draw the plans for building. A minimum of sixty beds will constitute the initial plan with practically unlimited maximum accommodations, as the demands may require.

Three committees were appointed as follows, with instructions to report back to the Commission at a meeting to be held in Hattiesburg within a few weeks:

Committee on Finance—Rev. J. M. Morse, Mr. John A. McLeod, Mr. L. N. Dantzler, Rev. H. M. Ellis, and Rev. H. B. Watkins.

Committee on Location—Mr. W. M. Buie, Rev. Chas. W. Crisler, Mr. James Hand, Rev. W. H. Saunders, Rev. J. T. Leggett, Mr. C. W. Cochran.

Committee on Plans—Rev. L. L. Roberts, Rev. Paul D. Hardin, Mr. J. S. Otis, Mr. S. E. Moreton, and Mr. W. M. Buie.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, representing the chairman, Mr. P. H. Enochs, was made a member of each of these committees.

Much interest has already been manifested in this great enterprise and substantial subscriptions made.

REV. S. L. POPE WRITES FROM PARIS.

Dear Advocate: Of course, I had to be in Paris when President Wilson arrived on yesterday from America. I am certain the papers of the U. S. gave glowing accounts of the great reception given our President by the French, but you have to see it, and be in it, to realize the surpassing and overwhelming enthusiasm of it all. One heard the cry, "Viva American, viva France," until one was swept away by the deep emotion, born from the heart of a people who have suffered so severely for four years.

I attended the Wesleyan Methodist Church today at the 11 o'clock hour and heard our Bishop Lambuth preach an interesting sermon. He looked well in the Y. M. C. A. uniform, and they say he works well in it, too. The Y. M. C. A. is putting on a large and comprehensive program for our boys over here. I had a young lieutenant to ask me to-day when he could get in touch with their university course. They have an educational program ranging from a b c to the university course, and they have the men to do the teaching. The "Y" force over here now is composed of men of about every calling on earth. I have honestly tried to find the heart—the real inner pulse-beat—of the Y. M. C. A., and now, after two months of observation I am convinced the one deep purpose of "Y" men over here is to help get our boys home clean and manly for useful citizenship as a part of our great commonwealth. O yes, there are objections, and many of them, but the biggest-hearted man I ever knew was one-eyed and he was so ugly you felt it a shame for him to walk the public streets; but when you saw the heart of the man, and knew the real outflowings of his soul, you forgot entirely his facial imperfections. I remember dear old Bishop Keener's saying once, "A pot of ointment may still be ointment, even though it has a fly in it."

I am down at Velrzone, France, for the winter. Our Government has many large camps in this region, and we find use for many of our "Y" men. I have not been here long enough yet to attempt to write about conditions in France, though I am impelled to say my respect for France and her people is deepened. You see the stamp of her national sorrow on every side, yet as a nation she is giving herself to the task of reconstruction with the same type of heroism ner men have shown in the trenches.

I intended this as a mere word of greeting to my brethren of North Mississippi and friends elsewhere who are readers of the Advocate. I found it hard not to be homesick about Conference time, but over here you just don't allow yourself to think too often of friends and loved ones 4000 miles away. It won't do.

S. L. POPE.

THE SECRET OF WEAKNESS.

It is the failure to spend a definite, even though it be short, time each day with God that is the secret of all weakness, variableness and shallowness in our spiritual experience and service. Our time may not be long, but it must be regular; and from the act will come the habit, and from the habit the attitude, and from the attitude the character, settled, strong, sure and abiding, wherein God's presence will be more and more a delight, and God's power more and more realized.—W. H. G. Thomas.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

The Texas Methodist Orphanage, located at Waco, is now caring for 226 children.

Dr. H. E. Stout has recently been elected president of Texas Woman's College, located at Fort Worth.

Dr. J. W. Lee will deliver the Quillian Lectures at Emory College this year. He is an alumnus of Emory, of the Class of 1874.

There is an interesting article in last week's St. Louis Christian Advocate by Bishop W. B. Murrah in behalf of the Superannuate Endowment Fund.

Dr. G. B. Winton is representing our Church in New York in connection with Centenary matters. He is editorial secretary of the Committee on Cooperation in Latin-America.

The Methodists of Louisville, Ky., want the next session of our General Conference to be held in that city. The preachers' meeting has appointed a committee to push the matter.

For the first time in its history, the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church has passed the two million dollar mark. Its income for 1918 was $2,380,346.98.

The North Carolina Christian Advocate has inaugurated a campaign to secure 10,000 additional subscriptions. It ought to have them. (So ought the New Orleans Christian Advocate.)

Bishop James Atkins and Dr. W. W. Pinson report by cable that they reached Paris safely on Jan. 6. They have gone abroad in the interest of the missionary work of the Church.

According to the Texas Christian Advocate, a member of Grace Church, Dallas, Miss Frankie Maddox, has missed Sunday school only one Sunday in seventeen years. We know of no better record.

President J. H. Reynolds, of Hendrix College, Arkansas, in a note to the Arkansas Methodist, stated that probably 50 or 60 per cent of the S. A. T. C. men would remain in attendance at the college.

We have seen the statement in several of our exchanges that every charge in the South Carolina Conference—mission, circuit, station—paid every assessment of every kind in full. This, at least, shows that it can be done.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has bought the last vacant site on Rome's seven hills for the new Methodist College. Eleven acres have been secured on Monte Mario, which overlook the Vatican and the whole of the Eternal City.

Bishop H. M. Du Bose is abundant in labors. In a New Year's letter in the Pacific Methodist Advocate, he expresses his purpose to visit every presiding elder's district in his episcopal area, and to extend the visitation to as many of the churches as possible.

All the Conference Missionary Secretaries attended a meeting at Memphis, Tenn., the week before Christmas in the interest of their work—all except one, who was kept away on account of illness. The Centenary Campaign was the chief matter under discussion.

The Methodist preachers of Florida are considering the question of changing the time of meeting of their Annual Conference from December to June. For the sake of the famous Florida climate, they should make it clear that it is not on account of the severity of the winters in that Land of Flowers.

We learn from the Wesleyan Christian Advocate that Dr. Plato T. Durham has resigned the deanship of the School of Theology of Emory University on account of his health, and that Dr. F. N. Parker has been elected to succeed him. Dr. Durham will continue his work as professor of church history.

Bishop J. H. McCoy has recently been very ill. After an attack of influenza, complications developed which made a surgical operation necessary, and for a while his life was almost despaired of. We are glad to be able to report, however, on the authority of the Alabama Christian Advocate, that his condition is greatly improved.

According to the reports that we have received from the various Annual Conferences, the women of our Church have been granted full laity rights by a vote of 4143 for, to 428 against. This is the necessary three-fourths majority, with 714 votes to spare. The action of the Conferences that have not yet voted on the question cannot change the result.

Dr. John R. Mott, Executive Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and a member of the Board of Managers of the Foreign Missions Board of the M. E. Church, has been made by the French Government a Knight of the Legion of Honor. This nomination comes in recognition of Dr. Mott's distinguished services to France and to the cause of the Allies.

Edwin H. Hughes, Jr., eldest son of Bishop and Mrs. Edwin H. Hughes, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has been awarded the croix de guerre for conspicuous quickness and coolness in carrying wounded men to the rear under heavy artillery and machine gun fire. He is connected with the ambulance service of a French Y. M. C. A. division.

THE MISSISSIPPI METHODIST HOSPITAL.

My Dear Mr. Editor: The secular papers are now carrying rather extended notices of the organization of the board that is charged with the duty of planning for the Mississippi Methodist Hospital. The recognized ability of the members of this board or committee is a guarantee to the membership of our Church that plans for the new institution will be carefully made after mature consideration of the schemes which have been adopted by those who have established similar institutions elsewhere. There is, however, one matter which, although already being considered by the board members, deserves the attention of the whole Southern Methodist public in Mississippi.

It may be seriously questioned whether our Church is justified in undertaking the foundation of a hospital, unless we may be assured that the institution will be differently organized and managed from the way in which some of the smaller hospitals owned by religious bodies are now being carried on. If the proposed hospital is simply to be a small affair of perhaps two general wards and from twenty to thirty private rooms and with accommodation for some ten or twelve charity patients, the rest of the available space being devoted to the use of persons who are able to pay the now standard charge of from $4 to $5 per day for general care and board, I can see little justification for its existence. The State furnishes a number of free hospitals for real charity cases and there are plenty of private and semi-private institutions for the use of the well-to-do who are able to pay the high rates charged to pay patients.

A small hospital organized and run as I have outlined would be of service to a relatively small number of real charity patients who would probably be as well, and almost as cheaply, cared for by the State, and it would further offer additional hospital room to the people who are able to pay from $4 to $5 per day—exclusive of special nursing charges and laboratory fees—but it would be of no real service to the men and women who make up in Mississippi by far the larger part of the membership of our Church. These men and women are those who, in the towns, hold the clerical positions or come under the classification of skilled labor, and in the same class belong nearly all of the farming class outside of the Delta. It is hard for wealthy men to put themselves in the places of men and women who earn from $75 to $125 per month and who have, in many cases, to make such wages or earnings cover the whole expense of supporting a family. We should stop and think for a moment what it means to a man who has an income of even $150 per month to have to pay in case of a month's illness—not of himself either, but of some members of his family—for medical and hospital bills. It is hardly probable that any operation, and many of the hospital cases our institution would have would be surgical cases, would cost less than $50. Three weeks of board and general care in the hospital would cost not less than $90 and a few days of special nursing would run the bill up to $100. Add to this the further charges of the physician or surgeon amounting to probably another $50, and it is easy to see that a man would be fortunate indeed who got a member of his family through a simple operation and a normal recovery on less than $171 to $200, exclusive of traveling expense.

Now I submit that, with the cost of living as it is and as it will probably be for a long time to come, the placing of an extra expense of $175 to $200 on any man whose income is $150 a month, or less than that amount, is nothing short of a calamity to him. It means in most cases the cutting off from his family of many things which most of the readers of the Advocate would look upon as necessaries. At any rate it would mean that he would have to borrow money and pay the interest on it while he tried to repay the principal—and there are many men in the class I mention who have no collateral on which to borrow. To the average small farmer the incurring of such an expense would, even in good years, mean the placing of a mortgage on his property which he would find it hard to clear off.

It seems to me that the Church could render no greater service than would be involved in seeing to it that the man of moderate income should not face the alternatives of the humiliation involved in taking charity or the disaster of heavy indebtedness.

Is it not possible to provide for an institution where people of the class I have mentioned could secure, by paying a substantial part of the actual cost of the service rendered them, the sort of care which is possible only in a good hospital? I know that such an institution would require some endowment. It would probably require a larger and more expensive medical and surugical staff to be provided by the hospital itself. But what is the justification for establishing an institution which will do nothing more than is already done by a number of other hospitals? There are such hospitals as I have described elsewhere. Some of them are partly supported by public funds. Our committees should, and doubtless will, study the plans of such institutions and endeavor to find out how they have been carried on.

Such a hospital as I have suggested would require for its establishment more money than it would take to start another of the small affairs with which most of us are familiar, but would not the end to be attained justify the expenditure, and the delay? Sincerely,

ROBERT B. RICKETTS.

A CALL FOR HELP.

Dear Mr. Editor: Through your columns may I plead an unusual claim?

The town of Harriston, Miss., is part of my pastoral work. In this place a few months ago two of our soldier boys were burned to death in the fire that destroyed the hotel. Our church building also burned. It was a total loss, as there was no insurance on it. Here is a town, an important railroad center, and not a "house of God" in the place.

We must rebuild this church for Him who died for us, at any sacrifice. If we do not rebuild it, these people will be without the gospel. This is truly a loud missionary call to "come over and help us." Our church membership is less than two dozen, the people are poor, and cannot build without help. I appeal to the friends of Christ to come to our relief. In fervent prayer ask Jesus about it, and "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it."—John 2:5.

SAD NEWS.

Dear Brother Carley: This (Sunday) afternoon we laid to rest in the cemetery here the body of Rev. Mounger Favre Adams, who died of influenza and pneumonia in the Wesley Memorial Hospital in Atlanta, Friday, Jan. 10, at 2:30 [illegible].

I need not say that his father and mother, Rev. and Mrs. T. W. Adams, and his sisters and his wife, with her people here, are in great grief, a grief shared by our entire Conference.

The services were held from the church here, conducted by Rev. B. F. Jones, assisted by Brothers P. D. Hardin, W. B. Jones, D. E. Kelly, E. H. Mounger, J. M. Morse, and the writer. Brothers C. F. Emery and W. A. Terry were also present in the service.

The dear ones suffering this extreme sorrow will need and have the sympathy and prayers of all our people. A suitable memoir will be written later.

Yours cordially,

H. B. WATKINS.

THE PRESIDENCY OF CENTENNARY COLLEGE.

For several weeks it has been unofficially known in Shreveport and throughout Louisiana that Dr. R. H. Wynn, who has been president of Centenary College for more than five years past, had resigned in order to re-enter regular pastoral work. At the recent session of the Conference he was assigned to the pastorate of the Ruston church and has entered upon his labors there. There has thus been some uncertainty in the public mind as to the presidency of the college, as no successor has been announced. In order to give the correct facts in the matter, the Executive Committee of the Board at a meeting during the past week, authorized the statement that Dr. Wynn, being located so near Shreveport, has been requested by unanimous vote of the committee, to serve as acting president, in connection with his other work until the end of the present session, when a permanent president will take charge.

Under this arrangement, Dr. Wynn will spend some time each week in personally looking over the affairs of the college, while a strong faculty with Prof. J. G. Sawyer as Dean, and recently augmented by the return of Lieut. B. D. Battle from army service, and the addition of Rev. S. A. Seegers to the teaching force, will look after the details of the school management.

During Dr. Wynn's presidency he has done splendid service in organizing and building up the institution, and at the present time it has, in spite of the hindrances brought about by war conditions, the largest enrollment it has had for five or six years. The work being done, both in high school and college departments, has been recognized by the best institutions throughout this section, and with proper co-operation on the part of the community there is prospect of great development in the future.

For some time Dr. Wynn has felt that he ought to return to regular ministerial work, and in doing so he carries with him the entire confidence and high esteem of the Board of Trustees and of the community.

A committee of the Board of Trustees is now at work upon the question of a suitable permanent successor to Dr. Wynn, a man in every way suited to the task of carrying forward the development of the college and leading a forward movement to place it in the front rank of Southern colleges, where it should be. It is hoped that this committee may be able to find the proper man so that the Board may announce the name of the new president in the early spring.

JNO. L. SCALES,
President Board of Trustees.

A NEW ROLE—THE SUPERANNUATE.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D. D.

And what does it all mean? Is it the story of the one-horse chaise repeated? Is it Irwin Russel's experience with the mule, uncertain as to the whence of the conditions, or is it St. James' natural man that looks into the glass and goeth away to forget what manner of man he is?

Well, whatever the what, whence, or how, it was a "stunner." Sixty-two additions to the Church, not a single absence from the pulpit in the 12 months, nearly 1000 pastoral visits, all assessments in full, with $2,000 paid on outstanding indebtedness and then! "O wad some power the gift to gie us to see ourselves as ithers see us!" And Bobby was a philosopher. In his rustic philosophy, Bill Arp gives an experience apropos. He said when Mr. Lincoln issued his proclamation for the South to disperse, that he went out into one of those Georgia pine thickets, pawed up the dirt, wrenched off pine saplings, bellowed furiously in his effort to obey, but he found that he couldn't disperse worth a cent!

Superannuate! Why, it's like the cry, "Samson, the Philistines be upon you," when the old giant began to feel of himself and found that somebody had made a mistake, as well as did those about him. But they say it's so; yet the boxes were packed just as in other days. No aching back. Feet? Well, no corns. Head? Let others speak. Eyes? No trouble to read my pastor's pocket Testament. Then, what's the matter? Well, the brethren said so. O, it's a case of the Scotch jury's verdict, "Guilty, but not proven." And still we wonder at the meaning of it all.

CLOTHES NEEDED.

One needs only to get down among the poorer classes of people and see the half-clad, barefooted, shivering children and old people to realize the effects of high prices caused by the war.

In my experience of six years in New Orleans, I never saw the need for food and clothes so great. Will not many of the readers of the Advocate send us their cast-off clothing and a few quilts or blankets? Whole families are almost wholly without covering.

THE HABIT OF DOING RIGHT

There is virtue in acquiring the habit of doing the right thing for no other reason than that it is the right thing. A curious story runs to the effect that a man asked God to reveal to him the hour of his death. He heard the words "After six," and immediately concluded that he was to be summoned "after six" the next morning. The night was spent in the most solemn preparation. But "after six" he was still alive. His next conclusion pointed to "six" days, during which time he observed studiously fixed hours of devotion. Six days went over, and he still lived. Then he was sure the revelation meant six weeks, during which time be maintained the habits of devotion formed during the six days of his imagined probation. But the six weeks were accomplished and death still delayed. And now the man was sure that the oracle meant six months. During this period he still observed with the utmost regularity the round of devotion he had fixed for himself when he thought death imminent, and before the end of his self-imposed term he had not only acquired a devout habit but a relish for devotion.

Going to church, daily prayer, the daily reading of the Bible as a veritable word from God—these are things concerning the value of which there is no dispute. Get the habit of doing them, and even when they have become only a habit they serve as a restraint from sin. But seek earnestly to prevent the habit from becoming "only a habit" by remembering them as actual approaches to the presence and the majesty of God.—Exchange.

By Robert P. Wilder,
Director Bureau of Religious Work.

When it seemed that America would enter the war, I asked Dr. Mott about our calling together a Co-operating Committee of Church leaders to assist us in the religious work of the Young Men's Christian Association. He readily assented to this, and I corresponded with men like Dr. Robert E. Speer, President Clarence A. Barbour of Rochester Seminary, President W. Douglas Mackenzie of Hartford Seminary, and President Stevenson of Princeton Theological Seminary, asking if they would serve on such a committee in case we entered the war. They agreed, and as soon as we declared war, the Co-operating Committee of the Churches met. In fact they met before the War Work Council met, so eager were the leaders of the Association to emphasize the religious activities. They have been in diligent service ever since.

We have in each of the six military departments one man responsible for the religious work in that department. In addition, each camp has a Religious Work Director, and each Y. M. C. A. Hut a Religious Work Secretary. Thus from headquarters we were able to function through the Department Religious Work Directors and the Camp Religious Work Directors down to the Hut Religious Work Secretaries. In order that we might have suitable men as Religious Work Directors and Secretaries, the War Work Council gave the Religious Work Bureau an opportunity to help in the selection of these religious workers. President Barbour has rendered invaluable service in securing some of the strongest men in our churches for these important positions.

Our Bureau also has a committee on the Religious Services in the Camps under the chairmanship of President Stevenson. This committee has selected as speakers in the camps men who are evangelistic in aim, though not necessarily evangelistic in name. The services rendered by these speakers have been of untold value in presenting to the men in the camps the foundation truths of Christianity, simply and effectively.

We have also stressed personal evangelism as well as public evangelism. Recently the Director of Religious Work in one of the camps told me that he knew between six and seven thousand men, who had passed through the camp or were there at present, that had been led to faith in Christ through personal evangelism alone. Personal work has been stressed in other camps also. In connection with our public and personal evangelism, we have used the War Roll card which is as follows:

"I hereby pledge my allegiance to the Lord Jesus Christ as my Savior and King, and by God's help will fight His battles for the victory of his Kingdom."

We have instructed our Secretaries not to use this card in the larger meetings, but only in after-meetings when it has been carefully explained, or in personal work. We have urged the Secretaries to be conservative in the use of these cards.

Last March only 54,000 had signed the War Roll, but we have now in our Bureau 301,000 cards signed by men in our Army and Navy. Our procedure is as follows: When a card reaches our office in New York, a letter is sent over my signature to the man who has signed it, urging him to join the Church, if he has not done so already, and also to join a Bible class, and giving him a few practical suggestions with reference to the Christian life. The original card is sent to his nearest relative, and a copy to the pastor of the church nearest the man's home—a church belonging to the denomination for which the man has expressed a preference, with a request that the pastor visit the man's family and try and get them into fellowship with the Church if they are not already church members. We also urge the pastor to write a few words of encouragement to the signer of the card. I wish you could read some of the hundreds of letters which have reached us from the mothers and wives of the men who have signed these cards, and some of the thousands of letters that have reached us from the boys themselves.

While there is no doubt a good deal of chaff with the wheat, yet we believe that this War Roll represents a great deal of wheat which is being garnered into the Kingdom.

Arrangements have been made in the camps for the men who have signed the War Roll to join the churches of their choice in absentia. If a man expresses a preference for the Methodist Church, he is examined by a Methodist Chaplain or Army Camp Pastor or Y. M. C. A. Secretary who is ordained. In case the examiner is satisfied with the man's sincerity, he writes to that effect to his home pastor, urging the pastor to admit him to church membership in absentia. Thousands of men have in this way been brought into the fellowship of the Church.

Our Bible study work also has been widely pushed. Four and a half million New Testaments and other Scripture portions have been circulated among the men under the colors. We do not give away the Testaments except after a personal talk, and a desire has been expressed by the man to receive a copy. The plan pursued in some of the Southern camps has been as follows: To offer the men, when they first come into the camp, a copy of a Gospel; if he wishes the whole New Testament he can receive that on returning the Gospel.

In one of the northern camps, the following method was used: When the rookies came into the camp, the first night our Y. M. C. A. Secretary explained to them the four-fold work of the Association, and after stating the religious side of the work, the men were asked to come up at the close of the evening gatherings to receive copies of the New Testament if they wished them. When a man asked for a New Testament, the Secretary would request him to sign up the "Comrades with the Book." the pledge of which is as follows:

"My name signed here expresses my sincere purpose to CARRY AND READ this Book every day."

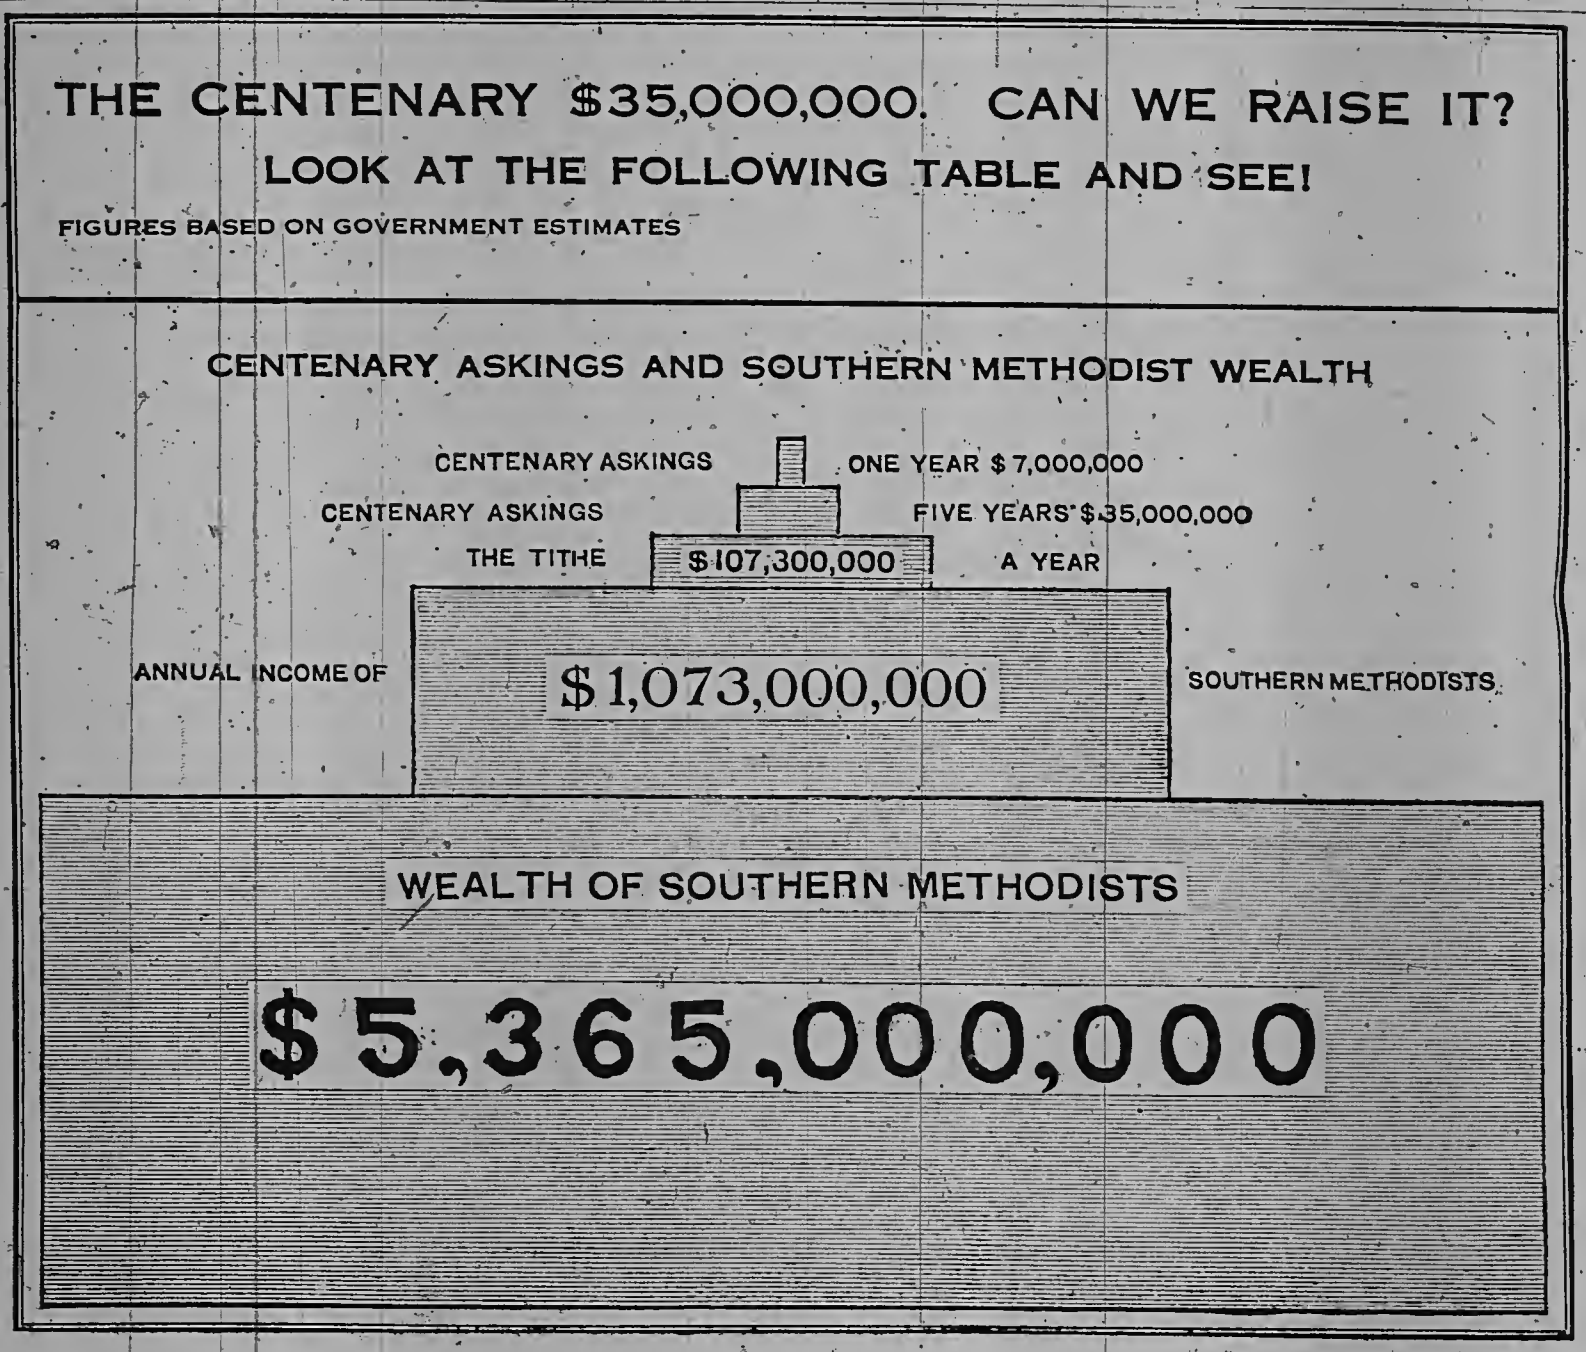
When he did this, it was typed into his New Testament. Then he was asked if he was willing to have placed in the Testament the photograph of the person who meant the most to him, whether it be his mother, his wife or his sweetheart. The psychological effect of this was that when the photograph was pasted in the Testament, the man did not treat the book lightly or send it home as a souvenir. Then the Secretary asked the man if he wanted a simple course of Daily Readings in the New Testament. Of this popular course we have published 890,000 copies.

In several of the Southern camps, the men who have asked for these readings have each asked for two copies, one to send home and the other to keep in his own Testament in order that the home people might read daily the same portion he was reading. Every soldier is asked in the pamphlet to do three things daily in connection with the passage he is reading: 1. To put the thought of the passage he is reading down in a few words. 2. The teaching—that is, what he can get from it to help in his own fight for character; and 3, a verse that he can meditate upon through the day. Once a week, those who are following this course come together to exchange their thoughts and teachings. Thus it helps not only individual reading but also group study.

In addition, we have produced several courses in Bible Study like "The Soldier's Spirit," by George Stewart, Jr.; "Jesus as a Friend Knew Him," by Super-Urice; "About Jesus," by Bosworth, and "The Master's Way," by Bosworth-Lobingier.

We have also a Literature Committee under the chairmanship of Dr. Speer, which has produced a number of Christian books and pamphlets for the use of the men in our Army and Navy. Eleven and a quarter million of these religious books and pamphlets have been printed since we entered the war.

A more recent development of our work has been the religious work among men in war industries under the able leadership of Dr. John McDowell of Baltimore. We have already placed eight Religious Work Directors and twelve Song Leaders in different centers of war industries. As demobilization takes place, we hope to link this work with the industrial work of the Y. M. C. A. in different cities. Already plans have been made to have the program extended to the men in industry in eighty cities with a view to having in each of these cities four men set apart to reach the men in industry—one to be a Religious Work Director, another a Song Leader, the third an Extension Secretary, and the fourth a Physical Director. By our religious work we mean four things: Salvation, character building, service, and patriotism. The greatest opportunity ever given our brotherhood faces us now, and in meeting this we wish to co-operate to the fullest extent with the churches. This has been the aim in all our war work.



The Home Circle

TO THE TRASH HEAP

I gathered all the scowls and growls
  Miss Grumble left around,
To sell them to the ragman
  At half a cent a pound.
But, ah! he knew a thing or two,
  For he shook his towsled head;
"No, ma'am! I'll have good-natured rags,
  Or none at all," he said.

PEP'S ADVENTURE.

Pep is a pup with a coat as soft as silk and black as jet, excepting for a small white star on his chest and a tiny bunch of white hair on one toe. He is very much like his mother, Blackie, in looks, but his disposition when he was a wee pup was very different. His mother has dignity and excellent manners.

"Pep doesn't mean to be mean; he's just chuck-full of puppy pranks," Mrs. Hurley, the dog's mistress, told her little daughter Jean when the wee maid came in with the legs of her new white stockings riddled with holes.

"His teeth's sharp like needles," whimpered the child.

"He's a rough little rascal; you must never tease him," warned her mother. Noticing some spots of blood where the wicked little teeth had nipped the skin under the stocking, she remarked under her breath:

"That pup shall have a tight little switching the next time he bites anyone."

It didn't take Pep long to earn the promised switch. The very next morning he was so greedy for his breakfast that he nipped the tip of Mrs. Hurley's finger when she put a nice, round bone on his plate.

"Naughty Pep," scolded the lady, catching the pup by the collar and reaching for a small stick which she had handy.

"Ki-yi-yi-i-i," yelped the pup. He snapped, he bit, he was in frightful temper. In some way he managed to wiggle his head out of his collar. Ears flopping and tail between his legs, he made a bee-line for the open kitchen door, shot down the path and crawled through a hole in the back fence. Mrs. Hurley was in close pursuit, but the tight board fence was too high for her to climb and she had to go around by the gate.

"Pep, Pep; here, Pep," she called, but no puppy came running to meet her, nor could she find him, though she searched the weed-grown lot and tumble-down house back of the board fence.

"Do you suppose he's runned away for good?" Tears stood in Jean's blue eyes.

"No, honey; he's probably hiding somewhere and enjoying a fit of sulks because he was punished. He'll come back soon, a better puppy, I hope, for the little switching he got."

But Pep didn't come back. Lunch time, dinner time passed; still no rollicking puppy. Poor mother Blackie trotted in and out of the house, sniffed at everything and looked at her mistress with sorrowful, pleading eyes. Jean told her papa all about it when he came home from work, and he, too, hunted the premises over and made inquiries in the neighborhood. Not a trace of the pup could be found, and, to add to the mystery, Blackie disappeared in the evening and didn't return to enjoy her cushioned box in the kitchen that night. Jean said she was sure the dog had gone to hunt her puppy.

"You don't suppose anyone could have stolen the dogs?" worried Mrs. Hurley to her husband as she sliced the ham for breakfast the next morning. He was standing in front of the window. He grinned.

"Not one of 'em, anyway. Blackie has just crawled through the hole in the back fence." The next minute the dog trotted into the kitchen. She sniffed and sat up on her hind legs to beg.

"Hungry, old doggie?" Mrs. Hurley laid a ham bone on the outstretched paws. Blackie carefully got her teeth over it, dropped to her feet, and trotted off.

"Guess she isn't very hungry," said Jean a minute later. "She's crawling through the hole in the fence with the bone in her mouth. Her father looked puzzled, then his face brightened.

"Bet she's carrying food to the pup," he called over his shoulder as he sprinted down the garden path and vaulted the back fence. He caught a glimpse of Blackie as she rounded the corner of the tumble-down house, but she was out of sight when he reached the spot.

"Blackie, Blackie," he called, and then began to whistle.

A whine came from the woodshed built on to the back of the house. Mr. Hurley pushed open the sagging door. There stood Blackie, wagging her stumpy tail. The bone was still between her jaws. She trotted to a hole in the floor and dropped it. Jean's anxious little face darkened the doorway.

"Oh, papa, did you find Pep?"

"Perhaps; but don't come in," warned her father. "I remember, there's an old cistern under this shed, and the flooring seems to be rotten. Fetch me a hammer, and ask your mother to bring the clothesline and lantern; I'll find a ladder."

It wasn't long before Pep was cooling his parched little tongue in a basin of cold water. Blackie had kept him in food, but the cistern was dry and he hadn't had a drop to drink for a day and a night.

"You can nip me all you want to," whispered Jean, as she stroked his head gently. But Pep never bit anyone again. Perhaps he imagined that staying in a dark hole that he fell into was a part of his punishment.—M. Pelton White, in Northwestern Christian Advocate.

A RICH BOY

"Oh, my!" said Ben. "I wish I was rich and could have things like some of the boys that go to school."

"I say, Ben," said his father, turning round quickly, "how much will you take for your legs?"

"For my legs?" said Ben in surprise.

"Yes! What do you use them for?"

"Why, I run and jump and play ball, and,—oh, everything."

"That's so," said the father. "You wouldn't take ten thousand dollars for them, would you?"

"No, indeed!" answered Ben, smiling.

"And your arms,—I guess you wouldn't take ten thousand dollars for them, would you?"

"No, sir."

"And your voice. They tell me you sing quite well, and I know you talk a little bit. You wouldn't part with that for ten thousand, would you?"

"No, sir."

"Your hearing and your sense of taste are better than five thousand dollars apiece at the very least; don't you think so?"

"Yes, sir."

"Your eyes, now. How would you like to have fifty thousand dollars and be blind the rest of your life?"

"I wouldn't like it at all."

"Think a moment, Ben; fifty thousand dollars is a lot of money. Are you very sure you wouldn't sell them for so much?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then they are worth that amount at least. Let's see now," his father went on, figuring on a sheet of paper—"legs ten thousand, arms ten, voice ten, hearing five, taste five, good health ten, and eyes fifty; that makes a hundred. You are worth one hundred thousand dollars at the lowest figures, my boy. Now run and play, jump, throw your ball, laugh, and hear your playmates laugh, too; look with those fifty-thousand-dollar eyes of yours at the beautiful things about you, and come home with your usual appetite for dinner, and think how rich you really are."—Sunday School Visitor.

BLESSINGS OF LOVE.

Pour forth all the odor, color, charm and happiness you have to all your friends, to your home, to your daily society, to the poor and sorrowful, the joyous and the prosperous. Charm the world by love. Brighten darkened lives, soften the rude, make a sunshine of peace in stormy places, cover the faults and follies of men with the flowers of love. Love others, and you will spread the delight of youth over all you meet, and in doing so you will live intensely; for you will have within not only your own life, but also the lives of all whom you bless by love. That is the best religion, the life of Christ, the very life of God. That is to be at one with Him whose smile kindles the universe, whose love moving in the spring, is the beauty that enchants our senses and heart, and inspires our soul.—Stopford A. Brooke.

The seed of sacrifice brings forth the fragrant fruit of love, and love always has in its heart the seeds of a new sacrifice.—Josiah Strong.

THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN

A very important matter was called to the attention of all our people in Louisiana and Mississippi by Rev. John F. Foster in our issue of Jan. 2. Brother Foster, as is well known, is the Chairman of the Publishing Committee of the Advocate. At the meeting of the Committee last October, after a full discussion of the situation, it was decided to have a campaign in behalf of the Advocate similar to the campaign of last year. The time fixed upon was the last two weeks in January and the first two weeks in February. The matter has been presented to the Annual Conferences through the Committees on Church Publications, and endorsed by them. The time is at hand for the campaign to be actively pushed.

We sincerely hope that all our presiding elders, preachers and people understand fully the importance of pushing this campaign aggressively during the time that has been set for it. It is a well recognized fact that the circulation of the church paper is one of the best ways in the world to stimulate interest in the work of the Church and to develop and maintain an intelligent interest in the affairs of the Kingdom of God. The church paper is no longer looked upon as a side issue in a well organized, up-to-date pastoral charge. It is the pastor's most faithful and efficient helper. Fifty-two times a year it makes its visits, carrying information and inspiration to the homes into which it goes. It is a necessity to the well informed church member.

It is unfortunately true that a great many of our people do not take the Advocate. We venture the assertion, though we have not the definite information upon which to base it, that fifty per cent of the official members of our Church in Louisiana and Mississippi do not take it. And yet there never was a time when our people, the officials especially, needed to keep in closer touch with the affairs of the Church than now. Great things are being planned for and great movements are on foot. It is impossible to keep in touch with these things without the church paper. Take the Missionary Centenary Movement, for example. A great opportunity confronts us in this matter, and a great responsibility rests upon us. Three of the most efficient men in our three Conferences have been appointed to devote their whole time to the promotion of this great cause. It is physically impossible for them to cover the territory in detail. Unless the information is conveyed to the people in some way, the great mass of our membership will remain largely untouched by this greatest movement our Church has ever undertaken. The Advocate has already contained a great deal of official information on this subject, and it will contain a great deal more. It is worth much more than its subscription price for what it supplies on this one subject alone. The same thing is true of all the other interests of our Zion.

We hate to say it, but it is true, nevertheless, that the success of the Advocate campaign rests largely with the pastors. They are heavily burdened, we know. But the work they are called to do is a very great work. We can conceive of no better thing they can do for the good of their own charges than to see to it that their people, their officials especially, take the Advocate. The time will not be wasted or lost—it will be invested to the very greatest advantage.

Please allow us to make a few suggestions: Present the matter definitely to your official members and undertake to secure every one of them as a subscriber. Make the appeal direct—not in general terms. Unless $1.50 is confessedly beyond the means of the man, every steward, trustee, Sunday school superintendent, Epworth League president, Sunday school teacher, all lay leaders and the chairmen of all committees, at least, ought to receive the official organ. Present the matter to them as a part of their equipment for the proper performance of their duties.

Emphasize the value of the Advocate in the home, and give all your people a definite opportunity to subscribe for it. Appoint active and tactful members of your congregations to help you. Make it a campaign in fact as well as in name. Perfect an organization that will get results. We are too familiar with many recent campaigns of various kinds to doubt that this one can be made successful.

Remember that it is just as important to secure renewals as it is to get new subscribers. We cannot carry delinquents. In many cases, it is merely a matter of calling the subscriber's attention to the fact that his subscription has just about expired to secure his renewal. If you do not know who are taking the paper on your charge, write to the Publisher, giving the name of every post office in your charge, and he will send you the complete list.

Brethren, let us put enough time and work into this campaign to make it eminently successful. The Alabama Christian Advocate has 17,000 subscribers, and it is going on to 20,000; other Conference organs are pushing campaigns to extend their circulation, and are meeting with gratifying results. We are confident that energy and cooperation during these next four weeks will show large results in our territory. We should not be satisfied with anything less than a subscription list of at least ten thousand in our three Conferences. Now is the time to bring our circulation to that point.

BILLY SUNDAY IN NEW ORLEANS.

Billy Sunday, probably the best known evangelist in the world, visited New Orleans for the first time on Wednesday of last week. He spent a busy day, making an address at the Athenaeum at 10 o'clock in the morning, speaking to the Rotary Club at 12 o'clock, attending a luncheon at the Grunewald Hotel at 1 o'clock, making a tour of the city immediately afterwards, and speaking to the men at the Naval Station at 4:30 o'clock. We had the pleasure of hearing him at the Athenaeum and of attending the luncheon at the Grunewald. Our judgment is that he is one of the most remarkable men of this or any other age. He is rather slight of build, smooth-shaven, and attractive in personal appearance. He is a bundle of energy, seldom still, quick in his actions and extremely rapid in his speech. He is bubbling over with good humor, and he has a laugh that would win the worst "grouch" in the world.

The people of New Orleans evidently wanted to see and hear him. In spite of the early hour, the Athenaeum was crowded. When he made his appearance on the stage, he was greeted by enthusiastic and prolonged applause. The daily newspapers all printed interviews with him on subjects ranging from baseball to the future of Christianity. His address at the Athenaeum was in behalf of the Jewish War Relief Fund. The Jews were there in great force, as well as the Gentiles, and they seemed to like what he had to say. As any courteous gentleman would, he refrained from any expression that would wound their feelings; but as a faithful Christian, he did not fail to magnify Christ as the Savior of the world. A prominent Jewish citizen of New Orleans remarked, after the address, that he would like very much to hear Mr. Sunday in one of his religious meetings. There is some hope that he may have that privilege in the not distant future, as the matter of holding a meeting in New Orleans was taken up with Mr. Sunday. No announcement, however, has been made concerning the plans.

We confess that we were somewhat prejudiced against Mr. Sunday on account of the many sensational things we had read about him in various accounts of his meetings throughout the country. Naturally, therefore, we went to hear him in a somewhat critical mood. We listened to his every word as carefully as we could, and we watched his actions with more than usual interest. We came away a strong admirer of the man. We realize the difficulty and danger of forming an opinion of a man upon a very limited acquaintance; but if his procedure in New Orleans is a fair sample of his methods in his meetings, we would welcome him unreservedly to this city for one of his campaigns. We tried, as best we could, to analyze his power. The following things impressed us forcibly:

He is tremendously in earnest. The great facts of life here and hereafter are not academic issues with him. What is worth doing at all, is worth doing well, and he puts all the earnestness of his soul into the delivery of the message that he has been called to proclaim. It is impossible to think of him as a perfunctory performer hoping to gain the plaudits of the crowd. He is engaged in a life and death business—and there is no time to lose.

He is absolutely certain of the facts of his message. Whatever questioning there may have been in his mind in the past, he now knows whereof he speaks. He has the air and the tone of assuredness. He speaks with great positiveness, though without offensive dogmatism. He is not looking for a way out of difficulties—he has already found it, and he is telling others about it. He is not investigating some problem with the hope of being able, perhaps, to throw some light upon it—the investigation has been completed, and the results are perfectly clear.

He has oratorical gifts of a high order. We were agreeably surprised at the literary finish of his address. He evidently had his speech written out in full, as he frequently referred to a manuscript on the table before him—without its detracting in the least, however, from the effectiveness of his delivery. He showed an amazing acquaintance with the facts of history, and he marshaled them brilliantly to strengthen his positions. His address was not lacking in eloquent periods. Two of them, the incident of the dikemaster in Holland, and the entry of General Allenby into Jerusalem, we have never heard surpassed. Such slang expressions as he used were not offensive, and they were apparently put in for the sake of maintaining touch with the everyday life of his hearers. Whatever else he may be, Billy Sunday is no illiterate, uncouth clown.

He is marvelously gifted with the indefinable thing we call personality. He attracts people in a way we cannot understand. He is the supreme genius of the modern evangelistic world. He is a great man because he cannot help it.

Above all, he is a miracle of grace. He has been redeemed from sin by the power of God, and God is using him to bring others into the way of salvation. We count it the privilege of a lifetime to have heard him.

DEATH OF REV. M. F. ADAMS.

Just before going to press on Tuesday, we received the note from Rev. H. B. Watkins, which appears elsewhere in this issue, announcing the death and burial of Rev. M. F. Adams. This sad news brings inexpressible sorrow to us. Brother Adams, the son of Rev. and Mrs. T. W. Adams, was one of the most promising members of the Mississippi Conference. He had already demonstrated his ability as a preacher, and was rapidly taking his place as one of the younger leaders of his Conference. Recently, however, he decided to enter Emory University for still further preparation for his life work. We tender our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family. A suitable memoir will appear in the Advocate in due time.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. A. J. Bonnette, writing from Cotton Valley, La., says that everything is moving on nicely on his charge.

Mrs. Mary J. Millican, of Ethel, La., is one of the faithful friends of the Advocate. The paper has gone to her home since about 1880.

Rev. R. I. Collins, Shannon, Miss., writes that he likes his new appointment. He serves a good people who know how to treat their pastor well.

In a business note to the office, Dr. Geo. S. Sexton, pastor of First Church, Shreveport, La., states that the year's work is starting off very satisfactorily.

Rev. T. D. Lipscomb, our pastor at Ponchatoula, La., writes that his work has begun under very favorable circumstances. He is hoping and praying for a great year.

Rev. W. N. Duncan, of Drew, Miss., writes that he has been most cordially received on his new work, and that the future of the Church at that place is very bright.

Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Driskell, of Greenwood Springs, Miss., are the happy parents of a little daughter who arrived at the parsonage on Jan. 8. We extend congratulations.

The congregation of First Church, this city, gave Rev. R. H. Harper and family a reception in the church parlors on Friday evening of last week. Brother Harper is greatly beloved by his people.

Rev. W. M. Commandor, of the North Mississippi Conference, writes from Algoma, Miss., that he is beginning the year's work with flattering prospects of success. This is his second year on that charge.

Rev. R. Bradley, a superannuate member of the Mississippi Conference, who has wrought nobly, is living at 442 McTyeire Avenuue, Jackson, Miss. He has been taking the Advocate for forty-seven yoars.

Rev. C. T. Floyd, of Byhalia, Miss., writes that he is going to try to put the Advocate into every home on his charge. He serves a loyal people, and we have no doubt they will co-operate fully with him in every good work.

Rev. A. A. Bernard, who was at Ponchatoula last year, was appointed to Coushatta at the recent session of the Louisiana Conference. He writes that every provision for his comfort has been made by the members of his new charge.

The first Missionary Centenary group meeting for the Baton Rouge District, of which Rev. H. W. May is presiding elder, has been announced for to-day at First Church, Baton Rouge. All pastors are expected to attend.

Hon. D. W. Heidelberg, of Shubuta, Miss., offers a year's subscription to the Advocate to the member of his Sunday school class having the best attendance record for the year. Mr. J. E. Rainwater has been the winner for several years.

We appreciate some very kindly words recently written us by Mrs. H. G. Henderson, of Sardis, Miss. Mrs. Henderson is the widow of the late Dr. H. G. Henderson, of the North Mississippi Conference, who was a great friend of the Advocate.

It has been estimated that not more than one-fourth of the present Armenian population will survive until the next harvest unless America comes to the rescue. All of us can help by contributing as liberally as possible during the campaign, Feb. 3-10.

We are happy to learn that Rev. A. W. Turner, the superintendont of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, has returned from the Mayo Brothers' Sanitarium, Rochester, Minn., greatly improved in health, with the assurance that he may look forward to complete recovery.

We learn from the Wesleyan Christian Advocate that Rev. Earl B. Moll, formerly a student at Centenary College, Shreveport, La., has been appointed to supply the Bishop circuit in the Athens District, Georgia. Brother Moli is a devout and energetic young minister.

Rev. R. T. Goar, a superannuate member of the North Mississippi Conference, residing at Pittsboro, Miss., writes that he has been taking the Advocate since about 1870. He will be 75 years of age in next June. May heaven's richest blessings be upon this faithful veteran!

Rev. C. A. Battle, the pastor of our First Church, Baton Rouge, La., represents the Protestant Churches of the State on the Committee for carrying on the campaign for Armenian and Syrian relief in the Near East, which is to be conducted Feb. 3-10. Governor Pleasant is chairman of the Commlttee.

Mrs. Virginia Humphrey, of Varnado, La., is another one of the "Old Guard" of the Advocate. She writes as follows: "My mother took tho Advocate when i was a mere child, and I am now sixty-two. It has been in my home about forty years, and it seems that we cannot do without it." Blessings upon her!

Rev. H. F. Tolle and his delightful family are comfortably settled in their new home at Capitol Street Church, Jackson, Miss. The official board of that church has just completed an every-member canvass. The pastor's salary has been substantially increased. The pastor has won golden opinions from the membership of the church.

Rev. H. G. Roberts, the new pastor at Schlater, Miss., speaks in high terms of his predocessor, Rev. E. B. Sharp. Brother Roberts made a fine record at Lambert, his previous appointment. He received 103 members into the Church; all the Conference assessments were paid in full and the pastor received $1500 on a $1200 assessment. He has been cordially received at Schlater.

Galloway Memorial Church, Jackson, Miss., of which Rev. C. W. Crisier is the able pastor, begins the new year with larger plans than at any other time in its history. A thorough every-member canvass was made by fifty of the leading members. The pastor's salary has been increased to $3000. Ten new members have been received since Conference. This great church is manifesting much interest in the Centenary Movement.

A personal note from President Bobbitt, of Mansfield Female College, informs us that in spite of the "flu" and war conditions, this promises to be just about the best year in the history of the College. We take the liberty of saying that great credit is due this modest and hard-working Christian educator for the remarkable record Mansfield has made in recent years. Brother Bobbitt is pre-eminently "the right man in the right place."

Rev. R. P. Neblett is beginning his third year as pastor of our church at Como, Miss. He writes that the work is starting off smoothly. Dr. R. A. Meek, the presiding elder, held the first quarterly conference on Jan. 7. All finances for the quarter were reported paid in full. The pastor entertained the presiding elder and the official board at a luncheon, which was, we are sure, a delightful affair. One of the laymen of that charge has given $100 in Liberty Bonds to the Conference Superannuate Endowment Fund.

A meeting of pastors, district stewards and representatives of the Centenary Movement has been planned for to-day and to-morrow, for the Greenville District, North Mississippi Conference, to be held at Greenville. Rev. V. C. Curtis is the presiding elder, and Rev. E. S. Lewis the pastor-host. A most interesting and suggestive program has been prepared, for a copy of which our thanks are due to somebody. Rev. B. P. Jaco, the Conference Centenary Secretary, will present the plans and methods for the Centenary campaign.

Rev. A. J. Boyles, recently discharged from the U. S. Army, has been put in charge of the Rocky Springs Circuit, Port Gibson District, Mississippi Conference, and has entered upon his work. Brother Boyles is about thirty years of age, and has been a local preacher for seven years, during which time he has been seeking an education that would qualify him for the work. He was elected to deacon's orders at the recent session of the Mississippi Conference. He is a young man who makes friends readily, and he seems devoted to the work of the ministry.

Still another of the "Old Guard" is Mrs. T. B. Alexander, of Gilmer, La. Read this interesting note: "If you could look back to the records, you would find the name of my father, H. McCallen, if not on the list of subscribers the first year of publication, very soon thereafter, and it remained there until his death in 1877. My husband, Rev. R. R. R. Alexander, of the Louisiana Conference, was taking the Advocate when we were married, in 1859. Since his death, in 1867, I have taken it. I have seldom missed a copy. So you see I was reared on the Advocate, and would miss it more than my reguiar meals." Who can beat this record?

Rev. J. B. Randolph, whom we remember most pleasantly as a schoolmate at Millsaps College in "the good old days," has made a happy beginning of his work at Winona, Miss. In sending us the renewal subscription of Mrs. J. T. Buckley, of Winona, he states that she has taken the paper continuously for forty-five years. A noble record!

With great sorrow, we noted in the press dispatches a few days ago, that Rev. W. H. Jordan, our pastor at Arcadia, La., had lost two children as a result of the influenza. Our deepest sympathy goes out to him and his family in this great bereavement.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure", place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

WATCH NIGHT AT FELICITY, NEW ORLEANS.

It began with an old-time Methodist love feast, led by a young superannuate Doctor of Divinity, who is the happy blending of the old and new order of things. After the lusty singing of some old-time hymns and a fervent and unctious prayer, full of thanksgiving and confession for sins, the third chapter of First Epistle of John was read intelligently; yes, I mean just that, intelligently, though one does not often hear the Holy Scriptures interpreted in the mere reading of the bare text without marring it with comment, which, too often, is more confusing than elucidating!

Then the stewards passed the simple emblems of good-fellowship and brotherly love—plain bread and pure water. After this, the leader gave a brief history of the nature, origin and purpose of the ancient and time-honored love feast, or Agapae. Then personal testimonies were called for, but only a precious few responded! Either they had forgotten how to testify in public or they were over modest. But that did not "kill" the meeting, for the leader was more than equal to the occasion and supplied the brethren with helpful, soul-stirring hymns.

After the love feast, a free and easy time was enjoyed by all and a fine literary and musical program was rendered under the direction of a talented young woman of the church who is being earnestly sought after for lecture and lyceum work.

Of course, the good sisters of the church satisfied the inner man of us all with hot chocolate and delicious cakes. Bless their dear hearts, they certainly always know the way to our hearts.

I am a firm believer in the old-time love feast and mean to hold one once a month this year! It not only brings comfort and good cheer to the aged and infirm, but shows to us younger ones the rich religious experiences they have and we can have! Thank the Lord that Methodists still enjoy and rejoice in the experience of the saving grace of Christ!

Professor Irving Fisher,
President, Committee of Sixty on National Prohibition,
New Haven, Connecticut.

Dear Professor Fisher: I am sailing to-morrow to Europe and you can imagine that I am not prepared to write a long and elaborate thesis on prohibition; but you will allow me to send through you a short message to my Bohemian and Slovak countrymen, commending them to abstinence—I mean total abstinence. I myself used to drink; but my own experience prompted me to accept the principle of abstinence. I am healthier, I can do much more work, and, in short, I enjoy and use life better than I did when drinking. I hope the war has strengthened the habit of not drinking. I may add that I do not believe in moderate drinking—that is a self-deception and I do not believe in stopping drinking gradually—stop at once, that is the only way.

I wish our whole country would be dry!

With hearty greetings and best wishes, Very sincerely,

Where? Ruston, La.
Who is pastor? Dr. R. H. Wynn.
Who are delegates? All the presiding elders in the Conference, all the preachers, members of Wesley Bible Classes or Adult Classes of any name who are in our Methodist schools, young people, senior and intermediate classes are to come.

R. T. MOORE, President.
ALONZO EARLY, Field Sec'y.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE NOTES.

We have many high-grade Sunday schools in Louisiana. We have some of the best Sunday school pastors; and wherever they have served a charge they leave their tracks in the school.

All the pastors are making my work pleasant by giving me a welcome to their schools and giving me a place in their homes.

Since I cannot see more than two schools on a Sunday, I must see the Sunday school officers, teachers and workers on week days and nights. At these conference meetings, I desire to help you standardize your schools.

See the notice of our Wesley Bible Class Federation Meeting.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Friday night, Jan. 3, was spent in Fernwood. They have a beautiful church and well equipped and well organized Sunday school. My call was unannounced and in the midst of the snow. I was glad to worship with them on this occasion.

Saturday was spent at Knoxo. They have a beautiful church and it is well equipped. The intense cold kept part of the officers and teachers away. We had two services, with 38 persons present. They signed up for the teacher-training course.

Sunday was spent at Kokomo. These good people also have a beautiful, well equipped building. It is a most usable building.

Brother Broadfoot elected all his committees to get to work for the coming year. He presented the claim of the Advocate and received 16 subscribers. He loves his people and they love him. This church gives promise of a prosperous year's work.

We had three services. A cradle roll, a home department, a beginners' and primary departments were organized. A charter for the adult class was obtained, and 9 cards for teacher-training course were signed, and 12 books were ordered.

These people seemed anxious to do the work of the Church, and were anxious to prepare to do better and more effective work.

The work starts well. Pray for me, brethren. With your prayers, God can give us a great year of victory.

Personally, I have never felt the need of prayer so much. Use me. I desire to go to the most unpromising fields, the hardest places.

Yours in Him,
JOHN C. CHAMBERS.
Jackson, Miss.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON FINDINGS.

Conference of Field Secretaries and Chairman of Conference Sunday School Boards.

Your Committee on Findings, having attended carefully all the discussions of the Conference, begs to leave to submit the following report:

Visitation Day.

We heartily endorse the plan of the Corresponding Secretary of the General Board for a church-wide Sunday school visitation, to increase the Sunday school enrollment and attendance, to be conducted during the months of May and June.

Teacher-Training.

Next to securing the presence of those to be taught, we recognize the training of Sunday school teachers and officers as a fundamental task. The plans of the General Superintendent of Teacher-training are of the highest practical value and rest upon solid and comprehensive foundations. We urge, throughout the Church, the fullest co-operation. In every Conference the Field Secretary or some other competent person should act as Conference Superintendent of Teacher-training.

Sunday School Standards.

Our new standards for the Sunday schools are worked out from a comprehensive basis to meet the needs of several grades of schools. They should be used, not as report forms, or as tests only, but as working plans by which and to which all our schools are to be incited to build their Sunday school organization.

We suggest the standards be fixed as soon as possible, and that they be not changed until change is absolutely essential to further progress.

Elementary Division.

The work of Miss Kennedy, our General Superintendent of Elementary Work, is needed throughout our field. Conference and District Elementary Superintendents should be secured and set to work in every Conference and district in the Church. Our Field Secretaries and Chairmen of Conference Boards should co-operate with the General Superintendent of Elementary Work in making immediately effective throughout the Church the plans of this department.

Centenary Movement.

Our immediate task is the co-operation, to the limit of our powers, of all our Sunday school forces in the Centenary Movement.

We should urge without ceasing that every Sunday school appoint a Missionary and Service Committee; set aside one Sunday in each month as Missionary Day.

Observe the Missionary program.

Secure the minimum Missionary offering of 5 cents per member (including Cradle Roll and Home Department) per month, and send same to J. J. Stowe, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn., as a Sunday School Special for Missions.

We urge that all our Field Secretaries and Chairmen of Conference Boards attend the Centenary group meetings held in their territory.

School Standard.

We heartily commend the new periodical, "The School Standard." It furnishes material that is needed and should be accessible to every Sunday school worker in the Church.

Church Organs.

We express our appreciation of the services of the editors of our General and Conference organs in devoting a page to the Sunday school, with news items, suggested plans, articles on Sunday school work, etc.

We record it as our conviction that this is far more desirable and beneficial than the use of these pages for lesson treatment.

Sunday School Supply Department.

We are pleased to note that our Publishing Agents have established a Sunday School Supply Department for the service of our Sunday school workers. This department is rendering most excellent service, but we feel that still better service can be rendered if all supplies used in the Sunday schools are placed in charge of this department of our Publishing House, and we therefore request the Publising Agents to do this at as early a date as possible.

Conclusion.

We commend to our whole Church the spirit of utter consecration that characterized this body and pray that the same Spirit who thrilled us with His manifest presence may inspire our works and workers everywhere.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

Scientific Treatment For Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. In order to be cured of rheumatism it is necessary to neutralize this acid. RENWAR is a salt combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood. There is nothing in Renwar to injure the stomach or affect the heart. It acts solely upon uric acid, completely eliminating it from the blood and thereby relieving your rheumatism. It is harmless but effective. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. It is a godsend to sufferers from rheumatism. Renwar also corrects constipation. Mr. J. M. Comb Sage Tea In Faded or Gray Hair

Look Young! Common Garden Sage and Sulphur Darkens so Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

ITEMS FROM ST. MARK'S HALL, NEW ORLEANS.

A very unusual privilege was ours this month. Miss Belle H. Bennett, President of the W. M. Council and the two Secretaries, Mrs. R. W. MacDonal and Mrs. Downs, were guests in our home for a few days. These gifted women always bring inspiration.

A meeting of the Board of City Missions called by the President, Mrs. Parker, brought out a crowd of representative Methodist women, who listened eagerly to the plans for a greater St. Mark's Hall. They will, we feel sure, be ready to work when the right moment arrives for the launching of the plan.

Our guests were much interested in our activities. They visited the boys' indoor track meet, the ceremonial meeting of the Camp Fire, domestic science classes and boys' clubs. The clinic was also visited and the personnel of the patients proved most interesting, for they represented many nationalities.

A hearty welcome was given Miss Godat, the director of the Boys' Club, on her return December 1. We are also glad to announce that we have a new druggist, Mr. Bowman. He is a returned soldier boy. Our former pharmacist resigned because of poor health.

Missionary Meetings.

The week of prayer service was combined with the regular December meeting. After an interesting program was given, the total amount received from this small band of Italian women for thank offering, dues and pledges was $26. Their pledge for the year was $50 and it will be raised in full. A Japanese tea party concluded the program.

The Junlors have five new names on the baby roll. They took a thanksgiving basket to an afflicted boy.

Mothers' Club.

A patriotic party was enjoyed by the mothers and their families. From the thank offering received, boxes were sent to our soldier boys.

Supplies.

Boxes were received from women's auxillaries: Naborton, fruit and clothing; First Church, Shreveport, a dozen silver knives and forks; Washington, D. C., $10 for children's Christmas. Clothing from following: Mrs. Todd, Mrs. Myatt, Mrs. Beach Carre.

Statistics.

Number visits made, 171; number visits received, 180; number letters written, 30; average weekly attendance at clubs and classes, 150.

Clinic.

Receipts.

Clinic dues, $5.40; supply store, $7.90; industrial school, 43c. Total, $13.78.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Word has been received from the Conf. Treasurer. Mrs. J. J. Holmes, that the pledge for the year has already been overpaid, and a number of auxiliaries are still to be heard from. Considering war conditions and the situation created by the prevailing influenza epidemic, this splendid record makes all hearts rejoice.

New Auxiliaries.

Word comes from Baton Rouge District, that Gilead has organized with 10 members. The New Orleans District reports a new organization at Covington.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE

Alligator reports a splendid year's work under the leadership of Mrs. John Conger, 13 members paying in dues $35; pledge, $25, and Week of Prayer offering, $13.

"Over the Top" for Shelby.

Shelby Auxiliary observed "Harvest Day" on the 9th of December, at which time every account was fully met, and the books showed an increase in connectional funds of 39½ per cent over last year. This is cause for praise throughout the Conference, and such records have given North Mississippi her high rating for the current year.

In addition to the above, Shelby sent $216.50 to the Orphanage and the Co-operative Home.

Are there others?

A Thank Offering That is a Thank Offering.

And now West Point comes up with her Week of Prayer thank offering. It is not the usual "generous thank offerings of our members," meaning the nickels and dimes that are occasionally dropped into gratitude boxes that are set on the table during the three-day meetings. This is the real thing—best gifts for the king, sacrifice money, the doing without kind.

West Point has a big camp to look after, too. Perhaps that is why she is two hundred and forty-seven dollars and fifteen cents thankful.

Another Clean Sheet.

Holly Springs Auxillary No. 2 has observed "Harvest Day," closed every account in full, with a total increase over last year of 43 3-10 per cent.

MISSIONARY CENTENARY.

Prayer and Service.

I. To help "Keep The Home Fires Burning" and to relate the local church to making the world safe for democracy, a Centenary Council is to be appointed in every local church throughout the denomination.

Let us pray that all our pastors and other church leaders may be inspired to plan wisely and move forward enthusiastically in this important work.

II. The entire constituency of each local church is to be organized into units for prayer and service of not more than thirty persons each. This will mobilize the resources of the church.

Let us pray that the right persons may be chosen as unit leaders.

After the unit leaders have been appointed let us pray for them daily.

III. January 5-12, 1919, is to be Mobilization Week throughout the entire Church, during which the organization of all the local churches is to be completed.

Let us pray that the week may be one of great blessing and power, and that a great spiritual awakening may begin.

IV. In order to prepare the church for the fullest possible participation in winning the world for Christ after the war, the local church council should organize and carry through a campaign of information, prayer, stewardship, and life enlistment.

Let us pray that much blessing may attend these activities and that God may give to each local church a vision of a great, new ministry to the victorious soldiers as they return; to the country, to the nation, to the whole world.

A NOTE FROM OAK RIDGE, MISS.

Dear Advocate: Let me say through your columns, Brother Carley, that on account of having influenza in the family and the irregularity and uncertainty of the mail, occasioned by almost impassable roads, I haven't gotten to some letters some of the brethren have written me relative to meetings for 1919. I want to say to the brethren in both Conferences who have solicited my help in meetings, to be patient with me and I will (D. V.) let them know definitely as to helping just as soon as the roads will permit the mail to come regularly and I get the dates for my own meetings settled. If any who have written me find they can't wait for a definite answer from me, let them feel perfectly free to get some one else. Another thing: Mail is liable to be lost or delayed when it comes in such large bulk, and sometimes at night, as it has at Oak Ridge lately. In spite of these hindrances, the Lord is blessedly near and very precious and the way is still bright and clear!

Wonderful Egg Producer.

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 9251 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of health bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexions, are those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs.

MONEY BACK CATARRH TREATMENT

If Hyomei Does Not Relieve, Your Money Will Be Refunded.

Catarrh is caused by germs.

The way to cure catarrh is to kill the germs; no one will deny that.

Stomach dosing, sprays and douches won't kill catarrh germs; they don't get where the germs are.

But Hyomei, the pleasant antiseptic air from the Eucalyptus forests of Australia when breathed over the germ infested membrane, relieves catarrh. If it doesn't, you can have your money back.

A complete Hyomei outfit including hard rubber inhaler, at any druggists for $1.15; or direct all charges prepaid from Booth's Hyomei Co. Ithaca N. Y.

Health

THE MAN WHO SUSPECTS that he has kidney trouble and neglects to take measures promptly for his relief is taking a dangerously unwise risk. If the kidneys are not properly performing their function of purifying the blood stream, waste products and poisonous acids remain in the system and cause nervousness, rheumatic pains, backache, languidness, sore muscles, swollen joints, stiffness, puffiness under eyes and other weakening symptoms.

Foley Kidney Pills

restore and regulate the healthy and normal action of kidneys and bladder, bringing clean blood, sound nerves, clear head, good digestion, active brain, and all 'round vigorous health.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twings, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

HOW THIS NERVOUS WOMAN GOT WELL

Told by Herself. Her Sincerity Should Convince Others.

Christopher, Ill.—"For four years I suffered from irregularities, weakness, nervousness, and was in a run down condition. Two of our best doctors failed to do me any good. I heard so much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, I tried it and was cured. I am no longer nervous, am regular, and in excellent health. I believe the Compound will cure any female trouble."—Mrs. ALICE HELLER, Christopher, Ill.

Nervousness is often a symptom of weakness or some functional derangement, which may be overcome by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as thousands of women have found by experience.

If complications exist, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for suggestions in regard to your ailment. The result of its long experience is at your service.

Unto death "relates not so much to the measure of the duration of time as to the degree of the power of endurance—to the death point."—J. Vaughan.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

Mrs. H. M. Patton, Waverly, Mo., writes: "I fed two boxes of 'More Eggs' to my hens and broke the egg record. I got 1,500 eggs from 160 hens in exactly 21 days." You can do as well. In fact, any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker write E. J. Reefer, poultry man, 6251 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

IT PUTS THE "PEP"

Into Peptiron.—The Combination of Pepsin, Nux, Iron, Celery.

This is what makes Peptiron of wonderful therapeutic value, and so successful after influenza, the grip and in blood and nerve troubles, anemia, paleness, nervous weakness and the exhausting worry and anxiety over the world war.

It is a real iron blood and nerve tonic, especially beneficial in the weakness following the influenza and grip, to worn-out, brain-fagged men, delicate women, school-tired girls, and to fast-growing boys, invalids and convalescents, the aged and infirm. It actually puts iron, a natural strengthener, into the blood, and restores the wasted red corpuscles. Your druggist knows its great merit.

FROM KENSETT, ARK.

Dear Mr. Editor: I was appointed by Bishop Mouzon to the Kensett and Ball Knob charge, North Arkansas Conference, a half station. I am located at Kensett. I have made two rounds on the charge. The outlook is somewhat encouraging. On Christmas day, the people of Kensett gave us a "pounding," which we will long remember, it meant so much in a substantial way as well as in the effect that it has in bringing the people and the pastor close together. No one but a pastor that has passed through like experiences knows how to appreciate these things.

My first quarterly conference convened December 28-29. We had a very pleasant meeting. The stewards assumed for the P. E. and the P. C. one thousand dollars, an increase of $380. There is a great opening here to do a great work for the Master, and we are hoping and praying that we may, by the help of the Lord, improve the opportunity. Pray for us.

C. C. GRIFFIN, P. C.
Kensett, Ark.

FROM SENATOBIA.

Dear Brother Carley: The account of your enforced vacation, contained in last week's Advocate, was very interesting to me, as I am sure it was to many others, as we have had a similar vacation. Mine began the last of September, and lasted through October and November. The "flu" gave me the first month's vacation, then health authorities were kind enough to add another month. So you see we took quite a long vacation, especially for the time of year: sick folk to visit; the dead to bury; bereaved to comfort and the closing up the year's work. Of course, we had plenty of time to think of all these things, but as you expressed it, "we were not inclined to do any of them." But after all, the Lord and the good folk at Senatobia were mighty good and kind to us. Despite the two months' vacation right at the close of the year, we rounded out a fairly good year: 77 additions to the Church, 50 on profession of faith; all finances paid in full some time before Conference met, and our back debts paid up. So we begin the new year with a clean balance sheet on finances, and have laid our plans for greater things this year, the Lord willing.

We have made a good start for the new year. We had our first meeting of the official board last Friday night, and despite the fact that the weather was bitter cold, we had a full attendance. The note of progress was sounded throughout the meeting. The board voluntarily raised the pastor's salary to $1600, an increase of $100 over last year, and made definite arrangements to take care of the increased benevolent assessments for this year. The first quarter's salary has already been paid. The pastor is feeling good: do you blame him? Great is Senatobia and her good people! We expect to begin our plans for a new church or Sunday school rooms in the near future. Pray for us, Brother Carley, that the Lord may guide us on to greater things in His work.

Taking a retrospective view, and looking into the future, I hope we can say with Paul: "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended; but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark, for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." A. T. McILWAIN, P. C.
Senatobia, Miss., Jan. 6, 1919.

FROM INDIANOLA, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Just a few lines from the Indianola charge, that will be of interest to the readers of the Advocate in the North Mississippi Conference.

In the January 2 issue, there is a condensed account of the proceedings of the forty-ninth session of our Conference. There is an error in the answer to the ninth question, which I would like to correct. It asks, "Who are the deacons of one year?" The answer gives it: "W. B. Baker, R. G. Lord, C. A. Parks, W. I. White and C. D. McGehee." I was ordained deacon at Winona in 1916, and the others at Oxford in 1917. I was also received into full connection at Oxford in 1917.

Things are moving off well here, after our short stay in the army. "Fit, fought, bled and died" at the Chaplain's Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor, Ky. Came back a full-fledged Lieutenant Chaplain (without pay) in the Officers' Reserve Corps. However, we can strut around in all of our toggery and say, "Look how we licked the Kaiser!"

As a war measure, Bishop Murrah ordained me elder in Memphis before going to Camp. The examining committees of the third and fourth years were also good enough to "pass me up." So you see how my vanity was ruffled at being placed in the "lowly" class of deacons of the first year.

We will launch the Centenary Campaign in our charge next Friday night at a banquet. Some notable ecclesiastical dignitaries will be with us, including our presiding elder, L. M. Lipscomb. We plan to tackle another big job at the same time—the building of a new church. We have all been in the training school of big jobs the past few years; now is no time to let down, but conserve this schooling, and harness it in the service of the Lord. Nothing is impossible in this great age; that is why we will go over the top, and then some, in the raising of $35,000,000 in five years among Southern Methodists. This idea has taken hold of our board of stewards. They had the nerve to meet the other night (without the pastor) and increase his salary $300, placing it at $1800, on top of a raise of $300 last year.

When I was working for the Standard Oil Co., a few years ago, there was a good-for-nothing office boy whose name was up constantly for dismissal. The assistant manager was in favor of letting him go, but the manager said, "No, let's try another scheme; perhaps we are not paying him enough to appreciate his job. Instead of firing him, let's give him an increase." This they did several times, and each time, it made a better employee out of him. He finally "made good." Our official board has tried this trick. Others might take notice, and do likewise. Sincerely yours,

CHAS. D. McGEHEE, P. C.

Nuxated Iron Spreads Health and Strength to 3,000,000 People Annually.—Get Your Share!

When you think of the successful men and women you know—people who are doing things worth while—you will find that they possess force, vim and energy—the kind that simply brim over when the blood is filled with iron.

Iron is red blood food—it helps put strength and energy into the veins of men and roses into the cheeks of women.

A prominent New York Surgeon and former Adjunct Professor of the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, Dr. Kenneth K. MacAlpine, says: "If people would only realize that iron is just as indispensable to the blood as is the air to the lungs and be just as particular about keeping up a sufficient supply at all times there would, in my opinion, be far less disease resulting from anaemic, weakened conditions. In my opinion, Nuxated Iron is the most valuable tonic, strength and blood builder any physician can prescribe."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which has been prescribed and recommended by physicians and which is used by over three million people annually is not a secret remedy, but one which is well-known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money.

PROGRESS AT PASS CHRISTIAN, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Thinking perhaps you will be interested to hear something of what we are doing out here in God's free country, I write you this.

No doubt you know that after our usual summer on the coast, our Board decided to have us remain here indefinitely, or rather until our new Home is ready to occupy; so here we are with our rather small (?) family of some thirty-five boys, all hale and hearty, and enjoying the quiet, wholesome life that only the country can offer.

We found the church work here at a very low ebb. The Presbyterians, who have a small membership, and have worshiped in the Methodist Church since theirs was blown down in the great storm of 1915, held services once a month and the Methodists none at all.

We talked the matter over with the preacher who had been appointed to Pass Christian, and he was so busy with his other charges and some war camp work that he had taken up among the boys at the Gulfport Naval Training Station that he asked me to take over the work here for him.

Our good brother, Rev. Douglas Mathis, the Presbyterian preacher, and I decided to unite our small memberships and still smaller efforts and try to do some good in Pass Christian. Our humble efforts are being surprisingly rewarded; people of all churches are rallying to the work.

We find there are many people here with no church home at all. We have a thoroughly organized Sunday school with an enrollment up to date of 71 pupils.

We have preaching every Sunday morning and night, and quite a number of members have been added to the church roll.

The Sunday school gave a Christmas tree celebration, with an interesting program and gifts for all in the Sunday school. So you see, we are not idly drifting, but in a very small way trying to build up the Master's cause. The winter weather is very pleasant here, even more so than in the summer time, and you know that's saying a good deal for this lovely Gulf coast of ours.

The winter tourists are beginning to come in now, and I find a good many Methodists looking for church affiliation. I feel that nowhere in this Southland of ours is it more important to have a live, wide-awake, comfortable and attractive church than here. People of wealth and refinement come from all over our land to Pass Christian for health and recreation, and the Methodists among these sojourners have a right to expect to find the church of their choice up and doing, and able to offer them as comfortable and pleasant welcome as any other church can. I regret to say that this is not the case just now; our Methodist people have come here to live awhile and united with another church without even letting it be known that they were ever Methodists—ashamed of the indifference of their own people and the very place they would have had to worship in. I'm not lauding their conduct, understand, as I personally feel that they should have remained loyal, but I guess pride stands as a barrier even in church work oftimes.

Now we hope to see some of these obstacles removed. We are already agitating the question of church improvements; we expect to paint the church, put in pews, now that we have chairs for seats; hard oil the interior and put in window panes and screens, water and sanitary conveniences.

With the help of our energetic presiding elder, Brother J. R. Jones, and the co-operation of the people at Pass Christian, we hope to get most of this done before the great influx of summer visitors begins.

I wish that the cause of Methodism in Pass Christian might have the prayerful interest of every member of our great Church; it needs it.

Please send me several sample copies of the Advocate. I want to see if I can't get some subscriptions here.

I read with pleasure the reports of the work of all the brethren. Can't you throw off your pressing duties and spend a week end with us on the coast? Fraternally yours,

JNO. L. SUTTON.

P. S. Wanted: Good, comfortable pews, for building 25 ft. by 32 ft. Will want them to fit for center aisle. Address, Pastor, Pass Christian, Miss.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

BUT NOT ALWAYS.

We read the other day that the House of Representatives had to adjourn one of its recent sessions half an hour earlier than usual, because the lights went out. The members could not carry on their work in the darkness. We know how it is. We used to read the Congressional Record once in a while. Sometimes it got so dark we had to cease. The House does not always adjourn on account of darkness.

WHAT IS YOUR OPINION?

It is a familiar saying, "There is no time like the present." Somebody has changed it by saying, "There is no time but the present." We agree with the latter statement. Some people spend their lives dreaming of the past. They think and talk of "the good old days." They constantly look over their shoulders. Their eyes have become set for the backward glance. Others are thinking only of the distant future. They are dreaming dreams and seeing visions of what shall be. All of us do more or less of both; but when we come to do our work, there is no time but the present.

IT IS HERE ALL THE TIME.

We hear the remark, now and then, that the revival season will soon be here. We confess that we do not like the connotation of the remark. It suggests that there is a time when revivals are not in season—that there is a time for doing this, that, and the other, and a time, also, for arousing men to a sense of their personal religious needs. Every day in the year is a good day to have a revival; every prayer meeting service is an opportunity to stir men and women to religious activity; every Sunday school session opens the way to the hearts of human beings who need salvation; every sermon should be a bugle call to renewed consecration and renewed activity in the spiritual life. The revival season is always here.

FOLLOWING A BAD EXAMPLE.

Press dispatches from abroad, in describing the condition of the ex-Kaiser in his retreat in Holland, state, that he is "killing himself smoking cigarettes." He lights one from another, and smokes from the time he gets up in the morning till he goes to bed at night. We are not especially concerned about the health of Mr. Hohenzollern; but we are afraid some of our returned soldier boys are going to an early grave from the same cause that is hastening the end of the man they risked their lives to depose from power. It seems to us, though we may be in error about it, that nearly every man we see in uniform is smoking a cigarette, or lighting one. It means business for the cigarette manufacturers—and the undertakers—but we have no particular interest in their prosperity.

WHY?

According to the press dispatches, a resolution has been passed by the Senate authorizing the payment of a pension of $5,000 a year to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the late ex-president, and the extension to her of the franking privilege. We are sure the motive back of the proposition is a high one. Theodore Roosevelt was a great public servant, and it is perfectly natural that the nation should desire to express its appreciation of his services in a suitable way. But Mrs. Roosevelt is a private citizen of the Republic and is not, therefore, a claimant upon its funds. And our impression is that she does not need the money, anyway.

PRAY THAT IT MAY NOT HAPPEN HERE.

A dispatch from Stockholm last week reported that ten thousand people, desperate from hunger, were parading the streets of Petrograd and begging the soldiers to fire upon them. It is impossible for us to realize the conditions that exist in some of the countries that have been war-torn. Starvation is a terrible, an awful thing. And yet there is food enough in the world for all. The trouble is that it is not available. In our own country, we have plenty. But some foodstuffs have increased so greatly in price that they are beyond the reach of the poor. Whatever the cause may be, and there are some indications that it is profiteering, it is not too soon to begin to pray that we be spared the tragedy of hunger riots. People will have food, if they have to fight for it. And revolutions sometimes follow reduced rations. The profiteers are making money now; they may be making mischief for the future.

THE RIGHT FOUNDATION.

Lord Robert Cecil, who has been charged by the British Government with the duty of presenting Great Britain's ideas with regard to a league of nations, has issued a comprehensive statement on that subject. He gives this as his definition of such a league: "An improved association of nations providing safeguards for peace and the securing of better international co-operation." But the thing that interests us most in his statement is his conviction that moral force is to be the ultimate factor employed to prevent war. We believe most earnestly that provision must be made for maintaining the decisions of the league by force if necessary, but we are also thoroughly convinced that moral suasion is the strongest force in the world. It grows out of public opinion, which has always shown that it is stronger, ultimately, than specific enactments written upon the statute books of a State or a nation. Lord Cecil's statement is simply recognition of the fact that the basis of any lasting agreement of any kind is, in its last analysis, moral. And morality runs its roots deep into the religious nature of man.

OPEN THE DOORS.

The report now is that the proceedings of the Peace Conference will be conducted behind closed doors, to all intents and purposes. It is altogether to the credit of President Wilson that he has insisted that full publicity should be given to the negotiations as they proceed. We presume that no reasonable person would insist that the details of procedure should be given to the press; but the PEOPLE of the world have paid the price, in money and sacrifice of life, of this war, and they have a right to know what is going to be done about it, and how it is going to be done. Secret sessions of the Conference pave the way for diplomatic maneuvering that conceivably may result in something that is far different from what the world wants. We trust the leaders who have been charged with the mighty responsibility of framing a world peace—and we want them to trust us. Let them open the doors.

FOREIGN MISSIONS IN MODERN THOUGHT.

The command of Christ is sufficient authority for our missionary program; but in an inspiring missionary address that we heard last Sunday evening by Rev. R. S. Stewart, a missionary from Japan who is traveling in the interest of the Missionary Centenary, another phase of the subject was forcibly presented. After laying his foundation upon the Great Commission, he made the striking remark: "Internationalism in politics is foreign missions in the vocabulary of the Church." No nation to-day can be indifferent to the political welfare of any other nation in the world. The great Peace Conference now in session in Paris is sufficient proof of that fact. The nations are indissolubly bound together by common political interests, and they are striving to discharge their obligations resulting therefrom. They are also indissolubly bound together by common religious interests, and missionary activity is the means of discharging the obligations arising therefrom.

A GOOD WAY TO SAVE FOOD.

The Associated Press reports that twenty-two members of the National Woman's Party, who were sentenced to five days' imprisonment in Washington for disturbances in front of the White House, have announced that they will go on a hunger strike. It seems strange to us that so many women who are fighting for what they term their "political rights" should believe that they can hasten the legislation they seek by measures that put a heavy strain upon the patience and chivalry of the manhood of this country. Deliberate violation of the law is not the best way in the world to secure public sympathy. However, if twenty-two women decide to go without food for five days, they will be carrying out a fine conservation program. We know a man who did without food for ten days, as a health measure, and he got along very well. Most of us eat too much, anyway.

AS THE YEARS GO BY.

As the years go by we learn to say
Not more but less;
To guard our lips from hasty speech
Lest we transgress.
As years go by we train ourselves
More oft to smile,
And things that contradict
To reconcile.
As years go by our vision widens
And we see
That life, God-centered, is a life
Of Liberty.
As years go by we learn to lisp
The Angel's song,
And weave a strain of heavenly music
Through life's throng.

CAPITALIZING THE WIGGLE

In an article in "The Vocational Summary," issued by the United States Federal Board for Vocational Education, emphasis is laid upon the fact that the men who are partially disabled by war will be helped to make the most of what ability may be left. Every man is to be trained to do all that he can do, and if there is enough of Pte. Jones left to wiggle a finger, the wiggle will be capitalized and made to yield a pretty good living in addition to what he draws from the soldiers' pension fund. This is wise treatment for returned soldiers, and we think it would be wise treatment for many who are not returned soldiers. The idea is that no matter how small may be a man's capability it should be utilized to help both himself and the world. It is the story of the one-talent man with a modern setting, and it is a story which needs retelling again and again.

The war has brought home to the nations with tremendous emphasis the need of utilizing every ounce of work-energy which any man or woman possesses. The world is calling for it, the nation is calling for it, the Church of God is calling for it. We are beginning to understand the real value of toil, and to appreciate the toiler; and we are beginning to understand the real nature of idleness and to insist that the idler idle no more. The world can't afford, and has no right to be expected, to maintain idlers. Unless a man or woman can give some excuse for being alive, he or she has no right to burden society with his or her presence. There are many spheres of toil, and a man may prefer one sphere or to another; with that we have little to do. But the point upon which we insist is that he find his rightful place somewhere and do his work faithfully. There is work which he can do and which he ought to do, and there can be no excuse if he does not do it. Each must do his share for the common good.

But one of the very worst hindrances to the carrying out of this programme is the knowledge that some men have very small capacity; to use the language of the report, there is nothing left but a wiggle. The man knows this, and he feels that he can do nothing; the helper knows this; and he is apt to get discouraged. Both are wrong, but the helper is specially to blame. The world has tens of thousands of men and women who are not possessed of any great natural ability, and they know it. But there is still left to them undreamed-of possibilities of happiness and usefulness, and they don't know it; and it is the business of preachers and teachers and all helpers of mankind to encourage these men to make the most of themselves, i.e., to capitalize the wiggle.

But we must have abounding faith in God and man. We must believe in God in man. We must see God at work even in that discouraging wiggle, and we must see Him so clearly that we shall have supreme faith that that wiggle shall work miracles. The trouble with many of us is that we have no faith in modern miracles, unless someone else works them; and we must learn that Christ was speaking to us when He said, "Greater works than these shall ye do." We have pushed God out of the lanes and the byways, we have shut Him up in the church and the college, and then we expect Him to work miracles. Our God is in the crowd, He must be there, and He is always the Omnipotent One; but He works ever in His own way. We are always looking out for the "able" man, for the uncrowned king, for the infant Hercules, and God is looking for the man who has nothing but a wiggle. We want men who have something valuable to bring to God and mankind, and God wants to show us just how much He can bring out of little. The greatness of God is seen, not so much in the great work of great men, as in the great work of little men. The product of the mustard seed is God's handiwork. The building of the human temple out of dust is one of His works, and as we look over society to-day we stand and marvel, as our fathers did, at the weak things of the world confounding the mighty, at the things that are not, bringing to nought the things that are.

Are we ready to learn the lesson? The preacher who is looking everywhere for men of talent and finding them not, but who has no faith in the men who have no talents? The teacher who bemoans the fact that nearly all his scholars are dull and hopeless? And we also, who long ago decided that we at least could do nothing worth doing for humanity? Had we not better learn to see in that infinitesimal capacity the divine possibility of infinite development? It is there without doubt, but we need eyes to see it. God give us true vision.—The Christian Guardian.

HOW TO READ

By Rev. Christian F. Reisner, D.D.

"When there is no recreation or business for thee abroad, thou mayest have a company of honest old fellows in their leathern jackets in thy study which will find thee excellent divertisement at home," said Thomas Fuller. Said an honored judge in Denver the other day, "When I am in trouble or agitated or anxious, nothing quiets and pacifies me like the company of books."

It is mentally healthful to be surrounded by shelves holding good titled volumes, even though we cannot read many of them. Pity the preacher who must work without the encouraging, stimulating, warming presence of loved authors. To gaze at the cold theological, the mechanically exegetical, the stock books of illustrations, or the all-knowing banks of encyclopedias in some studies is to understand the stiff, stilted, saltless, snapless, sleepy sermons coming out of the mouth.

Men usually betray their mind-bent and habits by the nonpurchase or the poor choice of books. No one can ever afford to be too poor to buy books. Such economy leads to an increasing loss. The stomach can afford starving better than the head. He is sure to run to seed who under any circumstances neglects to secure and search them. True it is not enough to have books around us without reading them, but it is better than not to see them at all. It is also good exercise even to handle them.

A careful look through the chapter heads or table of contents plants seed thoughts, arousing an investigating spirit or hangs in the mind a directing sign that may be useful in some future investigation. Scanning paragraphs here and there gives a clue to style and solidity and reveals the work's strength of appeal to you or to some one else to whom you may recommend it.

Quick reading is frequently dangerous, but the habit must aid many times. Imagine a hard-working pastor giving an hour to a newspaper when fifteen minutes will give one all the news. Many books are no better. They have little cream and can be skimmed quickly. It is necessary to do some reading slowly and thoroughly, but it is also possible to loaf over a book. What good does it do to read a paragraph when the contents are known? Dip in like the bee for honey thoughts. Run the eyes over sections as does the musician looking for congenial or great musical themes. Test nuggets here and there to see if it will pay to work the mine. Use a good sieve to gather out the wheat.

Reading Maketh the Full Man

Book study but fits us for man and nature study. Hurriedly grasped or discovered thoughts are often more valuable than those dug out by hard mental drudgery, but the agility and strength that made the hurriedly acquired rich thought possible was obtained by the study drudgery. Ian MacLaren says: "Some ministers ought to be chained to their desks until they have translated one of Augustine's sermons. The habit of study should be taken to every book and need not be applied alone to heavy reading. It is dangerous to loll over any volume or composition. The first question one asks about a book is why should I read it? This is of necessity a personal question and what follows has no higher authority than practice and experience."

Fiction cannot be ignored. It can usually be gone over quickly. It offers opportunity for practice in scanning. Read for the language and style. Sometimes these are poor, but usually the words are modern, the style is lively, and the story presents a phase of life to which we have no access. It cultivates the imagination by putting us in mind touch with the creative writer, by leading to the formation of pictures of the depicted scenes, and by cultivating the habit of spontaneously forming other sorts of possible combinations. Illustrations are discovered and suggested. Books that will help others can be found.

Poetry is more natural and valuable to some minds than to others. It is not all in verse. It gives crispness to language, aids the habit of condensation and terseness, builds the contemplative powers, beautifies the thought and expression and develops the power of illustration from observation.

Biography offers stimulation and food. Grip the striking events with the mind. Follow the personal development and clearly note the affecting causes. Vivify the faults and loss caused so that they will be avoided. Form a clear, full mental picture of the man. Make him stand full clothed before you. Take literally no man's description. Form your own picture. Books like The True Andrew Jackson, by Cyrus Townsend Brady, or Edwin McMasters Stanton, by Frank A. Fowler, or Recollections of a Long Life, by Theodore L. Cuyler, give one a good start.

History gives us purpose, hope and confidence. Form a table of successive events, relating one to the other. Read topically. Read whole stories. Compare various authorities. The Historian's History is valuable and vitalizing. It attracts and instructs. Even Larend's Historical Collection will lift one to knowledge and optimism. See everywhere the hand of God. Look for it. Gather incidents; note them down; decide what they will illustrate; relate them to prophecy and religious fact.

We must read some theology or we are poorly equipped. We do not need to read it blindly. Even Wesley was not infallible. He wrote against the American Revolution. He believed in witches. He advised some beer drinking. Because the teacher of theology at Boston or Drew or Garret or Rochester or Colgate or Harvard wrote it, is no reason why it should be accepted or rejected. Understand every sentence if possible. Give no assent to anything unless it satisfies reason and conscience toned and directed by God's Spirit.

Rules for the Reader

A few further rules about the book selected may be suggestive.

1. Be convinced that the book to be read is worth your time. Time is too valuable and books too numerous to let a poor or even cheap book hold you to it. The recommendations of trusted, interested and understanding friends are very valuable but not always conclusive. Draw from them an idea of the book's contents and test these tastes of it with your judgment and known need. If a book gives you nothing, it is valueless to you though it may fit some one else.

2. Choose books. Don't take what happens to come to your hand. Select the kind you like. My theological seminary roommate (Dr. Knudson) rested by reading philosophy while I sat on the other side of the room refreshed by biography or fiction. A very successful travelling man, who did not have a college education, on the train and at the hotels instead of telling stories or playing games reads such books as James's Varieties of Religious Experience, The Philosophy of the Christian Religion, Christian Doctrine of Immortality. Bishop Warren found recreation in the study of astronomy.

Select books you need. It would be well for some to review the grammar or rhetoric or common history or philosophy. Some need to take a close and regular course in reading theology. How deplorable it is to see the pitiable ignorance displayed in many attacks on higher criticism. It is devotionally and mentally helpful, for weeks at a time, to read a sermon every morning. Select books that stretch the mind and drill it in undivided attention and develop the power of logical reasoning and the drawing of sane conclusions. These books are not the same to all people. Each mind knows the thing that requires close and absorbing effort to grasp. It is usually along a line not enjoyed and so likely to be neglected. We must put ourselves at a few hard-to-grasp books and hang on until we get the meaning and reasoning process.

Master the book selected. One may nap over a magazine or paper, but it is almost a sin to sleep over a book. Of what use is it to read and then to be able to tell nothing about it? If after all possible effort there is no interest, better lay aside the book than to push through it simply to say it had been read. Hasty, ungripping reading does little good and often causes damage.

Methods

The method of reading is important. Read some books slowly to comprehend fully the finest details of construction. This will impress the value of selecting the best word and of making the sentences keen, clean cut, crisp and complete. A slovenly style will be placarded. Verboseness manifests voidness of thought. Simple, direct speech strikes home. Composition is important. Dr. C. E. Jefferson got his memorable style by spending from thirty to sixty minutes every morning writing. He refuses every two-syllable word if a simpler is possible.

Ask the question, Why does this book command readers? Work out an answer. Discover the style secret and profit by it. Mentally review a page after it is read to see whether it is in mind storage. Talk it out with some one. Decide whether the thoughts are sane and sound or silly and mere sound. Are they as distinct as shocked wheat or mixed like a field whose straws are broken by rust? Is the progress steady and upward, like a flight of steps into a stately temple, or are the thoughts brilliant and miscellaneous, like a beautifully assorted flower garden. Get by slow progress and close inspection a full view of the work.

It will be helpful to read some books aloud. Two minds may thus work upon one book at the same time. Pause for comments, questions, enlightenment or reviews. One pastor with a determination that his wife and he should not grow apart mentally, sets aside one hour every day to be spent in reading aloud to each other. Partnership reading does cement interest and encourage a union development.

Read aloud alone. It will reveal the smoothness, ruggedness, music or discord of the construction. It will manifest the brightness or dullness, the vivacity or heaviness, the spice or the staleness of the style. Vocal use will uncover the force or frailty of words, the finality or unfinishedness of the sentence and the marriage or divorcement of the thoughts. These exercises will also improve pronunciation and may even out the voice.

Skip through some books. This will require will power. It is easy to lounge lazily over easy reading. Steady practice will enable one to scan the total contents of certain books, or to slip through others, gathering facts, illustrations or thoughts related to a subject in mind.

Outline books. Read Job, for example, putting the contents of each chapter into fifteen or twenty words, and the whole book will be clarified into unity. Crystallize the paragraphs of Bowne's Philosophy of Theism into three or four words, and the arguments will stand out like lofty church steeples in a city. Outlining will open out the progress, point out the weak links and enable one to grip the book as a whole. Write down striking thoughts, facts or illustrations. File away or place loosely in the volume.

If possible, own the book; carefully read, then make notes in the margin. Underscore words and sections. Close the book and write down briefly what impressed you or what ought to be remembered or what is untrue or weak or deplorable or needs answering. Use independent thought on it.

Do not confine the reading to one book. Work at four or five at once in widely divergent fields; for example, biography, fiction, sermons, philosophy and the purely spiritual. No pastor can afford for his own spiritual culture to miss such books as Matheson's Times of Retirement, and Jowett's Brooks by the Traveler's Way. Use fragments of time. Keep books at hand. Five minutes a day amounts to over thirty hours a year, three ten-hour days. Read light literature when weary, the heavier and harder sort when fresh.

A pastor should positively refuse to spend all his time whittling and chopping kindling. By strength of will, by purpose of life and vision of ideal, by the known possibility of improvement and the sure danger of decay he should hold himself to reading some book and books. The one great and never to be forgotten rule in reading books is; at all hazards and costs; to read them.—In The Christian Advocate (New York).

A LETTER FROM HON. T. WYNN HOLLOMAN.

(Through the kindness of Judge H. H. White, of Alexandria, La., himself one of the best known laymen in our Church, we are privileged to publish the following letter from Hon. T. Wynn Holloman, a member of the board of stewards, and Sunday school superintendent of our church at Alexandria, and one of the most active laymen in Louisiana. Brother Holloman is also well known and greatly loved in Mississippi.—Editor.)

12 Rue d'Aguesseau.
Paris, France.
Dec. 14, 1918.

Mr. H. H. White,
Alexandria, La.

Dear Uncle Horace: This is a great day for America. I doubt if any king or potentate ever received a finer and more enthusiastic ovation than our President received to-day. The French seem to regard Wilson almost as a super-man. He is the one man in the world big enough to link up the statesmen of the nations and his word carries further than that of anyone else. He is the man of the hour in the world's biggest hour. The only men who do not concede this are his own countrymen who oppose him for political reasons. Of course, he is treading dangerous ground. One on such a pinnacle is in danger. If his plans meet the English and French ideas of justice and are practical, he has the prestige to put them over and the U. S. will take its place at the head of the column of nations.

I stood this morning just off the Champs Elysees on the Avenue Nicolas II, near the Grand Palais and also near the clay model of the statue "Au Pollus," and saw my fourth big Parisian parade, or rather, outpouring of people for a procession. The first was on Nov. 17th and was in honor of the return of Alsace-Lorraine. It was the first Sunday after the signing of the armistice and there was a mad celebration of joy. The French people had been so steeped in gloom and grief for so long and had been bending every energy toward one goal, viz: "Ils ne passeront pas," for so long that they could not fully grasp in a day that a great victory had come and that there was to be an end of the carnage and death. There was a wild outbreak of joy all over France and England when the armistice was signed, but the next day faces were still drawn. The consciousness of the thing had not fully worked in. I happened to be in a large city in England the day the armistice was signed. The women and the youth seemed the quicker to grasp the meaning of the coming of peace, or their temperament gave way quicker to enthusiasm. By the way, I had dinner that day with Mr. Henry W. Southgate, who lived for many years in New Orleans, New York and Texas, and it was he who first informed me in the street that the armistice was actually signed. But on Friday and Saturday before the 17th, I could not read joy or relief in the faces of the Parisians. It took the Sunday celebration to bring relief. The pent-up feelings of the people broke all bounds and they dared to begin to forget the things that had been burnt into their memories by four years of suffering and anxiety. From that day dates their "Liberation."

And as they began to smile and rejoice, they also began to rub the paint off the lamp-glass and to tear down the sand-bags that protected the statuary and public buildings, until now the streets are fairly well lighted and most of the monuments visible. I saw a grand scramble for thousands of German helmets strung on wires and pasted over the sand-bags along the Tuilleries fence facing the Place de la Concorde. French and American soldiers vied with each other in pulling them off. Just inside, there was and is an exact model of the Zeppelin which fell near here with all its frame-work.

Of course you have read of and seen pictures of the captured material. It lines the Champs Elysees and other avenues, the Place de la Concorde and other centers. There are guns innumerable of every kind and caliber. The aeroplanes are along the wall of the Jardin de Tuilleries. A big collection is in and about the Hotel des Invalides. There is also a fine collection of ancient war material there. There is an up-to-date art display of the war, too.

The second procession was that of King George of Great Britain and the two princes. They came on Thanksgiving Day, and, notwithstanding the rain, there was a great crowd and the King and President Poincaire rode in an open carriage. The third was a week later when Albert, beloved King of the Belgians, and his Queen came. The day and the crowd and the open carriage were duplicated. The people love Albert much and they love George, too, for his own sake as well as for that of his father, Edward VII, whose memory the French revere and for whom they named a street, a hotel and a theatre. By the way, many streets have been re-named. President Wilson seems destined to immortal fame in that way.

I started to write Saturday at noon, when the line waiting for lunch at our place stretched through the canteen, around the half of this big circle and down to the front door, 2300 men ate here that day and probably 3000 visited the building. Yesterday we had nearly as many.

* * * * * * * * *

I now resume on Wednesday. My letter will be rambling and disconnected, but I am very much crippled as to writing. My table light is not on yet and when the cinema is on I have no light. At other times I am usually busy or absent. We are not fully fixed up yet, but will be shortly, so far as the nature of the building permits.

The crowds that greeted Wilson Saturday and at his appearances Sunday and Monday were immense. Saturday was a holiday and the throngs surged the streets all day and until way into the night and had almost as hilarious a time as on the Alsace-Lorraine day. Their hilarity differs in some very marked respects from ours. But our men are good learners.

* * * * * * * * *

I am director of religious work at the Palais de Glace. It is on the Champs Elysees between the Place de la Concorde and the Arc de Triomphe. Everything and everybody passes the Avenue along here. Tomorrow afternoon, by the way, King Victor Emmanuel is due. We have here the higgest Y hut or center in France. It is a skating rink in ordinary times for the elite and has a very fine auditorium. Otherwise the kitchens, etc., are not big enough or as convenient as we would like. It has been a big entertainment proposition. Perhaps 1,000 men are here now listening to a musicale. Cinemas every afternoon from 2:30 to 5 and again at 7:15. Theatricals, etc., every night. Boxing every Tuesday night. Probably 2,500 men were here last night. Religious services every Sunday night. Canteen feeds them from 9 a.m to 10 p.m. with a regular meal at noon and at six. Saturday, 2,300 ate here. We keep them off the streets, feed them, entertain them, give them smiles and a domestic and homelike atmosphere and direct their minds to the serious and permanent of the here and the hereafter, as there is opportunity. They seem to like us and often say so. Our American girls are beloved by them. There are perhaps 15 here, and 60 men or so. The information department, is very important, too. We do not handle tobaccos, as we are open to all nationalities and to both sexes. Red Cross and other Y workers eat here in large numbers. The Red Cross workers are mostly girls.

When I arrived, I concluded to ask to be released from the physical director's work as they were looking for professional coaches. I could put on their program hut am not a professional and my heart was not in it. Had the war been on still when my assignment was made, it would have been a good work and would have helped me along other lines with the men. I ran up on Mr. Ranck before I was assigned. He said he would like to use me here, so I was sent to him. He is regional director of the Metropolitan region. He brought me here and at Mr. Graham's request I put in a week in the canteen and looking it over. Graham is head Secretary and a fine Christian fellow. He is a regular Y man like Ranck. Then he asked my opinlon of things. He and I were thinking along the same lines and the result is my job. Our desire is to put more emphasis here on the third side of the triangle. I look after the religious services, carry good literature for free distribution and talk to the men. Sunday I organized a Bible Class which I will probably teach. One night we had Bishop Lambuth. He is figuring on a dinner of our Church members on Jan. 4th. Said he wrote you just before he left. Another time Dr. McCulloch of Pittsburgh. Then I had Rodeheaver on a week night and again Sunday with Bishop Guerry of S. C. Next Sunday I'll have "the Little Mother," Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth. We have a mother's corner where a dear old lady—a grandmother—sews on buttons, serves tea, etc. Thanksgiving we served 2,900 fine turkey dinners. Christmas we will have a full day. I'll write Charlie the details. This is a big city and the men are lonesome, and I honestly believe this work is worth while.

* * * * * * * * *

I would like to write the Town Talk and the Advocate about the work here but I can do so only under difficulties. * * * I may also be doing whatever educational work we can put on here.

EXCRESCENCES.

By Payton A. Sowell.

As I look hackward—from the sphere of a "superneedless," to the far-away heginning scenes of a ministerial endeavor—among the things that impress me are "ministerial excrescences." One of the proofs of a genuine coin, is to find a counterfeit. The counterfeit would be real, if there were no genuine.

One evidence that there is a "vital" in the service of the pulpit, is the unmistabable "excrescence"—so visible.

That from which preachers almost universally draw back, is "criticism." Human nature, especially in ministers, is positively averse to it. We used to read somewhere in the old-time "Readers," "Vinegar never catches flies." Criticism is acid. Praise will draw and please, as the candle attracts the moths.

If I had life, to begin again—and by life, I mean the ministry—two things among many, I would put into my life. First, never a day should pass, if possible, without memorizing at least a verse of Scripture and a verse of poetry. The second would he to secure a genuine, sincere critic.

The wives of preachers ought to constitute the best critics. But, in most instances, where the preacher is teachable, the wives often become as vain of their husbands as the preachers are of themselves. And where the preachers are not teachable, it is a useless endeavor.

It is impossible to make one's ministerial achievement faultless. There are too many things against us. Our weak voices, our stentorian voices, our ungainliness, our lack of adaptahility, our infirmities, are barriers to perfection.

If our eyes could he opened—if they would open—to the incumbrances, in time all of us would set journey toward a higher level. Instead, with all of us—or so nearly all, the word can he used—we allow many "objectionables," to fasten like manacles on our methods.

Often, these excrescences are very small; but they type us.

Frequently, it is the habit of entering the pulpit. I knew a hright, cultivated young preacher who was so undignified, or so unhecoming in his entrance into the pulpit hy "ducking" down his head and skipping in, and then "tucking" his head down as he sat, that many people "regretted" to see it; and a service of merit was discredited.

I can remember, in the "olden days" when the users of spectacles carried them in a tin hox—maybe, silver—that an unchanging routine was followed hy the "dear hrethren." After reading their texts, first taking off their glasses and putting them in the case, and securely snapping it and replacing it in their vest pocket, they then began their sermon. We came to expect all this, while we waited for the discourse.

I sat one evening in an Episcopal church, hy the side of a bright young man, and heard a Bishop preach. Over and over, he said, "the dear Lord"—and at the close, I alluded to the repetition to this young man, not knowing that it had attracted his attention. He replied, "Yes, I counted sixty times."

In our day—and among the "cultivated" ministers as well as the "Apers"—there is quite a fashionable word—"worthwhile."

One does not have to go far to find this "excrescence." I listened, not many months since, to a fresh, rather attractive preacher in style and voice, and in discourse. But, some way, he did not listen to himself or he would not have closed so many sentences and paragraphs with "worthwhile"—nearly thirty times.

It frequently occurs that a long prayer becomes the habit of the preacher in the public worship. A traveler kneeled with the host at the evening prayer; it was so extended, he whispered to a boy whom he waked, and asked, "How long does your father pray?" He answered, "Has he gotten to the Red Sea? He is half through when he gets there." I am often reminded of the Presbyterian preacher who asked Brother A. to pray, saying, "I want a short prayer—I am gifted in prayer—and can't pray a short one."

We had a fine, solid, theological preacher, in Tennessee who grunted "uh," at the end of almost every sentence, for nearly half his sermon, until he had fully warmed up. If he had been made to see this in the early years of his ministry, he would have heen saved from an "excrescence."

We had a dear old man in our Conference, now gone to heaven—as there was no other place for him, when he left time—who could preach his entire sermon in twenty minutes; but he used all these minutes in preaching, and none of them in repeating. And he had space for poetic and literary quotations and allusions.

Making announcements is an art. In some instances, a layman is charged with this "pleasurable" duty; hut there are preachers who are not satisfied to let "well enough" alone. It is not a novel occurrence for some preachers to repeat—and re-repeat—the announcements.

There is an "excrescence" that even "distinguished" preachers are occasionally encumbered with, and that is, "laboring to come to a close." So many good opportunities are lost—to quit.

An awkward layman was blundering along in an incoherent prayer. Finally, he uttered something really good; and the preacher said, "Amen." The layman said, "Thank you, Brother, I have been trying to think of that word."

Those of us who are seventy must now he excused of we cannot see and correct our habits; but if young preachers are willing to learn, and he taught, and to "see themselves as others see them"—there will be few excrescences on their methods.

A CALL.

January 16, 1919, will stand out on the pages of United States history as the highest peak in the range of many notable occurrences clustering around it. It was on that date that the prohibition amendment to the constitution of the United States was ratified by the 36th State, which prevents the manufacture, sale, importation and exportation for beverage purposes of all intoxicating liquors in the United States.

No day, perhaps, in the history of the United States has been fraught with consequences so far-reaching and beneficial to our country. In recognition of such a transcendent blessing, it seems eminently proper for the Christian people of our State and nation to assemble in their respective places of worship at a regular Sunday service and spend an hour in a devout thanksgiving service to the Giver of every good and perfect gift. Sunday, February 16, at 11 a. m., is suggested for this special service.

It is further suggested that the churches which do not meet on the 16th, hold this service on their first regular preaching day following the 16th. Every pastor who will notify T. J. Bailey within two weeks that he will hold such a service, will he furnished, without cost, literature giving data for suitable addresses for that occasion.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

Dear Brother Carley: Please allow me space in the Advocate to make grateful acknowledgments to the host of friends who have heaped on us messages of condolence, spoken, written and wired, in gracious endeavors to comfort us in our great bereavement. While our grief is almost more than we can bear, yet the tender and sweet tributes paid in all these messages to the lovable and noble character of our darling son, and expressions of deep sympathy with us in our grievous loss in his ascension, will be cherished by us as long as life lasts. We shall never forget them. May God bless every one who has offered us balm for our wounds!

God gave us seven children; we have given four of them back to Him. Only three are left with us—three daughters than whom no parents have nobler and better.

When our dear Favre was born, wife and I dedicated him to God, and begged Him to sanctify him for the ministry. He heard and answered our prayers. From that time on, we did all we knew to do to fit him for the best service in the Kingdom.

We would be happy to have all who may read this note to help us with their prayers that God may call the little infant boy of our sainted son to wear his father's mantle. The little boy is the image of his father and named for him—Mounger Favre.

While our friends are sympathizing with us and praying for us, we beg all to remember the dear stricken wife and fatherless little boy.

I would be glad if I could write personally to every one who has tendered sympathy and prayers in this time of our greatest grief, but I cannot do it. Please let all understand that through this means I express our sincere gratitude to all for their thoughtful and loving and tender messages. God is with us and we say from our grieved hearts, "Thy will be done." With love,

T. W. ADAMS AND FAMILY.

RESOLUTIONS

Adopted by the Students of Candler School of Theology, Emory University.

Whereas the God whom we love and serve has seen fit, in the exercise of his infinite wisdom and authority, to permit the removal of our friend and brother, Mounger Favre Adams, from his place of service in this life.

Be it resolved, That the Candler School of Theology has lost one of its most promising students, who, although he had been with us only a few days, had already won for himself a warm place in our affections.

Be it resolved, moreover, That the Kingdom here has lost a most faithful and promising servant.

Be it also resolved, That we extend our deepest sympathy and the assurance of our prayers to his wife, parents and all members of his family.

Be it further resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his wife, his parents, and the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

PROHIBITION PROGRESS IN LOUISIANA.

Dear Brother Carley: After two months' illness, I am up, but am unable to do much work as yet.

Our prohibition friends are doubtless glad to see the rapid progress being made in ratifying the National Prohibition Amendment. February 1 will probably see more than the 36 States required to make the amendment effective. I am so glad Louisiana was among the first to ratify. It was not an easy task, but we had a great many good people helping us, and we were bound to succeed. No one individual can claim the credit of putting it over. Good men who were not members of the General Assembly came from every section of the State, at their own expense, to help us. And back of all this was the faithful work done by the good women of the W. C. T. U. for many years, and the work of the Anti-Saloon League. The liquor people always fight to the last ditch. The national liquor people have just employed a bunch of attorneys and placed $1,000,000,000 at their disposal, authorizing them to go the limit in the courts.

But our friends will be on the job, and, as usual, the courts will find John Barleycorn guilty of about all with which he is charged. Remember, however, that our work is not yet over. We shall have to be busy for several years yet. We must have good laws—State and National; then we must see that these laws are enforced.

I feel sure our friends in Louisiana will stand by us until this old outlaw, John Barleycorn, is buried face down, so he won't scratch out. I shall depend upon your co-operation in the future as in the past. Write us as to how the prohibition law is being enforced in your parish, if your parish is wet. Let us know how regulation regulates. On with the battle!

Yours to serve,

A. W. TURNER, Superintendent.

A BESETTING SIN.

By Rev. A. J. Gearheard.

What has a congregation that is more important materially than its roll of members, and who is there that can tell why it is that the records of the Methodist Church are so poorly kept? I ask these questions because I am convinced that the besetting sin of Methodist preachers is failure to keep books for the Church.

Let me present some statistics. Bogalusa is a comparatively new charge, and certainly records in a place like this ought not to be badly tangled, but they are. The Minutes of 1908 show that there were then 48 members of the Bogalusa Church. Each annual report since then brings the total up to 1100 names that have been reported to the Annual Conference. Only 930 names were ever recorded on the Register. What became of the other 170 names? The Minutes for 10 years show that 548 were dismissed by death and otherwise, but only 435 were marked off the books. Which names now on the books should be marked off, a new preacher cannot tell. It appears that there are 113 dead names on the books. But what is the new man to do? The last report to Conference shows that there are 515 members of the Church, but there are only 435 names on the books that are not marked as dismissed, and I actually have a visiting list of 427 names.

But my dilemma becomes worse when I find that the last report to the Conference shows that 146 were received into the Church last year and but 85 were recorded in the Register. Reports show that 64 were dismissed and only 55 were marked off, while the records show that in 1917 there were 74 dismissed by letter and death and 273 dropped by order of church conference. The same year the Conference Minutes show but 50 dismissed by all methods. In 1916 the Minutes show that 100 were dismissed and the Register records but 6 names as having been dismissed in 1916.

These conditions are deplorable, and Bogalusa is no exception. I have been pastor of other churches where records were very much the same way. This loose method of keeping books for the Church is inexcusable. Most preachers can record all they have done that is worth reporting almost any month in 15 minutes. I am about convinced that every presiding elder ought to require pastors to bring their registers with them to the quarterly conference and show by the book that the names reported to the quarterly conference have been duly recorded, and that a notary should be summoned to the sessions of each Annual Conference and every pastor be required to take oath that the records he submits for publication are correct.

We expect accuracy in financial reports. Business men take an account of stock annually, not as a form, but in order to locate themselves on the ledger. I think it is high time for the Methodist Church to take a book census of its numerical strength and start counting all over, and then use strenuous means if necessary to see that the count in the future is kept straight.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE.

The students returning January 6 brought the influenza. With the exception of a few students remaining at College and those going home, all had the disease. The teachers and officers suffered with the students. All are practically well. We are profoundly grateful. There were no fatalities. School begins Tuesday, January 28.

GLOOM'S ANTIDOTE.

By Rev. W. A. Hays.

When your task seems greater than you can do,
And cares would crush all zeal right out of you;
When bleak Despair would lord it o'er your life,
Defeating Hope and Purpose in the strife—
Just trust in God and do your best,
And gladly leave with Him the rest.

When trials vex, or sorrows overcast
The mind, or disappointments, thick and fast,
Quickly blight all thy prospects fair and good,
And you are not by friends half understood—
Just trust in God, who knows your heart,
And He will always take your part.

The present is small part of life's great whole,
And thy greatest need is that of thy soul;
The clouds that gather will vanish away,
And fleeting distress thy spirit repay.
Trust God: the future will reveal
That all things wrought to serve thy weal.

MADE PERFECT

The Easter gospel announces the perfecting of everything that deserves to be perfected. As Christ rose again, so Christ's people are never to die. . . . True love and holy friendship, and all relationships which had on them the Father's benediction, shall and must abide. And therefore they who were one in Christ here, and now are parted for a little while, shall meet again, and be one in Christ for ever. Holy Christian love is one of those forces which no power above or below can dissolve. And if we know that we shall meet the Lord hereafter, so we know that we shall meet again those whom we believe to be with Him now. And there also shall every true and right desire and longing of the heart be more than satisfied; and chiefly those which in this world God thought it best to deny. And all the powers which some envious fate or unpropitious destiny kept in abeyance here, shall there find the development to which they are sure, sooner or later, to come. All that deserves to be perfected shall be perfect for the sake of Him who was made perfect through suffering.—Dr. Morgan Dix.

THE LUCKY DIME.

By Mrs. George S. Brown.

A silver ten-cent piece is the biggest sum of money that I ever found in my life. It wasn't that I did not look for money. My sister said that I grew stump-shouldered always looking down to the ground in the hope that I would find something. I read and heard of people's finding all sorts of things, and I did not see why I could not be just as lucky if I kept my eyes open. I was walking with a friend once who picked up a handkerchief, and tied in one corner was a $2 bill and a quarter. We both saw the handkerchief, but he picked it up first. After that, I picked up every handkerchief and rag that I saw, but not once did they have any money tied in them. Another boy found a tobacco pouch, and when he opened it there was not only money, but some fine jewels; and he received a $50 reward for returning them. He did not need the money half as bad as we did. I picked up every tobacco pouch I saw after that, but they had nothing in them. If I found a pin, it was sure to be brass. If I found a purse, it was empty. I just did not seem to have any luck at all.

We certainly did need money at our house. It seemed to me that I did not remember a time when we did not need money, but Mother said that as long as my dear father lived we never wanted for anything. That was before I could remember. It was very unjust that we did not have money now. I heard Mother and my sister talk about it lots of times. They said that all of our aunt's money should have been ours; but it had gone to some distant relatives in another State. I remembered that aunt, and not very lovingly. She was a cross, crabbed old creature, but because she was our aunt, Mother made us be nice to her. She was never nice to us. She came to live in our family after my father died, and at first she tried to boss everything and everybody, even my mother. She did not think children had any rights at all in the house. We were not supposed to make any noise, to play, to sing, to whistle. I often wondered if Auntie thought children should be stuffed and put in a glass case like the old owl that was in our library. We did try, for mother's sake, to love Auntie, but we just could not. There was nothing lovable about her, and I often wondered how she could be the sister of our good father. Mother said that she had some great trouble when she was young and it soured her. It certainly did, for vinegar wasn't a thing to her disposition. She did not seem to see any good in anything or anybody.

While we could not love her, there came a day when we were very sorry for her, as she had a stroke of paralysis. She was shaking her stick at my pet dog and calling me all kinds of names for letting him come in the house with his muddy paws, when she keeled right over. We thought she was dead, and maybe it was sinful, but we children were sorry when she opened her eyes. She would never walk after that and was an invalid the rest of her life. It did not sweeten her disposition very much, though. She found fault with the way we rolled her chair, with the nice food Mother prepared for her, with everything and everybody. Poor Mother got the worst of it, for she had to be with her all day while we were off at school. Our friends said that we should send her to a Home for old people, but Mother would not hear to it. She said she could never forget that she was father's sister, and, besides that, we were very poor, and Auntie paid us a small sum for board every month. Everybody said she did not pay half of what she should, and that she was an old miser and had lots of money hoarded away. I don't believe Mother thought much of the money. She would have been just as good to Auntie if she hadn't a cent in the world, but it was only human for her to expect something after my aunt's death, and she needed it so to educate her children.

One day, when Auntie had been harder to please than usual, and Mother had been even more patient than usual, she said that she saw tears in Auntie's eyes, and she said, "I know I am a great trouble, dear, but you will have your reward some day," and Mother felt that Auntie meant she would leave us all her money.

You can imagine our disappointment when, after Auntie's death a few weeks later, her will was found among her papers and every cent was left to a nephew up North. Everybody said it was a shame, when Mother had kept her so many years and nursed her all through her months of illness. Mother said she would not have felt so badly if some one deserving had gotten the money, or if it had been left to some charitable institution, but that this nephew was a wild young fellow; and I did not know what she meant, but she said he would make ducks and drakes of the money. He had gone through a fortune already that was left him by his father, although he was only 25 years old, and now he would have this $10,000 of our aunt's. That seemed a vast fortune to us. This nephew had never done a thing for our aunt, did not even come to see her, or write to her, and it certainly did seem unjust. The will was an old one, and we could not help but hope that Auntie had made a later one. But we searched in vain for it. At last we gave up all hope of finding it, and Mother said that soon Sister and I would have to stop school and get positions, as she did not have enough to keep us, now that our income from Auntie was gone.

I looked harder than ever for money as I walked along the streets; and I really felt as if I had discovered a mine when I spied that silver dime on my way to school. My little sister begged me to buy candy with it, but my older sister said that Mother needed every dime and that I should give it to her. I wanted to keep it for a luck piece, hoping it would lead me to find more money, and all the way to school we talked of what we would do with it. Just as we crossed a little bridge over an open gutter I dropped my dime and it rolled down into the water. I just can't tell you how badly I felt. "You had better spent it for candy," said my little sister. "I don't see why you call it a luck piece," said my big sister. We looked and looked for it, and finally my sisters ran on to school, but I would not give up. I ran my hand down in the slimy mud and at last I found it; but I was late to school, and had to stay in and learn twenty lines; so again I felt that my silver dime was not bringing me much luck. However, I held to it fast, and although the ice cream man passed, selling cones, and the apples looked powerful tempting on the fruit stand, I ran on home without spending my precious money.

Next day I was playing marbles at recess, when my dime rolled out of my pocket and a boy grabbed it and swore it was his. I knew it was not, and even told him the date on it, but he would not give it up, so I jumped on him and gave him a good thrashing, and then we were both whipped after school. "That is a lucky piece," said my sister. I had begun to think so, too, but I was going to keep it after having such a fight for it.

In the afternoon, I went out in the yard to cut some wood, and again the dime bounced out of my pocket and rolled so far under the woodpile that, in trying to get it, the wood rolled down on my hand and mashed it so badly I had to go to the doctor to have it treated. Mother said that dime was anything but lucky, and I had better put it in the missionary collection Sunday and see if it would not do the heathen more good than it did me. But somehow it had become very dear to me, and I did not want to part with it. I determined not to drop it any more, so I sewed it in my pocket. I was in a hurry next day when I changed my trousers, and so forgot to take the money out. When I thought of it again, the trousers had been sent to the wash, and I walked two miles out to the washerwoman's to get my precious piece of money. Fortunately, she had not put them in the tub, so I got my dime and went home whistling "Rescue the Perishing."

I decided that if I wanted to keep my money I had better not put it in my pocket again; but if I hid it away, it might not bring me luck. I finally decided to bore a hole in it and wear it around my neck. Sister said dimes were too scarce to destroy one like that, but I insisted it was like putting it out at interest and it would bring me more. Everybody laughed at that, but I had faith in that dime. I took the puncher out of mother's work-basket and the hammer, and was driving a hole through my dime, when it flew away across the room, under Auntie's old writing-desk and down in a hole that the rats had made in the floor. I would have cried if I had not been a boy. "It's gone for true, now," said my little sister, and the others said, "Where does the luck come in, Grayson?" Mother thought I was foolish about the dime and superstitious, but she always comes to the rescue; so she said: "Well, it is a pity after wading for that dime, being kept in for it, fighting for it, mashing your hand for it, and having so much trouble, that you should lose it; so let's try to get it out."

I ran for the poker, and we tried and tried; and then I sharpened a stick and pushed it down the hole. Nothing came up but some old, torn paper—one piece was old and yellow, and while I kept fishing for my dime, Mother straightened out the paper to see what the writing was on it. I heard her catch her breath, and when we turned to look at her, she was white and trembling like a leaf. "Oh, my dear children," she exclaimed: "Grayson was right! That was a lucky dime, for sure. This is your aunt's last will, made out only a year before she died." We all listened breathlessly while she read: "Last will and testament of Eliza Ann Pickford—dated March 25th, 1910—I hereby bequeath to my beloved niece, Mollie E. Pickford, my entire fortune of $10,000, in return for all of her kindness and daughterly devotion to me."

Oh, what rejoicing there was in our household that night! We sent for our lawyer and he said there was no doubt about the genuineness of the will, which had been carried into the hole by some mischievous mouse, and would never have been found but for my lucky dime. I was a hero for true in the eyes of all the family and of my schoolmates, and the boy I fought at school came over to shake my hand and to tell me that he was glad I had gotten it away from him. In all of the rejoicing, my dear little luck-piece was forgotten, and, of course, no more effort was made to find it; but next day, while the older members of the family had gone to the lawyer's office to sign up some papers about the will, I took a plank up out of the floor and found my little silver piece, and I mean to keep it as long as I live, for it surely was a lucky dime.

$1000 FOR EVERY CIRCUIT PASTOR.

Dear Brother Carley: By your permission I want to say a few things to the readers of the Christian Advocate, under the above captlon.

I take the posltlon that there is not a circuit in the two Mississippi and the Louisiana Conferences but that could pay their pastor at least a thousand dollars salary if they would do it. All that would be necessary to establish this as a rule in all of our circuit charges that pay less than $1000 would be to influence a goodly number of our members in those charges to pay as llberally in proportlon to their means as the main supporters are already paying. In some cases, a few of the best paying members would have to increase their individual payments a little, but they would gladly do so if those who are accustomed to paying but very little would show a willing spirit to come up with their part of the pastor's salary.

Good stewards who read this will sanction the suggestion. There are many of our members who pay scarcely anything to the support of the Church from year to year. This raises the question as to how to overcome the difficulties in those charges that do not pay their pastors enough to live above debt and embarrassment. There is but one correct answer to the questlon, and that is, teach the people their duty in the matter and then get them to do it. Of course, the proper way to do these things determines the success of it.

I am a preaeher of some experience in this sort of work, and am prepared to say that I have invariably found it an easy matter to get people to pay a faithful pastor when they become religious, if properly instructed. When our Church wants to increase the interest, or finance, in any special and worthy enterprlse, agents are sent out to present the matter intelligently to the people. Agitation is required to accomplish anything. Many of our pastors are sent from year to year to charges that do not pay them half enough to live comfortably on. I have been waiting for the right man to appear to be appointed by the Bishop, or employed by the Home Mission Board, whose work would be to go through the Conference, vlsiting such charges as do not sufficiently support their pastors, and preach the doctrine of tlthepaying, and organize the membership of each eharge lnto "new era leagues" for a better pald minlstry.

I will now offer pastors and stewards a plan whlch will not fail to produce good results. Flrst, make the assessment for the pastor at least, say, $1000. Then let the board of stewards prorate the amount among the churches comprlsing the charge, ln proportion to membership. Let stewards consent for lt to be made that way, whether they think according to the past they can collect that much or not. Next, let the pastor announce that he will preach on a very important subject on a certain day, that will be a blessing to all. Advertlse it so as to have all the membershlp present. Then preach a well prepared, Holy Ghost sermon, using as a text, 2 Chron, 31: 10. At the close, let a steward, or other officlal, with pencil and paper in hand, state the amount that church has been asked for as lts part ln provldlng a support for the pastor. Name some definite, liberal amount and call for names of as many as will promise to pay that much during the year. Then drop to a lower amount, etc., ete. It will be surprising how easlly the assessment can be raised. Try it and be convlnced. Follow the same plan at each church in the charge. It wlll brlng blessings, temporal and spiritual, to the people.

When people once get in line with God's Word on thls subject, there is never any more trouble about church finances; for every one who practices tithing becomes the reeeiver of his own seed-sowing to that extent that he will not abandon it.

In some instances, pastors and presiding elders feel a delicacy in preaching to the people that God says: "I have given the ehildren of Levi all the tenth in Israel for an inheritance for their service of the congregatlon." Num. 18:20, 21. I do not know of any people as willing to respond to the support of the gospel as Methodists when they fully understand their obligations from a Bible standpoint. The poorest become liberal.

The advancement in prices on everything now requires twice the amount of money to live that it did a few years ago. In many cases thoughtful and godly stewards have already recognized these conditions and have advanced their pastor's salary. Country circuits are amply able to take care of their own preachers, independently of home mission appropriations, and will do it when awakened to their duty.

Some of our young pastors of country charges may think they are not promoted, but in this they are mistaken. A country circuit is the best field in the world for real gospel preaching, and usefulness. The possibilities are so great that if he will truly have faith in God, and do the work in saving the people, and instructing them in all truth, he will soon make his a good charge, and get a good support.

This field also is a good place for our evangelists to do effective work in helping pastors build up circuits spiritually and financially. I often assist pastors in station charges. I offer my services to circuit pastors for a number of dates to hold revival meetings. Outside of personal expenses, I will make no charges for services, only in the way of freewill offerings, to be acceptable after pastor's salary has been paid.

I delight in preaching Jesus Christ to the poor. Winter and spring are the best seasons to hold revivals. Correspond with me. W. D. BASS.

ONE YEAR'S WORK AT THE MISSISSIPPI ORPHANS' HOME.

The year just closed has been an eventful one. Novel and trying experiences have crowded fast upon each other. Looking backward, however, the year does not seem to have been unfruitful.

While much yet remains to be done, the physical condition of the plant has been greatly improved. The plumbing, heating, and lighting systems have been repaired. The dormitories have been refurnished with sheets and pillow cases; the dining room with dishes and table cloths, the baby dining room with chairs, and the kitchen with a new range. The entire plant is screened, and most of the interior wood work repainted. We are turning our attention now to our outhouses and fencing.

We have a flower garden of various annual and bulbous plants, roses and shrubbery. The entire front of the grounds, with the driveways, will be lined with shade trees before spring. We have arranged a tennis court, and volley and basket ball for the girls and town ball for the boys. Our older girls have been formed into a semi-military organization, and our boys into Junior Boy Scouts. These play-ground activities are yet in their infancy.

During the year, 249 children have passed through the Home; 61 have been received and 57 have gone out, 52 into good homes and 5 for themselves. We have tried to be careful where we placed our children. We have refused more requests than we have granted, and while it is possible we have turned from some good homes, we know we have saved some children from servitude by this care. Personal investigation is our plan. The experience of the past will greatly aid us in the year now beginning.

During the year, we have helped several worthy but dependent women find employment. From dependency these are now self-sustaining. We have assisted enfeebled persons from various parts of the state to reach our eleemosynary institutions. We have reached out a helping hand to girls in the "teen age" the most critical of all ages—and assisted them into protective environments. All of this without one cent of remuneration from any source whatsoever, and without a single appeal for help.

We have not published these facts before. We have gone quietly about our work. But now, in closing the year, we would like our friends to know we have not been unmindful of the sacred trust committed to us, nor callous to the call of distress.

Considering the scarcity of help, and the drought, our farm has done well. We have had scarcely a case of illness during the year. Plans for 1919 call for increased activity. We hope to have something good to tell twelve months hence. Repair work and improved facilities will be undertaken during the winter.

The drain on our finances has been greater than at any previous period of the institution's history, and we are not expecting relief during the coming year. Yet we were able to meet promptly all our bills as they fell due, except those for September. We were under necessity of waiting for receipts before they could be paid.

Give us your prayers and your active financial co-operation, and we will try to do better this year.

THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN.

We sincerely hope that we shall not weary any of the readers of the Advocate by calling attention frequently to the campaign in its behalf which was ordered by the Publishing Committee at its meeting last October, and which has been approved by our three Annual Conferences. The matter is so very important that we feel constrained to keep it constantly before our people.

It is unnecessary of course, for us to speak of the increased cost of publishing the Advocate under conditions resulting from the war. Everybody knows that it takes a good deal more money now to carry on business than it took a year or two ago. We are not endeavoring to meet the situation by cheapening the quality of the Advocate as to size or mechanical make-up. Our position is that the Methodists of Louisiana and Mississippi are entitled to, and ought to have, a paper that will compare favorably with the organs of other Conferences. We do not believe our people would be willing to support any other kind—and, to be perfectly frank, we do not believe they ought to. The Methodism of these two great States is too enterprising and intelligent to be satisfied with a mere makeshift of a Conference organ.

Believing this, as we do, we are confident that our preachers and our people are going to give us their hearty co-operation in building up our subscription list to a point that will enable us to meet the increasingly heavy demands that are made upon us. We do not believe that the 160,000 Methodists of our patronizing territory are indifferent to the possibilities that lie before us as a Church if we make use of all the opportunities we have for developing our latent resources. Of these opportunities, none surpasses the thoroughly practicable one of circulating the Church paper. We cannot think of a single interest of our Church, local or general, that would not be greatly strengthened by a more general circulation of the Advocate.

Encouraging notes are beginning to come to us already from those who have begun the campaign. Rev. A. M. Broadfoot, of Fernwood, Miss., sent us 41 subscriptions from his charge, and wrote: "I hope to send you a large number of subscriptions yet, as I have made only about two-thirds of the canvass for the Advocate that I have planned. Sickness has interfered somewhat, but I hope to be able to send the rest by the end of the month." Rev. W. M. Williams, of Collins, Miss., writes: "If we could get half our members to read the Advocate, we could accomplish twice as much as we do in the advancement of God's Kingdom." He sent us a good list of subscriptions, some of which he paid for himself, saying that he considered it a good investment. Rev. W. M. Sullivan, of Columbia, Miss., in sending two new subscriptions, says: "I have a strong Advocate committee, and you will hear again soon."

We are glad to note that other Conference organs are meeting with success in their campaigns. The Texas Christian Advocate, in its issue of January 16, reported 121 new subscriptions and 110 renewals. One preacher sent the St. Louis Christian Advocate 31 new subscriptions and renewals, with check to match, (and the subscription price of the St. Louis is $2.00 a year). The editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate says he "fell out of his chair" last week when he opened a letter containing the renewal of all the old subscribers on one charge and 23 new subscriptions. The Central Methodist, organ of the Louisville and the Kentucky Conferences, reports in its latest issue that it has received just 1000 subscriptions in its campaign thus far.

We are confident that our campaign this year can be made a success in every particular. All that is necessary is for us to enter into it earnestly and systematically. We hope to be able to give encouraging reports as the campaign progresses.

RELIEF FOR THE ARMENIAN AND SYRIAN SUFFERERS.

The campaign for the relief of the starving Armenians and Syrians constitutes a call that should appeal very strongly to us. Since the war began, the American people have had to give money as they have never given it before. Much of it has gone to the Government, not as a gift to be sure, but in return for securities of the highest grade. The needs of the Y. M. C. A., the Red Cross, and the other welfare organizations have had to be provided for. In all these cases, however, we have been providing largely for our own.

But the needs of these starving millions in the Near East appeal to our sympathy and to our feeling of altruism. They are helpless, suffering and dying, not through any fault of their own, but because they are victims of a heartless tyranny. They are not our people by blood relationship; but they are our neighbors, as was the man who fell among thieves neighbor to the Samaritan. If we pass them by without extending a helping hand, we condemn ourselves and bring a reproach upon our profession as followers of Christ.

The least we can do is to give as liberally as we can to this most worthy cause.

OUR RETURNING SOLDIERS AND THE GOSPEL.

Some people seem to think that a trip across the ocean and a sojourn on the battlefields of France have marvelously transformed our soldiers, so that they constitute an entirely new order of beings; and they are greatly concerned lest our industrial, social, political and religious customs and institutions be totally unsuited to them when they return to their native shores.

We are aware of the fact that a trip abroad and the thrilling experiences of war have wrought their changes. A new point of view has, perhaps, been established. The outlook upon the world is broader than ever before. Conventionalities of life have come to mean very little in the face of the grim realities with which they have had to deal.

But they are still men, nevertheless, essentially what they were when they went across the seas. Especially is this true of their moral natures. They have not outgrown the gospel or passed beyond the need of redemption. The message of salvation that reached them then will reach them now. The content of the Christian faith that has been the foundation of our preaching through the centuries has not become obsolete over night. We are not excited by the fear that the old gospel will not appeal to them. It will appeal as strongly as it ever did if it is properly presented. We yield to no man in our admiration of the heroic service that has been rendered by these brave men in behalf of their country. But we decline to shape our theology by the opinions of men who have had no genuine religious experience. Jesus Christ is still the same—yesterday, to-day and forever—and no man cometh to the Father but by him. We are going to continue to preach repentance and faith and regeneration and the witness of the Spirit in the future as we have in the past to soldiers and civilians alike. So far as we are able to observe, the gospel has not changed a particle during the four years of war. We still stake all our hopes upon the validity of its message and the power of the redeeming love of Christ.

HARD LOSERS.

In last week's issue of the Advocate we predicted that the national prohibition amendment would be ratified by the number of States necessary to make it effective within a month. We might as well have made it a week, for that is what happened. On January 16, at 10:32 a. m., Nebraska supplied the necessary thirty-sixth vote, and the amendment was adopted. It is interesting to note in this connection, that Mississippi has the honor of being the first State to take affirmative action upon the amendment, and Louisiana was not very far behind, even though it did take a special session of the Legislature to bring about the result. Thus has been consummated what we believe to be the greatest moral reform in the history of mankind. We are scarcely able yet to realize the significance of the action of one of the mightiest nations on the face of the earth in writing into its constitution a prohibition of the liquor traffic. Already, the temperance forces are planning a campaign for world-wide prohibition; and we believe that that lofty aim will ultimately be achieved. But the liquor people are hard losers. According to newspaper reports, they have determined to use every possible means to invalidate the adoption of the amendment. They have employed a staff of skilful lawyers, with instructions that they leave no stone unturned in their efforts to overthrow the action that destroys their nefarious business. It is announced that they are willing to spend one billion dollars to accomplish their purpose. They have, heretofore, laid great stress upon the "voice of the people"; the people have spoken, but they are not satisfied. They have overshot the mark. They are hard losers.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. B. F. Bullard, who was at Duck Hill, Miss., last year, writes that he is at his new post, Smithville, Miss., hard at work. We trust that he will have a most successful year's work.

Rev. J. E. Stephens writes from New Albany, Miss., that the outlook on that charge is very promising for a good year. No man serves a better people than does Brother Stephens.

Mrs. Elmira Young, of Baton Rouge, La., has been a subscriber to the Advocate for nearly forty years. We appreciate very greatly her testimony as to the value of the paper in her home.

The Methodists of West Monroe, La., have inaugurated a movement looking to the erection of a $40,000 church to meet the growing needs of the congregation. Rev. J. R. Roy is the pastor.

Rev. W. D. Barrett, our pastor at McCall's Creek, Miss., writes that the prospects are bright on his charge for a good year, though his work is being interfered with just now by the influenza.

Rev. Otto Porter is evidently in favor with his people at De Soto, Miss. He reports that just before Christmas they gave him a "pounding" that made it unnecessary for him to buy groceries for a long while.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, our pastor at Bogalusa, La., has had an attack of the "flu," but has recovered, and is hard at work. He received 18 members into the Church during the first month of the Conference year.

Dr. W. G. Henry, who was transferred from the Mississippi to the North Alabama Conference and stationed at First Church, Huntsville, keeps in touch with his many friends in this part of the Church, through the Advocate.

Rev. T. J. Holladay, of Plain Dealing, La., reports that his first quarterly conference was a delightful occasion. The presiding elder, Dr. J. M. Henry, expressed himself as delighted with the reports. All salaries were paid in full to date.

The Editor had the privilege of preaching to the Louisiana Avenue congregation last Sunday morning. The pastor, Rev. W. D. Kleinschmidt, with his whole family, has been ill with the influenza. Dr. J. T. Sawyer preached at the evening service.

Rev. H. G. Hawkins, formerly president of the Memphis Conference Female Institute, has been transferred to the Mississippi Conference and appointed as pastor of the Magee charge. Brother Hawkins is coming back home, where he will be warmly welcomed.

Rev. J. R. Jones, presiding elder of the Seashore District, Mississippi Conference, is enjoying a new dignity—that of grandfather. A fine son was recently born to Rev. and Mrs. Claude P. Jones at Long Beach, Miss. We extend hearty congratulations and best wishes.

We hope there have been many responses to Rev. W. W. Hopper's appeal for assistance in rebuilding our church at Harriston, Miss., which appeared a short time ago in the Advocate. Brother Hopper had the endorsement of his presiding elder in making the appeal.

Rev. R. A. Davis, a superannuate member of the Louisiana Conference, suffered serious injury recently, when he stumbled and fell on the steps of the church where he was attending service. He is 75 years of age. His many friends will remember him in their prayers in this time of suffering.

Rev. Simon W. Bryant, our pastor at Ashland, Miss., writes that he is comfortably settled in his new home, and that he is greatly pleased with his surroundings. The good women of the Church are taking great interest in fitting up the parsonage nicely, and frequently good things to eat are sent to the preacher's home.

Rev. E. D. Simpson, writing from Lamar, Miss., makes mention of a fine "pounding" which he received at the hands of his friends at Harris' Chapel, one of his appointments. Various useful things, amounting in value to something like $35, were generously given him. He is greatly in love with his people.

Rev. T. B. Winstead is beginning his fourth year on the Trenton charge, Mississippi Conference. The epidemic of influenza is interfering seriously with his work, but he is hoping to have a great year. His charge has just suffered a severe loss in the death of the Sunday school superintendent, at Burns, Brother W. H. Robinson.

Mr. H. H. Ahrens, who is well known and greatly liked by many Louisiana and Mississippi preachers, is doing considerable traveling nowadays. Among the points of interest he has visited recently, are Valley Forge, and Erie, Pa., where he went aboard Commodore Perry's flagship, Niagara. He is now in Washington, D. C.

Rev. T. D. Lipscomb, our faithful pastor at Ponchatoula, La., favored the Advocate office with a short call on Friday of last week. He had been called to the city on account of the illness of his mother and other members of his family, who have been seriously sick with the influenza. He reported that their condition seemed to be improving.

The influenza is interfering seriously with Church work throughout Louisiana and Mississippi. Many of our preachers and people have suffered with it. Rev. C. F. Floyd, of Byhalia, Miss. has recently been afflicted, though his condition was improving when he wrote a note to the Advocate. He reports that the outlook on his charge is encouraging.

The ministers of Meridian, Miss., have undertaken to defeat compulsory military training. We give elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate the appeal they have issued to the public. Rev. Geo. H. Thompson, the presiding elder of the Meridian District, and Rev. H. B. Watkins, pastor of our Central Church, are members of the committee which drafted the appeal.

Rev. O. S. Lewis is beginning his third year at Gibson Memorial, Vicksburg, Miss., under favorable circumstances, in spite of the epidemic of influenza. He has received six into the Church since Conference, and has collected $100 on the parsonage debt. He is planning to have a great revival in the near future with Rev. Dan Kelly, the Mississippi Conference evangelist, to assist him.

Rev. A. M. Broadfoot, our pastor at Fernwood, Miss., is beginning the year's work with most encouraging prospects of success. He has the honor thus far of having sent in the largest number of subscriptions to the Advocate from any one charge—41. And he says that he has not yet completed his canvass. He has our sincere thanks for what he has done and for what he proposes to do.

Rev. R. S. Stewart, of Matsuyama, Japan, who is at home now to assist in the Centenary Campaign, honored the Advocate office with a call on Friday of last week. He met our pastors on Saturday morning in conference, and delivered inspiring messages to our Rayne Memorial and Carrollton Avenue congregations Sunday morning and Sunday evening. He is assisting Rev. N. E. Joyner in the Centenary work in Louisiana.

We learn from Rev. L. A. McKeown that Rev. H. C. Edmonson, an honored superannuate member of the North Mississippi Conference, died at his home in Iuka, Miss., on Sunday morning, Jan. 12, and was laid to rest in the cemetery at that place on Monday afternoon. We extend our sympathy to those who have been bereaved by the going away of this good man. We trust a suitable memoir will be furnished us for publication.

Rev. R. A. Bozeman, of the Louisiana Conference, who has rendered efficient service to many of the brethren in evangelistic services, has reentered Southern Methodist University to complete his courses of study. He reports that everything is in fine working order in that great institution of the Church. The Centenary Movement, and a $200,000 building in honor of the S. M. U. students who gave their lives in the war, are the topics of greatest interest there at present. Brother Bozeman expects to be back in Louisiana in April to begin evangelistic work.

Rev. J. W. Robertson, our pastor at Hollandale, Miss., honored the Advocate office with a call on Monday of this week. Brother Robertson came to New Orleans for a slight surgical operation, made necessary by complications resulting from an attack of the influenza. We are glad to be able to state that he expects soon to be fully restored to health. Brother Robertson requested us to state that he has been appointed Greenville District agent for the Mississippi Orphans' Home, and that all contributions for the Home from the Greenville District should be sent to him, in order that the District may secure proper credit. A contest between the Brookhaven District, of the Mississippi Conference, and the Greenville District, of the North Mississippi Conference, is being carried on in the matter of the support of the Home. Last year, the Brookhaven District, according to the Manager's figures, won by a very small margin. Brother Robertson says the Greenville District will win this year.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Help your money to grow.

Mrs. ABAGAIL M. BELL was born in Georgia, on December 29, 1827, and died at Natchitoches, La., on December 15, 1918, at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Henry Turpin, lacking but fourteen days of her ninety-first anniversary. Hers was a long life, well spent and full of good works, and directed by a strong and loving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Her life shone most resplendently in Christian virtues, from early girlhood to the end, and at "eventide it was light," as her pastor and loved ones can testify. She was converted when sixteen years old and joined the Methodist Church and continued a consistent member of, and an adornment to, the Church of her choice to her death. When 18 years of age, she was happily married to Mr. A. J. Bell, who died in Georgia in 1863, leaving her with a large family, whom she reared, with credit to herself, to Christian manhood and womanhood. She moved to Louisiana in 1873, and has, since that time, lived in Coushatta, Shreveport, and Natchitoches. She leaves a son, Mr. J. A. Bell, of Shreveport, and a daughter, Mrs. Maggie Pierson, of Natchitoches, and a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren to mourn her loss. Her life was the highest type of Christian womanhood, and she was truly among those whom Jesus spoke of as the salt of the earth. She has left a Christian posterity whose faith and fidelity to the Church are a living testimony to the rich fruitage of her most exemplary life. They will "rise up and call her blessed!"

We carried her to Coushatta, where she resided so many happy years of her life, and on Monday, December 6, we laid her body to rest in the beautiful cemetery there, a large concourse of loving relatives and friends participating in the solemn services of burial, and with sad hearts turned away from the new-made grave, banked in a profusion of the richest floral offerings of friends from different parts of the State, feeling that a great and beautiful life had ripened for eternity and had entered into life everlasting. Her pastor,

J. W. LEE.

Natchitoches, La.

Mrs. S. J. WELLS departed this life at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. W. Bost, in the town of Algoma, Miss., on December 15, 1918. This death brought great sorrow to the hearts of our people. Sister Wells had lived in this community for a short time only, but her life was such that she had completely won her way to the hearts of all with whom she came in contact. This was due to the fact that she possessed, in more than an ordinary degree, those beautiful traits of Christian womanhood that made her life a blessing to humanity, to the extent of her acquaintance. Sister Wells accepted Christ, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when she was comparatively a child, and her faith in God grew stronger from day to day as her physical and mental powers developed. She was ever an ardent lover of the Church. Her home always had a room ready for the worn-out itinerant preacher, many of whom were made spiritually stronger for the work after sharing the hospitalities so studiously dispensed for their comfort. So carefully did she "lay by in store" of her means, that her dues to her church were faithfully met.

There was, seemingly, no selfishness in her life, but her whole soul was centered in the happiness of others less fortunate. As a wife, she was ever faithful to her husband, who preceded her to the spirit world. Rev. James A. Wells, who is a member of the Mississippi Conference, is a product of this home. From such Christian homes, and Christian mothers, the itinerant ranks of our Conferences are kept supplied with a consecrated ministry. Sister Wells had just passed her seventy-first milestone in life, and while her sickness was of short duration, it was attended with great suffering; yet it was borne with the greatest of Christian fortitude and resignation. She frequently assured her friends and loved ones, who watched by her bedside, that she did not fear death, but was ready and willing to go. The going out of this life was truly like unto the going down of an autumnal sun—no clouds to intervene—and the beautiful light was still reflected back upon the world. We buried her at her old home church at Thaxton, twelve miles west of Pontotoc, Miss., where she had spent the most of her useful life. Floral wreaths, lovingly laid upon her grave, spoke in silent tones of the grief of her many friends, who knew and loved her best. "He giveth his beloved sleep." Funeral services were conducted by the writer.

W. M. COMMANDER.

When a good woman dies, a gap is left that is hard to fill. It is said mythically but no less beautifully, that as a pure soul wings its way from earth a star falls from the heavens. The star is needed there no longer.

Such was the subject of this sketch. LILIAN BUSH COLLINS, wife of J. E. Collins and daughter of J. F. and J. P. Bush, was born on Aug. 14, 1895, and died on October 3, 1918.

When just a child she joined the M. E. Church, South, at Learned, Miss. She was married to J. E. Collins on December 16, 1917. Just in the prime of womanhood, she bade fair to wield her quiet influence for good, down the path of many years. Always modest and unassuming, she was a friend to all and counted her friends by scores. But just as the baby son had begun to lisp her name, the All-wise Father called her home. After a short but severe illness, her friends were shocked to hear that her physician said that it was a matter of only a few hours till the end.

How her friends prayed that this might prove a mistake! Not so. The message was short in coming, telling us that she had passed from here to there.

God's ways are not our ways! We can only trust and say, "He doeth all things well!"

It was his will to take her in her joyous bloom unto himself. She leaves to mourn their loss her young husband, and little son, her parents, two brothers and a young sister, besides numerous close relatives and friends.

There is no death! the stars go down
To rise upon some other shore,
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forevermore,
And ever near us, though unseen,
The dear immortal spirits tread—
For all the boundless universe,
Is life—there is no dead!

A FRIEND.

Learned, Miss., Jan. 9, 1919.

The dawn is not distant
Nor is the night starless—
Love is eternal!
God is still God, and
His faith shall not fail us!
Christ is eternal!

A POUNDING.

Mr. Editor: On the last night of 1918, my people here at Vardaman gave us a pounding, and they said that was the last that they were going to give us in 1918. That's O. K., for they brought us enough to last us for some time in 1919—flour, meat, rice, sugar, coffee, syrup, potatoes, dried and canned fruit, and other useful things needed in a home. The Lord help me as pastor to be a blessing to these people. Pray for us.

Wonderful Egg Producer.

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 9251 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is close relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid diseases such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Nervous Headache. All of these diseases are probably related and all probably due in whole or in part to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimilation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

Dr. Croshy, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offer below by signing your name, Clip and mail to the

FROM NORTH MAIN AND TAYLOR, WATER VALLEY, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: We arrived here on Christmas eve, and found everything in fine shape, as Brother R. G. Lord and wife, our predecessors on the charge, had just moved to their new work. The church is well organized and shows that some painstaking and very earnest effort had been put forth on the part of the former parsons of North Main and Taylor. Brother Lord had been here at North Main Street Church only one year, but had gotten into the hearts of the good people as few men can do in so short a time. He had served Taylor four years, and the people there know there are two Lords, but the one who served them as pastor for the period preceding the present is loved and appreciated as well as the Lord of Hosts. Well, these are good folks and deserve the very best in store for them. I only trust that the coming year may be one of great fruit-bearing on the charge. The stewards have raised the salary some 50 per cent over last year. We are praying, hoping, and working to the end that they may receive full value in service for the year. There is much to do. The church and parsonage need painting and the church needs re-covering. The League is already looking forward to their part of the task. The other departments of work will do likewise, I am sure, and it will be "up to" the rest of us to do our part.

We are confident of this and the rest that needs to be done, with such men as Dr. M. Porter, Brothers Archie G. Carter, W. Edward Holly, Douglas Clark, Forest Wood, and others to depend on as helpers. Then we don't forget our soldier boys, who have been so active along this line, Brother Robert Myers, who is at Camp Pike in training, and Brother Eugene Addington, who is overseas, both of whom are missed very much. God grant them safety and an early return to us.

With Brother Robt. X. Williams at Taylor as the leader and Brothers Smith and Jones, together with the elect women there to help, we feel confident in saying things will happen there that are worth while. May the Lord bless the entire charge.

Well, our beloved has not shown himself in our midst yet, but we know that Rev. J. H. Holder will measure up to all expectations of him as elder.

Come over to visit us and see how old-fashioned Methodists worship at church, Sunday school, Epworth League and prayer meeting.

Yours for a great year for the Advocate and all its readers.

M. A. BURNS, Pastor.
Water Valley, Miss., Jan. 8, 1919.

A VIRILE GOSPEL.

Dr. E. O. Watson,
Washington, D. C.
My Dear Doctor:

Yours of Oct. 30 was forwarded to me from the Supply Train, and came while we were on the march. I was transferred from the train because of its being cut down in size and scattered among the regiments so as to make it practically impossible for me to get the men, and joined my present unit just two weeks before it went into action, Nov. 9. A wonderful providence kept me from being hurt while every other man who remained with me at the furthest point forward to which any men of this regiment went was killed or wounded. I did my level best to gather them and bring them out to safety. My major was shot down within a few feet of where I was dressing a wounded man's hurt. The barrage from the enemy's artillery had been awful enough as we had advanced through it earlier in the day, but the hail from the machine guns was more so. Then followed five days of scouring the woods in search of isolated dead or wounded. My battalion came out of it when the last gun was fired on the morning of the 11th with a different way of looking at things. That happened three weeks ago. Last Sunday upward of 500 out of 750 men attended services, though they had already moved a day's march and halted for the night. We began to move back on the 18th and will reach our destination near Chatillon-en-Seine tomorrow.

I cannot refrain from remarking the way officers and men put themselves in touch with the chaplain who presents Christ in a virile, clean life and preaching. Tell the ministry at home that America's boys are changed to men, and that they will have an opportunity in preaching the manly Christ such as they have never had. Tell the Church in the name of the plain and truth-living Savior to shed its superficial ministries and prepare to deal with the souls of men sick of threadbare, self-righteous religion, but eager to know and identify themselves with Christ as He is. The trappings have so often concealed what the Church has meant to show that the true exhibit has dwindled, and men have ceased to wait upon her altars and her ministries. The Christ of God, the Son of Man, the manliest and most virile figure that ever appeared upon the stage of the world—He it is who, without fail, always draws men to Himself. Preach Him and these men will come. Any other they will not respect.

Sincerely yours,
T. G. VICKERS, Chaplain.

50 EGGS A DAY.

"Since using 'More Eggs' I get 40 to 50 eggs a day instead of 8 or 9," writes A. P. Woodard, of St. Cloud, Fla. This scientific tonic has made big egg profits for thousands of poultry raisers all over the United States. Get ready now and make big profits out of your hens this winter. A $1.00 package will double the egg production and a million dollar bank guarantees to refund your money if you are not entirely satisfied. Send $1.00 now to E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, 5251 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., or send $2.25 and get 3 regular $1.00 packages on special discount for a full season's supply. Or write for his valuable free book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

What kind of tide would that be, father?' 'Tied down to business, son,' my father replied."

FOOT TROUBLES

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, J. R. Simon of 1529 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoes, known as the Foot-Wear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.

You Can't Rub It Away; Rheumatism is in the Blood

Liniments Will Never Cure.

If you are afflicted with Rheumatism, why waste time with liniments, lotions and other local applications that never did cure Rheumatism, and never will?

Do not try to rub the pain away, for you will never succeed. Try the sensible plan of finding the cause of the pain, and go after that. Remove the cause, and there can be no pain.

You will never be rid of Rheumatism until you cleanse your blood of the germs that cause the disease. S. S. S. has never had an equal as a blood purifier and scores of sufferers say that it has cleansed their blood of Rheumatism, and removed all trace of the disease from their system.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at your drug store, and get on the right treatment to-day. If you want special medical advice, you can obtain it free by addressing Medical Director, 23 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI

Rev R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The big Centenary Movement is moving, and will continue to move with a greater momentum as the years come and go.

What about that Chairman of your Missionary Committee in the Sunday school? We cannot move forward until we give the people information. The people must know, before they can do. Twenty-five names of chairmen have been sent in, but we must have about five hundred more.

Brother Jaco, the big mogul of the Centenary Movement in this Conference, has given the Field Secretary a few minutes at the district meeting to present the work of the Sunday school. Before this reaches the Advocate, we will have been in the eight districts of the Conference. We have done the best we could to start the thing to going.

Tupelo, rather one class in the school, has sent in $150 as a special. The money is a big thing, but the biggest and best of all, we want to get our people to see the need of the world, and then send a mighty volume of prayer to God for the spirit of conviction and salvation all over the world.

It may be you will have to pray to get some one to act as Chairman, and then have to do more praying to get that Chairman to work. If you have to pray to get it done, just pray and see if God will not keep his word.

The Sunday school has the biggest share in this work. Teaching is the big word in the Great Commission. The Sunday school's business is to teach. It has been doing this, but the Sunday school must do more teaching and better teaching—teaching fairly radiant with the spirit of prayer.

That class in the Tupelo school not only sent the special mentioned above, but the school sent $112 for the starving children of Armenia. The right kind of teaching preceded these noble and generous gifts. Let others fall into line!

Calomel Salivates and Makes You Sick

Acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver and you lose a day's work.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives your a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

AN APPEAL TO THE PUBLIC, THE PRESS AND THE PULPIT.

The Ministers' Association of Meridian, at its meeting held January 7, adopted unanimously resolutions declaring its opposition to compulsory military training, and appointed the undersigned a committee to issue an appeal to the public.

A measure has been drafted by the army general staff which has been, or soon will be, submitted to Congress for legislative action. This measure provides for nine months of military training for each boy in his nineteenth year. This can be only the initial step in building a great military machine. The extent to which this move, if let alone, will grow has oeen revealed in the nations whose course the United States is now asked to follow.

The League of Nations.

In the mind of President Wilson has been shaped the American sentiment which calls for a league of nations throughout the world, the purpose of which is to make it impossible for one nation to throw the world into war by its own choice. This idea has the cordial approval of Great Britain, France, Italy and other nations. Every assurance is now given that this league will become a fact. For this nation to begin at this time to build a great military machine will raise suspicion against our sincerity, make more difficult the formation of the league, and embarrass President Wilson in his leadership in this great move. It must place the United States in the attitude of Germany when she had her delegates at the Hague peace conference, but was spending her men and her millions in building a great army and a great navy.

Universal Military Training.

Europe is determined that conscription shall be abolished at any cost, while in America a large body of influential men seem determined that the vicious system shall be fastened on America. Our country went into the world war in behalf of a great ideal, and was ready to fight to the last ditch, if need be, for human freedom, and the destruction of war. The victory is more than half won, but it may be lost if we now turn to the instruments which have brought self-destruction. Universal military training is one of the prime requisites of militarism. It was this that gave to Germany the weapon which she could use at a moment's notice against her neighbors. It was this that made Germany a menace to the world's civilization. She chose to live by the sword, and she perished by the sword.

Universal Military Training is Un-American.

Our forebears came to America in search of a refuge from the very conditions which the proposed course would impose. Millions of our citizens have come to this country in recent years to escape these conditions. Now, shall America, peace-loving America, depart from the traditions of the fathers, turn to militarism with all its disastrous implications? We do not believe that those who are calling so loudly for universal military training are representative of the mind and heart of the nation as a whole. Unfortunately, they have a large section of the public press with them. They are able to make their views known, and to give the impression at least of speaking for the masses of the people.

Compulsory Military Training Unnecessary.

The heart of our nation has always been able to marshal the men and means for victory when war has been necessary. Her banner has never trailed in the dust of defeat; and yet she never kept a fighting force that was the dread of any nation. Not many months ago, when the needs of the world required it, men left the shop, the plough, the desk and the counting room, and in a few brief months they had been trained into a fighting force the equal of the best that Prussianism ever produced. The love of country and right was more inspiring to sacrifice than the insignia of skulls and cross-bones.

An Appeal to The Press.

No force in American civic life rendered a more unselfish service in winning the world war than the country's press. With embarrassing financial conditions thrown upon them, the secular and religious papers devoted, without compensation, large space to winning the war. Their efforts had a large share in putting a solid nation behind the administration. The world is largely dependent upon the aid of the press during the period of world reconstruction. We solicit, and confidently expect an extension of its patriotic service in saving the nation from the curse of militarism.

An Appeal to the Churches.

A great compliment to the churches was implied in the large tasks laid on them in winning the war. The calls made on pastor and churches were many and varied, but the most insistent call was for the aid of the churches in preserving the morale of the army and the citizenship. It is not claiming too much to say that no unrighteous move can overcome a united pulpit in America. We appeal to the ministry to show a united heart against militarism, and to do what it can, by voice and pen, to arouse the mind and heart of the nation against this trap of Prussianism which is being set before us.

An Appeal to All.

We ask for the united support that was directed against the Kaiser to be directed against this specimen of his progeny. Will not each citizen protest to his representative in Congress by word, wire, letter, or petition? We believe that a majority of our countrymen are with us, but let us show them where we are. Respectfully,

GEO. H. THOMPSON,
E. J. WILLIS,
H. B. WATKINS.

What Doctor Pierce Has Done For Humanity!

BY DOCTOR CRIPPS.

It has always seemed to me that Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., should be placed near the top when a list of America's great benefactors is written. He studied and conquered human diseases to a degree that few realize. Whenever he found a remedy that overcame disease, he at once announced it in the newspapers and told where it could be bought at a small price. He did not follow the usual custom of keeping the ingredients secret, so that the rich only could afford to buy the medicine, but openly printed the name of each root and herb he used. And so to-day the names of Dr. Pierce and his medicines are widely known, and they stand for better health and better citizenship.

One of this great physician's most successful remedies is known as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. These are little, sugar-coated pills, composed of Mayapple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap—things that Nature grows in the ground. These Pellets are safe because they move the bowels gently, leaving no bad after-effects, as so many pills do. Very often they make a person who takes them feel like a new man or woman, for they cleanse the intestines of hard, decayed and poisonous matter that accumulates when one is costive. If you are constipated, by all means go to your druggist and get some of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They may prove to be the very thing your system requires to make you well and happy.

KILLS CATARRH GERMS

Famous Hyomei—Mr. Booth's Wonderful Discovery.

Some years ago, the noted Richard T. Booth, founder of the blue ribbon movement and temperance orator and leader of international fame who induced over a million men to sign the pledge, developed a very serious catarrhal trouble. Seeking to regain health, he went to inland Australia where he breathed day and night the antiseptic balsams as given off by the Eucalyptus forests.

This experience led Mr. Booth to the discovery of the most wonderful catarrhal treatment known to medical science—Hyomei, which is formed from the purest oil of Eucalyptus combined with other healing and antiseptic ingredients. Hyomei is a germ killing vapor, absolutely harmless but wonderfully effective in the treatment of Catarrh and colds of the Head, Catarrhal Coughs Bronchial Catarrh, Spasmodic Croup, Catarrhal Laryngitis or Hay Fever.

The treatment is simple but most scientific. You breathe Hyomei. It is pronounced the only method of treatment that sends by direct inhalation to the most remote part of the air passages, a balsamic air that destroys germs and bacilli of bronchial catarrh in the breathing organs, soothes and allays irritation and enriches and purifies the blood. THE CENTENARY MOVEMENT.

By Rev. H. Croom Armour.

The Centenary of Methodist missions is a great thing. It should have the worthy consideration of all Methodists, both North and South. It represents one of the most worthy causes in the world—that of saving souls for Christ in heathen lands. It should not be treated slightly by anyone. It stands at the head of the list of great and worthy causes.

To-day the whole world has embarked on the greatest mission of its time, that of making the world safe from wars and rumors of wars. We are in the midst now of establishing a permanent peace, by which all nations will be leagued together for a common cause, so as to prevent any future wars. Right by the side of this, the Methodists of our country have also embarked on a still greater cause, that of making all lands and nations safe for Christ. To accomplish our ends, we must all work together to make the Centenary of Methodist missions a complete success. We must have money to do this. But back of that money must stand a pure heart and a God-given conscience. The money that we want to raise should be raised in a week. Look at the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., and all those organizations: they get what they go after in a week or ten days. Why can't the Missionary Centenary do the same thing? We can if we are as liberal to the Church as we are to the Government. Certain people will give a mere pitiful sum to the Church, but when it comes to the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., and Liberty Bonds, they are mighty liberal. They'll buy a $100 Liberty Bond, give $50 to the Red Cross, etc., but you look at them pull out their pocketbooks when a man comes around collecting money for the Church and see them give only 50 cents or a dollar!

It is a shame, the way the Church is being treated to-day. It is made second in choice with most people. What we need in this day and time is for the people to wake up to the needs of the Church. It should come before anything else. This Centenary Movement should be the means of arousing the people to their senses, causing them to give liberally, support the Church with a good heart, go to Church regularly, and all that.

Dr. W. W. Pinson, who is at the head of this movement, is one of the greatest men in Southern Methodism. He is the right man to forward this movement. Let all Methodists everywhere stand squarely behind this great man and help him to make this movement a glorious and complete success. He has to have help to do this. No man can accomplish anything without help from others.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

Mrs. H. M. Patton, Waverly, Mo., writes: "I fed two boxes of 'More Eggs' to my hens and broke the egg record. I got 1,500 eggs from 160 hens in exactly 21 days." You can do as well. In fact, any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker write E. J. Reefer, poultry man, 6251 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a

A NEWS LETTER FROM HOMER, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: I enjoyed your notice of the vacation that you had some time ago and am now very glad indeed to know that you have come back from that vacation.

Well, we are having a vacation here, too, and for the same reason as that for which you had yours. However, I have not been down with the "flu" yet, nor have any of my family been down. For this I am very grateful indeed.

On returning from Conference, one of the first things that I learned was that Brother Harry McKenzie was down with the influenza and that one of our lady members was very sick with pneumonia from it. Others had been down while I was away and had recovered. On the first Sunday after coming back from Conference, I went to bed in the evening without preaching, believing that I had made the acquaintance of Spanish influenza at last. However, by next morning it was all gone.

In a few days more it spread over the town still further and we began losing some of our best citizens, until we had five deaths in something like three weeks from this plague. Others in town were very sick. There are some who are still dangerously sick. Others of the members of our church took it and other members of the board of stewards got down. This preacher went on preaching to little handfuls of people. Everything was demoralized and the people did not want to come to church and Sunday school. I did not blame them when they knew of people dying and of others almost at the point of death. Finally, the town board of health issued orders closing the churches, schools, picture shows and all places of business to any except employees. Now if you want a pair of shoes, a hat, or a suit of clothes, you must stand at the door and the salesman will bring the article to you. Your grocery needs can still be supplied over the 'phone and by the wagon.

This condition has brought the people of the town into a state of mind that is one of constant dread. None know who will be the next stricken and who will be the next to die. However, the above mentioned stringent measures of the health authorities seem to be doing some good, as we have had no new centers of infection for some days now. Many of the persons who have been sick are getting up. Some of them are back at their places of work.

We have hardly been able to do anything at all in gathering strength for the work of the year. As there were some of the leading members of the board of stewards sick in the beginning, and now the health authorities have clapped on the ban, we have had no board meeting since Conference. We have not been able to get started at all. The presiding elder wrote that he was coming on January 12. I wrote him to save his Sunday and use it somewhere else. We have tried to have the services until the ban was placed; but the people have not been last to come out and the preacher did not know how to proceed for constructive work. We did have a "white Christmas" service, however. This was well attended, considering the circumstances. We sent Brother Vaughan an offering and a box full of nice white things for the Orphanage. They said that it was the nicest Christmas present they had yet received.

This afternoon, I went to the post-office and took out a letter, or rather an envelope—it did not seem to have much of a letter in it. It was only a deposit slip for a deposit that had been made by the treasurer for a good deal more than the salary due to date on the basis of the salary paid last year. This shows that somebody is doing something anyhow, even if the preacher cannot preach. I am studying, preparing sermons, visiting, studying my Bible and spending some time in prayer. God will lift the ban after a while. Then we will go to work again. We want to have a sure enough good year here this year. I have secured the help of Brother Norman Guice for a meeting in the spring and hope to have the blessings of God brought to our people.

I am praying and hoping that we will come out all right on our share for the Centenary. At the present time, not much else can be done. The Workers' Council for the Sunday school agreed to take a special equal to the amount that should be raised by our Sunday school for the Centenary. We are going to raise our share in the Sunday school. This Church raised about seven hundred and fifty dollars last year on the causes that will be represented in the Centenary askings.

Next Sunday I am going over to Minden and preach for Brother Dodson, if they do not shut him up over there. He says that he is getting strength slowly.

We will have to do some fast moving and a great deal of praying to put this Centenary over, I fear. The time is short and the mass of the people know little about it yet.

I like your writing. You are giving us a good paper. When things are so that I can have my mind on something else except this enforced closing and when the "flu" has flown away some, I am going to get our people, whose subscriptions are due, to renew and also try to get some new subscribers.

A GOOD WORD FROM WEST MONROE, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: A word from West Monroe church might be of some interest to the brethren of the Louisiana Conference. After serving the Gilbert charge for four years, with some degree of success, at the last Conference in New Orleans the powers that be said for me to come to West Monroe. In obedience to that command, I am here.

The West Monroe church and the town gave us a cordial reception. We found that those who have gone before, A. S. J. Nelll, Ledbetter, and the rest, have been faithful to the trust committed unto them. West Monroe church has a fine spirit of work. There seems to be perfect harmony.

We have a fine Sunday school, though we haven't working room. Brother C. E. Faulk, the Superintendent, is a live wire, always on the alert.

Our first quarterly conference has come and gone. The board of stewards made some increase in the preacher's salary. We have planned to build a new brick church this year. We are praying and planning for a forward movement, by God's help. We are expecting great things. Pray for us. God bless you and the Advocate—you are giving us a good paper.

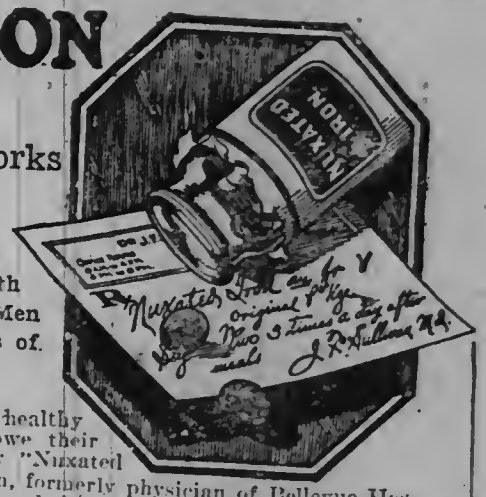
NUXATED IRON

NUXATED IRON

"Say, Doctor, This Prescription Works Like Magic."



Physician Says Nuxated Iron Quickly Puts Astonishing Strength and Energy Into the Veins of Men and Brings Roses to the Cheeks of Nervous, Run-Down Women.

Ask the first hundred strong, healthy people you meet to what they owe their strength and see how many reply "Nuxated Iron." Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital, (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Thousands of people suffer from iron deficiency but do not know what to take. There is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron, to enrich the blood, make beautiful, healthy women, and strong, vigorous men. To make absolutely sure that my patients get real organic iron and not some form of the metallic variety, I always prescribe Nuxated Iron in its original packages. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time in many instances."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. Sullivan can be obtained from any good druggist with or without a physician's prescription on an absolute manufacturers' guarantee of success, or money refunded.

A CORRECTION.

We hereby call attention to an error which appeared in the Centenary matter on this page in the issue of January 2nd. In a paragraph headed, "What Your Centenary Money Will Do," among the causes listed as beneficiaries of the Centenary campaign was the supplementing of the salaries of underpaid pastors and superannuates. This item should have read, "Supplement the Support of 2,500 Underpaid Pastors." The Superannuate Fund is not a part of the Centenary Program and is not included in the drive for $35,000,000.

The recent General Conference authorized the launching of a campaign for $10,000,000 to be applied to the support of worn out preachers. There is no appeal which should stir the heart strings and loosen the purse strings more effectually than this call for justice to the helpless heroes of the Cross who have devoted the best years of their lives to the cause of Christ. It is eminently right and proper that in their sunset days "they shall not want." A hearty response to the appeal of the Superannuate Endowment Cause is urged throughout the Church when the drive for this amount shall be made.

The Centenary Movement has no better friends and loyal supporters than the superannuates all over our territory and the Superannuate Fund has no stronger advocate than the Centenary of Missions. The Methodist Church is big enough and broad enough to stand behind both. May God's richest blessings rest upon the noble band of Methodist preachers who through their untiring effort and patient endeavor have made possible such a celebration as the one which is now engaging the attention of the Church.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

WRITE A LETTER.

We have a friend, a minister, who uses letter-writing as a means of personal religious work. He does not obtrude religious matters upon his correspondents; but as opportunity offers, in this peculiarly intimate form of intercourse he brings to the attention of his friends suggestions that cannot but be helpful in developing and stimulating the religious life. Many of us could probably make use of this admirable means of increasing the usefulness of our personal ministry.

DO NOT BLAME THE PREACHER.

There seems to be a tendency sometimes to lay the blame on the preacher for all failures or shortcomings in the carrying out of details of any program that may be adopted by the Church. Perhaps in some cases he deserves it. But we must remember that the preacher has to work through the people, just as the connectional leaders have to work through the preachers, and sometimes, through no fault of the preacher, the people cannot be enlisted very enthusiastically in the work. Perhaps nobody is to be blamed—we simply face a condition that has to be recognized and dealt with as well as may be. We believe most of our preachers are doing their best.

IT HAS COME TO THIS.

A considerable number of New Orleans public school teachers have perfected an organization which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. We know nothing about the details and purposes of the organization, our source of information being the daily newspapers, but we hazard a guess that the matter of salaries lies back of it. When teachers see unskilled laborers receiving more for their day's work than they are able to command, after long and expensive training, it is perfectly natural for them to want to know the reason why. And they evidently think they have found the answer in organization. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that we shall be hearing, before a great while, of a public school teachers' strike for higher wages—or salaries. It is a pity that these indispensable servants of the public should have deliberately come to the conclusion that the only way left for them to secure a living wage was to organize themselves into a union. Public sentiment long ago should have demanded that they be paid in proportion to the value of the service they render, and public liberality should have made provision for their adequate compensation. What has been done in New Orleans is likely to be done elsewhere, unless we adopt a business-like policy in the support of our educational work. We repeat what we have said before, school teachers and preachers are the most poorly paid, in proportion to the value of their services, of all the workers in the land. What we deplore, is not that some teachers have organized themselves into a union, but the fact that they felt that it was necessary for them to do so in order to secure their rights.

CAPITALIZING PATRIOTISM.

We could, with very good conscience, use strong adjectives in expressing our opinion of the practice of individuals and corporations in parading before the public their war service to the nation as the ground for a tacit appeal, at least, for public patronage and support. The presumption seems to be that because they responded to the calls of the Government, they are entitled to some special credit and consideration. We cannot see it in that light. If they had done otherwise, they ought to have been dealt with as disloyal citizens. We honor every man and every business organization for whole-hearted service to the country in its time of need; but we have no patience with the display advertisements proclaiming that fact to the public as a means of drawing patronage. Patriotism is too sacred a thing to be capitalized.

ON GUARD.

We have recently had our attention called to what is quoted as an extract from an editorial in one of the leading papers of the Roman Catholic Church, The National Catholic Register. We have not seen the paper in question and cannot, therefore, vouch for the correctness of the quotation; but we have no reason to doubt its authenticity. We reproduce it because it calls attention forcibly to a danger that we may as well be on our guard against. We gladly give credit to the Roman Catholic Church for the good it has done in the world—and that has been no little—but we put it on notice that its policy of striving for temporal domination through political activities and affiliations is so utterly foreign to the spirit of true Americanism that liberty-loving, patriotic Americans will not submit to it. Protestantism is indigenous to the people of the United States; it will never be uprooted by a noxious hierarchal importation from Rome. The quotation referred to is as follows: "It is God's plan that the Holy Father of Rome should be the temporal and spiritual head of His kingdom on earth. It is the same to-day as in the time of the first Pope. The best way to accomplish this is through political power, through religious education and service. God has doubly blessed the Catholic Church of America by placing one of its most faithful sons at the right hand of President Wilson. Next to the President, Hon. Joseph Tumulty, Knight of Columbus, 4th degree, wields the greatest political power in America, and as a true Catholic he is exercising the great trust which God has given into his hands for the glory of the Holy Church. Through his tact and zeal he has created a warm friendship between the Catholic Church and President Wilson, together with the Democratic party. Through the efforts of Hon. Joseph Tumulty, President Wilson has practically granted that education in the Philippines should be under the control of the Catholic Church; and that religious activity in the great American army shall be under the direction of the Knights of Columbus."

TIME TO CALL A HALT.

We quote, verbatim, from an advertisement in the daily newspapers of New Orleans of a picture that is being shown at one of the prominent moving picture theatres: "The Most Salacious Chapter in Modern History—A Play for Adults Only. Children Not Accompanied by Parents or Guardians Will Not Be Admitted." The moving picture is a marvelous invention, and as a means of entertainment and instruction it has a legitimate field of great usefulness. But it has no license to pervert public morals. If the picture in question is as bad morally as the advertisement suggests, it should be suppressed by the police authorities; if it is not bad in itself, but is advertised in such way as to appeal to the baser passions of evil-minded people, its promoters should be dealt with under appropriate sections of the criminal law. We are in favor of a responsible censorship of the moving picture business that will protect the public against the greed of unscrupulous and morally indifferent promoters.

RELY UPON THE LAW.

The Department of Records and Research at Tuskegee Institute issues each year a compilation of the figures concerning lynching in the United States. The record for 1918 has just been made public. As a whole, it constitutes a reflection upon our civilization. We summarize the report as follows: There were 62 lynchings in the United States in 1918—24 more than in 1917; by States, they were distributed as follows: Alabama, 3; Arkansas, 2; California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 18; Illinois, 1; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana, 9; Mississippi, 6; North Carolina, 2; Oklahoma, 1; South Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 4; Texas, 9; Virginia, 1; Wyoming, 1. Of those put to death, four were white persons and fifty-eight were Negroes, five of whom were women. Two of the white persons were charged with murder and two with disloyalty. The crimes charged against the Negroes ranged all the way from hog stealing to assault. We understand fully how easily the commission of an atrocious crime arouses public indignation, and how easy it is for a body of outraged men to think they are serving the ends of justice by taking the law into their own hands; but we know also that the orderly administration of law is the only hope a community has against unrestrained violence. The history of lynching proves conclusively that the nature of the crime is not the determining factor. All students of the matter agree that the tendency of lynch law is to undermine the foundations of public safety. Those who are guilty of assisting in a lynching, or of encouraging it, are themselves responsible for making worse a condition they profess to be trying to remedy. If we would have peace and safety and sure justice in the land, we must rely upon the law.

"If I am not happy in the will of God, I can be happy in nothing else."

ANDREW RYKMAN'S PRAYER.

Let the lowliest task be mine,
Grateful, so the work be Thine;
Let me find the humblest place
In the shadow of Thy grace;
Blest to me were any spot
Where temptation whispers not.
If there be some weaker one,
Give me strength to help him on;
If a blinder soul there be,
Let me guide him nearer Thee.
Make my mortal dreams come true
With the work I fain would do;
Clothe with life the weak intent,
Let me be the thing I meant.

Let me find in Thy employ
Peace that dearer is than joy.
Out of self to love be led,
And to Heaven acclimated
Until all things sweet and good
Seem my natural habitude.

* * * * * *

Thus did Andrew Rykman pray.
Are we wiser, better grown,
That we may not, in our day,
Make his prayer our own?

—John G. Whittier.

THE LIFE WITHOUT SPOT OR BLEMISH

What a busy world we find ourselves in! The whirr of the wheels is never over. The round of duties is never finished. There are too few hours in the day and the days are not enough to give us time to do all we seem to be required to do. Most of us are pressed by our daily tasks and some of us are oppressed by them. All at it and always at it seems to be the imperative order of the day—an order that is not likely to be countermanded. The pace is rapid; the grind is incessant. There is not much chance of a let-up. There is hardly time for any of the lighter things of life these days. Sometimes there is a moment when we can take a full breath, look out upon the hills, or into the blue sky, or smile upon a burdened comrade and cheer him on, but the drive of the daily task is constant and we must yield to it. In fact, "drive" has come to the foremost place in the vocabulary of the day and to its inexorable impulsion we are all yielding, whether we want to or not.

Work, work, work—this is the rule of life. And it is a wise and necessary rule, too. He who will not work—who is able to work—is hardly worthy of life. The sweat of toil is honorable and all men and women should glory in it. Most of us work for the sustenance of life or the heaping up of riches. But there should be a higher motive than this. There should not be such slavish or selfish devotion to the dull routine of the daily grind that all the sweetness and joy are squeezed out of life. There should be some regard for the higher and nobler ministries—those that relate to the individual life. The royal demands for service should not be overlooked. A worker can be as selfish as a shirker. If he uses the gifts God has given him for his own advantage alone, what better is he than the one who does not work and the one who spurns the obligations of the brotherhood of man?

God gives us all something to do. He trains hand and heart and brain. He opens opportunities for the exercise and employment of human capability in all its ranges. To one much is given, to another little, but to everyone something. The gift is God-given and must be used to honor God and to better mankind. Otherwise the gift is dishonored, and the dishonoring of one of God's gifts is always followed by the infliction of penaity.

Pure religion and undefiled, said the great Apostle, is disclosed in the preservation of one's integrity and in the exercise of brotherly kindness. Sanctity and service! Keep clean the heart and mind and do good on every hand. This is the exhortation. The selfish man cannot meet the requirements of the Apostle's definition, nor can the sordid man. One must live near to God and to God's children to do it. He must know something of the mysteries of the kingdom of God. He must have felt the quickening touch of the Spirit of Jesus Christ. He must be faithful to the daily task, but he must also find time for personal communion with God. He must sometimes look away from the machine to the mountains from whence his help and strength come. He must sometimes turn his eyes from the shop to the stars. He must always have a heart pulsing with sympathy for the needy and a hand ready to succor those who go down in the fight.

This is indeed a busy world and a hurrying day, but we are not so busy as to be careless of the high obligation under which we rest with reference to the chance for good service and for good living. The day may be full and running over with duty—but there is time for kingly service in response to the need of humanity.

He kept his soul unspotted
As he went upon his way,
And he tried to do some service
For God's people day by day;
He had time to cheer the doubter
Who complained that hope was dead;
He had time to help the cripple
When the way was rough ahead;
He had time to guard the orphan, and one day, well satisfied
With the talents God had given him, he closed his eyes and died.

—The Christian Advocate (Ney York).

REV. J. C. PARK—A MEMOIR.

By Rev. J. R. Countiss.

John Calhoun Park, son of A. A. and Mrs. Octavia Park, was born in Chickasaw County, Mississippi, near Houston, March 27, 1868. His mother died when he was but an infant and he missed her loving care and ministry. He grew up, however, under the genial and wholesome influences of a Christian home was converted at the age of nine and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which he loved and served to the end of his days. He was licensed to preach when barely twenty years old and gave to his chosen work thirty years of unbroken and consecrated service. In the winter of 1888, he joined the North Mississippi Conference and was appointed junior preacher on his home charge, Houston and Wesley. During the following year he pursued his studies at Houston. In the fall of this year, 1889, he was happily married to Miss Bettie Shell, who, with their two daughters, Mrs. W. H. Robinson and Miss Maye, survives in great grief and loneliness over the going away of her devoted husband.

At the Conference of 1889, he was sent to Prairie and Strongs, where he labored for three happy and successful years, accomplishing much good and being greatly beloved by his parishioners. In 1892 he was again appointed junior preacher at Houston and Wesley and again took up his studies at Houston, graduating with the degree of bachelor of arts from the old Mississippi Normal College, in June, 1893. As a student, he was quick to grasp the fundamental principles of his studies; and in addition to this he had an excellent memory and a facility of expression that easily gave him rank as a leader in his classes. The following year he was appointed pastor of Houston and Wesley, serving the charge with great acceptability to his life-long friends and kindred. Then followed pastorates at Booneville and Baldwyn, Kosciusko, Rosedale, Water Valley (Main Street), and Winona. He served the Aberdeen District in 1903-4, where he gave great satisfaction to both preachers and people. At the close of 1904, he entered upon a quadrennium as pastor of Greenwood Station, then perhaps the leading appointment in his Conference. All in all, this pastorate was perhaps the crowning work of his ministry. His health at this time was fairly good and he gave of his very life-blood to the demands of this important charge, which made marked advancement on all lines under his administration. From Greenwood he went to Oxford, thence to Macon, to Tupelo, to Sardis and to Starkville, where the grim reaper cut him down in the midst of a successful pastorate. His appointments to Oxford and to Starkville made him pastor of the students and faculties at the State University and the A. & M. College, and at both places his preaching drew largely from these centers of culture and learning.

In body, Brother Park was of slight build and delicate mould, a blonde with keen and kindly blue eyes, high forehead and strong features. His health was never robust, and it is doubtful if he spent a day free from pain and discomfort in the last fifteen years of his life. But if nature gave him a frail body, she made up by endowing him with a strong mind and a great heart. He was diligent both in his study and in his pastoral duties and made full proof of his ministry, maintaining a cheerful and genial disposition in spite of pain and suffering. Such was his tender affection and generous sympathy that he was cordially welcomed in every circle. Little children hailed his coming with delight; young men honored him, old men trusted him; every one loved him. He was often referred to as the St. John among the younger men of his Conference.

He loved his books and collected a choice library with every volume of which he was familiar. His memory was accurate and retentive and he drew illustrative materials from a wide field, making diligent and careful preparation for his pulpit ministrations. He was master of an easy, lucid and forceful style in English and gave considerable attention to the ornamentation of his discourses, especially in his early ministry. In delivery, he was nervous and earnest. Too gifted to be dull, he was too devout to be frivolous. He stood before men as an ambassador for Christ. The great truths of the Gospel burned so fervently in his own soul that no lukewarm message ever fell from his lips. He knew of a certainty that which he preached and his hearers were never in doubt as to his convictions. Naturally, he was an evangelistic preacher and the Holy Spirit sealed his work with abundant fruits in souls born into the kingdom. He was much in demand as a revival preacher and his last service was in a revival meeting at Friar's Point, from which he returned worn and weakened, only to fall an immediate victim to influenza and pneumonia.

In every relation of life he was true, worthy, courteous, frank, loyal. What a generous, brotherly, sympathetic friend he was! In his home he was a Christian gentleman, patient, thoughtful, considerate, desiring always that his loved ones should receive the best that he could provide for their welfare and comfort. In his Conference he was a recognized leader, serving on important boards of trustees and in responsible places. To the interests committed to his care, he gave freely of his time and thought. His counsels were sought by his brethren, who knew him to be a man without guile, remarkably free from the prejudices that so often mar characters otherwise noble.

It had been the hope of his friends that under the surgeon's knife and with the doctor's healing physic he would live to a ripe old age and round out the service so nobly begun, going to wider fields and rendering larger service to the Church he served and giving greater glory to the God he loved, but this was not to be. Frail in body, worn by disease and tired by tolls unceasing, the "good minister of Jesus Christ" fell on sleep. After a few days of suffering from pneumonia in his parsonage home at Starkville, Mississippi, his spirit took its flight to the better land on October 10th, 1918. His body was carried to Houston and laid to rest beside loved ones gone before, the funeral service being conducted by his long-time friend and schoolmate, Rev. R. A. Tucker. Peace to his ashes and rest to his soul! We shall see him again in the home of the good. May the Heavenly Father comfort his bereaved family.

A LETTER FROM CHAPLAIN HOGG.

Coblenz, Germany,
Dec. 21, 1918.

Dear Advocate: Being unable to attend my Conference and make a report of my "charge," I feel it is next best to write a letter to my Church paper.

When the Armistice was signed, Nov. 11, the division of which I was Senior Chaplain had its headquarters thirty-eight miles behind the lines, where we were training for front line action. The Eighty-seventh Division was ordered home and I was sent to headquarters of the army of occupation as entertainer, or "brightener," for the homesick men of the Third Army, 230,000. So, this cold, bleak December day finds me quartered at a perfectly wonderful German hotel, in a room that affords a view up and down the Rhine for miles. I can see a steamer gliding by now, named Kaiser Wilhelm I, while at the confluence of the Mozel and Rhine stands a colossal equestrian statue of the late Kaiser's father, who lived here and planned the reorganization of the Prussian Army from 1850 to 1858.

Coblenz is a city of 60,000 persons now, but in pre-war times it lodged 150,000 tourists some nights in the season. It is head of the Department of Coblenz, and also of the Eighth German Army. This used to be an important fortress, but upon the incorporation of Alsace and Lorraine, the fortresses were neglected.

The people were thunderstruck at the masses of Americans marching into Rhinish Prussia. They never dreamed so many boys in khaki were in Europe. Their attitude was that of surprise mingled with dread, that soon gave away to resignation, and now is slowly changing to a sense of security, because not one act of violence has even been attributed to an American. The children hold our hands for blocks and beg pitifully for chocolate or chewing gum. The adults will give anything for soap or bacon. A bar of soap is worth dollars and bacon is easily worth $8 per pound.

The hotels have signs—"For American Officers Only," etc. The expense is borne by the German Government. The troops are quartered in German barracks all over the city.

The shops are decorated for Christmas and the windows are fascinating, indeed—fine cutlery, china, rugs, antiques, and dolls and toys of every kind, and all ridiculously cheap. The mark is exchanged very cheaply now—143 marks for 100 francs, and 545 francs for $100, which places a value of about 13 cents on one mark. The articles in the stores still bear the same prices; so a dollar has tremendous purchasing power here.

The streets are full of little Christmas trees for sale. How our hearts go sighing back to the United States of America at this happiest of all Christmases! Thank God, peace on earth is God's Christmas present to a tired, wounded, suffering world!

A few weeks ago I sat down in our cemetery in Beleau Wood, near Chateau Thierry. As my eyes swept the mass of graves of our dear boys, who stopped the Huns by their piled-up bodies along the Marne, I saw a package of letters near a pierced helmet. The letters were from a devoted wife, and inclosed a picture of a beautiful, golden-haired boy of about 4 years. I knew the father lay in one of those graves. My heart, grown calloused by all suffering of this war, broke, and I laid my head on one of the little crosses and cried for half an hour. I left this sacred spot a better man, vowing to treasure the peace and security bought at such a price. On the hill-top I stopped for a glance back where they sleep—oh, so many, so young, so handsome, so brave—and suddenly I realized that, although they will miss the welcome awaiting those of us who return to the United States, they have doubtless been heralded in a fairer, brighter land with the plaudit, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant!"

Our hearts are leaning toward home now. The Huns are crushed—no chance to come back; our men hold the lines beyond the Rhine, 30 kilometers. The French and English are also entrenched all the way up the whole frontier. America is respected—the "doughboys" occupy safely a niche in the Temple of Fame. Germany abandons its rule of force. So may God speed the day when these war-tired men of the Third Army can find America's recompense for all they have suffered in the welcome that awaits them from the Statue of Liberty to the Golden Gate.

I hope soon to take up my work again in my Conference — the Mississippi — or some other, where the paradise of a parsonage may be mine again.

A merry Christmas to the Advocate.

Yours Fraternally,
W. B. HOGG.

J. J. STEVENS, M. D.—A MEMOIR.

By Rev. W. B. Jones.

Joseph Johnson Stevens was born at Augusta, Miss., in Perry County, Sept. 27, 1867, about two years and a half after the close of the Civil War. He was of a large and distinguished family, five brothers and four sisters, all living and serving their day and generation well, except one who was distinguished as District Judge, and died in the prime of life. His parents were Benjamin Stevens and Ann Breland, both of that sturdy stock found in ante-bellum days. He was educated at his home school, and under private instructors, and in the State University. After leaving the literary schools, he took a professional course in medicine at Mobile, and completed his course at Tulane University, New Orleans. After beginning the practice of medicine, he took special courses from time to time in New Orleans and New York, and thus equipped himself for large usefulness in his chosen profession, which he adorned to the end of his life.

By nature he was strong in mind, and, being reared in the pine woods where he came in close contact with nature, he early began to learn a great deal about her secrets and her products, such as cattle, sheep, hogs, horses, and farming, her trees and her plants, her plains, her hills, her valleys and her streams, and all this was useful to him to the end of his life. His father was prosperous and gave him the best advantages; and his father and mother were both strong in character, and thus furnished him the foundation for one of the strongest, most solid and best characters it has ever been our privilege to know.

After completing his professional course, he moved to Hattiesburg in 1889 and entered upon the practice of medicine, in which he was very active and successful for twenty-five years. A druggist said some years ago that he could excel all in formulating a prescription. One of the best physicians declared that he was the best informed man in his profession he knew. His ministrations to the sick were kind, and his genial sunshine and good cheer always made him welcome in the sickroom; and his sound judgment, even temper, and skill allowed him to make few, if any, mistakes. He was interrupted at intervals in his work on account of ill health, and about 1900 underwent an operation then very rare in the South; but he recovered his health and for fifteen years continued active practice. But he could leave his practice indefinitely and return and regain it speedily, so loyal were his friends to him and so skillful and good was he to them. He never lost interest in his profession, and during the four years of sickness before his death he was a constant, thoughtful reader; he was well posted on all current events, and kept up well with the progress of science, and knew well the latest theories and discoveries. As a conversationalist, he was superior, thoughtful, interesting, and instructive. Among his many friends was the entire medical profession of his acquaintance, with whom he was in constant good-fellowship; he was ready to speak well of all of them, help any he could, and envied none—he was ever on good terms with his brethren in his profession.

On Jan. 11, 1893, he was married to Miss Ethel Mounger, daughter of Rev. E. H. Mounger, D. D., of the Mississippi Conference, who, for long years a distinguished leader in his Conference, still lives to bless the Church and the world. The home life of Dr. Stevens was beautiful—it was simple in its beauty and beautiful in its simplicity. He lived the simple life; he had no taste for any other. It was the writer's privilege, when a young man, to spend more than three years in his home, and he can not recall a single instance in which the Doctor's patience was ever vexed, either in the home or out of it; and he does not remember to have heard him speak an unkind or unjust word about anyone—it is doubtful if he ever did.

Beside him, during all these years of joy and health, sorrow and sickness, was his wife whose devotion to him and to duty was more beautiful than language can tell or painter portray. No angel of mercy ever ministered with gladder heart or more willing mind or more skillful hand. It was her tender heart, kind hand and gracious spirit that cheered him during his long period of intense suffering as the ruthless hand of disease continued to make its ravages upon his handsome form. Of her it can certainly be said, "Well done."

Dr. Stevens was a public-spirited citizen, and was ever for the physical, material, social, and moral betterment of the community. Hattiesburg has had few more devoted sons; and no movement looking to her improvement ever failed to receive his encouragement and help. Personal benefit or profit seemed to be the last consideration with him; but his time, his energy, his talent, his means, were freely given. When the scourge of yellow fever came in 1898, about which little was then known, he did not hesitate to forget self, and with another of his fellow-practitioners, he took charge of the entire situation and treated every case. With what skill these two faithful men labored is witnessed by the fact that there was rarely a death, and when there was it was produced by some chronic complication.

It can be truthfully said of him that he was a good man. He was unassuming and unpretentious. It was always a pleasure to be in his company. In temperament he was affable and modest, drawing his friends close about him and always holding them as with hooks of steel—he was a friendly man. Honesty and integrity were two elements always found in the makeup of his great character. To say that he lived by the Golden Rule as best he could is but to say that which is just. Had the philosopher come with lighted lamp seeking a man, he surely would have paused before this man; there would be no need to go further. I would as soon have had his word as his bond. If he was wronged, he was always ready to forgive, and to cover with the mantle

A committee was appointed to put on a campaign to secure the necessary funds. This Committee met in Shreveport last week, and the work was begun at once. We must secure the amount by the first of April. Mr. S. B. Ritchie, the manager of the Ruston Hardware & Furniture Co., of Ruston, was made chairman of the Committee. The Committee is composed of Dr. R. D. Webb, of Minden, Mr. T. L. James, of Dubach, Rev. George S. Sexton, of Shreveport, Rev. Briscoe Carter, of Alexandria, and the Superintendent of the Orphanage. Names from each parish in the State were selected and are being asked to serve as campaign managers for that parish. Already Mr. Ritchie has sent out an urgent letter asking for the names and addresses of those who can give $100 or over to this cause, and these people will be appealed to for this help. We hope everyone who has been asked to act as parish campaign manager will do so, and push with vigor this campaign in his parish. In some instances, our pastors have been asked to take charge. We hope none will fail us. If any of our friends will help in any way, either act on a committee, furnish us names, solicit help, it will be greatly appreciated. You can write to either Mr. Ritchie, or myself. We want to appeal to every man of means, in a quiet, personal way, and if we can get his name, we will try to arrange for some one to see him.

Finally, we appeal to you as a Methodist, as a friend of suffering humanity, to give us your aid. You have already invested too much money; our opportunity for doing good is too great; the insistent cry of our own helpless and dependent is too pathetic; the needs are too imperative for us to remain as we are, or to cease our work altogether. Yet, unless we meet this issue, and secure these funds so that we may make these improvements this year, we can see no other course for us than to turn the work over to other and more competent hands, or abandon our efforts entirely.

Faithfully,
ROB'T W. VAUGHAN,
Superintendent Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT NOTES.

Hon. D. C. Lenoir, a faithful member of our McComb Centenary Church, a leading merchant and mayor-elect of the city, died of influenza on January 11.

The "new" pastors in the district, Revs. W. W. Graves, J. E. Gray, H. C. Castles, J. T. Weems, and W. D. Barrett, have all started well and the outlook for a promising year is bright. Brother Weems "flu" to start with, but is walking around now.

Rev. J. T. Leggett, our much beloved presiding elder, has been in with influenza for near two weeks. The doctors were apprehensive about his case for awhile and we all rejoice that he is able to be up now.

The district is looking forward to the Centenary Group Meetings at McComb, February 9-10, and Brookhaven, February 11. Mr. W. T. Denman has been chosen by the Nashville Headquarters as the Campaign Director for the Mississippi Conference. He attended the "get-together" meeting at Jackson and has entered enthusiastically upon his labors.

Rev. Wiley J. Ferguson, of Meridian, has been within our district lately, having been called upon to pass through deep waters. On January 4, he buried his brother, Albert E. (Dock), and on January 21 he buried his sister, Mrs. Mary Strahan, both having died from the influenza. His mother, who has passed her three-score years and ten, is yet quite sick and we are sure the brethren will remember her in their praying.

SAD NEWS FROM LAUREL, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: The many friends of Rev. L. L. Roberts and family will hear with regret of the death of L. L., Jr., the youngest member of the family. Something like two weeks ago he was stricken with influenza. Before he had recovered from this, he developed membranous croup, and so serious was the attack that the surgeon resorted to an operation. This seemed to give relief, but later pneumonia developed and finally claimed him at an early hour this morning.

The funeral took place this afternoon, the service being in charge of the writer, assisted by Rev. L. F. Alford, pastor of Kingston Church and Rev. Lundy Sykes, rector of the Episcopal Church. Owing to quarantine restrictions and sickness in many other homes in the city, the funeral was attended by only a few friends. A bright and beautiful boy, the pride and joy of father and mother, and the pet of sisters and brothers, has gone home to God to await the coming of the others.

Brother Roberts was confined to his bed, as were the four girls, during the baby's illness. Sister Roberts and the older son were the only members of the family able to follow the little body to the cemetery, though all the others are able to be up and are improving. Brother Sharp, our pastor at West End, who was to have taken part in the service, was detained at home by the illness of his wife.

The quarantine necessitates postponement of the Group Meeting, which was to have been held here next Wednesday and Thursday.

W. L. LINFIELD.

THE MISSIONARY CENTENARY AND THE PASTOR.

WHAT TO DO—Appoint a minute-man for your charge. If you have more than one church, see that a minute-man is appointed for each congregation. See that your charge minute-man is properly instructed as to his duties and is supplied with literature. In the case of a circuit, the charge minute-man is chairman and has oversight of the minute-man for each congregation. This chairman may serve as minute-man for the congregation of which he is a member. A woman is a full member of the church and may serve in any of these places.

Have your Centenary Committee provided for at once. You may do this by enlarging your church missionary committee. Hold a group meeting with your committee and your minute-man and explain all the details of the Centenary to them. Get your information from the Centenary literature. If in doubt at any point, write the Centenary Commission, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

Now, Brother Preacher, these two things are imperative. The minute-man will give the people the information concerning the whole Centenary idea. The Centenary Committee will be your executive committee and leaders in all the cultural Campaign. Do this, and do it now!

NOTICE REGARDING SUNDAY SCHOOL MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

The pastors, Sunday school superintendents, and Sunday school Missionary Committees of the Mississippi Conference are hereby requested please to take notice that all missionary offerings raised by the Sunday schools must be reported and directed as "missionary specials," and cannot be credited on any regular assessment. (See Discipline of 1918, paragraphs 295 and 320.) Hence all funds belonging to "missionary specials," whether contributed by Sunday schools, or by individuals, should be forwarded to the Treasurer of our new Board of Missions, namely: Rev. P. D. Hardin, Hattiesburg, Miss. Please do not worry Brother C. W. Crisler by sending him checks for mission funds, but mail them to Brother Hardin.

The brethren will, of course, bear in mind that collections on the regular assessments should be forwarded to our Conference Treasurer, Brother W. D. Davis, Brookhaven, Miss.

Yours fraternally,
M. M. BLACK,
President Board of Missions, Miss. Conf.
Jackson, Miss., Jan. 24, 1919.

TO THE UNDERGRADUATES OF THE MISSISSIPPI AND THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCES.

My Dear Brethren: The Church has established a Theological School for your benefit. The Bishops have planned the Course of Study. The Director of the School has associated with him in the work the theological professors of Emory University. We have worked out a scientific method of approved educational value whereby you can take this course by mail. We could get a thousand testimonials of its worth from former students.

We are ready to bring this opportunity to your door. We know you intend to enroll. We know you will enroll before the year is out. May we suggest that now is the best time, since yesterday is forever gone? Consider for a moment how much better for you and for the School to run the work on a twelve-month basis. This office cannot do the work of the whole year during the fall months.

Write at once for an application blank.

With best wishes for your greater usefulness,
I am yours fraternally,
CHAS. C. JARRELL,
Emory University, Ga. Director.

FROM PAINE COLLEGE.

Mr. Editor: I am happy to announce that Paine College has just taken possession of the ninety-one (91) acres adjacent to our present campus which we so much desired for farming purposes. Our campus and farm now include nearly 110 acres. This alone assures this institution a much larger future.

A host of friends have made this possible by their generous subscriptions and contributions to our "land purchase fund." To them all we are very grateful.

Subscriptions to this fund were taken with the understanding that they could be paid any time this winter or in the spring. But it would help us very much if a goodly number could pay their subscriptions during the present month, since the second payment on the land is due the 2d of next month.

With every good wish, I am
Yours very truly,
ALBERT D. BETTS,
Jan. 18, 1919. President.

ONE ACT.

A single act may change the current of a man's whole life. One choice made in a moment, often lightly—and the future will never be the same again. Let a man do one noble deed, and play the hero even for one hour, and the world will be richer to him ever after, and he will have the comradeship of noble souls. But let a man play the coward or the cheat, not twice but once, not openly but secretly, and life will be meaner, and the world a poorer place, until the threescore years and ten are run. There are great joys which meet us in an instant, but the light of them shall shine on till the grave. And there are choices we are called to make which, made in a moment, will determine everything.—G. H. Morrison.

WHEN CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS BECOME EFFECTIVE.

By Edwin C. Dinwiddie, Legisative Supt., Anti-Saloon League of America.

Since the amendment's adoption has been assured, I notice the question has been raised as to when it becomes a part of the Constitution of the United States. The opinion has been expressed in some circles that it only becomes effective when the proclamation has been issued by the Secretary of State. Others hold to the view that an amendment becomes a part of the Constitution as soon as the 36th State has ratified it. I feel confident that the latter view is the correct one and that the eighteenth amendment, providing for national prohibition, became a part of the Constitution yesterday, January 16th, and nation-wide constitutional prohibition will be effective on and after January 16, 1920. I hold this view for the following reasons:

1. The Constitution, which is all controlling, specifically says (Article V) that amendments properly proposed by Congress "shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States." If it had been intended that the incorporation of an amendment into the Constitution should not be complete until the Secretary of Sate should so announce, Article V would have contained a clause following the one just quoted, like this: and upon the proclamation thereof by the Secretary of State. In the absence of such language the plain meaning of Article V of the Constitution is that upon the completion of ratification by 36 States the amendment is adopted.

2. The Secretary of State, as will be seen by reference to Section 205 of the Revised Statutes, is simply charged with the duty of proclaiming the fact of ratification. His act is not needed to complete the ratification. All amendments and previous proclamations announcing the adoption of amendments to the Federal Constitution have not attempted to fix the day on which they have become valid, but have simply announced the fact that they have become valid as part of the Constitution. Section 205 R. S. reads:

"Whenever official notice is received at the Department of State that any amendment proposed to the Constitution of the United States has been adopted, according to the provisions of the Constitution, the Secretary of State shall forthwith cause the amendment to be published in the newspapers authorized to promulgate the law, with his certificate, specifying the States by which the same may have been adopted, and that the same has become valid, to all intents and purposes, as a part of the Constitution of the United States."

3. In the proclamations of the Secretary of State, care has been taken to name in one paragraph the States which have ratified up to the number of three-fourths of all the States, and the following paragraph proclaims the fact of such proportion to the whole number of States in the Union, and when additional States beyond the required three-fourths have ratified the amendment, this fact has been set forth in additional paragraphs in the proclamation.

The proclamation itself follows the law of Congress in Section 205, R. S., just quoted, and simply states that the amendment has become valid and in no wise has attempted to fix the date. The reasonable theory is that this date is absolutely fixed by Article V of the Constitution itself.

Constitutional Amendments Not Subject to State Referendums.

There is no basis for the claim of the liquor men that this amendment must be submitted to a vote of the people of the 22 States which have some form of referendum. Without going into the question exhaustively, there are two overmastering reasons why a referendum under State laws cannot be had upon the vote of a State legislature ratifying an amendment to the Federal Constitution. There are two ways of submitting amendments to the Federal Constitution, and also two ways by which they may be adopted. There is absolutely no way under our present Constitution for the people directly either to propose amendments or ratify them when proposed. The XVIII Amendment was proposed by Congress by the two-thirds vote required by the Constitution. Congress specified, as it could and must do under the Constitution, whether the ratification should be by the legislatures of the States or by conventions in the States called for that purpose. It specified the legislatures, as had been done in the case of the 17 preceding amendments. It is absolutely beyond the power of any State to change the form of the amendment thus submitted by Congress or the method by which it shall be adopted. The States can ratify or reject as submitted; but they cannot add to or take from what Congress has proposed. The Constitution (Article V) says that amendments so submitted by Congress shall be valid, etc., "when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States." It is absolutely beyond the power of a State to attach another or supplemental condition to its legislature's ratification of a Federal Amendment by the requirement of a referendum to the voters of the State.

Until the adoption of the XVIIth Amendment, United States Senators were elected by the legislatures of the various States. The duty of electing Senators then was imposed upon State legislatures by the Constitution as much as is the duty of passing upon proposed amendments to the Federal Constitution now. In a case which directly involved the right and power of a State to impose limitations upon the relations between the Federal Government and the States arising under the Constitution and laws of the United States in pursuance thereof, the U. S. Senate decided by an overwhelming vote that no provision of a State Constitution or any law enacted thereunder could operate to control in such cases and that they must necessarily refer only to matters of intra-State concern.

Under the conditions and my view of the Constitution these efforts on the part of the liquor forces will not even delay for a day—much less defeat—nation-wide prohibition, though they may afford the retained legal lights of the traffic an opportunity to continue the "milking" process so long enjoyed and so reluctantly released.

A MUSTARD SEED FOR THE KINGDOM.

Copyright, 1918, by H. A. Boaz.

"And he said, Whereunto shall we liken the kingdom of God? or with what comparison shall we compare it?

"It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown in the earth, is less than all the seeds that be in the earth:

"But when it is sown, it groweth up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches; so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it."—St. Mark iv, 30-32.

Thus does the Savior impress upon us two things: the importance of the kingdom of God; and our power, through small beginnings, to build it.

Man found, many generations ago, that the bees will work for him if he will provide them a home. He builds a hive; the swarm is attracted to it; and, shortly, it is filled with a rich store of honey. So does the kingdom of God begin in a community. Given a dwelling-place—a church edifice in which it may gather, organize and work—and the membership soon swells.

Have you ever seen an unused church? Do you recall a building dedicated to the service of God that lacked a congregation? Somehow, when the meeting-place is provided, the worshipers assemble.

From the smallest beginnings these congregations grow, like the mustard seed, into ever increasing strength. As years go by the parent church founds its missions. They, in turn, become vigorous trees of the faith, that put forth their branches; and the parent church and its off-shoots contribute steadily, year by year, to a Board of Church Extension that is forever carrying the gospel into untended fields.

It is a glorious work, this extension of the kingdom of God. To give back to the Father who has blessed you some part of His gifts that will make His other children better men and women—isn't that an idea worth patient effort and sacrifice? Would not you like to plant the mustard seed that is to become "greater than all herbs"—whose mighty branches shall shelter God's creatures in the generations still to come?

That privilege—that pleasure—may be yours. There are many ways to compass it; just as there are all sorts and conditions of men. The Board of Church Extension could tell you the way that would best meet your circumstances if it knew them. But, lacking that intimate knowledge of your affairs, it addresses this particular appeal to the man or woman—or man and woman—with accumulated means.

Such people frequently come to a time when life's obligations have been met and they have a competence for the support of their old age. That competence may be invested in a business, a farm, in houses and lots, or in stocks and bonds. They rely upon the income that it brings for their support. There is no one who has an absolute claim upon it when they are gone.

For such people the Board of Church Extension has created its Annuity Bonds. These sterling securities, with at least twice their value in real estate behind them, and with the solemn pledge of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to assure their punctual payment, are offered in amounts to suit the purchaser.

Each bond guarantees to the owner a fixed income as long as he or she may live; or, in the case of husband and wife, as long as either of them may live. The size of the income varies with the amount of the bond and the age of the owner; but it is always more than can be realized from other bonds of like sterling worth. Thus the future income of the man or woman—or man and woman—owning the bond, is absolutely assured.

So much for the material interest of the owner. But what of the further and greater work which the money that he paid for the bond is to do?

It will go to work immediately; and its task will be to build churches and parsonages. The congregation of the first church it helps to build will repay it as they grow stronger; and then it will go to another church that needs a meeting-place. And that beneficent process will go on while God's world exists; and our farthest vision may not reach, nor our finite minds calculate, the endless good that bit of capital will do.

As God has prospered you, remember God. Build, with at least a part of what He has given you, a lasting memorial to His name. You can leave no more fitting monument behind you. You can lay up no more lasting treasure in Heaven.

A CRADLE IN THE DARKNESS.

A missionary writing from the heart of China tells of a little pagoda just outside the city of Isking-poo. Into holes in its sides are cast the bodies of little babies who have died within a few days of their birth. As this missionary climbed up and looked in and beheld the place nearly filled with bodies, he thought of the warm cradles these little ones might have occupied if their parents had only known of the Light—the Light which means healing for body as well as for soul.

Although this horrible custom is carried on only by the ignorant country people, this cradle of darkness is still receiving its daily toll. One wonders if the Light may not be hastened a bit. Will not our people through the Missionary Centenary establish a church in this place that the Light may be reflected before other cradles are robbed of their right?

I CANNOT DO MUCH.

"I cannot do much," said a fleecy cloud,
"With these few drops that I hold;
They would scarcely bend the lily proud,
Though caught in a cup of gold.
But I am a part of God's great plan,
And so I must do the best I can."

A child went merrily forth to play,
And a thought like a silvery thread
Went winding in and out all day
Through the happy, golden head.
For mother had said, "Do the best you can,
For you are a part of God's great plan."

THE LITTLE TAPER DID IT

One night a man took a little taper out of a drawer and lighted it and began to ascend a long, winding stair.

"Where are you going?" said the taper.

"Away high up," said the man; "higher than the top of the house where we sleep."

"And what are you going to do there?" said the taper.

"I'm going to show the ships out at sea where the harbor is," said the man. "For we stand here at the entrance of the harbor, and some ship far out on the stormy sea may be looking for our light even now."

"Alas! no ship could ever see my light," said the taper; "it's so very small."

"If your light is small," said the man, "keep it burning bright and leave the rest to me."

When the man got up to the top of the light-house he took the little taper and with it lighted the great lamps that stood ready there with their polished reflectors behind them.

"O," said the taper, "if I had not kept my light burning, the big lamps would not have been lit when you came up here."

The lightkeeper smiled, and all he said was: "Little tapers never know when they are going to be needed. That is why they must keep their lights bright and be ready to help when called upon."—Selected.

TESLA'S TRAINING.

Nikola Tesla, the distinguished electrician, tells an interesting story in the Scientific American of the way he trained himself to do the thing he set out to do.

When he was a boy only seven or eight years of age, he read a tale which deeply impressed him with the possibilities of will power and self-control. Straightway he began to discipline himself.

"Had I a sweet cake or a juicy apple which I was dying to eat," he says, "I would give it to another boy and go through the tortures of Tantalus, pained but satisfied. Had I some task before me which was exhausting, I would attack it again and again until it was done. So I practiced day by day from morning till night. At first it called for vigorous mental effort directed against disposition and desire; but as years went by, the conflict lessened, and my wish and will became one. They are so to-day, and in this lies the secret of whatever success I have achieved."

If a trained will was necessary in order to enable Nikola Tesla to make some of the great electrical discoveries of our age, young people cannot expect to become efficient Christians just by standing at the "wishing-gate." Too many young people are easy-going. They consult their moods rather than their consciences. They do what they feel like doing rather than what they ought to do. They have not schooled themselves to give up what they wish to do in order to be faithful to duty. They have not learned that "we cannot dream ourselves into a character, but must hammer and forge ourselves one."

Like all discipline, the training of the will is at first a way of difficulty and of sacrifice. At length, however, a time comes when, to use a favorite saying of Mr. Moody, a man does his duty as naturally as a horse eats oats.

Character has been won when a person wishes to do what he ought to do, and when his wish and his will are one.—Young People.

OUR FOUR-FOOTED ARMY

An officer of the Royal Army Medical Corps, in a letter printed in the London Times, gratifies us with an account of the devotion shown to army horses by their drivers, and the conduct under fire of these brave animals, who may justly be called auxiliary troops for our armies in the field:—

"The army horses in Flanders are the most beautiful things in the country. Unspoiled by blinkers, they are not robbed of the beauty of eye, and their winter coats, innocent of clippers, only add to their looks. That they keep so fit is due to the excellence of their forage and the care of their drivers.

"There is a great difference in the horses as they go in and come out of the line. Full of fire and beans, conscious of excellent grooming, and clean wagons and polished harness, they seem impatient to drag their guns from the comforts of French billets to the unknown discomfort of the line. But when they come out, they are plastered with mud and very tired and show no interest in the gun teams that pass them on their way up. Very handsome are they with their small shaped heads and intelligent eyes, compared with the heavy Percheron or the sleepy Flemish horses. These well-bred horses, like highly organized men, suffer most from shell-shock.

"Never does a horse forget a place where he has been wounded. When he is taking ammunition up to a battery he will tremble, and hurry past any exposed or dangerous place at a gallop, where perhaps months before he was wounded. Very quick are they to spot an approaching shell, and they drop their heads and even lie down when they see their driver taking cover. So intelligent are they that they are said to acquiesce readily when gas masks are put on and danger threatens.

"One wound for which a horse is not evacuated is the common shell wound on the face and jaw. Then a good driver's care comes in; he attends them carefully, feeding them by hand, boiling their oats, making them masks and spending most of the day with them till they can feed in comfort again. The devotion of the men is wonderful in many cases, who will not leave their charges, and is the cause of the new order that all horses must be returned from hospital to their own units, for the men's care is not transferred to the same extent to a new team of horses."

We rejoice that even in the atmosphere of war and its dehumanizing influences the men retain their consideration of these partners in their trials who go forward unhesitatingly and unquestioningly into danger and probable death, with nothing to gain by their sacrifices.—Our Dumb Animals.

HONESTY IN THE FAR NORTH

An interesting example of painstaking honesty in the distant north is given in A Summer and Winter on Hudson's Bay, by C. K. Leith. When the authors' geological expedition was wrecked in a terrific storm at Whale River, nearly a hundred miles from the nearest source of food supply, it was necessary for them to abandon a large part of their outfit. Nearly fifteen months later they received a letter from the Hudson's Bay House in London, announcing that a case of goods had been forwarded by freight, and inclosing a bill for three shillings and sixpence.

In due time they got the box, packed exactly as they had left it after the wreck. Besides some very valuable specimens, it contained two water-soaked cameras, some dip needles, compasses, geological hammers, maps, reports, etc. This was the journey the box had taken:

Propped on poles to escape the ravages of foxes, it had remained until the following winter, when Eskimos, passing on their winter hunt, took the box along on a toboggan and returned with it in the spring to the post at Great Whale River. When Hudson's Bay opened in the summer, the box went out on the post's sailboat on the annual trip to the central supply department of the Hudson's Bay Company on Charlton Island, some four hundred miles distant. On the arrival of the Hudson's Bay Company's steamer Discovery from London, the box was put on board, and carried to London. It reached Mr. Leith in Madison, Wisconsin, in January, 1911, after travelling seventy-five hundred miles.

On another occasion, a pocketbook containing twenty cents was dropped on a portage, picked up, carried two hundred miles, and returned.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN.

In as much as the time appointed for the Campaign for new and the renewal of old subscribers is now at hand, the same being the last two weeks in January and first two in February, I wish to say a word of exhortation to the ministers of the patronizing Conferences.

The Publishing Committee at its meeting last October, when studying the financial status of the Advocate growing out of the increased cost of paper, the increased cost of labor, skilled and otherwise, the increased cost of ink and all else that is needed in the make-up of the paper, realized the imperative need for an increase of revenue.

This is also felt because of an increase in postal rates, and by reason of the fact that the publisher is not permitted to carry delinquent subscribers as in the past, with the result that the rate paid for ADVERTISEMENTS is less, on account of the decreased issue, and thus returns from this source have fallen off.

Again, when he could carry past-due subscriptions he usually managed to hold them, but, being compelled to drop the same, they are a dead loss.

With these facts before them, the Publishing Committee planned this Campaign and appointed the following brethren to supervise the Campaign in their respective Conferences: Rev. J. H. Felts, for North Mississippi; Rev. J. R. Jones, for the Mississippi Conference; Rev. J. M. Henry, for the Louisiana Conference. These brethren were to take the matter up by mail with each pastor, assign each charge a minimum allotment, and otherwise present the Campaign as in their judgment was deemed best.

Letters from two of the brethren show that they have the Campaign in hand and we judge the other Commissioner is likewise pressing the work. May I suggest to the pastors that they press this Campaign not only for the reasons above set forth, which are sufficient to spring us each, but for the good that may be done through and by the paper itself? Why should we have a paper if it does not reach our people? In this day a church paper is a necessity in every home if we desire an intelligent laity.

The allotment for the Conferences is as follows: North Mississippi and Mississippi Conferences, each fifteen hundred new subscribers and the renewal of all delinquents; the allotment for Louisiana was placed at one thousand new and the renewal of all old subscribers.

Let us press this matter as servants of the Master, realizing that we are doing His work when placing a religious paper in our homes.

The manager of the Advocate, Brother C. O. Chalmers, will be pleased to receive your reports and will make acknowledgment of them in the columns of the Advocate.

JNO. F. FOSTER,
Campaign Manager.

IT IS THE PROPORTION.

Mr. Samuel Gompers, the president of the American Federation of Labor, who is now in Europe in connection with matters pertaining to the international labor situation, is quoted in recent press dispatches as saying that the wages of the working-man are still too low. He contends that, although the cost of living has enormously increased with the war, wages have been insufficiently advanced to meet this cost. He issues the warning that it is the inadequacy of his surroundings that induces the working-man to degenerate into a Bolshevist. It would seem, to the ordinary observer, that the wages of working-men, in comparison with the remuneration of the professional classes, are high enough; and when Mr. Henry Ford announces that a minimum wage of six dollars a day has been established in his automobile factory, we are inclined to think that labor is beginning to come into its own. But when Mr. Ford announces at the same time that the salary of his son, who has become president of his automobile business, is $150,000 a year, we pause. And when we read in the newspapers that the same company declared a dividend rate of something over a hundred per cent at the close of last year's business, we pause again. We are beginning to realize that labor is not asking merely that it be given a living wage, but that that wage shall be somewhat, at least, in proportion to the returns upon capital. We do not know what the proper proportion is—the economists have not been able to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion themselves; but we do know that here is a field in which the social and business ethics of Jesus need to be applied.

CONGRATULATIONS.

Our neighbor, The Times-Picayune, celebrated the eighty-second anniversary of its founding on Saturday of last week. The Daily Picayune was founded January 25, 1837; The Times-Democrat was founded in 1863; the two papers were consolidated in 1914. Throughout all these years, a high standard of journalistic efficiency has been maintained. To-day, the Times-Picayune takes rank as one of the great American newspapers. It has just announced plans for the erection of a commodious and thoroughly modern home for its exclusive use on a site just across the street from the Advocate office. We wish for it continued usefulness and prosperity.

THE CAMPAIGN BY CONFERENCES.

Beginning with this week's issue of the Advocate, we expect to give each week the results of the Advocate Campaign now being conducted throughout our territory, by Conferences. Under the heading, "Thanks To Our Friends," we have already made mention of the faithful work that has been done by some of our pastors. We are earnestly hoping that all our preachers will make use of the time that has specifically been set apart for that purpose to present the claims of the Advocate to their people. We are thoroughly convinced that energetic action at this time will result in a large increase in our subscription list, and in a corresponding increase in the usefulness of the Conference organ.

Study the tabulation given below, and if your charge does not appear in the list, try to have it there next week with a creditable number of subscriptions.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. O. P. Armour, of Houlka, Miss., writes that everything is moving along nicely on his work.

Rev. W. T. Phillips, of the Iuka circuit, is praying for, and expecting, a great year in his work. We join him in his prayers.

Rev. R. T. Ware, our efficient pastor at Mooringsport, La., has received 20 members into the Church since Conference.

Rev. H. C. Murphy, who serves the St. Francisville charge, Louisiana Conference, reports that his work is moving along very nicely.

Rev. W. W. Bruner, of Pleasant Hill, Miss., writes that his charge is making progress in the work of the Church. This is always good news.

Rev. L. H. Floyd, pastor of the Kosciusko circuit, North Mississippi Conference, has begun well his year's work—so a competent observer writes us.

Rev. W. W. Graves is at work in his new pastorate, Haziehurst, Miss. He reports that he is delightfully situated, and that the outlook is encouraging.

Rev. W. L. Blackwell writes from Decatur, Miss., that everything is moving along nicely on his charge, and that the outlook for a good year is promising.

"We are in a good place and like it very much," is the word that comes from Rev. A. D. George at Gilbert, La. We predict a prosperous year for him on that fine charge.

We learn from Rev. J. Loyd Decell that the influenza epidemic at McComb City, Miss., which has been serious, seems to be subsiding. We sincerely trust that it is so.

We regret to learn that Rev. C. B. Powell and family, of Indian Bayou, La., have suffered severely from the influenza. We trust that they have been restored fully to health.

Rev. H. M. Young, of the Eupora and Maben charge, North Mississippi Conference, reports that his work has suffered on account of the influenza, but in spite of it all, the outlook is encouraging.

Rev. J. B. Stringer, of the Mississippi Conference, has entered Emory University for further preparation for his work. He will keep in touch with his friends in Mississippi through the Advocate.

Rev. A. J. Boyles, after having served several months in the army, has been appointed to supply the Rocky Springs charge, Mississippi Conference. He is at his post of duty, and speaks hopefully of the outlook.

Rev. T. B. Cottrell, of the Mississippi Conference, is beginning his third year on the Mount Olive charge. The epidemic of influenza has interfered with his work, but a good beginning has been made in spite of it.

Rev. W. N. Ware, our pastor at Walnut Grove, Miss., was given a hearty welcome by his people on his return to them for another year. In spite of the "flu," the prospects are brighter than ever before for the work on that charge.

Rev. H. Wade Cudd, the new pastor at Greenwood, La., writes encouragingly of the prospects on his charge. He feels that he has really gone back home, since he knew many of his good people while a student at Centenary College.

Rev. W. C. Beasley, of New Albany, Miss., writes that he is about to get settled in his new field after an extended "vacation" on account of the influenza. We expect to hear good reports from the New Albany charge this year.

Rev. W. A. Mangum, our pastor at Bernice, La., has recently organized an Epworth League at that place. He reports that the people seem to be ready to co-operate with the pastor in all good work, and that the outlook on the charge is bright.

Judge H. H. White, of Alexandria, has been appointed by Bishop Kilgo as a member of the Louisiana Conference Centenary Commission, in place of Mr. W. M. Spinks, who has moved to Memphis, Tenn. No finer choice could have been made.

We were glad to receive greetings a few days ago from our old friend, Rev. J. G. Cammack, formerly a member of the Mississippi Conference, now living in Los Angeles, Cal. When he wrote, he was rejoicing over the arrival of his two sons from overseas service.

News has just been received that Major W. B. Williamson, a steward of our church at Lake Charles, La., died of pneumonia in France on January 19. Major Williamson was one of the leading lawyers of the State. We extend sincere sympathy to his family and many friends.

Dr. R. H. Wynn has received a most cordial welcome by the people of Ruston, La., to the pastorate of Trinity Methodist Church of that city. Dr. Wynn, after spending several years as president of Centenary College, is enjoying his return to the pastorate, a field in which he excels.

We extend sincere sympathy to Rev. L. L. Roberts and family, of Laurel, Miss., in the great sorrow that has recently come to them. The sad announcement of the death of little L. L. Jr., which appears in another column, came from Brother W. L. Linfield just before the Advocate went to press.

Our Louisiana Avenue Church, of this city, suffered a great loss last week in the death of Mrs. Martha Jay. Her name stood first on the church register. She was the daughter of Richard Keen, the founder of the Louisiana Avenue church. Brother W. B. Thomson's name now stands at the head of the roll.

We learn from Rev. J. R. Countiss, the efficient Secretary of the North Mississippi Conference, that the matter for the Conference Minutes has been sent to the printers. There was considerable delay in securing necessary reports, due, of course, to the situation brought about by the epidemic of influenza.

Rev. R. A. Bozeman, now at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex., requests us to state that he wishes to secure the services of an evangelistic singer for the spring and summer. Those who may be interested in this kind of work are requested to write to him, giving information as to experience and compensation expected.

Rev. H. C. Castles, pastor of the Topisaw charge, Mississippi Conference, is in a happy frame of mind. His people have kept his pantry well supplied with many good things to eat, and his stewards have increased his salary. We would not expect less in a community where such good Methodists as the Felders and others of that type reside.

Rev. R. T. Nolen, of the Vardaman charge, North Mississippi Conference, is diligently at work. He reported recently that he had traveled 42 miles, preached three times at different places, and secured ten subscriptions to the Advocate—all from Saturday to Monday. Brother Nolen has secured 16 subscriptions to the Advocate since Conference.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, our pastor at Kosciusko, Miss., received a "tremendous pounding" at the hands of his good people during the Christmas holidays. We understand that he stood the ordeal well. His stewards have increased the pastor's salary for this year, and have laid large plans for the work of the year. The work prospers in those regions.

Rev. Earl B. Moll, who has recently been appointed to serve as pastor at Bishop, Ga., keeps in touch with his Louisiana friends through the Advocate. He is very much pleased with his work, his chief difficulty being in the fact that he has a good parsonage with no one but himself to occupy it. That is a difficulty, however, that is usually easily overcome.

Dr. George S. Sexton, the popular pastor of our First Church, Shreveport, La., is a notable raiser of money. He recently visited Vivian, La., to assist in a movement to secure a parsonage for our pastor there. In 12 minutes he secured $1800—cash. We get this information from the Shreveport Journal. Dr. Sexton will doubtless receive other calls for similar service.

The Advocate office was honored with a call by Mr. C. K. Sweet, of Oklahoma City, Okla., on Saturday of last week. Brother Sweet has been a reader of the Advocate almost from the beginning of its existence. It was a regular visitor to his childhood home in Georgia, and he has been a subscriber to it for many years himself. It was a genuine pleasure to meet him.

Bishop W. P. Thirkield, one of the aggressive and able leaders of the Methodist Episcopal Church, whose episcopal residence is in New Orleans, honored the Advocate office with a call on last Monday morning. We were favored at the same time with a call from Rev. H. W. May, the brotherly and faithful presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District of our own Church.

Rev. J. Lambuth Evans, of Haughton, La., is able to be at work again after a prolonged illness. He had a serious attack of the influenza, which prevented his attending the sessions of the Annual Conference at New Orleans, and since then he has been suffering from its effects. We sincerely hope that he will have no further trouble to interfere with his most efficient work.

We are authorized by Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, to announce that Rev. T. H. Mills has been transferred from the North Mississippi to the Louisiana Conference, and appointed to the Wilson charge. Wilson has recently been raised to the rank of a station, and generous provision has been made for the support of the preacher. Brother Mills will receive a cordial welcome to Louisiana.

The Missionary Centenary Field Council of the Fifth Episcopal District met in Jackson, Miss., on Friday of last week. Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo presided, and Prof. G. L. Harrell served as secretary. Careful plans were made for the early holding of State Councils. The Louisiana Council will meet at Alexandria on Tuesday, February 25. Messrs. Cram and Marts, of the General Commission, will be in attendance.

The citizens of Ruston, La., celebrated the prohibition victory of January 16 by holding a great meeting at Trinity Methodist Church on the following Sunday, January 19. The various denominations of the community participated. Addresses were made by President J. E. Keeny, of the Louisiana Industrial Insititute, Hon. S. D. Pearce, Judge R. B. Dawkins, Judge J. B. Halstead and Mr. Howard W. Smith.

The Missionary Centenary group meetings for the Baton Rouge District, Louisiana Conference, have been announced for Hammond on January 30, and Baton Rouge, January 31, the meetings to begin at 10 a. m. On account of health conditions at Hammond, it may be necessary to transfer the meeting scheduled for that place to Amite. We thank the presiding elder, Rev. H. W. May, for a cordial invitation to attend these meetings. Brother May informs us that the outlook on the Baton Rouge District was never better.

Through a strange oversight, we have failed to mention one of the most delightful occasions it has been our pleasure to attend in a long time. On January 1, we had the privilege of being present at a New Year's dinner given by Rev. P. H. Howse at Ellisville, Miss., in honor of the presiding elder of the Hattiesburg District, Rev. W. B. Jones, and the official members of the Ellisville charge. The first quarterly conference was held immediately after the dinner. Needless to say, there was a good attendance of the members of the conference. The business of the Church was carefully attended to, and substantial progress was shown in the plans adopted for the year 1919.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

It is reported that more than 3000 Minute Men have been secured for service in the Chicago Episcopal area.

We have seen the announcement recently that a Hebrew university is to be built in Jerusalem in the vicinity of the Mount of Olives.

The Literary Digest, in addition to giving liberal space for the presentation of the cause, has given $5000 to the campaign for Armenian and Syrian relief.

The local preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church are organized into a National Association. A special meeting of the Association has been called to meet in Philadelphia, Pa., on February 8.

The Lutherans of America are planning a large extension of their work. A Lutheran Congress was recently held in Chicago for the purpose of organizing a campaign to strengthen the Lutheran cause throughout the world.

Dr. Sidney L. Gulick has been appointed by the Commission On Relations With The Orient to visit Paris during the sittings of the Peace Conference to do what he can to promote a better understanding of the Far East by the nations of the West.

The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union will begin a campaign in March to secure one million dollars and one million members. The year 1924 will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of this great temperance reform movement.

It has been announced that Bishop W. F. McMurry, Dr. W. W. Pinson, Mr. R. T. Burge and Dr. Belle H. Bennett will visit Russia in the near future for the purpose of investigating the situation with reference to the establishment of missionary work by our Church.

The Administrative Committee of the Federal Council of the Churches has appointed the following committee to co-operate with the Government in securing census data from the churches; Bishop W. F. McDowell, Dr. Gaylord S. White, Dr. Walter Laidlaw, Dr. Charles S. Macfarland, Professor Samuel McCune Lindsay, Dr. Warren H. Wilson, and Dr. Henry A. Atkinson.

Correspondents of secular papers, writing from France, say that the rate of mortality of Base Hospital 43, which is the unit organized by the School of Medicine of Emory University, is the lowest of any American military hospital overseas. The Emory School of Medicine is one of the best in the South, and this report will surprise no one who knows the able medical faculty at Atlanta.

The light which brings into prominence the secret sins also brings into prominence the secret virtue. The good Lord takes the candle and sweeps the house not just to find the dust, but to find the piece of silver! No bit of silver is lost. Every bit of secret goodness is seen in the light of His countenance.—J. H. Jowett.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Just verging into twenty-one years of age, full of life and hope, death has claimed the pure, young life of Miss PEARL CONERLY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Conerly. On Dec. 20, 1918, shortly after 3 o'clock, her spirit left the suffering clay to bask in the sunlight of God's eternal presence. It is with peculiar sadness that we chronicle the fate of this bright young woman, whose life and character have been such an inspiration to her parents, whose companionship has proved to be of such great and lasting good to the brother and sisters, who have shared with her the joys and sorrows of childhood. Her character was built on a firm foundation, but when that dreaded disease, reaved ones, for we know that our skill could do was done, but to no avail. It is hard to understand why she has been taken from us, but we have the sweet assurance that 'God "doeth all things well." May God's richest blessings rest upon the bereaved one, for we know that our loss is Heaven's gain.

Her Friend,

JOHN W. SISTRUNK was born near Crystal Springs, Miss., on Feb. 9, 1870, and departed this life Nov. 4, 1918, near Mitchell La. When quite young he moved with his parents to Louisiana and settled in Sabine Parish. At the age of 20 or 21, he was happily married to Miss Dolly Moore, of De Soto Parish. This young couple settled on a farm and lived happily together for over a quarter of a century. This union was blessed with ten children; two of the children preceding their father to the better world; eight are living and are all members of our Church. Brother Sistrunk was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, when he was quite young, and served the church as a steward and Sunday school superintendent all of his religious life. He was a progressive farmer, a good citizen, a kind father and husband. He loved his Church. He was a consecrated Christian. How we will miss him in his home! His home was the preacher's home. We will miss him in the church. His prayers, tempered with the Spirit of God, will be heard no more. He leaves an aged mother, a wife and eight children, and a host of friends and relatives to mourn their loss. He lived and died in the faith.

MATTIE COPELAND, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Copeland, and stepdaughter of Mrs. R. P. Dawson, died at the sanitarium at Fisher, La., on October 23, 1918, with pneumonia, following influenza. Her body was interred in the cemetery at Haynesville, La. Mattie had been a resident of Haynesville since 1912, in the home of Mrs. R. P. Dawson. In 1913 she finished in the Haynesville High School, and graduated from the State Normal in 1916. She joined the Methodist Church early in life at Arcadia. At her death she was a consistent member of the Haynesville Church.

In the cold, moist earth we laid her
Ere the forest casts its leaf,
And we wept that one so lovely
Should have a life so brief.

Yet, after all, it is not the length of life that counts, but how much we live in the brief time allotted to us here. In the beginning of life, one is judged best by one's aims and perseverance put forth. Mattie gave promise of a noble and useful life. She was preparing herself to take her place in the forefront of the fight for God and the betterment of her fellow-man. In the brief time she had been teaching, she showed an earnest desire for knowledge that would fit her for usefulness to others, showing an unselfish spirit in all her dealings with her fellow-man. Mattie had endeared herself to the people where she lived, and she had a host of friends. No better tribute can be paid to any one than this: She was a sincere Christian, a true and loyal friend, and a noble woman.

It is sad to give up a young life whose future was so promising, but God, in his all-wise providence, knows best, and we submit to his will.

A FRIEND.

Haynesville, La., Jan. 15, 1919.

HAMILTON F. RISHER was born in Colleton County, South Carolina, on Aug. 25, 1849, and died in Vicksburg, Miss., Jan. 5, 1919. Within these nearly "three-score and ten years" Brother Risher lived a pure, unselfish, faithful and consistent Christian life. When a boy of 9 years of age, he was happily and soundly converted, and joined the M. E. Church, South. Since then he has steadily grown in grace and in favor with God and man. On Dec. 1, 1870, he was happily married to Miss Annie Dodson, who still survives him. They were a devoted couple and made their home life beautiful by dedicating it to God and maintaining the family altar to the very day he was stricken. Three sons survive to cherish the memory of a devoted father—Lonnie H., of Nashville, Tenn.; Joe H., of Philadelphia, Pa., and H. F., Jr., of Vicksburg, Miss. Brother Risher came to Vicksburg in 1902. At once, he and his good wife identified themselves with the South Vicksburg Methodist Church, now Gibson Memorial. He has served faithfully and efficiently as steward and trustee. He was acknowledged by all as one of the most devoted and consistent members. To know him was to love him. Failing health forced him to give up his occupation a few years ago. He was living in Philadelphia, Pa., when the writer first came to Vicksburg. There was much rejoicing when they came back to Vicksburg last spring. To the last, he and his faithful wife were regular attendants at the church they loved so well. With tottering footsteps, he made his way to church the Sunday before he died. When I, as his pastor, asked him to pray for me, he said, "I always do that." He was truly "faithful unto death," and now has won "the crown of life." Ready? Yes, he was always ready to meet his Lord. May the God of all comfort and grace be with his lonely companion, and may the Christ he loved be as dear to his sons as He was to their father.

BROTHER BROWN WRITES FROM LELAND, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Rev. Ben P. Jaco spent yesterday with us and did some splendid work in the interest of the Centenary. His sermon at 11 o'clock on prayer and intercession was inspiring. At night he gave us a most instructive lecture on Missions, using the steriopticon with good effect. The congregations were large, and, from the expressions heard, I feel sure good that will abide was done. Our "group meeting," held at Greenville last Thursday and Friday, was helpful, and gives hope for large things in the Greenville District this year. The district stewards made liberal provision for the presiding elder in the way of salary and expenses, and plans were laid for the purchase or building of a creditable district parsonage at an early date. The preachers and laymen of the Greenville District are one in spirit and purpose to break all former records this year. There is a conscious need of more spirituality among us. For this we pray and hope.

Wonderful Egg Producer.

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, Poultry Expert, 9251 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million-dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar to-day or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry. —Adv.

BANISH CATARRH
Hyomei Will Relieve You or Nothing to Pay.

When you make up your mind to get rid of disgusting Catarrh, follow this advice:

Go to your druggist; ask him for a HYOMEI Outfit (pronounce it High-o-me). This outfit consists of a bottle of HYOMEI (liquid), a hard rubber pocket inhaler, a medicine dropper, and full instructions for use. Pour a few drops into the inhaler, and breath it a few minutes each day, according to directions.

HYOMEI relieves Catarrh because it reaches every nook, corner, and crevice of the membrane of the nose, throat, and bronchial tubes. Stomach dosing, sprays, douches, and ointments don't kill the germs because they don't get where the germs are. As the publisher of this paper knows, if you are not satisfied with Hyomei in cases of Catarrh and colds of the head, Catarrhal Coughs, Bronchial Catarrh, Spasmodic Croup, Catarrhal Laryngitis or Hay Fever your money will be cheerfully refunded. Refuse substitutes. If your druggist does not sell it, we will send you a complete outfit, charges prepaid, for $1.15. Address, Booth's HYOMEI CO., Ithaca, N. Y.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR
FREE FROM DANDRUFF.
Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.—Adv.

SOCIAL EVANGELISM.

A church held a great meeting.
It won many, many it did not win.
It did an unheard of thing: it investigated why.
The Gospel was the power unto salvation, they said.
Yet that power had failed to reach many.
It had been powerfully preached and winsomely sung.
Evidently something was needed besides preaching.
They had talked with and prayed for many in vain.
Evidently something besides personal work was needed.
They found few men past thirty-five had been won.
They concluded the man must be saved while a boy in the Sunday school.
But they found few boys past fifteen in the Sunday school.
And they found many boys in the town.
They found another town getting them with the Boy Scouts.
And another with the Junior Y. M. C. A.
And another with organized baseball.
And others in other ways that the boys liked.
And they said we will get them, too—and they did.
All it needed was a man and a plan.
So they added a social service to their evangelism.

—From "Social Evangelism," a pamphlet by Alva W. Taylor, Commission on the Church and Social Service, Federal Council of Churches.

THE BRIGHTEST CROWN.

Among the crowns that await the redeemed hereafter, I can well believe that the brightest will belong not to great martyrs and philanthropists and heroes who made a noise in the world, but to those who, all unknown to the very companions by their side, impelled by their conscience and their love of God, fought hard and long with secret sins and evil tendencies which no one knew but God and themselves, fought and fell, rose and fought again, and fought until they won. Of such a one I can understand the Savior saying, as He crowns him with the victor's crown, "That man's enemy was the worst of all enemies, himself, and he conquered him at last."—J. McGregor.

FROM SILVER CREEK, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: We reached our new charge on the evening of Dec. 31, 1918, and we were greeted with a warm welcome at the parsonage by the good people of this charge. We found that the splendid ladies had prepared the parsonage throughout for the new pastor's coming. My, what a fine supper we found waiting for us to enjoy! And then we found that they had remembered us in the way of a pounding, too. May God bless every one who had a hand in preparing the way for the pastor and his family's comfort for the new year. There is a great field here for one to do a great and large work for the Master. We are praying, planning and hoping that we may, by the help of the dear Lord Jesus, be used of him in Kingdom work more fully this year than ever before.

We are happy and on the way, singing the victory song as the days go by. Amen! Let your prayers attend us.

IN MEMORY OF J. H. HOLMES.

On July 28, 1918, John H. Holmes was called to his reward such as Jesus, the Savior of men, bestows upon His own. No man ever gave more helpful service to the people of any county than did J. H. Holmes. He stood above, or at least equal to, any man as a true American citizen, head of a family, and Christian gentleman. The people of Kemper County, Mississippi, loved him and manifested that love by honoring him for nearly sixteen years in electing him to fill the office of county tax assessor. He made the last race for the office nearly four years ago, and was elected. He had several competitors. The only reason assigned against his election was, "He is too old." The voters of the county did not think so. Many said, "Uncle John made us a good assessor." His home was a home of prayer. The family altar never decayed in his home. His neighbors found him the most helpful spiritual adviser and counsellor. He was the peacemaker of the community. His children found him to be a true parent, never austere, but firm, in gentleness following the precepts of the Divine Word in directing the family. He gave Rev. W. W. Holmes to Louisiana, who has served some of the most prominent churches, and as presiding elder of the New Orleans District, and is now stationed at Lake Charles, La. It seems that everybody loves W. W. Holmes, and no wonder—he is so much like his father. Three other sons, Ed, Henry, and Oliver Wendel, are bearing the mantle of their father. Three daughters, Mrs. Ethel McCoy, Mrs. Mamie McWilliams, and Mrs. Annie Rush, are loyal, active and useful Christian women. His wife, a mother in Israel, lives with Henry on the old homestead. As a Christian gentleman, J. H. Holmes was second to none. His Church, which represented the cause of Christ, was always first. He served for a number of years as steward and Sunday school superintendent. In his last campaign for tax assessor, political rallys were being held over the county during the time for the protracted meeting at his home church. He was at every service in his accustomed seat during the meeting. In his rounds assessing taxes, he always planned to be in his Sunday school on Sunday.

No church will ever lose a more helpful member. We think of him every preaching day, when we notice his absence. In our hearts we feel a mingling of joy, sadness, and yearning—joy over his gain, sadness on account of our loss, and a yearning to be with him. He was not eloquent in speech, either in prayer or exhortation. But there was something in his life, Christ Jesus, which impressed more than words could express the lives of his hearers. He loved his pastor, and prayed for him by name. How much those prayers helped, and will help him during the coming years, no one but God can know.

Brother Holmes was an optimist for his church. The church never had a better steward, and yet he would apologize to the preacher privately, and often to the quarterly conference, for not bringing more of the preacher's salary. Among his last words was exhortation for loyalty to the church. His hopes for his church are being realized. There is not a better small church in the Conference. His mantle has fallen on his successors.

We say he has gone from us. But his works are following him, and we know "Uncle John Holmes" will continue to live with us in a far greater sense than he did while in the flesh, for generations to come.

"To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of the weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time. It is conservatively estimated that Nuxated Iron is now being used by over three million people annually, and it has been used and endorsed by such men as Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury and ex-Governor of Iowa; former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential Nominee Chas. A. Towne; United State Commissioner of Immigration Hon. Anthony Caminetti; Judge G. W. Atkinson of the Court of Claims of Washington, and others. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists everywhere.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE

Wesley Bible Class Federation.

Dear Brother Carley: The Wesley Bible Class Federation, which meets at Ruston, La., March 11-13, is the only State-wide Methodist Sunday school meeting in the Louisiana Conference. Every pastor, presiding elder, and Sunday school worker will be there. God is counting on all. Ruston is making preparations. A fine program is in making. ALONZO EARLY, Field Secretary.

Cuts and Bruises,

burns, stings, sores, boils and the numerous other mishaps amount to little. If left alone, however, and if aided by the careless touch of a dirty hand, an ugly sore will result and frequently blood poison. It is dangerous. Don't trifle. Apply Gray's Ointment immediately. It will instantly soothe the wound, cleanse the sore, kill the germs and put it on a steady road to recovery. Keep it on your shelf for every emergency. Its constant use for a hundred years has made it a family word in every household. Ask your druggist. If he can't supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 800 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and you will receive a liberal sample free.

An Attack of Influenza Often Leaves Kidneys In Weakened Condition

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of influenza which has visited so many homes.

The symptoms of this disease are very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition. Almost every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to dangerous kidney troubles. Druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root, on receipt of ten cents, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular medium and large size bottles, for sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.—Adv.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP.

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets To-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.—Adv.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Monday, January 20, I was with the Group Meeting for the Centenary Drive at Shubuta, Tuesday at Meridian, and Wednesday at Scooba. These were good meetings and produced fine interest and enthusiasm in the drive.

Thursday, I visited the Consolidated High School at Lauderdale, and held conferences with the Sunday school workers in the town. They promised to meet the Standard for Missions and for Teacher-training work and the Workers' Council.

Lockhart was visited that afternoon. I spoke to the school there. Four teacher-training pupils were enrolled. I think that they will reorganize their school at this place.

Pray for me and the work.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The Sunday school was made a Missionary Society by law long ago; it must be made missionary by grace now. The first step toward this end is to give missionary instruction. Give the instruction and you will see the next step.

It is easy to say the war was the cause of the heavy loss in attendance upon the Sunday school during the past three years. It was not the war, but our lack of the spirit of Christ. When we are possessed of his spirit, we will bring in as many as we have already reached, and more.

Two months of the Conference year are in the past. Have you appointed your Missionary Committee? Has the committee gone to work? Has the name of the chairman been sent your Field Secretary? In about ten months from now somebody is going to ask, "Who hit Billy Patterson?"

Don't ask whose business it is to appoint the committee, "when the world is on fire and the sparks are flying everywhere." This is not so much a matter of duty as it is a matter of life or death. Men with the mind of the Master are looking after this most important work.

"The Sunday School Teacher and the Program of Jesus" is a book written for chairmen of missionary committees, for teachers who want to know how to teach missions, and for anybody who wants to be waked up. It is a book you will want to read the third time before you lend it. Get it now.

Somebody is going to discover that it takes a lot of machinery to run a big church, putting out a big program, to let God save a lost world. Anybody knows machinery without power is powerless. God has let us build a fine machine; now he wants us to let him get into it to make it effective. Intercessory prayer will permit God to do what we cannot do.

Here is a fine note: "I called for a meeting of the high school pupils who are members of my church and to my great delight there were twenty-two present; most of them are delighted with the idea of having a training class for them. We will organize next Sunday afternoon and begin work at once. Order the books you think we need. I expect to teach the class. Come to see us and help us with the work." The church that is so fortunate as to have the services of this man will not want to give him up, so I will not give his name this time.

Some things needed to help others: A Centenary song, a song that all the people will love to sing, a song with a message. Send in a missionary program that you like better than the one published in the Magazine. Tell how you have succeeded in getting your teachers to finish one of the teacher-training books. Tell any good thing you have done or have seen others do. Help the thing along!

"Your classes are habit-factories. What sort o' product is they turnin' out?"

"An' thet brings up 'nother idee—What d'you ask questions fer? Jest fer the answer, or to help the answerer?"

"May be you can teach what you don't know yourself; but you can't teach what you ain't yourself."

If we teach our children to listen for the droppin' of the pennies in the primary class, don't 'spect to hear much bigger coins droppin' on the c'liection plate when those children get growed up."

"I had a pastor one time who used to say 'a home-goin' preacher makes a church-goin' people.' He practiced his motto an' so did the people. Now 'spose us teachers practic'd this more'n we do, what'd happen?"

"Somebody has figgered it out there's seven laws of teachin'. I do'no what they all are, but seems t'me one of 'em ought to be, 'A teacher who comes irreg'larly makes a class who don't come at all.'"

450 REVIVAL SERMONS AND 1,000 RELIGIOUS ANECDOTES. By many of the world's leading preachers, in 3 vols. Price of the 3 books, postage paid, $1.50. Money back if not pleased. The Co-Operative Pub. Co., Kirkwood, Mo.

A NEW BEGINNING.

Dear Mr. Editor: The Pontotoc quarterly conference was held Monday evening in the parlor at the parsonage, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb presiding. All business was well looked after. In view of our Centenary program, much stress was laid on missions. The pastor's salary was fixed at the same figure as last year. Our board has for some years used the budget system and it works well here. The full quarterage on salary was paid, with one hundred and eighty-five dollars over, which we are sending on to our Conference Treasurer for missions. I have been in the Conference 33 years and have served good appointments of their class all the time, yet this is the first time I was ever paid in full more than a month ahead.

When the business had ended, Mrs. Young and Miss Gladys Donaldson served luncheon that was enjoyed by all. We enter upon our fourth year here. As has been usual with us, the prospect is that it will be the best year of the four. In all these years we have served the full four years, save one.

Mr. Editor, we invite you to attend the Aberdeen District Conference this year, which will be held with us at Pontotoc. W. M. YOUNG, P. C.
Pontotoc, Miss., Jan. 22, 1919.

The Inward Effects of humors are worse than the outward. They endanger the whole system. Hood's Sarsaparilla eradicates all humors, cures all their inward and outward effects. It is the great alterative and tonic, whose merit has been everywhere established.—Adv.

WHAT PRAYER IS.

To pray in Christ's name is simply to rest our hope of acceptance, of pardon, of regeneration, of divine help here, and of heaven hereafter, upon the great atonement which Christ has made. Christ's intercession for us is not a beseeching Christ kneeling at the feet of a sovereign Deity, persuading and inducing Him. It is His presence in heaven as the ascended Son of Man, He "appears as a lamb slain," "appears in the presence of God for us."—H. Allan.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Brush this through faded, streaked locks and they become dark, glossy, youthful.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dompen a sponge or soft mrush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

Weekly Health Talks

A WORD ABOUT THE KIDNEYS

BY DOCTOR WATSON.

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart; and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. When the kidneys are diseased, the poisons are spread everywhere, and one of these poisons is uric acid. The uric acid is carried all through the system and deposited in various places, in the form of urate salts—in the feet, ankles, wrists and back—often forming bags under the eyes. Sometimes the resulting trouble is called rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and backache. Finally, come stone in the bladder, diabetes and Bright's disease.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., in recent years, discovered that a certain combination of remedies would dissolve uric acid (urate salts) in the system. He found this combination to be harmless, so that he made it up in tablets, of double strength, and called them Anuric Tablets. They dissolve uric acid in the human system as hot coffee dissolves sugar. If you have uric acid troubles, don't delay in taking Anuric Tablets, which can be secured in the drug stores. You can write Dr. Pierce, too, and he will tell you what to eat and how to live so that more uric acid will not form in your system. Dr. Pierce will not charge for this advice.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society will be held in Mansfield, March 18, 19, 20. This will be a most important meeting, since Centenary plans and methods will be brought out. It is therefore urged that every auxiliary send at least one delegate.

Lists of Officers for 1919.

It is most important that these lists be handed to your District Secretary, so that literature may be mailed to proper addresses. It is also important that pledges be given District Secretary without delay. If you have not attended to these two details in your auxiliary, DO IT NOW.

ATTENTION, METHODIST WOMEN!

What Are You Doing for the Centenary?

As loyal American citizens you responded to every call of the government.

You sewed and knitted.

You conserved food and fuel.

You bought War Stamps and Liberty Bonds.

You gave your daughters as Red Cross nurses and your sons to shed their blood for the sacred cause of Liberty, but—

What Are You Doing for the Centenary?

As loyal Methodists, have you enrolled in the "Fellowship of Intercession," pledging yourself to pray for World-wide Redemption?

As loyal Methodists, have you enlisted in the "Methodist Million," acknowledging God's ownership?

As loyal Methodists are you preparing to take part in the Big Drive April 27-May 4?

Let Us Have No Slackers.

It is the duty of every Methodist to "Carry On" if the world shall be won for Christ.

REMEMBER THE CENTENARY!

"The Missionary Centenary is the largest vision, the greatest challenge, and the finest opportunity of the Methodist Church since the days of Wesley; and perhaps the greatest forward movement of the Church since the days of the apostles. Raising $35,000,000 in five years ought to be a small task for our Church. This is only between twelve and fifteen dollars for each member. All the treasure and resources of earth belong to God, and we are his stewards to render to Him as His cause demands."—W. A. Cade.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN AND THE NEGRO.

The Southern Presbyterian Women's Home Mission Board has for several years held an annual Institute for colored women in Tuscaloosa, Ala., to train leaders in Christian and social work. Some of the courses—in the Bible, sanitation, home management, community work, etc.—are given by prominent white women from various States, some by trained colored women. The attendance this fall was from eleven States. So successful has the Institute been that the church women are hoping for a wider educational work, and land for it has already been offered at several points. Their Sunday school work is also spreading. They have long led the white women of the South in teaching classes in colored Sunday schools—a form of Christian work in which the first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, a Presbyterian girl, engaged during the years preceding her marriage.

CONCERNING ANOTHER COMMANDMENT.

There was a talented author once who noticed people that

"Compound for sins that they're inclined to
"By damning those they have no mind to."

So, although we discuss tithing, Sunday school, missionary work, and preach, preach, preach, unless we are peculiar enough to keep the Sunday commandment more than a civil law requires, why, we are described in that lovely song illustration of Ezekiel 33:32.

We call ourselves the Church Militant, and still, make a practice of being a. w. o. l. on Sundays—absent from obedience—and obedience is better than sacrifice. Convenience isn't the keyword; it's more like fidelity.

In Leviticus 26 and Ezekiel 20 there are judgments declared, and we know that spiritual values are of no less worth now, and are no part of the ceremonial law—even if we do hear a lot about the Sahbath's being made for man. The commandment tells which man.

The bright light that beats about a throne emphasizes this. Till the preachers refrain from using public utilities on Sunday—except in an emergency—much of the Church's effort loses spiritual value and is worse than waste. Being particeps criminis with the railroad company in going to their jobs on Sunday, and other common conduct, makes the unbelievers scoff and do the same, reasoning, probably, that they, too, can go to heaven on a bed of roses superimposed on a crown of thorns. Is it not so? Those scoffers are the keenest critics of the Church, and often wonder why the organization is not more closely bound by its Book of Rules if it is more than a social club—and sometimes a social club is militant enough to enforce regulations.

Between the complexity of our present regime and the necessity of conformity to our profession, comes Christ's teaching, "If thy hand or foot offend thee."

We may resolve and re-resolve, and, in spite of the eloquence, die the same. The Church is in great need of a Christian Sunday conscience to prove its calling and election.

A political speaker, warning the public against the imposition of heavier tariffs on imports, said: "If you don't stop shearing the wool off the sheep that lays the golden egg, you'll pump it dry."

This reminds us of that other farsighted orator who, in a burst of eloquence, said: "All along the untrodden pathways of the past we view the footprints of an unseen hand."—Exchange.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

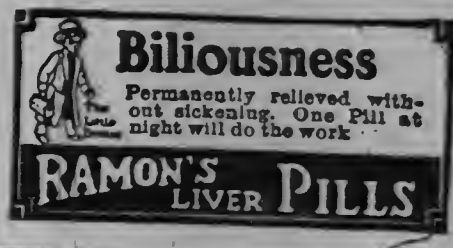
Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, billous atacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the boweis pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.



Vigor

SUCCESS IS ACHIEVED by vigorous men and women. When one is lacking in strength and endurance, when good health is wanting, when physical power is at low ebb, it is impossible to accomplish one's work.

One of the causes of ill health and low vitality is the improper functioning of the kidneys. Trouble results when they fail to eliminate waste and poisonous matter from the system, and rheumatic pains, backache, stiff joints, sore muscles, and other symptoms quickly follow.

Foley Kidney Pills

banish effects of kidney and bladder trouble by removing the cause. They are healing and curative. They tone up and strengthen the weakened or diseased organs.

H. D. Castleberry, Marine Engineer, Port Vincent, La., writes: "I consider Foley Kidney Pills the greatest medicine for kidney and bladder trouble I ever used. I recommend them to all who suffer with kidney and bladder trouble."

NO TONIC LIKE HOOD'S

Sarsaparilla For a Time like This, After Influenza, the Grip,

When pure blood, rebuilt strength and regulated bowels are essential.

In the after-effects of influenza, the grip and other prostrating diseases, Hood's Sarsaparilla has remarkable health-helping effect.

It expels the poisons that have weakened and depleted the blood, causing pallor, anemia, flabby flesh and lax muscles. It is the standard blood remedy with a successful record of nearly fifty years.

Many people need a fine, gentle, easy cathartic in these trying times. We recommend Hood's Pills, used in the best families, and equally effective with delicate women or robust men. Easy to take, easy to operate.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

Mrs. H. M. Patton, Waverly, Mo., writes: "I fed two boxes of 'More Eggs' to my hens and broke the egg record. I got 1,500 eggs from 160 hens in exactly 21 days." You can do as well. In fact, any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker write E. J. Reefer, poultryman, 6251 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a

LETTERS FROM RHEUMATICS.

Possibly you have imagined that you could not get your own consent to write a testimonial letter, but if you have ever experienced the excruciating pains of rheumatism you can at least appreciate the feelings of those who have been relieved of this terrible disease by drinking the Mineral Water from the justly celebrated Shivar Spring. This water overcomes many diseases, including Indigestion, Gout, Uric Acid Poisoning and Liver and Kidney diseases, but no patrons of the Springs are more enthusiastic in their praise of the water that those who have been relieved of their rheumatism. Hundreds of letters like the following have been received by the Management:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick Headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisoning matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of Stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefitted. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr Rhodes, of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The Water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McCann of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offered below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the

A GOOD REPORT FROM ROSE HILL, MISS.

Dear Mr. Editor: When our good Bishop made his "scattering remarks" on Monday morning of our Conference at McComb, I found my name connected with the Rose Hill charge, and we are here. And I had rather be here than at any place this side of heaven, for we asked our Father to bless our Bishop and his cabinet, and to direct in making the appointments for the preachers for the new Conference year; so I feel happy in our new field, because I feel that He is pleased to have us here.

We reached our new home on Dec. 17, late in the evening, and were not going to bother anyone, but the good ladies found that we were in, and they gathered at the home of Miss Bell Shumaker, and, in a short time, had a nice supper prepared, and brought it over and put it on our table. Brother Porter, the father of our two young preachers, figured largely in the affair, too, for he was as busy as a bee all the time. Now, that supper is one that I will not forget, for we had been on our way all day, though not traveling all the time, for we stopped in Bay Springs awhile.

Then, next night our household goods came, and we had just unloaded them, and had things scattered over the house, when a crowd came in and marched down the hall to the dining-room door, and began to try to get in, but the door was latched. When I got it open, they marched in and loaded our table with good things. That did not end the pounding, however, for fresh meat, potatoes and milk and butter have been coming in all along.

I am not surprised that so many good young men have gone from this community to preach the gospel. The Fikes brothers, the Porter brothers, Brothers Davis, Sims, Cooley, and Massey, all are from this good place.

My grandfather Jones preached here years ago. He now sleeps in the Hopewell Cemetery. My father was born and spent his boyhood days in this community, and the names of a goodly number of the people are very familiar to me, for I have heard him speak of them so often.

Of course, we expect a good year, for we expect the prayers of so many for the welfare of the charge.

We miss the many good friends we left at Raleigh; but we left them with a better preacher and pastor, and pray that they may have a good year in every respect.

Our good brother, H. R. McKee, did a good work here on the Rose Hill charge, and our people esteem him very highly. I am glad to have the privilege of following such a man.

Our good presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Linfield, was on our charge the 15th inst., and held our first quarterly conference. He is very much alive, and is looking after all the interests of the district. No more brotherly, congenial and faithful presiding elder has ever presided for me than Brother Linfield.

Only a part of our good stewards were present, but they were very careful in planning for the year's work. I find that I have a fine body of stewards, and these stewards have a fine body of people back of them, and these all, back of a preacher, make him feel like doing his best.

I expect to send in a list of subscribers to the Advocate real soon. We are having some "flu" in our community, which is hindering somewhat our work. Our church at Paulding was closed last Sunday on account of it.

May God bless you and the many readers of our good paper.

M. R. JONES, P. C.
Rose Hill, Miss.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you —Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

FIRST AID TO DIGESTION

In cases of indigestion or dyspepsia, the contents of the stomach, for lack of a proper supply of digestive juices, first ferment, forming gases, and later decompose. This process is attended with more or less discomfort and reacts to the injury of all the digestive organs, with the result of poisoning the entire system, a condition known as auto-intoxication. Three prime considerations arise in treatment of such conditions:

First, the process of decomposition must be arrested, by neutralizing the acid condition of the stomach, thus giving prompt relief from pain.

Second, the salivary glands and other glands which produce the various digestive juices must be stimulated into active secretion in order that the food may be properly digested.

Third, the stomach nerves must be toned up into a healthy state and inflammatory conditions of the membranous lining allayed.

Mi-o-na tablets do this work with remarkable efficiency. So good are they for quick relief and for permanent restoration that they are sold only under guarantee of satisfactory results to the user. WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Help to Pass the Crisis Safely—Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Can be Relied Upon.

Urbana, Ill.—"During Change of Life, in addition to its annoying symptoms, I had an attack of grippe which lasted all winter and left me in a weakened condition. I felt at times that I would never be well again. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for women passing through the Change of Life, so I told my doctor I would try it. I soon began to gain in strength and the annoying symptoms disappeared and your Vegetable Compound has made me a well, strong woman so I do all my own housework. I cannot recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly to women passing through the Change of Life." —Mrs. FRANK HENSON, 1316 S. Orchade St., Urbana, Ill.

Women who suffer from nervousness, "heat flashes," backache, headaches and "the blues" should try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The Missionary Centenary

"What's in a Name?"

Centenary—ITS NAME

As the name "Centenary" indicates, this movement is a celebration commemorating one hundred years. It is the one hundredth anniversary of the Missionary Society.

One hundred years of missions! One hundred years of faithful effort on the part of the great Methodist Church to give Christ to the world as the world's Savior and only hope!

What a century it has been, this century which has witnessed the development of the Methodist missionary movement from the handful of flaming evangelists who followed the immigrant as sheep in the wilderness to an ever-expanding world Church!

Centenary—ITS PROGRAM

The Centenary Program has one end—making democracy safe—and one means of reaching that end—bringing the religion of Jesus Christ into vital contact with the lives of men of all races and tongues. The Centenary World Program includes:

A campaign to release the prayer power of the Church by enrolling tens of thousands in the "Fellowship of Intercession" and training them as prayer helpers.

A stewardship drive to secure the enrollment of a million Methodists who will acknowledge their stewardship by the payment of the tithe.

An appeal for life service to recruit new workers for the ministry, home, and foreign missions, and for service in the local Church.

An eight-day financial drive to raise $35,000,000 within the next five years, to be applied to War Work, Home and Foreign Missions, and Church Extension.

A patriotic Centenary celebration at Columbus, Ohio, June 20-July 7, 1919, the general theme to be the Christian Crusade for World Democracy.

A Program as Wide and Deep as God's Love.

Centenary—ITS PRODUCTS

The successful culmination of the Centenary campaign will produce the following results:

The Americanization and Christianization of foreigners living in the United States.

The expansion of our City Mission Work.

The education of the Negro for safe citizenship.

The elimination of poverty and illiteracy in mountain sections.

Church buildings for every needy congregation.

Adequate support for underpaid pastors.

Reclamation of outcasts.

Improvement of industrial conditions.

Evangelization of non-Christian world.

Equipping and sending abroad three hundred new missionaries.

Training a great native force for Christian leadership.

Reconstruction of war-ravaged countries of Europe.

Centenary—ITS SUPPORTERS

Two million loyal Southern Methodists stand behind this movement.

Of the Protestant population of America, every third man is a Methodist, and, being a Methodist, he is a world citizen with a creed and polity as free and as generous as the winds and the sunshine. Already Methodists are in every land and in strategic positions. It is clear that on Methodist shoulders God has laid a heavy responsibility for the world's salvation.

Methodists, we are facing the lessons of a century. A hundred years of missionary history speak to us. We stand on the mountain-peaks of time. Looking back, our hearts beat high with thanksgiving. Looking forward, our pulses thrill with the vision of opportunity.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A WONDERFUL GOSPEL.

The story of the Gerascne demoniac as told by Luke is a marvelous illustration of the rehabilitating power of the gospel. This demon-possessed man represents the most hopeless case imaginable. He has sunk so low that he is beyond the reach of human power. He disregards utterly all social conventionalities—"he ware no clothes;" he has broken the social compact—"neither abode in any house;" he has lost all social consciousness—he made his home in the tombs; he has antagonized the social order—"he was kept bound with chains, and in fetters," though he could not be held by them; and he had been in this condition "long time." He is an outcast, an object of loathing and hatred, incapable of responding to any gentle influence of his fellow-men, to be treated with violence only. But Jesus comes along, and all is changed. The wondering people, having heard of what has taken place, come out to see for themselves. They find the man, "out of whom the devils were departed," sitting quietly "at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind." The record adds, "And they were afraid." And, mirabile dictu, when Jesus, a little later, denies his request that he might continue with him and instructs him to return to his own house to show what great things God had done for him, he immediately and joyously obeys. The transformation is complete. The hopeless case has become the happy carrier of a message of salvation. He has become a "new creature in Christ Jesus."

Christ has the same power to save to-day. We are not called upon to preach a gospel that has lost its power. All of us know men and women who have been redeemed by it. We do not have to go back nearly two thousand years to find instances of its rehabilitating efficacy. Yesterday, men were made new by it; to-day, they are testifying to its transforming potency. It is a wonderful gospel we are called upon to proclaim.

THE WORM WILL TURN.

The people are long-suffering and patient. inefficiency in the administration of public affairs seems to be looked upon as a matter of course. Now and then a lone voice, or mayhap a small chorus of voices, is raised in protest against some policy, or lack of policy, of the powers that be, but ordinarily things move along in a kind of happy-go-lucky way. Once in a while, however, something happens that stirs the people and a great clamor is raised. Such an occurrence has recently taken place in New Orleans. Several members of the police force are charged definitely and specifically with having attempted, first by intimidation and then by actual arrest, to force a thoroughly respectable woman to pay weekly tribute because, in ignorance of the history of the locality, she was making her home in a section of the city that formerly was set apart for disreputable purposes. It seems to have been a matter of common knowledge that vice still flourished in that section, though high police officials profess to have been in utter ignorance of the fact. But the people of the city have been aroused as we have never known them to be before, and there is good hope that a real investigation will be made which will result in an improvement of conditions that will be worth while. We hope so, at least. The worm seems to have turned. But conditions in New Orleans are not much different from conditions in other cities and throughout the land. An aroused public sentiment is very efficacious in getting what it wants for the time being; but it takes a sentiment that is constantly awake to keep what it has gained. We, as a people, are prone to let such things "blow over," and the forces of evil, biding their time, resume their nefarious practices as of oid. Eternal vigilance is the price not only of liberty but also of decent government. The people are responsible for conditions under which they live.

WHAT WE HOPE.

If it should be necessary at our next General Conference to elect additional bishops, we hope that one of them will decide to take up his residence in New Orleans. Methodism is not very strong, numerically, in the Crescent City, and its financial resources are not such that it could conveniently afford to make any flattering proposition for the establishment of an episcopal residence. But we think the time has come for our Church to take official cognizance of the fact that in the very heart of her territory there is a really great city—a city that in some respects is the greatest in the United States. Its influence in shaping the affairs of the South cannot be overestimated. It is not what it ought to be—far from it—but it is making its influence felt for what it is. Protestantism in this city needs all the reenforcements that are available, not for the sake of the city alone, but for the sake of all this section. A vigorous, progressive, far-seeing, consecrated bishop of our Church, living in the city of New Orleans, could make himself a tremendous force for righteousness, and at the same time do much to give his Church the standing in this section that it ought to have. And New Orleans is a very pleasant place in which to live.

SOMETHING IS WORTH WHILE.

A characteristic incident is related of Theodore Roosevelt by Jacob Riis in his life of the former President. At a Harvard reunion, a professor told of asking a graduate what would be his work in life. "Oh," said the graduate, "really, you know, nothing seems to me much worth while." Roosevelt got up and said to the professor: "That fellow ought to have been knocked on the head. I would take my chances with a blackmailing policeman sooner than with him." We say "Amen." Deliver us from the poor, ignorant, self-sufficient, egotistical weakling whose philosophy of life is summed up in, "What's the use?" The world is full of men's tasks; find one and go to it.

NO TIME TO LOSE.

The Centenary Campaign is moving on apace. The connectional leaders are hard at work, the Conference secretaries are busy holding group meetings, and the preachers generally are taking advantage of every opportunity to inform themselves thoroughly as to the details of the plans that have been so carefully prepared for carrying the Campaign through successfully. This is well. There is no time to be lost. We have suffered serious interruption in some places on account of the epidemic of influenza, but we must overcome every difficulty that arises. This is a great movement that takes in all the interests of the Church. We must not allow anything to interfere with our efforts to accomplish even more than is involved in the program as laid down. It is an opportunity such as comes only once in a great while. We are setting the pace now that will largely determine our progress for years to come. The minister or layman who fails to enter into this movement heartily and enthusiastically is missing the chance of his life to become identified with an epoch-making event. We must enlist all the resources of our Church, spiritual and material, in behalf of this great cause. Our minute-men must do their work energetically, and our committees must be ready to do what is expected of them. The entire membership of our Church must have the Centenary message presented to it in detail and with full emphasis. The days are slipping by—there is no time to lose.

NEEDED—MORE DAYS.

We presume that our pastors are receiving as many appeals for the observance of special days as come to this office. Some of the calls are authorized by the Government, others by various organizations, all of them representing praiseworthy causes. At the same time, our Centenary program is so arranged as to call for practically all the services of the Church from this time until the "Drive" has been completed. In our opinion, the Centenary cause has right of way over every other enterprise—nothing should be allowed to interfere with it. There will be some opportunity, however, to present other claims. So far as practicable, our people should be given the privilege of contributing to them all. If we could extend the calendar, we should be glad to set apart a whole service for the consideration of some of the causes that appeal to us so strongly.

THE CONCRETE VERSUS THE ABSTRACT.

People generally have difficulty in taking hold of an abstract proposition. It is too much like reaching out into the thin air and grasping nothing. When we are assigned a definite task, we know where to begin, how to proceed, and when we have reached the end. Instead of telling our people to do something, let's try telling them what to do. And we might show them how.

THE WITHERED HAND—WHOLE.

Praise God! Praise God! Give me my tools again!
Oh, let me grasp a hammer and a saw;
Bring me a nail, and any piece of wood.
Come, see me shut my hand and open it,
And watch my nimble fingers twirl a ring.
How good are solids—oak, and stone and iron,
And rough and smooth and straight and curved and round!
Here, Hannah: for these long and weary years
My hand has ached to smooth your shining hair
And touch your dimpled cheek. Come, wife, and see:
I am a man again, a man for work.
A man for earning bread and clothes and home;
A man, and not a useless hold-the-hand;
A man, no more a bandaged cumberer.
Oh, blessed Sabbath of all Sabbath days!

And did you hear them muttering at Him?
And did you see them looking sour at me?
They'll cast me from the synagogue, perchance.
But let them: I've a hand, a hand, a hand!
And ah, dear wife, to think He goes about
So quietly, and does such things as this.
Making poor half-men whole, in hand and foot,
In eye and ear and witless maniac mind.
To get such a praise as that! Well, here's a hand.
A strong, true hand that now is wholly His,
To work or fight for Him or what He will;
For He has been the hand of God to me.

OBJECTS FOR PRAYER—AN INTERPRETATION.

By Rev. S. A. Neblett, Secretary

A superficial acquaintance with the Fellowship of Intercession might lead one to infer that this Department of the Centenary had been set up for the purpose of enabling the Church to attain unto a certain financial goal; that prayer was to be made a means, and $35,000,000.00 an end. A cursory reading of the "Objects for Prayer," printed on the obverse side of the Fellowship of Intercession enrollment blank, may have created the impression in some minds that prayer in connection with the Centenary is a mere bridge to carry it across. No impression could be more erroneous. Now that tens of thousands have enrolled in the prayer army, the great white host in the van of the Centenary, we may well take time to analyze the objects for which they are asked to pray.

Let it be understood at the outset that the statement of these objects is not intended to be a comprehensive detailed program for a life of prayer. It only suggests some specific objects and general lines related to the Centenary that intercessors will do well to follow. Yet we find even in this specific and limited statement the germ of an ideal and of a spiritual purpose which, if expanded and allowed to grow and develop, will revolutionize the prayer life of the average Methodist.

The first suggested object for prayer is: "That all the leaders of the campaign may be chosen of God and empowered for service." The emphasis is not merely on the campaign. From the beginning it has been stated and emphatically reiterated that the first goal of the Centenary is the enrichment through prayer of the spiritual life of the Church. That ideal is dominant in the campaign. Prayer for the leaders is prayer for the leaders of the entire Church, bishops, presiding elders, preachers in charge, lay leaders (directors, minute men), officers and leaders in the Sunday school, the Epworth League, the Woman's Missionary Society, for they are all leaders in the Centenary campaign. Prayer is to be offered that they may be chosen of God and empowered for service, not merely intoxicated for a momentary outburst of activity. When the Spirit empowers a man for service, He does an organic work that is not merely to furnish power for an eight-day campaign, but for the entire out-reach of the life. If two million Methodists pray this prayer, what a magnificent leadership will be raised up for the coming years!

The second object for prayer is: "That the plans may be inaugurated and carried through in obedience to the will of God." This is a petition for the success of Centenary plans, but of more importance still, it is the laying of the Centenary and its plans before God, and the Christlike submission of the petition and the intercessor to the Divine direction. What is more needed in the Church today than a return to that spirit and the practice by the entire Church of waiting upon God? We need to universalize among us the Jericho and ante-Pentecostal plan of obeying the Divine will in detail, even when it involves tarrying longer than human reason would indicate as necessary.

We are asked to pray, in the third place, "That the financial appeal may be made in a spirit and the money secured by methods that will enrich the life of the Church and inspire it with new faith and courage." Here again we see that the chief concern is not for the money to be secured, but that the financial drive may prove a means of grace to the Church, that it may so enrich our life and enlarge our vision that we may have faith and courage to address ourselves as a Church to the obedience of the Great Commission.

Lastly, we are to pray "That the Centenary Campaign may mark a turning point in the history of Methodism and usher in a new era of spiritual conquest." Surely language could not be clearer in expressing the desire of our hearts for a new Spirit-filled, divinely led Methodism, concerned with spiritual contests and conquests at home and abroad, in which every one of us is to have a part. We cannot sincerely, earnestly and habitually pray this prayer without ourselves experiencing a growth in grace, and at the same time lifting our beloved Methodism to a higher spiritual level where the extraordinary and difficult of today shall become the usual and easy tasks of tomorrow. Let us pray along these lines, and we shall come to realize from experience their far-reaching, spiritual and abiding nature.

THE CENTENARY AND THE PREACHER—WHAT TO DO.

Of course you have your minute-men at work and your Centenary Committee well organized, Brother Preacher. The next step is the finishing-up program, to be put on in each church in each pastoral charge on four successive Sundays, February 16 to March 9. On February 16, you are requested to preach on "The General and Providential Aspects of the Centenary." The following Sunday, February 23, the subject will be "The Stewardship of Prayer—Intercession." Having preached the special sermon, you will ask the congregation to enter the fellowship of intercession by signing at once the pledge card. With the aid of your Centenary Committee, you will then make an every-member canvass of the entire membership for signers to the pledge. Make this canvass a thorough one. Do not miss a single member of the church! Then forward the pledges secured to Nashville.

March 2, you are requested to preach on "The Stewardship of Life—Enlistment for Service at Home and Abroad."

March 9, the subject will be, "The Stewardship of Money—Tithing." Again you will ask those present to sign a pledge—the pledge to tithe as an earnest of their stewardship. And again you are asked to make an every-member canvass of the entire membership. Do not ask for a contribution, do not take a collection, but ask your people to pledge themselves to the principle of tithing.

May we not count on you, Brother Preacher? May not the Church count on you to carry out loyally this program?

The Centenary Anniversary has the whole Church behind it by the unanimous action of the General Conference. These things that you are asked to do are a part of the "standard plan" presented by the Centenary Commission. If any one man fails to do his part at the right time, the whole Church will suffer to some extent. The Southern Methodist Church asks and expects to receive your loyal co-operation in this world-task.

But what about this "plan" where a preacher has more than one church? I am glad you sprung that question, Brother Preacher. The circuit preacher is the man who needs help, in this case and some others, and the Centenary is going to help the man who most needs it. Here is "the plan": Put on this program in each church in your charge! Make use of your "minute-men," your lay leaders, your local preachers and specially invited men from other charges. Ask the Conference Secretary, the presiding elder and the district minute-man to assist you in securing special speakers for these four Sundays. You, yourself, can put on the program at two points, probably—at one place in the morning and at another in the evening. Make your plans, and carry out "the plan." The plan will work, if you will; so let us put it over altogether!

MY EXPERIENCE WITH THE "Y."

By Rev. J. Tillerry Lewis.

Dear Advocate: Days have lengthened into weeks, and weeks into months, since I wrote for the columns of the Advocate, except my "Fare Thee Well, Brother Watkins-ah" article that appeared while I was in training in New York for overseas duty with the "Y." After this, I shall wait until I am about ready to return from France before I announce my departure. My friends—and some who are not friends—have laughed much over the fact of my disappointment in not getting to France. In a way, the disappointment was great; yet, from another point of view, I was glad when I learned that the need for "Y" workers was not as great as most of us thought, after the armistice was signed.

I volunteered for "Y" work with our boys in France while the war was at its worst, so far as our part in it is concerned. There was considerable delay in securing passports, etc., that prevented my knowing that I could go to France until Nov. 2. I was in suspense about the matter for three and a half months. Then the armistice was signed before I could make necessary preparation to get away. After the armistice was signed, I felt that it was the part of wisdom to withdraw my application for service with the "Y" in France, but I received letters from the War Personnel Board of the "Y" in New York, urging me not to withdraw, and insisting that the need was even then greater than ever before. Not knowing an honorable way out of the matter, I decided that I would just put my trust in God and walk by faith. Having volunteered with no motive save that of a desire to serve God and humanity and the highest interest of God's kingdom among men, and because of an inward conviction that I ought to get under the world's greatest burden and help to carry same in a very definite way, I felt that I could not do better than put my trust in God and await developments. But for the fact that I felt that there was a work for me to do in Aberdeen, I would have gone into "Y" work early last year. I had an offer from Dr. Alexander, the personnel director of the Southeastern Department of the "Y," last January, but declined to accept because I believed that it was not to the highest interest of our church for me to leave my charge just at that time, and under the conditions under which I was asked to go.

Personally, I had thought out the matter of the hardships, sacrifices, etc., that one had to undergo really to serve the highest moral and spiritual good of our boys who were under fire in France. With the facts before me, I decided that for His sake I could easily afford to die, if necessary, that I might help our boys in their moral and spiritual lives, as they were risking their physical lives to make the world safe for democracy. It was with that spirit and thought that I put in my application for the "Y"; therefore, when it became evident that such sacrifice was not necessary, I was really thankful to our Divine Father for the privilege of working anywhere on earth in a purely constructive way. If I could have gotten over to France while the war was on, and could have had a part in keeping fit the morale of our army in that great work, I should have counted myself one of the privileged men of the earth. But I am frank to say that after the signing of the armistice I had no desire at all to go to France; therefore, when I was returned, it was no great disappointment to me.

Had I volunteered for religious work in the "Y," I would likely have been sent on over, but when I volunteered they were needing men in the athletic line of work more than in any other. Though I know but little about outdoor sports, I at one time was an expert in indoor sports; therefore, I was sought by the recruiting officer of Mississippi because he figured that, as an old indoor sports director, I could easily qualify in all athletic work that the "Y" was giving to our men. The signing of the armistice, however, created a new condition as to athletic directors. Thousands of trained athletic men were released from army duty by the signing of the armistice. Besides this, the new conditions that the "Y" confronted with an army of two million men who are largely idle, and who were on their ears to get home, demanded that they secure only trained expert athletic leaders. Therefore, we amateur men were automatically left out. Through my correspondence, I was known with the "Y" only as an amateur athletic director. The three hundred men who were sent home at the time I was returned were each handled through their previous correspondence.

I have made the foregoing full statement of the case because I think it is but just to the "Y." Personally, I have nothing but words of praise for the "Y," so far as their treatment of me is concerned. They sought to be fair, honest, just, and equitable. They treated me as an equal, and as a brother.

I will, at some future time, tell the readers of the Advocate about this growing town and our great church people here. I will say this much in passing: Our Board here is composed of young, aggressive men, who love God, and who believe in giving a minister a living wage. And these good ladies of our church have no superiors at all, and but few equals. We are expecting the greatest year, so far, in real constructive work for our Savior that we have ever had. Pray for us.

HOW PAUL PRAYED.

By Rev. Hilary S. Westbrook.

From the genesis of Paul's Christian ministry among men, we can readily see how earnestly he prayed for the churches so strenuously in the midst of his strenuous life. His epistles are shot through and through with most earnest prayer. Take Paul's prayers for the Ephesians, for the Philippians, and other believers as well, and if you want to know how to pray in the will of God for others, pray those prayers. You are always safe in offering them for every child of God you know. I am of the opinion that it must be better to pray those prayers than any words of your own. For they are words well seasoned with the grace and love of God. You will be safe to ask in the will of God then, for the will of God is in them all.

Let us observe, also, what Paul asks on his own behalf, his appeals for himself, and you will see how Paul's needs touch the real needs of the servants of God to-day in their Kingdom work. Oh, that God would give to his servants a deeper knowledge of this mighty work of prayer! There is not a single one of his children that cannot give himself to God for this specifically. The question frequently asked by many is, "How are we to get time?" Time? Why, all the day long. Oh, but you say, you never could do it, for you have work to do. That may be true in your case. But will you stop and think of the many empty moments that could be occupied with prayer, and turned into golden treasures of fruitage for the Church of Christ our King?

Briefly, what did the Apostle Paul ask for himself? Romans. 15:30: "I beseech you brethren, by the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of the Spirit, that ye strive together with me in your prayers to God for me." Now, here we have a definite coworking of Paul and the saints in the prayer for himself. He said, "Strive with me." Do you know how to "strive" for another in the realm of prayer? If two souls enter into a covenant to pray, and one is intense, with a profound purpose towards God, and the other is just as weak as the other is intense, without purpose, without intensity—then there is no "striving together." For an example, we take the striking picture portrayed in the 2d chapter of The Acts of the Apostles, and we find the saints were together, "striving together," with but the one definite end in view, and that was for the promised blessing from God the Father, "the baptism of the Holy Ghost." As a man of God, do you know the way to "strive together" in this effort of united prayer?

Paul said, "Pray that my ministry may be acceptable." Have you ever prayed that the ministry of God's servants might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost? Yes, pray fervently that they may never go elsewhere outside of the will of God; pray that they may be delivered; for every bit of evangelistic work that is done through them to-day is done in the teeth of opposition, as much as in the days of the Apostle Paul.

There were prayers behind Paul. Possibly Paul did not know one-half of what God was doing with him for His militant Church. He loved his life in pressure and conflict, and suffering, and service, hardly dreaming what God was doing for the whole Church of Christ through him as His faithful ambassador.

Mighty man of God as Paul was, he was asking for the support of others' prayers. If the mighty Apostle of the Gentiles needed this ceaseless striving together with him, in all the places that he went to with God's message of salvation from sin, what about God's servants now? Oh, servants of the most high God, you are not independent of prayer! It matters not how much God may have used you in the past, in "soul-winning," and how much you may happen to know of the Holy Ghost, and His power working through you, you still need the prayers of others for you. Never will you attain to that height in the economy of God where you will not need the prayers of others for your success. Paul needed them, and so will you.

Do we need a revival of prayer in the Church to-day? Yes, it is needed badly, and may the coming of the Missionary Centenary drive be used as the soul-agent to bring about this revival in the Church. So mote it be.

RECOLLECTIONS.

Dear Brother Carley: You will please excuse pencil, as my hand is too nervous for pen and ink. Questions 20 and 21 carry with them thoughts of long ago.

J. W. Anderson is one of the old guard. Thomas Cameron fell in our class at Water Valley in 1871 in the organization of the North Mississippi Conference, and did some fine preaching at my camp meeting in 1882.

D. M. Cogdale was at Byhalia in 1872 when Bishop Paine gave us young preachers a severe lecture about opening our pulpits to preachers who were not in good standing; Rev. Jack Moss came to the front, and exposed the case in question rather at the expense of the Bishop, which caused some amusement.

Rev. T. G. Freeman was the first one whom I spent a night with as I entered my first circuit in 1869, with whom I spent many pleasant hours afterwards.

R. T. Gore was with me in a meeting the night T. W. and Nannie Lewis were converted. There I saw every one in the house either praying, working with penitents, or shouting.

J. M. Huggin and I roomed together at Grenada in 1879 in a house where three had died the year before of yellow fever. The night he reached Conference he took sick with malarial hematuria. I nursed him through one of the most malignant types, and only got out to church to hear Sam Steel preach on the vicarious suffering of Christ.

E. Johnson and W. M. Langley have been there many years.

J. H. Mitchell and his brothers were converted at Abbeville. Amos Kendall did most of the preaching and Jim Bates was the pastor.

There is J. D. Newson, always ready and full of cheerful words and quaint jokes. T. C. Wier, one of the best friends I ever had, was present at my annual camp meeting, where I had done two years of the most trying work of my life. When appointed to the work, J. B. Stone slapped me on the shoulder and said, "Sam, roll up your sleeves and wade into that difficulty, and I will stand by you." I found eleven local preachers and seven exhorters with an organization to rule the pastor or starve him. I got on to their plan and literally broke it up; so at my fourth quarterly conference my presiding elder asked a question that gave a chance for a public insult. I was crushed and decided to locate. That night, Dr. Wier in his opening prayer held me up at a throne of grace that I might overcome what I had endured that evening. I said in response, "Oh, God, show me what is my duty and I will do it or die." On Monday night, after all my help had gone, I realized one of the greatest victories I ever witnessed. No tongue can tell what I felt and saw. My last association with Dr. Wier, I preached for him a week at Sardis and he and Brother C. N.

Terry, P. E., came and spent a delightful week with me in 1885.

I heard W. S. Harrison preach in 1862, and was with him often later. W. C. Lester and I were often together. S. M. Thames was my presiding elder two years. H. C. Morehead and I were in the class of seven who joined Conference at Holly Springs in 1869, and only three have fallen. None of the class died under 45 years of service.

J. J. Brooks is appointed to preach his semi-centennial sermon next fall. If I can, I expect to hear him. Yours in Christ,

S. W. MILLER.

YAZOO CITY METHODISTS—A GREAT AND RESPONSIVE PEOPLE.

Many of the readers of the Advocate remember the fact that in May, 1904, this city was swept by a disastrous fire, in which all the churches of the city were burned. During the early part of the next year, this congregation began the building of a beautiful and commodious church, which cost at that time, when completed and furnished, about $30,000. Three years later they bought a parsonage, for which they paid $7,000.

Like many congregations, they spent money faster than they collected it from the congregation. Hence the trustees had to borrow money with which to meet all these outstanding obligations. Within a few years from the time they began this work of rebuilding, the boll weevil struck this county and paralyzed the money crop. Many of these people could not then do what they had hoped and planned to do.

This church has had some faithful and consecrated pastors during these past fourteen years. They have all felt the burden hanging over this congregation on account of this heavy debt. Some, if not all, of these pastors have made earnest efforts to reduce this debt, or to get it out of the way entirely. It had been reduced some, from time to time. But upon my arrival here as pastor, the latter part of December, I found a $4000 mortgage on the church building and a $3000 mortgage on the parsonage, with accrued interest amounting to $250 more, making a total indebtedness of $7250 hanging over this congregation at the beginning of the fourteenth year since the building work began.

On the first Sunday morning that I tried to preach here as pastor of these people, the secretary of the board of stewards made some introductory remarks, in which he referred to this debt as being in the way, and hoped that the people would pay it before night. One man volunteered a contribution on it. At a meeting of the board of stewards on the last night of the old year, I was informed that this church could not do certain things on account of this debt and interest bills to meet. I saw then that our hands would be tied when the Missionary Centenary drive came unless we could get this debt out of the way before that time. I tried to keep my ears open and my heart responsive to the real spirit of these people, and my faith in God clear and strong at the same time. I was soon convinced that the people longed to get rid of the debt. And when the local papers published a statement of the prosperity of the banks and all business interests, I knew the people were able to pay this debt.

On the second Sunday in January I threw out a challenge to the members present on that day, saying that if they would help me get the membership out to church the next Sunday morning and would give their attention to the subject of the hour, "First Things First," that within one week's time we would have the whole indebtedness pledged, and all of it paid and the mortgages canceled within less than thirty days. They accepted the challenge. Many of our people were at church the following Sunday. The Lord was present in the services of the hour. We called a meeting of the officials of the church for 3 o'clock that afternoon. We organized by electing a chairman and a secretary-treasurer. All of us present pledged as much as we felt able to give, and then they went out in groups of two to canvass the rest of the membership. By the evening preaching hour the chairman reported the amount needed in sight.

On Sunday morning of the 26th inst., I called for a report of the treasurer. His figures were as follows: Number of contributors, 125; the largest contribution from the members, $750; the smallest, 50 cents; total paid in during the week, now available for the debt and improvements, $8555. Hence, you see, we went "over the top" by a large margin within one week's time.

The one feature of this achievement that causes me most joy is that I did not have to collect one dollar of this fund. Just as soon as we got these people to believe they could lift this debt and do it now, they went out after the money and got it. It came so rapidly and readily that the whole membership is wondering how it was done. When the treasurer finished his report, the congregation arose and sang "Praise God, from Whom All Blessings Flow" with a new enthusiasm.

Bishop John C. Kilgo has already promised to be with us on the fourth Sunday in February to dedicate the church for us. He will spend several days with us, preaching to our people and the preachers of the Jackson District.

We give a special invitation to all former pastors to be with us at the dedication of this beautiful church.

I believe that this is the year of all years thus far in the world's history, when we as pastors should "expect great things from God and attempt great things for God."

SARDIS DISTRICT NOTES.

Rev. Carroll Varner, who was recently transferred from the Holston to the North Mississippi Conference, has made a fine impression at Hernando. The assessment for his support was increased $300, with a possibility that this advance may yet be added to. The board of stewards at Hernando is made up of a choice group of progressive young business men, and the outlook for our church there seems to be very bright.

Rev E. G. Mohler has made a good beginning at Sardis. His salary was advanced from $1200 to $1500, and the budget system of caring for all the finances of the church has been adopted. The president of the Sardis official board is Mr. E. L. Howry, a leading merchant of the town, under whose capable leadership the excellent plans matured will be faithfully executed.

No church in the district has a more attractive and convenient house of worship than the one at Batesville. Rev. Melville Johnson has started splendidly in that prosperous town. The assessment for his support was fixed at $1500, an advance of $300 over that of last year. This congregation numbers many choice spirits among its members.

Rev. J. T. Lewis has captured Charleston, which is fast becoming one of the first towns in North Mississippi. His salary was fixed at $2000, an increase of $500. Methodism leads in this developing community, an attractive new church and a neat new parsonage having recently been erected. Watch Charleston henceforth take rank with the foremost appointments in the North Mississippi Conference!

The year has opened well at Tunica, where Rev. H. E. Carter is pastor. The preacher's salary was advanced from $1200 to $1500, and plans are being considered for extensive improvements on the already neat and finely located parsonage. We have a splendid corps of officials at Tunica. Magruder, Warfield, Wadley, Butts and Sledge would be an honor to any charge.

Rev. J. H. Ingram is in high favor on the Evansville work. And it is a choice flock that he serves. It is doubtful whether there is in Mississippi a village congregation that surpasses the one at Evansville in intelligence and liberality. Mr. S. W. Owen, one of the first citizens of the entire Delta, is an active member of this church, and it embraces quite a number of superior workers. Brother Ingram's salary was not fixed because the muddy roads prevented a full attendance of the officials, but it will probably be around $1800.

Como has lately lost considerably in financial strength by removals, but the salary was kept at $1500. Methodism is the foremost denomination in this beautiful town. Our house of worship is a gem, and the choir sings in a manner to inspire one. Brother and Sister Neblett and "the quartet" are worthily representing our Church in this interesting field.

The meeting of the District Stewards and the District Centenary meeting at Sardis on Jan. 15 were fairly well attended. Rev. B. P. Jaco, Dr. A. F. Watkins, and Mrs. M. L. Hargrove made several excellent talks, and helpful brief addresses were delivered by Rev. J. T. Lewis, Rev. Carroll Varner, and Rev. R. H. B. Gladney. Mrs. Hargrove was given a warm reception in Sardis, where her lamented husband, Rev. T. B. Hargrove, was pastor for three years more than two decades ago. She was most delightfully remembered by the people.

BACK TO ST. LOUIS.

By Rev. Theodore Copeland, D. D.

Leaving Texarkana on Dec. 31, in company with my sons, Theodore and Phillips, we set our faces toward St. Louis. Our carrier was the "Sunshine" train on the Iron Mountain Railroad, and our journey lay through a magnificent stretch of field and forest. One who has never traveled in the great West cannot properly appreciate the vast proportions of the American continent. The majestic rivers, the extended plains, the undulating hills, and the lofty mountains, could supply wealth and transportation for two or three times the present population of our country.

Reaching St. Louis on New Year's Day, we spent the happy hours visiting among former parishioners. I was pastor of St. Paul's four years, and served Cabanne the same length of time. At St. Paul's, H. W. Peters was my leading layman, and Governor Lon V. Stephens was my main man at Cabanne. These princely laymen helped me much in my work, and I found the members of these two churches ready and anxious to do great things for God. I was delighted to revisit this city, which is the gateway of the West. Everything in St. Louis has been projected on a gigantic scale. The city looked quite familiar and good to me. Somehow, I have felt more at home here than anywhere else, as I am acquainted with thousands of people, know the great preachers, the great doctors, the great lawyers, the editors, the hotel people, the barbers, and many others.

The Southern Methodists have always been strong in St. Louis. They have had some of the best talent in the Church, such men as Dr. Matthews, Dr. J. W. Lee, and Bishop McMurry. Dr. L. E. Todd has wrought nobly and successfully. As Secretary of the Finance Board, he has the biggest job of his life, but the literature he is distributing is enough to stir the conscience of the whole Church, and he will no doubt accomplish his stupendous undertaking. Dr. Alf E. Smith has just left the old Centenary Church, to take charge of the St. Louis Christian Advocate. He is worthy to edit that paper, which Dr. McAnnally placed in the front ranks of Methodist journalism. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt is now at St. John's Church, preaching to packed houses. All of our churches here are served by strong, capable men, and an excellent spirit pervades religious circles. C. W. Tadlock is presiding elder of the district, a man who measures up to the heavy responsibility of his office, and the outlook is quite encouraging. The godly influence of Bishop Hendrix is like ointment poured forth, not only in this city, but in all the region round about. Bishop W. B. Murrah has captured and captivated the Missourians. Good and great man, is he.

Murray Carleton, a member of Centenary, has stood by his church through storm and sunshine—a pillar of strength in times of great need. Other strong, substantial, dependable laymen are Governor Stephens, Frank C. Rand, William Sloan, Louis Bouger, Fred W. Goessling and J. W. Estes. The true, brotherly spirit which pervades these churches is remarkable, and strongly appeals to the stranger within their gates. Our church is keeping pace with the rapid growth and development of the city, making a record which should inspire our whole Church.

Theodore has been with the Peters Shoe Company several years, and Phillips is now with Mr. Frank C. Rand, President of the International Shoe Company. Both of my boys have just returned from the war, and they are quite fortunate to be associated in business with the above-named gentlemen.

My present pastorate is in a thriving town, full of churches and schools. The First Methodist Church at this place is ideal from every point of view. We have nearly 800 members, and all the departments are doing excellent work. This is the best board of stewards I have ever known. Brother James A. Buchanan is the efficient chairman, wealthy in things material and thoroughly religious, throwing his whole soul into the business of the church. His wife, an elect lady, is not a whit behind him. Our parsonage is one of the best in the entire connection. Every indication points to a prosperous year, and we expect to make a good report at the next Conference.

THE MAKING OF A LEADER

The great crisis incident in the early and formative period of the life of Moses was that one of his espousal of the cause of his enslaved and ill-used countrymen by the slaying of the Egyptian taskmaster who was found beating a fellow Hebrew. Moses had grown up at the Egyptian court in a position of power and influence and privilege. But it was also a position of special temptation and danger. There was the temptation to luxury, to a false idea of life, and a temptation to forget all about his national heritage and ideals and his relation to his fellow Hebrews, whose position in the land of their adoption was coming to be an unbearable one. It would have been very easy for Moses, who knew nothing personally of hardship, or want, or slavery, not to see the hardship and misery and suffering of his countrymen. History has had many examples of men just about as good as Moses was who seemed to have no eyes to see the injustice and suffering and hardship that did not touch them. But the future delivery of Israel, even amid all the enervating and demoralizing tendencies that surrounded his life at the Egyptian court, kept his sense of justice keen and his interest in the condition and need of his people alert and loyal. We can easily imagine that the lessons that his mother taught him in those early days of his life in Pharaoh's household, and the spirit she was able to instil into him, bore good fruit in these after days.

Moses' interference in behalf of his countrymen in the incident referred to above did not seem to result in any immediate good. We might say that it was a hasty and ill-considered act, and that it resulted as most hasty and ill-considered efforts to right wrong usually do. But when we have said that, we have not said everything. The spectacle of the Egyptian ill-using his own countryman roused his sense of justice, and violently to rouse that impulse within him was to give birth to a new passion for righteousness, while his act in hitting out so violently against the wrong committed him absolutely and irrevocably to the cause of the Hebrew people. We might say that it would have been wiser for him to have controlled himself and have gone at his task of deliverer with greater caution and care, and yet we remember that some people are so careful that they make no mistake and do no hasty or untempered acts, that they never really get started doing anything. Moses, in an outburst of passion against injustice and unrighteousness, committed himself absolutely and without reserve to the cause of righteousness and goodness, and that commital meant everything for the future, even though for the time being nothing of practical significance came from it.

This slaying of the Egyptian taskmaster marked Moses' open and unflinching avowal of the cause of his down-trodden countrymen; but preparation for his task of leadership in their deliverance had yet to be made. It is one thing to set your will and purpose to a task, and nothing will be accomplished until that is done; but after that, there must come careful and thorough preparation and training for it, and how well it will be done depends very largely on the carefulness and care of that preparation and training. If Moses had followed up his outburst of sudden passion by equally untempered efforts at deliverance, he probably would not have got on very far. But the days and years of preparation were necessary for the great undertaking that was before him.

In a general way, we can see two directions in which that work of preparation went on through the years. If he was to lead his people out into a new life, two things above all others were necessary—first, that he should have a vivid realization of their need, of their miserable and pitiable condition; and, second, that he should see the plan of deliverance as under God's hand, and realize how thoroughly committed to the task were all the divine forces and agencies. And the years spent in Midian brought those two facts home to him with wonderful vividness and realism.

As a keeper of sheep and living the wild, free life in the open, the thought of his people in slavery, bound down with burdens too grievous to be borne, grew upon him until it became unbearable to him, and he felt that something must be done. And at the same time, in the wilderness he realized a fresh sense of God until His greatness and holiness and love became supreme in his thought, and earth was crammed with heaven and every common bush aflame with God.

Moses' preparation for his task was just as every man's must be. First, the thought of the greatness and importance of the work that was given him to do came home to him, and following that came the realization of the greatness and sufficiency of the God who stood committed to help him in it. And men never succeed in doing great things in the world until both these things become very vivid and real. If we look upon life as a joke and refuse to take it seriously, or if we shut out of it the strength and courage and sufficiency that come through faith in and dependence upon the eternal, we need never expect that it will show any great or worth-while deeds or achievements.—William Black, in The Christian Guardian.

A NOTE OF APPRECIATION.

Dear Brother Carley: I wish to express through the columns of the Advocate my very highest appreciation of the many letters and telegrams of condolence received from friends and ministers of the Mississippi and the North Mississippi Conferences. My heart is very grateful for the many tender, kind and encouraging words that have been received.

I also wish to request the prayers of my brethren for sustaining grace. The loss of my only brother just before Christmas and the loss of my wife on the 13th of this month have been hard blows.

Please remember me at a throne of mercy.

Faithfully your brother,

J. A. GEORGE.

TRYING TO DO TOO MUCH

As we passed along the street the other day we saw a street cleaner shovelling snow into a city cart. The snow had caked, and the man, in trying to handle a large shovelful, would get so much on his shovel that before he could get it into the cart nearly half of it would fall off the shovel. He really had to lift perhaps a third of the snow twice. He meant well, but he would probably have done more work if he had been content to do less. You can't always measure a man's efficiency by the size of his shovelful. It isn't what you take off the street which counts; it is what gets into the cart.

And there are scores of hard-working men and women who are evermore trying to do too much, and whose efficiency is lessened by their eagerness to work. We have known women who would always try to add to the day's work one or two more duties than they could possibly perform, and some of the work would consequently have to be done over again the next day, or else the extra load would so use them up that the day's extra task would mean a day in bed, sick. And we have known the preacher take on so many extra duties that sermon, visiting, study and everything else paid the penalty for his folly. And we have known the farmer add acre to acre until the task of his large farm was so illy done that some of his neighbors would get more off their fifty acres than he would off his two hundred acres.

The excuse in most cases is that the work is there and some one has to do it; but this excuse is wide of the point, as the work does not get done, but rather the extra load which the man or woman has assumed lessens and does not increase the daily output. Efficiency demands that we do our very best, but it does not demand, but rather forbids, attempting to do more than our strength or ability will permit us to do well. Forcing the pace, speeding up, carrying a full head of steam, may sometimes be wise, but when it means loss of working efficiency it is not wise. Every worker has a right to ask himself how much of his activity is really wise and useful. We should work, but we should know how to work wisely and how to rest wisely.—Selected.

HINDRANCES.

These are the things that hinder a mighty work of God in the individual man; present sin; unconfessed and unrectified past sin; an unforgiving spirit; fear of surrendering unreservedly to the will of God; pride; unbelief. Which of them is the hindrance in your case? Be in earnest; find out the hindrance, and ask God to take it away.—R. A. Torrey.

WOO SING'S MIRROR.

By Jean Mateer Beeman

One day, upon returning from the great city, Woo Sing's father brought him the gift of a mirror.

Now the little Chinese lad had never before seen a mirror. While he was out playing with his chums it was hung up in his room, and when he came in and saw himself reflected on its shining surface, he thought it must be another boy.

He was very glad, for he thought the other boy had come to play with him. He spoke in a friendly manner to the stranger, but received no reply.

He laughed and waved his hand at the boy in the glass, who did the same thing in precisely the same way. Then Woo Sing thought, "I'll go closer. Perhaps he cannot hear me." But when he walked, that other boy imitated him.

Woo Sing didn't like to be mocked, so he became vexed, and the more he thought about it the angrier he grew. Then he noticed that the other boy was angry too. Therefore, Woo Sing grew frantic with rage, and struck at the boy in the mirror. But he only hurt his own hand, and rushed off to his father for comfort.

His father said: "The boy you saw was your own image. This should teach you an important lesson, my lad. You struck the boy in the glass and hurt only yourself. Now remember, that in real life, when you strike without cause, you will hurt yourself most of all."—Exchange.

REAL DOGS OF WAR

You have all read of the wonderful Saint Bernard dogs In the Alps, and the way in which they have been trained for generations to seek out travelers who have been overcome by the cold or lost in the mountains, and bring them to safety. But perhaps you have not happened to hear of the ways in which dogs are being used today on the battlefields of Europe. Probably every one of you who owns a dog has played hide-and-seek with him, or has given him some article of wearing apparel belonging to one of your friends and said, "Find him!" That is one of the games the dogs of war are playing—only it is not really a game, for lives depend upon the dog's quickness in locating the lost person. You see, dogs are being used to find the wounded who have been overlooked by the ambulance men, or who are hidden in some shell hole, too weak to call or to crawl out to where they can be seen.

Usually very young dogs are taken to be trained—airedales, collies, shepherd dogs, police dogs and the like. They are taught first to answer a call, to lead with or without a line, to sit down, lie down, bark, remain on guard, fetch and carry, swim, and seek lost articles. Then at last, after they have been taught not to be afraid of gunfire they learn what is expected of them in finding the wounded. In the training, any man lying down is supposed to be the wounded man, and the dog must locate him, whoever he is.

Fist, the trainer points toward the man who takes the part of the wounded, and says, "Seek wounded." The dog is taught to search thoroughly dithes and thickets and other places where a wounded man might lie for days without being found. When the dog finds a wounded man, he does oe of two things to tell his master of his find. Smetimes he stays beside the wounded and barks, ntil assistance comes, the bark developing into a mournful howl, if help is long delayed; and sometimes he goes back to his master, telling him as a dog can to come with him. Very often dogs are clever enough to do both—that is, they bark a long time, and if no one comes, they start out to find an ambulance driver or some one else who can aid the wounded. Each dog wears a canvas saddle containing first aid appliances and a bottle of some strength-giving liquid. It takes about three months to train a dog to this sort of service.

Besides helping the wounded, the dogs are being used to carry messages. Nothing stops them, when they are on their way from post to post, or from the trenches to a station farther back, except a serious wound or death. Even when they are badly hurt, they will try to keep on their way, for faithfulness is one of the finest qualities a dog has, and he never fails in his duty, if he can help it. They are not allowed to mingle with the soldiers, for fear they will become attached to one, and feel it their duty to stay with him and protect him, instead of carrying messages; but the soldiers look upon them with loving and admiring eyes, for upon the dog that goes flying past them, leaping over high barriers, swimming streams, jumping across shell holes and ravines, may depend the success of the battle or the life of some comrade.—Exchange.

AFRICANS SKILLFUL IN IRON WORK.

John A. Stockwell, Wembo Niama, Africa.

In iron work the native Congo blacksmiths show great proficiency, and although the iron is mined by natives, who, so far as we know, have had no contact with the outside world for ages, the methods employed in smelting the ore are said by competent observers to differ in no essential from those used at the great iron works in our own country. They also mine copper and these two are the only metals I have ever found them making use of. All their tools and ornaments are made of one or both of these. Sometimes they combine them with great skill.

The native forge is a very peculiar contrivance, being made of clay, with four holes or pockets, like small bowls, about six inches in diameter, together with suitable valves and connecting pipes. Over this is stretched an antelope skin, with a stick about the size of a broom-handle tied to it in the center of each of these pockets. When the workman's helpers—usually one for each stick—work these up and down the air is forced out through a long tube of clay to a fire of charcoal. The only tongs for holding the iron are pieces of wood that have been split and fastened together with a crude hinge. The anvil is more than likely to be a coupling pin from a railroad several hundred miles distant, while the hammer is a piece of round iron without a handle. The workman grasps this in the middle, his arm really forming the handle of his hammer. Yet, with this very crude outfit, he can turn out work that would tax the ability of some of the best workmen in America.

Among the plans of the Centenary for our Congo Mission is that of establishing an industrial and agricultural school and three workshops for the purpose of helping these capable people to lay the foundations of Christian civilization. This plan, of course, is but secondary to the evangelistic work, the building of fifty-odd churches, the training and sending out of fifty native evangelists and the establishment of a Bible school and a printing press. It is, however, of great importance, as furnishing the needed economic basis for the development of the higher standards of life that Christianity sets. The whole five-year Centenary program for the Congo involves the expenditure of $228,750, of which the Epworth Leagues have pledged themselves to raise the greater part.

THE SHEEP DOG STORY.

Some twenty years ago, on a large farm near Wem, in Shropshire, we employed a Welsh shepherd who possessed a remarkably clever sheep dog. At the same time we had a most unruly and dangerous bull, who gave no end of trouble in getting him back into his loose box when he was let out of it.

On one of these occasions the shepherd came into the yard, and was asked if he thought Bob, as the dog was named, could get the bull in again. The man simply pointed in the direction of the bull and said, "Get him in, Bob."

The old dog rushed at the bull, not at his heels, but at his nose. Immediately the bull lowered his head to attack the dog, who rapidly retreated into the loose box, followed by the bull; and as he went in, the dog slipped out, and the man in charge, who had realized the dog's design, shut the door before the bull could turn around.

In all this the dog showed reasoning powers of the highest order. It was a duty he had never been called upon to perform before. All his previous training had been to drive sheep; but he instantly realized that he could not do it with a bull, so adopted the only possible way of inducing the bull to follow him into the loose box by barking and biting at the bull's nose.—London Spectator.

DEATH OF REV. J. A. BOWEN.

We received on Saturday of last week a note from Rev. Thos. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen District of the North Mississippi Conference, telling us of the death of Rev. J. A. Bowen at his home in Tupelo, Miss., on Friday afternoon, January 24. Brother Lipscomb naturally supposed that we had previously received notice of the death of this great and good man, in order that we might announce the sad news in our issue of last week. But no announcement had been received by us.

Brother Bowen was the Conference evangelist of the North Mississippi Conference, in which office he had rendered most faithful and efficient service. He was especially gifted for work in the evangelistic field, and he was greatly in demand far beyond the borders of his own State. Thousands of men and women have been brought to God and into the Church through his ministry.

The announcement of his death comes as a great shock to us. Our personal acquaintance with him was limited, but we have known him through his work for many years. We extend our sincere sympathy to those who have been bereaved by his going away. We trust that we shall soon have a suitable memoir for publication in the Advocate.

DEATH OF REV. T. S. RANDLE.

After the Advocate had gone to press last week, we received a telegram from Sister T. S. Randle, of Yoakum, Texas, announcing the death of her husband, Rev. T. S. Randle, at Yoakum on January 23. The telegram was evidently delayed in transmission; otherwise we should have received it in time for our last week's issue. The mails later brought this fuller statement from Sister Randle: "My dear husband fell asleep in Jesus this morning at 1:30 o'clock. He was conscious to the last, and held up his dear hands and said, 'God bless all the dear brethren and friends in Louisiana. Tell them I wanted to be with them once more; but I will be at the roll call up yonder. Thank them for being so kind to us.' We put his tired, worn frame to rest here in Yoakum. Pray for me—I am so lonely."

The announcement of the death of Brother Randle will bring great sorrow to a host of Methodist people in Louisiana. Brother Randle was one of the veterans of the Louisiana Conference. For many years he rendered faithful and efficient service in the charges to which he was assigned, and his name is "as ointment poured forth." We extend our sincere sympathy to his devoted wife and the members of the family. We are sure a suitable memoir will be furnished us for publication in due time.

A NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL PERIODICAL.

We have examined with great interest the first number of The School Standard, a new periodical issued by the Sunday School Department of our Church. It is the successor to The Workers' Council, and The Graded Sunday School Magazine. It is well printed on good paper, and it is of convenient size. Its mission is to deal exclusively with the principles of religious education and methods of Sunday school organization and administration. It will endeavor to interpret to Sunday school officers and teachers the meaning of the calls which the present momentous times make upon them, and to show them how to meet their responsibilities. This first number gives promise of great success. It should be read not only by those who are intimately connected with Sunday school work, but also by those who are interested in the religious education and training of our people. The price is 75 cents a year for single subscriptions, or 70 cents in clubs of six or more. Order from Smith & Lamar, Agents, Nashville, Tenn., Dallas, Tex., or Richmond, Va.

LEST WE FORGET.

The time chosen for the Advocate Campaign is rapidly passing, and as this is a matter of vital importance, I would urge our pastors to do all they can to place this cause before our people.

The Commissioners have, no doubt, gotten in touch with all of the pastors in the patronizing Conferences and each pastor has his allotment or number of new subscribers to be secured. I hope we are pressing this Campaign and that the renewing of old subscriptions will likewise be looked after.

We should do this not only because the paper needs the increased support, but in order to reach our people. If we would have a paper, we should place it in our church homes. Our people should read our church press, and become intelligent Methodists, keeping abreast of the times and knowing the forward movements of the Church. Let us press the Campaign.

JNO. F. FOSTER.
General Manager.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 6. 1919.

PUSH THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN.

We are perfectly aware of the fact that an unusual amount of sickness has made it difficult for our preachers to attend to all of their duties in their usual energetic and efficient fashion. Many of the preachers themselves have been sick, and many of our people have suffered from attacks of the influenza. But, according to the reports we are receiving, the situation is improving, and we shall soon be able to make "full steam ahead." We are depending upon our brethren to push the campaign for new subscriptions and renewals to the Advocate energetically. We are sure that vigorous efforts now will result in success. Our experience leads us to believe that there are thousands of good Methodist people who will subscribe for their Church paper if they are earnestly urged to do so. It is not hard to get them to see their need of the paper, and to realize that they are greatly increasing their possibilities of usefulness by reading it regularly.

We do not wish to seem unduly insistent upon the necessity of having our people subscribe to their Conference organ, but we are thoroughly convinced that our work as a Church is largely dependent for success upon an informed membership. When we put into the hands of our people the means of making them acquainted with the affairs of the Church, we are building from the ground up. We are making it possible for us to secure a ready response to the great demands the world is making upon Christian people. For the sake of his own success, no preacher can afford not to put the Advocate into as many of the homes of his members as possible.

It gives us very great pleasure to note that other Conference organs are having gratifying success in their campaigns. We give a few facts to show that there seems to be a general awakening as to the importance of circulating Church literature. On one day last week the Alabama Advocate received 400 subscriptions; the Central Methodist has received thus far in its campaign 1848 new subscriptions; the Texas Advocate reported a total of 357 for last week; the Baltimore Southern Methodist has received a total of 1623 from an allotment to the districts of the Baltimore Conference of 1010. The North Carolina Advocate, in its issue of January 30, says: "We have never had such a campaign to this date. We believe now that 10,000 are assured." And other papers are giving the most encouraging reports.

We do not believe our people are going to fall behind the people of other Conferences in their support of one of the great institutions of the Church. We are confidently expecting our preachers to begin to send in large lists of renewals and new subscriptions. We give below the results for the past week:

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES

Rev. D. P. Yeager, writing from Monticelo, Miss., states that his charge, the Pleasant Grove circuit, is making progress.

"We have the promise of a good year," writes Rev. W. D. Bennett, of Courtland, Miss. We trust that the promise will be abundantly fulfilled.

Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Driskell, of Greenwood Springs, Miss., are the happy parents of a little daughter, born on January 7. Congratulations!

Rev. C. T. Floyd, of Byhalia, Miss., writes hopefully of the outlook on his charge. He serves a fine people, who will help him to bring things to pass.

Rev. J. W. Booth, of our Keener Memorial Church, Baton Rouge, La., reports satisfactory progress in his work in spite of much illess in his community.

Rev. William P. Bailey has recently been appointed pastor of the Roxie charge, Mississippi Conference. He has reached his field of lbor and is hard at work.

We regret to learn that Rev. R. A. Alums, of the Coalville charge, Mississippi Conference, has suffered from a severe attack of the Influenza. He is now able, however, to be about his ork. We are glad to learn from a corresponden that the outlook on the charge is encouraging.

Rev. W. S. Selman, of Olive Branch Miss., has been a sufferer from the influenza, but he has found time to do some work for the Advocate. Difficulties do not discourage him.

Mr. Joe Smith, a brother of Mrs. H. N. Pharr and Mrs. J. A. Pharr, of New Iberia, La., passed away in Baltimore, Md., on January 10. We tender our sympathy to the bereaved family.

Rev. J. C. Price, of the South Mansfield, La., charge, has had a good beginning in his work in spite of much sickness and bad weather. All the interests of the Church are safe in his hands.

The New Orleans District Epworth League will hold a meeting at Parker Memorial Church on Tuesday evening, February 11, at 8 o'clock. Miss Robina Vaught is the efficient district secretary.

A little daughter arrived at the home of Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Parks, of Ackerman, Miss., on January 23. We congratulate the happy parents and pray Heaven's richest blessings upon the little one.

Mrs. J. D. Watkins, of Indianola, Miss., is another of the old-time readers of the Advocate. Her parents subscribed for the paper when it began publication, and she herself has taken it for many years.

Rev. O. W. Bradley, of Tupelo, Miss., has been seriously ill recently with pneumonia which involved both lungs. We are glad to learn, however, that he is convalescent and gives promise of speedy recovery.

Rev. J. L. Williams, State Superintendent of the Louisiana Child Finding and Home Society, has suffered a three months' siege of inflammatory rheumatism, but he is now able to be about his work.

Rev. J. M. Lewis, the great-hearted pastor of our church at Prentiss, Miss., has issued a circular letter to his members, calling them to energetic work in the Centenary campaign. His labor will bear fruit.

Rev. A. A. Martin has made a good beginning of the year's work at Verona, Miss. His charge has been strengthened by the addition of a new church, and a substantial increase has been made in the pastor's salary.

Rev. George Fox, our pastor at Bunkie, La., paid the Advocate office an appreciated call on Monday of this week. He was in the city attending a meeting of the Masonic Grand Lodge as the representative of the Bunkie lodge.

Rev. J. H. Hoffpauir has been cordially received on his new charge, Simsboro, La. He was given a "pounding" soon after his arrival. He serves a fine people, and he is praying for and expecting a great year in his work.

Rev. D. W. Babb, a noble veteran, full of wisdom and strength, has received a cordial welcome from the Prairie and Strongs charge, of the North Mississippi Conference. The salary for the preacher has been increased $200.

It gave us great pleasure to receive greetings recently from Brother W. M. Spinks, formerly an active layman of Louisiana, who is now making his home in Memphis, Tenn. We are sure that he will continue his splendid church work in his new home.

We learn from a correspondent that Rev. E. R. Smoot has won the hearts of the people of Amory and Nettleton. At the first quarterly conference of that charge, the pastor's salary was raised from $1600 to $2100, and the reports received were most encouraging.

Rev. J. H. Brooks, who has recently returned from Y. M. C. A. work in the army camps, has made a fine beginning of his work at Okolona, Miss. He recently issued a pastoral letter to his people, calling them to a year of consecration and active service.

Rev. J. E. Thomas is delighting the people of Aberdeen, Miss., with his preaching and his faithful pastoral ministry. A reception was tendered him and his good wife in the church parlors on Wednesday evening, January 29, following the prayer meeting.

Such words as the following from Rev. W. M. Sullivan, of Columbia, Miss., encourage us very much: "I am going to secure the number of subscriptions allotted me by the district stewards, and then 'go over the top.'" Brother Sullivan will do it, too.

The Long Beach charge of the Mississippi Conference, of which Rev. C. P. Jones is the energetic pastor, is making progress in things material as well as spiritual. The first quarterly conference, which was held on January 26, made a substantial increase in the pastor's salary.

Rev. A. Inman Townsley, the pastor of our Felicity Street Church, this city, is anxious to secure a copy of Dr. John Mathews' "Peeps Into Life." If any of our readers know of a copy that is for sale, let them write to Brother Townsley. His address is 1818 Chestnut Street.

Rev. E. M. Allen, of the Americus circuit, Mississippi Conference, has completed his first round of appointments. He reports that he is pleased with the outlook. He has appointed his Advocate Campaign Committee, and says that we may expect to hear from it soon. Good!

Rev. C. A. Schultz, pastor of the Gallman circuit, Mississippi Conference, writes that his work has had a fine beginning this year. The stewards have increased the pastor's salary $250, making it $1250. The people of Mt. Pleasant Church, recently "showered" the parsonage with many good things.

We know how badly the epidemic of influenza has interfered with all church work in many places. We appreciate all the more, therefore, the expressed determination of many of our preachers who have been afflicted to press the Advocate campaign just as soon as it is possible for them to do so.

Rev. C. H. Ellis, of the Harrisville charge, Mississippi Conference, reports that the first quarterly conference, held by his presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Morse, on January 23, was a helpful occasion. He is planning a campaign for the Advocate, which we are sure will be successful under his efficient management.

The Centenary Group Meetings of the Seashore District of the Mississippi Conference which had to be postponed from the dates originally set, have been announced to meet as follows: at Lumberton, on March 3; at Gulfport, on March 5. The presiding elder, Rev. J. R. Jones, is pushing the Centenary work in his district.

We hope none of our readers will overlook the interesting and helpful suggestions and notes that appear in our Sunday school column. Brothers Gladney, Chambers and Early are laboring diligently in behalf of the great cause that has been committed to their care. Nothing is of more vital importance in our work than the Sunday school.

Rev. J. Early Gray is delighted with his work at Magnolia, Miss., and evidently the people are pleased with their preacher. He has received more than twenty-five members into the Church since Conference, and he has large plans for future development. He is expecting good results from the Advocate campaign which he is ready to begin.

Rev. W. R. Williams, of the Nettleton circuit, North Mississippi Conference, has been cordially received by the fine people of that charge. Every church was represented at the first quarterly conference, at which about twenty officials were present. An increase of more than $200 was made in the pastor's salary. Brother Williams is one of the strong men of his Conference.

We thank Rev. L. E. Alford, of Yazoo City, Miss., for a cordial invitation to be present at the dedication of the beautiful church in that city by Bishop Kilgo on the fourth Sunday in February. Brother Alford's account of the raising of the church debt, which we give in another column, is a fine tribute to the generosity of his people and, we may add, to his own efficient labors.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, of Bogalusa, La., has been under a heavy strain on account of the serious illness of his daughter. We are glad to be able to report, however, that her condition is greatly improved and the physicians hold out hope of an early recovery. Brother Gearheard has been as busy as could reasonably be expected under the circumstances with his church work. He has officiated at ten funerals and five weddings, and has received 38 members into the Church.

Rev. A. E. Clement has been appointed by the Centenary Council as field secretary for the North Mississsissippi, the Mississippi, and the Louisiana Conferences. Brother Clement has had wide experience in the management of important campaigns of various kinds, and our Conferences are to be congratulated in having such an efficient helper assigned to them. We enjoyed a call from Brother Clement on Saturday of last week.

We regret to learn of the death of Lieut. W. O. Graves, son of Rev. W. L. Graves, of the North Mississippi Conference, which sad event occurred at the parsonage at Montpelier, Miss., on January 23. The funeral services were conducted on the following day by Rev. Thos H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen District, assisted by Rev. L. B. Wasson. Lieut. Graves was a very promising young man. He had been stationed at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and had recently been offered further promotion if he would remain in the service. He was a devout Christian, actively interested in all the work of the Church. His death, which was caused by pneumonia, was a great shock to his parents and to the community. During the funeral services, aviators from Payne Field circled over the church and the cemetery. We extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family. The father, Rev. W. L. Graves, was himself seriously ill at the time of his son's death, being unable to attend the funeral. Let prayers ascend for this stricken family.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

It has been stated that 97,848 religious services were held in "Y" huts during the war, with an attendance of 17,387,305, or an average of 178 a meeting.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Bishop Mouzon has recently presented to the library of Southern Methodist University fifteen valuable volumes from his library. Dean Hoyt M. Dobbs, of the Theological Department, has also given a number of interesting volumes.

The two Societies have made previous adjustments of this sort in other parts of the world.

The Y. M. C. A. has begun a campaign in every college in the six States of the Southern Military Department, the slogan of which is, "Study the New Testament to find the answer to the present-day problems." The campaign will last one week, and during that time effort will be made to interest every college student in a Bible study discussion club.

The International Institute, established by the Y. W. C. A., in Baltimore, will have a field to draw from including 33,000 Poles, 15,000 Italians, 12,000 Lithuanians, 200 pure Russians, 12,000 Bohemians, 5000 Scandinavians and 900 Greeks. The Institute will be in operation in the early spring.

We learn from an exchange that the Western North Carolina Conference is planning to raise an endowment of $50,000 for the Conference organ, the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Miss BESSIE TUCKER was born on June 14, 1897. She was happily converted when twelve years of age and joined the Church at Plain, Miss. She faithfully performed every duty that was assigned to her as a Christian and as a member of the Church. In the home, she was the pride of her father and mother. She always gave them ready and affectionate obedience. She was taken sick with pneumonia on December 6, 1918, and after suffering for three weeks, on December 29, God said, "It is enough—come up higher." She never complained during her illness, but always assured the family that she was ready to meet God. She leaves a father and mother, four brothers and three sisters to lament her departure. Weep not, my friends; she cannot come back, but we can go to her. May God bless those who suffer loss.

Mrs. KATIE GRAY LYLE GEORGE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Lyle, of Lauderdale, Miss., was born on April 18, 1891. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Lauderdale in 1908, and was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Rev. J. A. George, of Batesville, Miss., on June 27, 1918. She went as a bride with her husband to Rienzi, Miss., and assisted him in his pastoral labors six and one-half months. On the evening of January 13, she succumbed to the dreadful disease of influenza, and with beautiful smiles of divine confidence and trust she closed her eyes to the scenes and vicissitudes of this life.

Her body was brought back to the old home and placed in the family lot in Lauderdale cemetery. She was a lovable character. In childhood, youth, and womanhood, she endeared all to her who were privileged to know her. She possessed very rare traits of kindliness, urbanity and love. She leaves to mourn their loss, many relatives and friends, the father and mother, one brother (Albert), two sisters (Alta and Rowena), and her husband. She was a devoted daughter and sister, a loving wife, and a veritable sunbeam to all.

Now that she has been transferred from the glory of the Church Militant to the glory of the Church Triumphant, we love to anticipate the meeting of all loved ones and friends, "In the sweet by and bye." Press on, sad and weary-hearted ones! As never before, begin to press heavenward; tremble not with your feet upon the Father's threshold, but continue to climb the golden way to glory, and heaven will soon be yours forever and ever.

REV. H. C. EDMONDSON.

Rev. Hugh C. Edmondson was born in Pontotoc, Miss., on March 5, 1860, and quietly departed this life on Jan. 12, 1919, at 9 a.m. He was converted when a young man and soon after his conversion he entered the ministry. Realizing the necessity of a higher education, he entered the Webb School, where he took high rank as a student, and from there he went to Vanderbilt University, taking a course in Theology. He joined the Methodist Annual Conference in 1889, but on account of the illness of his wife and his own failing health, he was superannuated and moved to Iuka.

As a husband, he was tender and kind, as a father he was most devoted, and as a citizen he was loyal and patriotic. He was a man of deep convictions, and was uncompromising in his opinions where right and principle were involved. He was a religious man. He was true and loyal to his God and his Church. His going away was peaceful, surrounded by his wife and all of his children, except Andrew, who is away in the navy.

His funeral service was held at the Methodist Church on Monday afternoon, and he was buried in Oak Grove cemetery. The Masons, of which order he was a prominent member, took part. We pray the blessings of God upon his sorely bereaved family.

IS OPPOSED TO COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING.

My Dear Brother Carley: I want to say "amen and amen" to the appeal of "The Ministers' Association of Meridian," declaring opposition to compulsory military training, published in the New Orleans Christian Advocate of January 23, 1919. In fact, the argument against compulsory military training expresses my convictions better than I could have penned them. No, we do not want to imitate Germany; we want and need world peace, and I am sure we will not get world peace by universal compulsory military training.

FROM HARPERVILLE, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: We are beginning to make a very good start on the Harperville and Lena charge. Last Sunday, January 19, was a good day with us. Brother Linfield was with us and preached three times. The people who heard him say it was his best, even at Harperville. On Monday, he held our first quarterly conference. Every church was represented. The stewards increased the pastor's salary from $700 to $900, which we appreciate. Besides this, we have actually begun work towards a new church building here at Harperville. We are planing to build a house with auditorium to seat congregation, also have fine Sunday school rooms, part of which can be used in seating people when necessary. Pray for us.

The Quick Way to Stop a Cough

This home-made syrup does the work in a hurry. Easily prepared, and saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Gentlemen:—I was bothered with Kidney and Bladder Trouble for about twelve years, and finally got so I could not walk without a cane and had to be careful how I stepped. I tried everything I could get that was recommended for it, but nothing did me any good until I tried Alkavis. I sent for a bottle, which did me more good than anything I had tried. I then sent for six bottles of it, and it cured me. I advise all sufferers from Kidney or Bladder Trouble to try Alkavis, for I believe that it saved my life.

NEWS FROM NATCHEZ, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Some days ago when you wrote up your vacation, it was very much enjoyed by myself and the other members of my family—not that you had the "flu" and the vacation, but the way you wrote it up. You made a fine job of it, and now that we have had the "flu" we can surely sympathize with you from experience. The day the snow fell, four of my family were down and the other girl took it next day. Four children and Mrs. Saunders were all down at the same time, one child was convalescing. For two days and nights I did not undress for sleep. The people were kind to us and gave us all the attention they could and we had one of the best doctors in the city; he was more than one could have expected in his kind attentions and care for the family. It was his good care and the nursing we got that brought two of our girls through.

On Tuesday, after the family began to improve, it took my round, that is the "flu" took me, and for three or four days I had a time. One man said to me the first time I went down town, "I think I had the 'flu' some time ago." I said, "Brother, I am sure you did not have the 'flu.' If you have the real 'flu,' you will not think—you will say 'I know.'"

This has been a happy week for me, for we all came through safely, and are on the way to normal condition. Our city has been in the grip of a second round, and much suffering and some deaths have been the results.

I have not been able to get the church started off yet, as we have been closed for two weeks again, and this makes seven weeks in all that we have been out of service.

We are praying and looking for things to let up so we can get the church to move forward in the great movement for the Centenary work. I am planning to do more for the church and with the church this year than has been done here in many years. We must add some improvements to the building, especially our Sunday school department; and we need a new organ. If I can carry out my plans, I think this will be one of the most beautiful auditoriums as well as one of the most beautiful old buildings in the Conference.

We must have a great revival this season and give the church a real revival of true spiritual life. When the missionary conference meets here in March, you must come up and spend two or three days. Come by and see us at any time and spend a Sunday with us, and we will let you preach to the people. Your brother,

W. H. SAUNDERS.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

FROM IUKA CIRCUIT.

We arrived on Friday morning, Jan. 2, 1919. We were greeted with kindness. Although the weather was fearfully bad, the brethren showed a substantial interest in our arrival. Much food was given us on our arrival.

I have been out on the work only two Sundays. I have had good congregations. A nice purse has been given. I have given only a short time in the interest of the church paper, but have gotten 5 subscribers. I feel that I can enlarge the circulation of the Advocate. I feel that by reading it in every home we will grow spiritually. How bright the future is! People have been so very nice indeed. There are some men on the charge who are genuine men of God. I am anxious to get around. Pray for us this year. Your brother in Christ,

Are You Losing Your Grip on Health?

Physician's Prescription to Increase The Health and Strength of Anaemic, Run-down Men and Women

As a result of the tremendous strain which the war has put upon so many people, the nerve cells have become devitalized, the whole system weakened and thousands of men and women are today losing their grip on health simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life sustaining oxygen enters the body and enables the blood to change food into living tissue muscle and brain. If people would only keep their blood filled with strength-giving iron by taking Nuxated Iron when they feel weak and run down they might readily build up their red blood corpuscles and quickly become stronger and healthier in every way. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength of weak, nervous, "run-down" men and women in two weeks' time in many instances. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. Nuxated Iron is on sale at all good druggists.

Sunday School

SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY POSTPONED.

It has been definitely determined by the Centenary Commission that the great Centenary Drive shall begin on the fourth Sunday in April, the day designated by the General Conference as Sunday School Day, and that it shall continue through the first Sunday in May. The Executive Committee of the General Sunday School Board has, therefore, decided that it will be best to postpone for this year the observance of Sunday School Day until the third Sunday in May. I trust that all our Sunday schools will adopt this recommendation.

SOME PROGRESS MADE BY THE MINDEN METHODIST CHURCH.

First, the Sunday school has taken on new life. The superintendent, the officers and the teachers, in the beginning of the year, met with the pastor at the parsonage and planned the work for the year. Department superintendents were selected and teachers were reappointed. The results have been satisfactory in that the collections have almost douhled and the attendance has grown. The Sunday school, together with the Epworth League, has purchased a piano. This added much enthusiasm to the junior and primary departments of the school.

The Board of Stewards have thoroughly organized on a business hasis and have made the every-member canvass and are enthusiastic in striving to make this a great year.

The Missionary Societies have started well.

The Epworth League, though somewhat disorganized hy the epidemic, is beginning to again hold its regular meetings.

Our pastor, with the hoard and congregation, appreciates the kindness of those preachers who so readily came and filled the pulpit during our pastor's sickness. We are glad to say that our pastor is again able to be at his post.

A directory of the church is in the hands of the printers. We are confidently looking and praying for a great year for our Church.

A TENDER TRIBUTE.

Dear Mr. Editor: I have just read a memoir of J. H. Holmes, by Brother J. F. McClellan. It was my good fortune to be his pastor for three years, and I feel safe in saying that a greater layman and one more zealous than J. H. Holmes, our Church never had. He was the preacher's friend. Many are the happy hours that I spent in his home. He was a light along the shore, a living epistle, read and known of all men. His word was as good as pure gold. He was as tender and as modest as a child, hut as strong as a giant in those qualities that develop men in the highest sense.

I expect to meet him some day beyond the river, in that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. He has left us, but his influence will go on through the coming years to bless those who knew him only to love him.

The Many Mysteries of Nature

BY L. W. BOWER, M. D.

You can take an onion seed and a pansy seed, and plant them side by side in the same spot of ground. In one case, you get an onion, with its peculiarly strong odor, and in the other you get a flower of rare beauty. You can plant a poppy seed and get opium (a dangerous, habit-forming drug), or you can plant a rhubarb seed and get something that helps constipation. No scientist, living or dead, can explain these mysteries of Nature. Behind the invisible life germ in each seed is hidden the deep secret that nobody understands. Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening drains, bearing-down pains, periodical irregularities, pelvic inflammations, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pieree's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonie so good that druggists everywhere sell it.

Favorite Prescription should have the full confidence of every woman in America because it contains no alcohol and no narcotic. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. for trial pkg. Tablets.

RAMON'S LIVER PILLS

Calomel Dynamites A Sluggish Liver

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

A FINE TRIBUTE.

My Dear Brother Editor: It might be of interest to you and the people of your denomination to know that Rev. Chas. O. Pate is making good as a young minister in the army. He is from Water Valley, Miss. He volunteered as a private soldier in 140 F. A., in the spring of 1917. He has taken a leading part in Y. M. C. A. exercises several times. He preached one of the finest sermons I have ever heard from a young minister.

I do not hold membership with the Methodist Church, but love to see a young man like the above grow in knowledge and power.

FROM SCOOBA, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: I am glad our work for the new year is beginning well and that the outlook for a prosperous year in the cause is better than either of the two previous years on the Scooba charge. Many expressions of kindness and appreciation have been shown us; among them were a Christmas present consisting of many valuables from Scooba, also a valuable box from Wahalak, which came last week. While we are not able to express our appreciation of the kindnesses shown, we resolve to prove our gratitude to our people by giving our best efforts to serve them as pastor and family. Another sign of progress is that I am herewith giving you a list of eight new subscribers to the Advocate, and we hope to give you more as the year advances.

A great blessing came to us in Scooba on the 22d, as the program of the Missionary Centenary was rendered in such uplifting and inspiring way that all who were in attendance were greatly blessed. Dr. Huil and Brother Thompson and their staff of workers for the Meridian District came and rendered very efficient service, such as we are sure will bless this section many days. My earnest prayers are for the Advocate, that its visits to our homes may more and more prove a blessing to us.

Yours fraternally,
J. T. ABNEY.

A REPORT FROM TUNICA, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Just a few words in regard to the Tunica charge. We arrived here on the afternoon of December 30, 1918, and found some one at the station to meet us and to show us the way to the parsonage. On reaching the parsonage, we found some ladies, who had set things in order, had fires built, and who gave us a warm reception. After they left, we began our explorations, and to our great delight, we found in the pantry enough groceries for two or three months. May God bless these good people. We are delighted with our new home among these big-hearted people in this great delta country. We have made the rounds, and find the people ready to work, and we are praying that God will give us a gracious year here. The brethren here came in to see about some needed repairs on the parsonage, and they will prosecute this work as rapidly as possible.

Our presiding elder, Dr. Meek, was with us last Sunday night and Monday. Everybody was delighted with him and enjoyed his sermon Sunday night. He held our first quarterly conference Monday morning. The reports from the stewards were good. They raised the preacher's salary $300 over last year.

We hope for great things to come to pass. The outlook is encouraging. The Missionary Centenary drive is being put on.

Pray for us, Brother Carley, and if you chance to come up this way, come to see us. God bless you and yours.

Yours for service,
H. E. CARTER, P. C.

Those chevrons:
What do they mean?

The boys say they don't know. They're only there because they're there. Their wives and mothers admit they don't know. We asked Dad—and he doesn't know.

Who knows?

The Home Service Section of the American Red Cross! They say that a gold "V" worn point down on the lower half of the left sleeve means six months' service in the theater of operations; every additional six months earns another gold chevron.

A sky blue chevron means less than six months' service in the theater of operations.

A silver chevron, worn in the same manner as the gold, means that its wearer has served six months outside the theater of operations.

A gold chevron worn on the lower half of the right sleeve does not mean that the wearer got mixed as to arms. It means that he was wounded and the number of times can be determined by counting these chevrons.

A man with a scarlet chevron worn point up on the left sleeve midway between the elbow and shoulder, testifies he has been honorably discharged from his country's service.

So after this when you see a returned soldier, just run along beside him for a minute and you will know more about him than he would tell you in an evening.

Work thou in well doing. Infinite is the help man can yield to man.
—Carlyle.

A NOTE FROM FRIAR POINT, MISS.

My Dear Brother Carley: During the year 1918, we received into our Church as many people as were received during the past five years. We paid our Conference claims in the early part of the year, and on October 20 dedicated our new brick church, which was built as a result of the efforts of the good people and my capable predecessor, Rev. J. R. Bright. It was our pleasure on that occasion to have with us Bishop W. B. Murrah, who preached for us a most excellent sermon. The outlook for this year is encouraging. With best wishes.

The Romantic Story of Southland's Favorite Shoe, EzWear.

Some five years ago, a prominent citizen of South Carolina, visiting New York on important business, chanced to meet the maker of a shoe built on new and unusual lines; an enthusiastic admirer of its most distinctive features, ease and comfort, had suggested the name EzWear; it was promptly adopted. The business man from the South, knowing how welcome such a shoe would be in his part of the country, urged that its remarkable qualities, including not only comfort, but style, durability and economy, be made known there. That this has been effectively done is proven by the enormous demand that has sprung up in the South for EzWear shoes. It is said that its sale there during the last twelve months has increased fully three hundred per cent. The distributor, Mr. J. R. Simon, of 1539 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., says that all who wish to know about a shoe that combines all worth-while shoe qualities, may have a copy of his money-saving shoe book for the asking.

Hyomei
THE BREATH of the FOREST
THAT KILLS CATARRH GERMS.

While lecturing in London, the noted Richard T. Booth, founder of the blue ribbon movement, and temperance orator and leader of international fame, who induced over a million men to sign the pledge, developed a very serious catarrhal trouble.

He went to Inland Australia, where he breathed day and night the antiseptic balsams as given off by the forests, especially the Eucalyptus trees. This experience led Mr. Booth to the discovery of the most wonderful catarrhal treatment, Hyomei.

Hyomei is a germ killing vapor treatment formed from the purest oil of Eucalyptus combined with other healing and antiseptic ingredients. This medicated air is especially effective in treating Catarrh and colds of the head, Catarrhal Coughs, Bronchial Catarrh, Spasmodic Croup, Catarrhal Laryngitis or Hay Fever. It destroys the catarrhal germs and restores health.

Sold on a positive guarantee of satisfactory results or money refunded. Complete outfit $1.00; extra bottle inhalant 50c. At druggists or by mail, if your druggist cannot supply it. Booth's Hyomei Co., Ithaca, N. Y.

Renew Your Health
At Nature's Fountain

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. I do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read my answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

I have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for to it I owe my Restoration to Health and probably my Life. It has made me tens of thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries whose faces I have never seen. Yet I count them my friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to me by lasting gratitude.

I ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which I publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept my offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon. If you could read the letters that come to me daily, numbering about ten thousand a year, and the vast majority of them similar to those printed below, you would not wonder that I make this offer displaying my absolute confidence in the restorative powers of Shivar Mineral Water.

INDIGESTION

Savannah, Georgia.

I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

La Grange, Ga., Nov. 25, 1914.

I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any character, and truly believe it will cure ulcer of the stomach. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia.

C. V. TRUITT.
President Unity Cotton Mills.

Johnston, S. C.

I wish to add my testimony to the wonderful curative powers of the Shivar Mineral Water. For a number of years my wife has been a sufferer from indigestion and nervous debility, and her condition had reached such a stage as to baffle the skill of our most eminent physicians. Her extreme nervousness and heart troubles at times were alarming and she had become almost a nervous wreck. The latter part of last May she began using the Shivar Water, which she has continued to this date with most satisfactory results.

H. C. BAILEY,
Editor Johnston News-Monitor.

DYSPEPSIA

Blaney, S. C.

I have suffered for many years from gastric troubles stomach puffed and food sour. I have tried many remedies and a good many waters. Some have helped, but none have given me such relief as your Spring Water. I use it and recommend it to my patients.

W. A. GRIGGSEY, M. D.

Baltimore, Md., April 30, 1914.

For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold of one of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble.

OSCAR T. SMITH,
Vice-Pres. Young & Selden Co., Bank Stationers.

RHEUMATISM

Leeds, S. C.

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M. D.

Fredericksburg, Va.

Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints upon her hands, caused by rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement.

WM. C. CARTER.

Roper, N. C., Oct. 30, 1914.

I am anxious to get more of the Water. It has done me more good than anything I have ever tried for rheumatism.

MRS. H. C. EDWARDS.

Florence, S. C., Dec. 1, 1911.

I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it.

MRS. THEO. KUKER.

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 24, 1914.

It is doing my rheumatism so much good. My limbs are beginning to feel like new ones.

MRS. JAMES R. CARTER.

BILIOUSNESS

Greenville, S. C., Feb. 26, 1914.

For over two years, following a nervous breakdown, I have suffered with a liver so torpid that ordinary remedies were absolutely powerless. Under such circumstances, I came to Shivar Spring, and began drinking the Water. Upon advice however, tho first night I took a laxative; the second night a milder one. Since then I have taken none at all. The effect of the water has been remarkable—its action on my liver most marked, and my health and spirits greatly improved. I am satisfied that the laxative, followed by the Water, was the proper treatment in my case. My condition is now perfect.

S. A. DERIEUX.

Buena Vista, Va., Oct. 2, 1914.

It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has been a great benefit. I may say a great blessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble.

REV. E. H. ROWE,
Co-President Southern Seminary.

LIVER AND KIDNEY

Ohoopee, Ga., Aug. 21, 1914.

I feel that it is due you that I should give my testimony, unsolicited, as to the benefits derived from the use of your Shivar Springs Water. I was unable to do my work, and had been under the treatment of physicians for six months for kidney and liver troubles when I decided to try your Spring Water, and now after using it for about thirty days I am able to do my work, feel good, and have gained about twenty pounds. I most heartily recommend its use to all who suffer from disorder of the liver and kidneys.

M. L. STEPHENS.

Carlisle, S. C.

It is fine for liver troubles, also for constipation. I cheerfully give you this information as to beneficial results in my case.

REV. A. McA. PITTMAN.

RENAL AND CYSTIC

Columbia, S. C.

I suffered for eight years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever.

J. P. D.

Virgilina, Va., March 28, 1914.

Your Water has done me more good than anything I ever tried for bladder trouble.

A. R. F.

Wesley, Ga., May 12, 1914.

I had been down with bladder trouble. Couldn't stand on my feet three minutes at a time. In three days after I commenced drinking your Mineral Water my pain was all gone, could walk where I pleased, and felt like a new man.

High Point, N. C., Oct. 6, 1914.

My wife has had a bad kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved, her appetite is all that she could wish for, her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Springs credit for it all.

GALLSTONES

Greenville, S. C.

Shivar Spring Water cured my mother of gallstones, or, I might say, it snatched her from the hospital door, as the doctors had said nothing short of an operation would do her any good. After drinking the Water she was able to get out of bed, and is today stout and healthy. I hope these few lines will be of help to some one suffering as my mother did.

My doctor said I would have to be operated on for gallstones, but since I have been drinking your water I haven't had to have a doctor

W. H. EDWARDS.

Columbia, S. C.

My wife was a chronic sufferer from gallstones. She was stricken critically ill, and nothing but morphine seemed to relieve her pain by rendering her unconscious. My physician, who is a good one, seemed to do very little good. Rev. A. J. Foster, pastor of Shandon Baptist Church of Columbia, S. C., advised me to take her immediately to Shivar Spring. On consulting my physician he agreed that it would be best to do so without delay. In about three days after arriving at the Spring she was apparently relieved and had regained her appetite. She has suffered no ill effect of the trouble since. Please publish this for the benefit of sufferers

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 66—No. 7. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South Whole No. 3286.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

IF THERE WERE MORE.

A noble layman, to whom all the interests of the church are dear, was thanked by his pastor for a large contribution which he had made, and his good wife said, "You need not thank him—that is only a part of the tithe." If there were more like them, there would be no financial problem in the kingdom of God.

NATIONAL WEEK OF SONG.

Governor Pleasant of Louisiana has issued the following proclamation:

"Because God, in the victory for righteousness, and for the peace He has given us, has given us occasion for great joy * * * and because the week of Washington's Birthday has been designated as a National Week of Song, I deem it especially appropriate at this time to suggest that the week of February 16 to 22, inclusive, be set aside for the singing of such songs as will express our joy, and awaken a love for God and country. * * *

"Let this be done in all schools and churches * * * Further, I trust that at eight o'clock on the evening of February 22, all citizens, wherever assembled, shall rise and sing all four verses of 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee!' * * * Also, may all programs of that evening be closed with the singing of 'The Star-Spangled Banner.'"

Let us heed this proclamation, a greater part of which we have reproduced, that the results desired may be had, and because, if wisely carried out in our church services, it should lend to improve our congregational singing, which is the ideal worship of song. The congregation should not listen simply to the choir, but should join with them in rendering praise to God.

CRITICISM OF THE Y. M. C. A.

The leaders of the Y. M. C. A., in their colossal task at home and "over there" during the war, do not claim that they have done the big job perfectly. But they do ask that adverse criticism be withheld until all the facts are known. Sometimes criticism is inspired by the motives of those who have ends to serve. Let us see.

CENTENARY CAMPAIGN.

We should now be ready for the intensive weeks of the Missionary Centenary Campaign. Remember and follow the program, that you and your church may have your full share in this biggest task that the Church of God has yet undertaken.

February 16—Preach on "Historical and Providential aspects of the Centenary."

February 23—Preach on "The Stewardship of Prayer," and have the "Fellowship of Intercession" cards signed by those present. Follow with a canvass of those not present by the Missionary Centenary Committee of your Church.

March 2—Preach on "The Stewardship of Life—Enlistment for Special Service."

March 9—Preach on "The Stewardship of Property—Tithing." Have the "Methodist Million Tithing Stewards" cards signed by those present. Follow with a canvass of those not present by the Centenary Committee.

EUREKA!

It is said that the old philosopher who discovered specific gravity, while he was in the bath, jumped up and ran, scantily clad, through the streets, crying, "Eureka! Eureka!"—"I have found it!" Those who speak against Foreign Missions, and who usually do little for those around their doors, evidently do not realize that out of their own mouths come the words of their own judgment—that they themselves bring a terrible indictment against their own Christian experience. There may be a difference between getting hold of the truth and the truth getting hold of you. Certainly it is impossible for a great truth to get hold of a man without there being a desire on his part to give the saving truth unto others. A man, in speaking of his conversion, said that he knew tbat it was genuine, because he at once wanted to see others saved. A man can not hide the truth in his heart. He can not lock it there. Like the mysterious power in freezing water which cracks a lead pipe as if it were a fragile egg-shell, the truth can not be contained in any man's heart. If your heart does not respond to the great task set before us in the Missionary Centenary, you had better examine your own heart that you may learn whether or not the truth has got hold of you.

BEWARE OF THE W. S. S. SCALPER!

It would be well for our readers to note the following warning issued by postmasters:

"Beware of the unscrupulous person who offers to buy War Savings Stamps. No one but a United States Government postmaster has authority under the law to cash War Savings Stamps. All persons or firms offering to buy, exchange, accept War Savings Stamps on account, or take them in trade, are violating Government regulations.

"Steer clear of the W. S. S. scalper! The following official notice has been issued by the Secretary of the Treasury:

"'My attention has been directed to the numerous offers made by unscrupulous persons through advertisements and in other ways to buy War Savings Certificate Stamps. As a result of such offers, I am informed that owners of such securities have suffered material losses which could have been avoided by redemption of the War Savings Certificate Stamps at postoffices as provided by law.

"'In order that the interests of the owners of War Savings Certificate Stamps of either series (1918 or 1919) may be safeguarded, I hereby notify all persons to refrain from offers to buy War Savings Stamps or accept the same in trade.'

A GOOD THING.

"In the ancient mystical letters of the Ephesians," said Marcus Aurelius, "there was an item, that a man should always have in his mind some one or other of the ancient worthies." And Paul said, "Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples: and they are written for our admonition." It is a good thing to sit at times at the feet of the great men of the past that we may learn to profit by their virtues, and take warning by their failures.

INTER-CHURCH WORLD MOVEMENT.

The conference at First Church, this city, Friday, February 14, in the interest of the Inter-Church World Movement of North America, has been announced in all the churches, and should draw a large attendance from all denominations. The announcement read in all churches last Sunday broadly outlined the purpose of the Conference.

"An Appeal to all Christians Through their Churches.

"Christ was very real to all our boys in the trenches. Shall He be less real to them in our Churches? How shall we make Him real?

"Men of world vision of the Inter-Church World Movement of North America will be here Friday, February 14, to help us answer this question, and to expound the message and the meaning of the Inter-Church World Movement.

"This movement preserves in toto your denominational identity, and aims only to strengthen and fortify every individual Christian and Church for the supreme task and opportunity the war has set before us."

Fred B. Smith of New York City, Bishop Wm. Mercer Green of Mississippi, and Governor Ruffin G. Pleasant will speak.

The Conference will begin at 10:30 a. m. At noon luncheon will be served in the Social Hall of the Church by the Calendar Club of First Church.

There will also be a meeting at 8 o'clock in the evening. Besides a large attendance from churches in the city, it is hoped that ministers and laymen throughout Louisiana and Mississippi may be able to attend.

"Lord God, give me the desire to be persistent in service, while I have health and strength. May I experience the sweetness that comes in doing the thing that I ought to have done, as well as that in which I took the most pleasure. Help me to so live that my days may be useful, and be recalled with bright and happy recollections. Amen."

"Almighty God, help me to appreciate the sacredness of work while I have it to do. Grant that I may be spared the wretchedness that comes from working with fragments from idleness. May I do my part, even if it be in obscurity and the night overtakes me before it is done. Amen."

THE PRAYER OF A TIRED HEART.

By Mary D. Brine.

Our Father all compassionate, to Thee
I bring a bruised and tired heart to-day!
Only the tender touch of Thy dear hand
Can take the weariness and ache away.
As at Thy feet I kneel, and long for rest,
Bow down Thy pitying ear, and let me feel
The touch I long for, soft upon my brow,
The touch that never fails to soothe and heal.
Thou knowest, Lord, the secrets of our hearts:
Thou knowest our discouragements, and all
Our weary efforts to combat the wrong
That in us lies. Oh, Father, heed my call
For help and rest, and as I come to Thee
Give me the touch of Thy dear hand to-day,
Help me to drop my burden at Thy feet,
Then rise refreshed with peace, and go my way.

"WHEN I WAS TWENTY-FOUR"

"Unless you have a message for several young men who are attending this Conference we shall lose them for the ministry. They have seen visions of a decadent old age spent in rural communities like those in which they began their work so hopefully less than five years ago; they are envious of you who have reached pinnacles of fame which they are now persuaded they can never attain; they have all but decided to enter vocations where recognition is reasonably sure and the financial reward satisfactory. Gentlemen, our need of these young men in this State is very great."

Among the group of speakers who had gathered in the church parlor before an even session of the State Conference sat a man of fifty whose name was known throughout the religious world. As the moderator closed his appeal this man arose and offered his services. "I should like to preach a sermon to-night on the text, 'Do the duty that lies nearest,'" he said, with a wonderful smile of understanding; "but I think, with your permission, I shall tell a story that has never been told in public. As it is no a long story I shall simply close my address with it. The title of this story will be, 'When I Was Twenty-Four.'"

This is the story that was told that evening:

"It was on my twenty-fourth birthday that I delivered my first Conference address. At the close of the last evening session I was standing on the steps of that beautiful village church when, within the half-open door, I heard a tired, resigned voice—a woman's voice.

"'He was so young I thought he would kinder liven things up. Of course I enjoy hearing old Father Kimball and the others—they're such good men; but I'd been looking forward to a fresh, young voice. But I guess he's goin' to be like all the rest. What he said was good, but there wa'n't much I could catch on to carry back to Dan and the boys. You don't suppose it will rain to-morrow, do you Sister Martin? I'd hate to have to drive home eight miles in a downpour.'

"My friends, those words burned themselves into my memory as no other words have ever done. My sense of guilt was as heavy as a physical burden, for I knew that the address I had planned to make that day would, indeed, have 'livened things up.' I had quickly wearied of the monotony of my work among the simple country people to whose spiritual needs I had left my city home to minister. I welcomed this opportunity to speak before an intelligent audience, and hoped my impassioned message would result in a call to some prosperous village church where my ability would be recognized.

"But the large and appreciative congregation I had fondly pictured during my sixteen-mile drive failed to materialize. For one reason and another, the attendance at that Conference was the smallest recorded for years. I listened critically to the first four speakers on the programme, and decided that my paper, shorn of several striking illustrations, held much more of interest than those I had just heard. These same illustrations I should need at an important gathering of pastors which I had that day been invited to address. I could see no reason for wasting so much brilliancy upon that uninteresting assembly of venereble clergymen and hard-working farmers who had driven in from the surrounding towns. The representation from the village churches was surprisingly small.

"'He was so young I thought he'd kinder liven things up.' Not until the words of my critic fell upon my ears did I realize that I had failed miserably, unpardonably that day—because I wished to be heard of men. The opportunities of that Conference were closed to me forever, but I prayed as I never prayed before for a chance to redeem myself. More quickly than I deserved came the invitation to assist in the installation service in a struggling rural church. No artist ever produced his first exhibition picture with more loving zeal than I bestowed upon the paper I prepared for the coming event. With youthful disregard for the feelings of others, I cherished a hope that it would rain upon the day set for the installation, that the proof of my repentance might be the more genuine. My unspoken prayer was granted; it rained throughout the services, and when it didn't rain it hailed. The attendance was gratifyingly small.

"When at last my name was announced I mounted the platform and gazed compassionately down upon those forty people, who looked at that moment as if their lives, like that of the preacher who preceded me, had been spent in a vale of tears. I glanced at the windows, against which sheets of rain were driving furiously, and turned again to my congregation. My subject had no marks of originality to commend it; it read simply, 'The Joy of Service.' But my words seemed to burst from my heart rather than from my lips. Before I had fairly begun I saw points of light leap into the tired, gray eyes of a woman directly in front of me; when I closed an hour later every face was radiant. I sat down, my heart overflowing with gratitude that, with my Master's help, I had fulfilled my mission so successfully. I knew that I had given my best, and asked no further reward than the consciousness of duty done. I was entirely unprepared for what followed.

"Immediately after the benediction men and women flocked about me and talked as if they had found a friend. 'You have such a pleasant look, I know you won't mind if I tell you how much I enjoyed every word you spoke. You made my heart burn within me. Before you'd got half through I whispered to Jim that you reminded me strong of Beecher.' If I confess that those words were music in my ears I am sure you will remember, friends, that I was only twenty-four. Again, 'It didn't seem as if I could come to-day, I was so tired; but Hiram said a change would do me good. Oh, it refreshed me so listenin' to you. Why, it's still rainin', and I thought it had stopped. But I don't mind ridin' home in the rain with your sermon to think about.'

"And then I received four invitations for the night. The one I finally accepted came from a dear old grandmother, who begged me to come home with her and cheer up her rheumatic husband. We found grandfather sitting by the kitchen stove, patiently waiting for 'mother' to come home and tell him 'all about it.' That pleasant task was delegated to their guest. Grandmother's memory proved as tenacious as that of the sermon-taster of Drumtochty, for she recalled to my mind point after point of my address until I had repeated it to my audience of one. Never have the plaudits of a multitude meant so much to me as did the tears that fell from this aged man's eyes as he thanked me for the joy I had given him. I turned my face—I think to hide a tear of my own—and discovered grandmother in the act of pouring a cup of tea. I hope, friends, I shall not be called upon to enumerate the articles of food that were served at our banquet last night, but I can tell you exactly what I ate at the midnight supper in Granmother Holcomb's kitchen—four slices of steaming toast, generously buttered; five spherical doughnuts thickly sugared; three slices of fruit cake, so rich, so delectable, that I have never seen its equal since. But remember—I was only twenty-four. And caraway cookies! I fear I have forgotten how many caraway cookies I ate, for there was grandmother bending over me, urging me to have one more, and telling me about the little brown-eyed boy who would have been a minister, God willing, if he had only lived. Grandfather had been slowly hitching his chair up to the table, and now the dear old souls told me the story of their lives—the corn husking in Uncle Josiah's barn, at which they met nearly half a century ago; the wedding day, when the apple trees were in blossom; God's great gift of children, all living but the one little brown-eyed boy; the financial struggles there on the old farm, the care of which was now entrusted to John, the oldest son; their church life in all its phases of prosperity and adversity—and through it all rang their triumphant faith in God and man. The address I had delivered that day in the little white meeting-house on the hill was a schoolboy's essay compared with the lessons their life-history taught me.

"The next day I hurried back to my people—my people they were now, not the inhabitants of a rural community which I longed to leave for a sphere of wider influence. From that hour I dwelt among them, ministering unto them in the light of the revelation of their needs I had so miraculously received. No congregation was too small for the best that years of study enabled me to give; no home was too humble for any service that I could render. The days were far too short for the work I found awaiting me there among those glorious hills.

"And then came the call to a city parish. Should I leave the church whose growth I had watched until its fame had spread abroad? Never! I loved that church as I loved nothing else upon earth. And my people loved me, and their love was so unselfish that they drove me from their midst as a wise mother bird pushes its young from the nest. I was their son, and must go forth and make my name in the world and bring glory to their church. And so I accepted that call, and the calls that followed, and for the sake of those dear people I had to succeed. They were father and mother to me, for my parents passed on years before; they wrote me long, homey letters; they sent me Christmas and birthday packages of good things from the farms that would have ruined my health had I not shared them so generously; they made me godfather of all the pastors who followed me! Over half my vacations I have spent back there among those hills. This ends my story, except that I have promised to go back this week and marry the first babies I ever baptized. It means a journey of three hundred miles, but I wouldn't miss that wedding for all the honors you could confer upon me. I watched those two beautiful children grow up in the church. I directed in part their education, I watched their progress from year—my friends, it is fortunate I must leave on the 10 o'clock train. I find there is no end to this story."

The moderator had time for only a word of farewell. "I watched those young men while you told that story," he said. "I saw points of light leap into their eyes as they listened to your words; before you closed, their faces were radiant. The safety of the rural churches they represent is assured."—Mary S. Warren, in Zion's Herald.

TWO OF THE OLD GUARD.

By Rev. S. J. Davies.

There is a close bond of fellowship and kindred sympathy which unites men who have spent years of toil and service in company. The passing of time blends the elements of character into a composite picture. From out this vision of the retreating years, there comes to me, as I think and write, the distinct forms and characters of two faithful and efficient Methodist preachers, whose recent passing into another life beyond deserves more than passing notice.

J. L. P. Sheppard closed a long and useful life during the later months of last year, and T. S. Randle followed him in the opening month of A. D. 1919.

Brother Sheppard was pre-eminently a man of the people. He was innately one of Nature's noblemen. Having in his soul an experience of the power of divine grace to redeem and save one from the fell bondage of sin, he became in his life and conduct a living exponent of this power. Modestly, unassumingly, he went about the Master's business with a kind of easy naturalness that was a study to some. He loved his fellowman with a deep, abiding love, but despised and unhesitatingly denounced deception in any form. His divine birthright as a Methodist and a minister did not make him clannish. Fearless, honest, upright, outspoken, no man of the Louisiana Conference enjoyed more of the trust and confidence of his brethren, and no man deserved them more. There was a fascinating charm of such real, deep, brotherly spirit about the man that made him a veritable "Abou Ben Adhem"—a friend of man. Men in trouble instinctively sought his help and found his sympathy and counsel encouraging, uplifting.

As a citizen, during the active years of his life, before the weight of years bore him down, he was interested in every movement for the betterment of the community in which his lot was cast. The prosperous, growing city of Mansfield owes a lasting debt of gratitude to the old preacher who spent the latter period of his life as one of her most influential citizens. No doubt he is missed in his home city; yet he is missed still more when his fellow-ministers meet in annual conference. "A knightly soul, sir, he was a Christian and a gentleman."

Tom Randle was an all-around Methodist preacher, and one of no mean ability. His years of service in the Louisiana Conference were conspicuous for earnestness, zeal and faithfulness. He moved much, he preached the more, and he had many seals to his ministry. His overflowing, abounding spirit was irresistible. Men might sometimes question his methods, but never his spirit nor his sincerity. His preaching was characteristic of the man. It was spiritual, direct, forceful, and, best of all, faithful. As a revivalist, he was devoid of mere human art of manipulation, dependent upon divine agency for results. I consider he had few equals. His heart was pure and like him who sat in the council of the king; therefore, his strength was the strength of ten. Many of us are sorry because he is gone; yet the sorrow is tinged with the bright memory of bygone years of fellowship and toil together.

We are glad to have lived and toiled with such men as these two. Life is richer with the sacred memory of their service and sacrifice. Surely, they are doubly rewarded—tears and memories here, heaven there beyond.

MAKING ONE'S SELF NEEDED.

By Rev. William Thomas M'Elroy.

One of the saddest sights in all the world is a person who has so far lost his usefulness or has become so degraded by sin that he has lost the faculty of making himself needed by some other person. He is not necessary to the happiness or welfare of men and women and little children. He knows nothing of the joy of leading a man to the satisfaction and usefulness of the higher life; he knows nothing of the happiness of the love and gentle protection of a pure and noble woman; and he never experiences the joy of conforting the little—yet to them how great!—griefs of a child or of the pleasure that may be given by the finding of a lost ball or the mending of a broken doll.

On the other hand, how beautiful is the life that is making itself necessary to the happiness of others every day; the life that has time to speak a word of encouragement to those who have lost hope; to extend the helping hand to those who are without friends or who are sorely in need of assistance; to do the numberless little acts of usefulness and comfort and kindness that seem so insignificant, yet are so essential to the happiness and good cheer of humankind.

Some time ago a young girl was bemoaning the narrowness of her life to an older woman. "I am so busy," she said, "doing little useless things for the children, washing the dishes and making the beds for mother, helping father with his numberless papers and books, that I have but little time to devote to my art. Consequently I am accomplishing practically nothing, and I sometimes think that I am just trifling my life away."

"My dear," said the older woman gently, "when you are so old as I am you will have begun to realize that those are the very things that are worth while. I have attained the success in my art for which you are striving as the height of accomplishment. Yet what is the joy of my success compared to the joy of mending a little worn stocking or of looking for a little lost cap, or of doing something to rest a tired father and mother? Oh, my dear, I would give all that I have ever attained for the happiness and usefulness that might be mine if I were needed and loved by so many persons as you are."

It may be that often our efforts towards success are interrupted by the calls for assistance or by the needs of those about us. But it is well worth our while to pause for the necessary moment to give the help that is needed. I know a man who has attained eminence in his profession and who is looked upon as "an authority" by the world in his chosen line of endeavor; and I also know a woman who has achieved the success towards which she has been bending all her energies for more than twenty years. But they both will tell you that the glory their achievements has brought them gives no satisfaction. And the reason is that there is no one who looks to them for love, for friendship, for kindly words and helpful acts—no one with whom they can share their success. They have attained the goals they had set before them at the expense of the things that they once thought so little and useless, but which they now see in their true light. The opportunities that they have spurned are gone forever, and so hardened have their lives become that the things they now realize to be the necessary things are forever beyond their reach, and they live as in a different world.

It is worth while for the writer and the painter and the sculptor to lay aside as occasion demands the works on which they are engaged; for the business man to lay aside his cares and problems; for the lawyer and doctor and statesman to forget their work for the time; and for all to devote a few moments at least, when the golden opportunity comes, to helping some man or woman, or to bring a smile to the face of a child. The happiness and the affection that these moments will bring will amply repay—yes, will repay a thousandfold—for the time lost to business or professional efforts. For the person who has failed to "make himself needed," however great his success in some other direction, is a failure after all. —In The Christian Intelligencer.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM CHAPLAIN VAUGHAN.

Base Hospital No. 63, Brest, France.
Dec. 31, 1918.

After the great drive on the 12th of September, there came a period of comparative quiet on our sector. The Germans had been driven back to the Hindenberg line and our men were ordered to dig in. That meant digging trenches along our new lines. Of course, we occupied the old German trenches, but had gone beyond them some distance and our front line was just a few miles from Metz, separated from the Hindenberg line by a valley less than a half a mile in width. It did not mean a cessation of hostilities, for the artillery and gas attacks kept up constantly. It was called "harassing fire," and it was. To break the morale of the opposing side, to make the men nervous, to keep them in constant fear of being killed, is one of the great plans of modern warfare. All day long and through the night, the big guns were roaring from our side and the shells came with painful regularity from the German guns. At first, it was entirely out of the question to sleep. There were bunks in the dugouts, but we only had three blankets, sometimes less; two had to be stretched on a wire bottom and one used to cover with. Bedding rolls were not carried to the front during a drive. It required a little experience to get accustomed to that part of the program, to say nothing of the rats, cooties, fleas and snoring officers. Then, in addition to those few inconveniences, the noise and concussion from the heavy guns was something frightful. However, those are minor things that we quickly get used to in this war—even sleepless nights. I soon discovered that it was not regarded as a matter of cowardice for a man to use his legs under certain provocation. The Colonels, Majors and Captains ran for shelter—why shouldn't a Chaplain? Before I went into line, somebody told us we could always hear the shells coming in time to judge just where they would strike and probably get out of the way in time. I took no chances, for later on I was also informed that you never heard the shell coming when your name was written on it. The sound came after the explosion and then—it was too late to hide. But, another thing puzzled me: the shells I dodged had already gone over my head and, as a matter of fact, we did not hear them coming—they were always going, unless they happened to strike you, or in your neighborhood. There was one comforting thought, however: they never struck in the same spot and as a rule about half a dozen were sent over at a time. The men became so accustomed to it that they usually knew when Fritz would send over shells, so they watched their timepieces. One day, the Germans located our burial party and began a regular barrage—so we thought. We soon found shelter in a trench that seemed rather small to me, when suddenly down the trail leading by our burial-place came the Colonel, casually walking along as if nothing was wrong. As a matter of fact, the shelling had ceased and it was just a little embarrassing to be caught there at that particular time. He looked at me with a queer smile on his face and said, "Well, Chaplain, what are you doing down there?" I tried to explain the situation as best I could, secretly wishing for a real barrage, and sure enough, just as he passed, the shells began to fall again. I did not have time to watch the Colonel, but the boys claim that he jumped into a trench faster than any German shell ever traveled.

During that period we spent much time exploring German dugouts and collecting souvenirs. Evidently, they had anticipated an easy time on this sector and made themselves very comfortable, for they knew how to do it. In some places they had their families with them. We found women's and children's clothing, toys, planos, graphophones, upholstered furniture and well-filled pantries. They did not seem to have suffered from hunger; there were abundant supplies in nearly all the dugouts. Many of the places were fitted up with electric lights, telephones and other conveniences. There were gardens, chicken houses, rabbit pens and springs of good drinking water; in fact, everything they could think of to make life agreeable. One immense dugout went fifty feet under the ground, making a tunnel which was large enough to accommodate four or five hundred men. Of course, they were poorly ventilated and it is a mystery how men could live in such places month after month. They were covered with four or five feet of cement and on top of that would be heavy iron rails. It was almost impossible for a shell to penetrate the dugout even with a direct hit. There were two openings, so if they were unable to get out of one door, they had access to another. The bunks were made with wire stretched on the bottom for blankets, very much like the French, and were hard to sleep on.

The Germans endeavored to convince us that they were preparing to leave even before we came, but it was merely camouflage—they left too many things behind. Immense dumps of ammunition and large stores of supplies were found all over the field. In one dugout, dinner had been spread and was nice and warm when several doughboys came along. They were hungry and tired and greatly appreciated the thoughtfulness of their hosts who were "preparing to leave." Evidently, they did not appreciate the spirit of our visit, for they tried every device known in modern warfare to drive us out, but we liked it there, and, after mature deliberation, decided to remain until the time came to press still farther in the direction of Berlin.

It was amusing to see the souvenirs collected by the doughboys. Everything, from a cake of soap to a machine gun, was picked up and stored away in his pack. All were eager for an iron cross, and when a lucky fellow secured one, his standing among the men was greatly increased. Certainly, they wanted to get their cross from the men they killed, but, if that was impossible, they were satisfied to pick one up in a dugout or on the body of a dead Boche. I think every man in the American Army promised somebody at home to send them a German helmet. I made a few such promises myself, but haven't been able to fulfill them. And there are good reasons. A man who can carry a pack as heavy as that of the average American soldier has very little room for souvenirs and is certainly entitled to honorable mention in the history of this war. A friend told me that he had met a soldier from Oklahoma with a queer looking object swung across his shoulders. Wondering if a new order had been issued increasing the size of the pack, he asked him what he had. "Oh, nothing," he said, "Just part of a German machine gun I wanted to carry home to Dad." American soldiers are great on souvenirs, which is responsible for the story told of a certain German prisoner. He was asked if he knew why the different Allied nations were in the war and replied as follows: "The French want more territory, the English want more power and the Americans want souvenirs." I often wonder how many of our boys will ever get their collections back home. I had a few myself, but they are in my bedding roll and it was salvaged long ago. I would like to get my German field-glass, a certain queer-looking pipe and a helmet which I promised to a friend in New Orleans.

Gas attacks were frequent at this time. My home was in a dugout which was also used as a first-aid station. We always had a gas watch at night, who stood by the door of the dugout and would give the alarm when the shells fell close to us, for at this time the Germans had ceased to pipe it over and were using gas shells filled with mixture of mustard and chlorine. The masks were kept at the head of the bunk, open and ready for immediate adjustment. Great care had to be used in keeping the masks clean and free from even the smallest breaks, for the gas could penetrate the tiniest sort of opening. It required just a few seconds to slip one on and often they had to be worn several hours at a time. The mustard gas was deadly stuff, burning any part of the body that was exposed, and often would go through the clothing with frightful results. Perhaps more American soldiers have been injured by gas than shellfire, and surely it was the most hellish thing ever conceived in the mind of the Hun. The effect was not apparent at first. Many a boy has gone to the hospital laughing and joking, only to die within a few days.

Hardly a day passed but that we had to go out with our burial details, look for men in trenches, dugouts and shell holes. A beautiful valley separated our first and second lines and the boys called it "Death Valley," for it was open to full view from the German observation balloons. All the carts, trucks, ambulances and troops had to pass through it in order to reach the front line trenches, and the Germans kept up a constant bombardment. Hundreds of wagons were blown up and a large number of our men met their death in that valley. One of the burial places was located just on the side of the hill near the front line. One day we had spent several hours digging graves and laying to rest some of the brave fellows who had met their death there. We worked until the sun was sinking behind the hills. I was tired out with the day's work and had a long walk ahead of me in order to reach my dugout, so I sat down near the spot where an airplane had killed a bright young fellow from Texas just the day before. I sat there looking across what had at one time been the peaceful home of many happy people. There were two villages just half a mile apart and in one I could see the spire of the village church. It seemed to me that I could see those simple people in that valley before the war came and destroyed their homes. A quiet little stream of water ran through the valley and there was the washing place where all the French women met every day for their work. I could see the sheep grazing on the hillsides, the men working in their little patches and the children playing their simple games. Then the transformation came—the shells were falling on the houses, the ground was literally covered with holes, soldiers were marching across with their rifles and their packs, dead men were lying around. Then, the words of the Psalmist came to me, "Though I walk through the valley of death I shall fear no evil." One of the men told me he thought of those words one day as he walked through that valley and saw his companion fall by his side. I wonder why such a war as this had been permitted, why God didn't stop it, what had become of the people who once lived there, happy and contented. And then I realize, after all, that no matter how good and beautiful God may make a world, man can ruin it all.

I shall never forget the nights spent in the dugouts with the first aid men. They were a bright, jolly set of fellows and faced many dangerous experiences in their work. Usually they were quite busy, for all day long and during the night, sick and wounded men were being brought in to receive first aid treatment and then evacuated to the hospitals. When the big drives or raids came, these boys went alone with their stretchers, handages and simple remedies to minister to the wounded and bring in the dead. Many of them were killed while performing their duties, but no matter what the danger might be, they were just the same bright, cheerful fellows. We had no campfires to sit around and tell yarns and talk of the folks at home. We sat by the dim light that came from a little candle, with all the windows down and shades closely drawn. We were always in danger of airplane raids, and the shells were constantly falling around the dugouts. We would sit around until bedtime, smoking our pipes and often in silence would watch the smoke curl up towards the ceiling. What did we see? Visions of home, faces of loved ones; little children would come and sit down by our side and we would have sweet communion with them. The silence would be broken by some fellow who could stand it no longer and there would be a story, not always a humorous one, but we would laugh at it just the same and try to forget, always hoping that the day might not be far away when the war would end and we could once more be among those that we loved. Those were opportunities when I could approach the men on the subject of religion. I found that many of them were members of churches, and very few were lacking in interest. Perhaps they were not just as devout as Christians ought to be, they had gotten into the habit of swearing, but I seldom met a boy who did not have strong religious convictions; and they will have a more favorable attitude towards the Church when the war is over. They have faced the stern realities of life, they have met death face to face, and in the midst of it all have felt the presence of God and believe in Him as never before in all their lives. Perhaps they are not interested so much in creed, but they do believe in practical religion and have learned to practice it. Talk about self-denial, kindness and a willingness to help the other fellow—these men know how to appreciate that spirit and believe it to be the very essence of religion. I have often seen these men give up their warm bunks to poor fellows who happen to wander in, lost from their organizations. When the station was crowded with wounded men they willingly and gladly slept on the floor. Everything they possessed was common property, and I have seen many of them go without their meals in order to feed a hungry stranger.

Occasionally the Y. M. C. A. man would come along with a few cigarettes and chocolate bars. As a rule, he would have an inadequate supply and his visits were rather far apart, but he was doing his very best and we appreciated that fact. This great organization has been criticised because of its failures and shortcomings. But we must take many things into consideration. It undertook a great task, perhaps it was too great. It was handicapped on account of poor transportation facilities and inadequate supplies. It was humanly impossible for one man or a dozen men to supply the wants of an entire battalion on the front line. Men craved sweets, tobacco and a thousand things they had every reason to know they could not have. But, the craving was there just the same. The "Y" did the best it could and in many respects did its work well. That mistakes were made, no one can deny, but they were not alone in that respect. When an American soldier wants a thing he wants it very much and is not always able to understand his failure to get it, or to forgive those who fail to get it for him. When the situation has been fully understood by the people at home they will appreciate the tremendous amount of work done by the Young Men's Christian Association.

GREAT DIFFERENCE IN COST.

Think of the difference in cost between taking a professionally prescribed medicine and taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. You know that ordinarily it is considerable. In times like these when everybody should be economical it is well worth saving.

Hood's Sarsaparilla affords the least expensive of all treatments for the common, every-day diseases or ailments of the blood, stomach, liver or kidneys. Many physicians use the same substances as its ingredients for these diseases and ailments, but these substances are better compounded in Hood's Sarsaparilla than they can possibly be in a prescribed medicine which is put up in a small way, with fewer facilities, and when the physician's fee is added costs a great deal more.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by skilled pharmacists in one of the largest and best equipped laboratories in the world. Is wonderfully successful, and highly recommended to those who would recover health and strength with the minimum necessary outlay.—Adv.

THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Dear Epworthians: I have often heard comments by Leaguers on the Epworth League officer who, after his election, went to sleep on the job and was not heard of until the next election time. Well, I would not blame some of the live Epworthians of our State for making the same comment about the writer, for here it is January and you have not had one line from me. However, I have tried not to spend a lot of money for postage and printing before we, as a State organization, had some definite plan to tell you of; so, after months of planning, I am ready to tell you what we are going to do.

The first big thing for your chapter to plan for is a delegate fund, in order that you may send two or, three delegates, or at least one, to the State Epworth League Assembly at Mansfield next June 10 to 17, inclusive; we will send you detailed information soon. Just start now getting your delegate fund ready, and talk it everywhere you go.

This Assembly is your Assembly, planned and run by the Epworthians of our State, and surely you are going to boost it. It will be the Epworthians' vacation place in future years, where we can get some real good out of our vacation. We are selecting the very best material for our faculty, and hope to be able to publish the list soon.

Do you know that our State League work has been granted $1200 per year for the promotion of its work? Well, that is true, and of this amount we will receive about $700, or 60 per cent of the total, next November, at Conference. This means that from 1920 on, our Leagues will be able to do something for the Church. Until next November, we must, however, depend on the State dues of $2.50 from each chapter and the Anniversary Day collection in May.

With this bright future before us, we cannot afford to let this year drag along; so I appeal to every chapter in our State to send to Mr. J. J. Hamiter, the State League Treasurer, at P. O. box 295, Shreveport, La., your 1919 State dues, and if you have not made a pledge toward our African Special, which must be in by June, please do so. Shall we go on record as a bunch of deadheads, or shall we go on record as a bunch of live Epworthians? I am at your service to help you in any way I can. Just write me, and I will do my best.

Now, all together—financially "over the top" by next June, and at least one delegate from every League at Mansfield.

JAS. B. GRAMBLING,
President La. Conf. Epworth League.

NOTES FROM B. P. JACO, CENTENARY SECRETARY.

The Centenary of Methodist Missions is getting under headway in North Mississippi. The group meetings were held in rapid succession in January. Mrs. M. L. Hargrove and Dr. A. F. Watkins were my team from the central office, and did noble service. The selection of D. H. Hall, of New Albany, Miss., one of our leading bankers, a wholesale lumber dealer, and active church worker, and his acceptance of the place as Conference Director, puts new power into the work. He has entered enthusiastically into his work, and has sent in nominations for the district directors as suggested to him by the presiding elders. The stereopticon views are used to illustrate in lecture the world conditions. This is a most impressive feature of the campaign.

Dr. A. E. Clement has brought his liberal training and very successful experience in team work to our assistance, and will be with us in the Conference Council at Winona, February 21, and in all the district councils. Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo will attend and speak at our Conference Council. May I not say that the awful responsibility of the present in completing this Centenary work demands that without any excuse all presiding elders, district directors, all members of the Conference Centenary Commission, and executive members of the several Conference boards interested should attend the Conference Council? I can not emphasize too much the solemn duty of having the three-minute speeches made in accordance with instructions.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Secretary of our Conference Sunday School Board, is doing heroic and most effective Centenary work as he goes, and he is going very much. The fires are kindling and promise to develop great enthusiasm.

BEN P. JACO,
Centenary Secretary, North Mississippi Conference.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The Conference Councils, Centenary of Methodist Missions, for the three Annual Conferences will be held as follows: Louisiana Conference, February 18, Alexandria, La.; Mississippi Conference, February 20, Hattlesburg, Miss.; North Mississippi Conference, February 21, Winona, Miss. These dates have been moved up by request of the central office and with consent of the secretaries. Besides all the presiding elders, Conference Centenary Commission, executives of Conference boards interested, all district directors, there will be present at these councils, Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo, Dr. A. E. Clement, the Conference directors, and Conference Centenary Secretary.

Let all other engagements be canceled and every man whose duty it is to be present come to these councils.

A MODERN DORCAS.

By A. I. T.

She was only one of the Master's humble, timid workers among the poor and outcast. She was not born of royal lineage and reared in wealth, but of humble parentage and obscure origin. But she early heard and hearkened to the voice of her Savior, calling her away from the frivolous fads and empty life of the world, to a life of sacrificial service in nursing the sick, comforting the dying, and being a sweet and strong sister to every sinning son or daughter of Adam's ruined race.

Day and night she eagerly and lovingly sought out those poor unfortunates and ministered to them as only a Salvation Army lassie can. She was never too hungry and too tired to leave her little cottage and minister to her fallen sisters. No Magdalene sought her sisterly love in vain! But her human strength was not omnipotent. Her capacity for the stress and strain of nursing the sick and comforting the sorrowing must end somewhere. So, after many weary weeks of faithful ministration to the sick in the dreadful nation-wide epidemic, at last it claimed the lassie as its victim.

The hour of the smple funeral service had arrived. The body was not borne in stately array to splendid cathedral, to the solemn tolling of requiem bell, but slept sweetly in the humble little cottage which was the Mecca and haven of rest to multitudes of tired souls. The casket was not "banked" with expensive wreaths of costly flowers, but only a few simple roses and buds were placed on the bier.

A glance around the room at the faces of the mourners was both interesting and pathetic. They were not the high and mighty, but the meek and lowly. Here was the jail-bird who had been released on bond because the little lassie believed in him and secured his parole. Here wept the sorrowing widow and helpless orphan whose defenseless head had often found shelter in the lassie's cottage. Here sat a poor blind boy that has been rescued from a brothel and saved from an awful habit. The wail of the rescued wayward girl and the sob of the prodigal sister was heard on both sides of the room.

The minister was reading with tearful eye and sad heart the simple and impressive burial service, when into the room staggered a half-drunken man, with bleared eye and sunken cheek, whose clothing hung in tatters and in rags, and made his way to the casket. He gazed for a moment into the face, which, though cold in death, was smiling still, and laid a pretty wreath of fresh flowers on the basom, of the one who had been his best friend in life.

But the mourners and the preacher refused to notice the rude intrusion of the vagabond who, though steeped in sin and far away from the sainthood of infancy, yet had within his heaving bosom the spark of true gratitude and admiration for his benefactress and friend!

Many were the expressions of personal grief and loss at the ascension of the lassie, all so lonely now without her cheery smile and comforting touch and loving ministrations. Not a one in the room but felt the presence of the one who gave and took away this strong, sweet life. All feel alike His mighty touch of comfort and consolation.

My dear reader, suppose it had been you instead of the lassie? Would you be mourned as one who had helped the needy, clothed the orphan, and comforted the heart-broken? Let us go and do likewise. Then we shall have treasure in heaven. She did what she could.

RESPONSE OF COLLEGE STUDENTS TO THE CENTENARY.

By C. G. Hounshell.

College students hail with enthusiasm the World Program of the Centenary. For years many college men and women have been wishing that the leaders of our Church would launch an adequate program for the spread of Christianity to the ends of the earth. This is what they have been dreaming of. In recent visits to colleges by Centenary teams, Centenary committees have been appointed. These committees represent both faculty and students, so that the college can deliver its full strength on the Centenary. The students are entering into the Fellowship of Intercession and conducting intercession programs, praying for the evangelization of the world. Students are also signing the Stewardship cards in recognition of the fact that what they have belongs to the Lord. The liberality and ability of students to give is proved by the fact that in the recent United War Work drive, students of North America gave over two million dollars. If students recognize that their money is held in trust for God, the financial problems of the Church for the next generation will be solved.

Life Service.

After all, life is the indispensable factor in the program. Men and women trained for world service are the crying need of the hour. These must be college trained. If those who would take part in this program have not been to college, they must enter college and take the necessary training. It is easy, therefore, to see that the college is the key to the life service problem. As this program has been presented in the colleges, many students have been so impressed by the audacity of the undertaking, that they have been led to pray, "Lord, what wilt thou have me do?" Some have signed the Life Work Decision cards saying: "Here am I, send me." The spiritual value of this great challenge cannot be estimated. In a high and real sense, the students feel that by taking part in this program they will share in completing the tasks so nobly and heroically begun by those who laid down their lives in France.

KEEP SMILING.

By Willie Conger Page.

Shadows come and dreary rains;
Wailing winds across the plains.
Life is not all bright and gay,
Sorrows come, but will not stay,
If we keep smiling.

There is always work to do;
Hard tasks to be carried through;
Labor and toil that are never done;
But joy will come with the morrow's sun,
If we keep smiling.

Often we wonder, when there's no cheer,
Why trouble comes to His children here.
God is loving, cast all doubt away;
All will come right, if we trust and pray,
And keep smiling.

SCOTLAND SAVED BY A THISTLE.

Billy, a bright-eyed boy, in his eagerness after flowers, had wounded his hand on the sharp, prickly thistle. "I do wish there was no such thing in the world as a thistle," he said in hot temper.

But his father said calmly: "And yet the Scottish nation think so much of it that they engrave the thistle on the national arms."

"It is the last flower that I should pick out," said Billy. "I am sure they could have found a great many nicer ones even among the weeds."

"But once this thistle did them such good service," said the father, "that they learned to esteem it very highly. One time the Danes invaded Scotland, and they prepared to make an attack upon a sleeping garrison. So the Danes crept along barefooted, as still as possible, until they were almost on the spot. Just at that moment a barefooted Dane stepped on a great thistle, and the hurt made him utter a sharp, shrill cry of pain. The sound in the still night awoke the sleeping Scotch soldiers, and each man sprang to arms. They fought with very great bravery, and the invaders were driven back with great slaughter. So you see this thistle saved Scotland, and ever since it has been placed on their seals and emblems as their national flower."

"Well," said Billy, "I would never suspect that so small and ugly a thing could save a nation."—Pleasant Hours.

"WHATSOEVER YE SHALL ASK IN MY NAME"

By Agnes A. Meschutt.

A great island was ruled by two powerful sovereigns. The one was a good king who loved his people. His country was known as the "Kingdom of Light." He believed that people should be honest, thrifty and kind. This made his country a very happy land, for although the people worked hard to make it beautiful, they loved to do this work for their king, and knew he would care for them if they were ever in need.

The other country on this great island was not so fortunate, for it was ruled by a selfish, pleasure-loving emperor, and was known as the "Empire of Darkness." Strange to say, this Empire of Darkness looked most alluring from its boundary on the Kingdom of Light. While the last mentioned land was full of sweet, modest, little flowers to scatter fragrance, silvery-throated birds fluttered through the tree-tops, charming the ear, and row upon row of golden grain waved over well-kept fields, making the country look comfortable and home-like; in the Empire of Darkness all was a most gorgeous display of brilliant flowers, graceful statuary glistening through lustrous green leaves, with gayly plumaged birds flitting about, and the people seemed to have nothing to do but enjoy themselves in a wonderful garden.

Consequently, a young man and his wife, living near the border in the Kingdom of Light, grew discontented and decided to move over into the Empire of Darkness, in spite of the fact that they had heard the emperor was a hard taskmaster. They thought it was not fair for the King of Light to make his people work when the Emperor of Darkness allowed his people to spend their time playing in such a delightful park. They therefore set out for the change of residence, and on the way over the good king's guards at the border warned them they were going into danger; but the warning was unheeded as the view ahead was too alluring.

At first all seemed delightful indeed. They picked the gorgeous flowers until they were tired. They stopped to rest under the shade of trees on the banks of a crystal-clear stream—which flowed down from the mountains of Light, however—and there they quenched their thirst, and took a swim in the pool. Day by day they loitered on, as did others about them, advancing farther into the country toward the great rocky mountains whose bare heads towered up into the clouds. The country grew less and less attractive, but when they would turn back an officer of the emperor urged them on with fair promises.

Finally they were in the midst of the mountains where food and clothing were scarce, and at the same time discovered all their money was gone. There was nothing for them to do but go to work in the mines in the heart of the mountains and try to make enough money to return to their native land. The hours were long, the work hard, and the pay scant. Day after day they toiled with millions of others, going down into the darkness before dawn and coming up late in the evening. How they longed for the sunny fields of Light in which they had plowed and planted and harvested! Each night as they came out of the black mine they determined they would go home, but they were so tired they had to rest first, and before they knew it the overseer was calling them to return to their work. If they protested and refused, they were persecuted, and so they toiled on hopelessly.

One evening, as they came from their work a little earlier than usual, they noticed that the pigeons flying about were the bearers of messages, and catching one, read the message, "Weary wanderers, come home. Your ransom is paid and the emperor dare not keep you. A welcome awaits you in the Land of Light.' The message was signed by the Crown Prince Love, Son of the King of Light.

Can you imagine the joy which possessed the hearts of our persecuted friends? They forgot how tired they were and started right off to their old home, but did not go far when an officer barred the way. Remembering former sufferings, they did not dare insist when he refused to allow them to continue without orders from his emperor. With heavy hearts the young couple returned to their work in the gloomy mines and spent another day far in the depths of the earth, which was possibly more toilsome because of the fleeting glimpse of freedom. Again, coming up from their night's rest, they noticed the pigeons and suddenly thought, "Why not send a message back!" So they wrote, "We are coming home. Help us." They watched the pigeon as far as eye could see, then turned to their miserable cots to get a night's sleep and rest before starting on the long, hard trip home. "Home!" How it filled their dreams that night! And with what light hearts they started out the next morning! Why had they not thought of letting the Prince know they were coming so he could have helped them before? Again the officer barred the way, but they told him they had notified the King's Son they were coming, and the officer hesitated. Just then a messenger arrived from the emperor authorizing the guard to let this couple pass, as the King of Light had demanded their freedom.

On and on they journeyed. It was a difficult trip—much more difficult going back than coming in because everybody tried to persuade them to go no farther, making all sorts of fair promises, and laughing them to scorn for being quitters, but they had had enough of that country. They just kept in mind their kind Prince who had loved them so much in spite of their willfulness and unfaithfulness, and finally they reached the happy home of content ruled over by the King of Light.—Exchange.

AT THE END OF ALL THE YEARS.

We cannot describe it. We cannot imagine it in its perfectness. We call it by all the great and dear names we know: we call it glory, we call it victory, we call it rest, we call it home. If there is anything sweet, beautiful, pure, strong, on earth, we lift it up and call it heaven. And even the revelation of God can do no more for us than this at present. "Eye hath not seen," it can only look to see the city shine afar; "ear hath not heard," it can only listen as for some faint, down-wafted notes of the new song.—A. Raleigh, in "The Way to the City."

OUT OF ONE INTO ANOTHER.

We confess we are at a loss to understand the process of reasoning by which some prominent American citizens are justifying themselves in urging the adoption of a military and naval program that will put this nation on a war-footing all the time. We are ready to admit that we were, in many important respects, unprepared for the present war; but our impression is that it did not take us very long to get ready—to the wonder of our Allies and the discomfiture of our enemies. When the necessity arose, a way was found to provide the money and the men for the creditable carrying out of our part in the conflict. Now we are being told that we must be ready for "the next war!" We are urged to adopt compulsory military training and to build and maintain the gratest navy in the world, on the assumption, evidently, that "the next war" is bound to come. "The war to end war," in the opinion of these eminent thinkers, must have been a failure; the Peace Conference will be able to do little more than divide the spoils that have accrued from the present conflict. We are not so pessimistic. The conscience of mankind has been aroused; four years of hell turned loose on earth have given the nations enough of that species of the devil's ingenuity. We are not sure as to the grounds upon which the terms of a League of Nations to maintain Peace can be worked out—but we believe it can and will be done. The infinite resources of High Heaven have not been exhausted; Christ is the regnant force in the life of the world. At any rate, we are not ready to join a League to Perpetuate War.

WHY THE AMENDMENT WAS ADOPTED.

The adoption of the eighteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution consummated, in our opinion, the greatest moral reform in the history of the world. The incorporation into the organic law of a mighty nation of the prohibition of the manufacture and sale for beverage purposes of alcoholic liquors is so marvelous an achievement that we cannot refrain from a study of the causes that led up to it. Why was the amendment adopted?

In the first place, and fundamentally, the liquor traffic is morally wrong. It is merchandise in a commodity the continued use of which inevitably injures, and ultimately destroys, the finer qualities of real manhood. Body and mind and spirit—all pay the penalty for indulgence in strong drink. To purvey this destroyer of humanity must be contrary to the will of God. In the adoption of the amendment, right has triumphed over wrong—as it inevitably must, sooner or later.

But this moral triumph was hastened by influences that are not usually thought of as essentially moral. Economic conditions demanded the prohibition of the liquor traffic. Many people cannot see, or are not concerned about, moral and spiritual values; but everybody can understand a loss that makes itself felt in dollars and cents. The cumulative evidence of statistics gathered over a long period of years left no doubt that the liquor traffic was the greatest enemy business had to face. In great industrial centers, production was so visibly affected by the drink habit of workmen that those who were concerned only for efficiency of labor were forced into the ranks of the prohibitionists. We were told only a few days ago of the testimony of one of the largest employers of labor in New Orleans. He drinks moderately himself, but he remarked to a friend, "I will vote for prohibition every chance I have." The financial prosperity of dry States in contrast with wet States, as indicated by bank deposits and the number of homes and farms owned, could not be explained except upon the basis of probibition. Little business and big business demanded the abolition of the liquor traffic. The action of the Government in establishing dry zones around all military camps tremendously re-enforced the business argument.

Another factor in bringing about the adoption of the amendment was the evil effects of drink upon society generally. Poverty and crime and moral dissoluteness were inseparably connected with the liquor traffic. The social conscience of the nation has been aroused in recent years; and the forces that tear down have been identified and brought under condemnation. Purely humanitarian movements, under the leadership of men and women who are concerned primarily for social well-being as such, added their testimony to that from other sources to the effect that drink is at the bottom of our most serious social problems. The liquor traffic could not shift the blame for the existence of these conditions—it had to go.

Still another factor in bringing about the adoption of the amendment, was the pernicious political activity of the liquor forces. The affiliation, or attempted affiliation, of the brewers and saloon keepers with political administrations of practically all of our great cities, and their determined efforts to control State and national politics for their own purposes, brought them into a disrepute throughout the land that is reflected in the action of the various legislatures in adopting the amendment. The people had endured much, but there was a limit to their endurance—and the limit was reached.

Back of all these forces and influence, lay the labors of the men and women—all too few in the beginning—who realized what the liquor traffic meant, and who determined to wipe it out. They endured good natured raillery, bitter scorn, and savage persecution, but they held steadily to their task. The faithful and heroic women of the W. C. T. U. continued their work when their efforts seemed all but hopeless. But as time went on they gained recruits, and their cause grew stronger. The Anti-Saloon League took up the fight vigorously and effectively. The churches maintained their opposition to the great evil. The medical profession added its influence to the prohibition movement. Scientists and political economists saw and proclaimed the truth. Business interests joined forces with the reformers, and finally the Government outlawed the business for the protection of its military forces. The rivulet had become a mighty stream which swept all before it. The result was inevitable. Even New York ratified. The liquor people are still writhing, but it is in their death agony. On January 16, 1920, national prohibition by constitutional amendment becomes effective throughout the domain of the United States.

METHODIST ASSOCIATION.

On Wednesday of last week Methodists from all the churches of New Orleans met at 8 p.m. in Rayne Memorial Church for the purpose of forming a Methodist Association, through which all the churches of the New Orleans District may work together for the extension of our work in this great city. This is to be accomplished through Sunday school, mission, evangelistic and church extension work according to the provisions of the Discipline. Membership is open to all members of Methodist churches. There will be a board of directors, composed of representatives from the several churches, men and women, to be elected by the quarterly conferences on the basis of two representatives for every 200 members or fraction thereof. Regular pastors will be ex-officio members of the board. The quarterly conferences are electing these representatives, and it is expected that the association will soon be fully organized. A suitable office will be secured in the business section of the city as headquarters, where the presiding elder will have a desk, and direct the affairs of the association. Rev. J. G. Snelling, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, presided over the meeting, while he and Mr. Tudor B. Carre, who have co-operated in the movement, presented the plan of the association.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. Lastie N. Hoffpauir, our pastor at Zachary, La., reports that congregations are on the increase despite bad weather and bad roads.

Rev. Olin Ray, our pastor at Macon, Miss., writes that he is delighted with his work, and that his people have been most cordial to him.

The Vicksburg Herald recently gave more than half a column to a fine article from Rev. T. B. Holloman, in which he discusses Negro Education.

Felicity Church, New Orleans, has organized an Epworth League, and the outlook for it is good. To date twenty-four have been received into the Church. Rev. A. I. Townsley is the pastor.

We acknowledge with pleasure the receipt of a dainty card from Sharon, Miss., announcing the birth of Robert Howell, on Feb. 5, 1919, weight, 9 pounds, to Rev. and Mrs. F. L. Applewhite. Congratulations!

Mr. F. E. Gunter, Louisiana State Campaign Director in the big Missionary Centenary, has recently been appointed State Campaign Director in the sale of War Savings Stamps, in place of Mr. P. H. Saunders, resigned.

We learn that everyone in the home of Rev. J. W. Ramsey, Lockhart, Miss., has been sick except himself, but they are now recovering. Notwithstanding the sickness in his home, he has been preparing for the Centenary drive.

At the first quarterly conference of the Sherman charge, North Mississippi Conference, the salary was increased by $120. The pastor, Rev. W. B. Baker, writes that Sherman is a good charge, and that he has a fine people to serve.

The Wesley Bible Class Federation of the Louisiana Conference will hold its annual meeting at Ruston, La., March 11, 12, 13. A more extended notice of the meeting will appear later. Rev. Alonzo Early is the Sunday School Field Secretary.

Rev. F. B. Hill writes that a change has been made in the Patterson and Jeanerette charge, Louisiana Conference, each one of those points having become a station. So Brother Hill will now give his whole time to Jeanerette, where he resides.

Notwithstanding the fact that Brother C. C. Evans and his people at Canton, Miss., have not been able to have services on account of the influenza, they have not been idle. They have in sight the funds for paying off an old debt on the parsonage amounting to $800.

Rev. Otto Porter, of De Soto, Miss., in sending a check for subscriptions to the Advocate, writes that he has been kept much at home for three weeks, but not by the "flu." "I have been entertaining a fine girl, Grace Aline, born to us on Jan. 17," says Brother Porter.

From Rev. J. M. Boykin, our pastor at Bossier City, La., comes the fine report that the prospects for a new church there are encouraging. The membership is three times what it was when Brother Boykin took charge, and the attendance is in proportion, while the salary has been doubled.

The Editor of the Advocate, Rev. H. T. Carley, was called away Saturday by the sad news of the death of Mr. Kling, his father-in-law, whose home was in Satartia, Miss. The sympathy of all the readers of the Advocate will go out to Mrs. Carley and to Brother Carley, who is away on such a sad mission, while these lines are written.

We learn that the salary at Eunice, La., Rev. P. H. Fontaine, pastor, has been fixed at $1575, and that the outlook for the work is encouraging.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Conference Missionary Secretary, preached at Louisiana Avenue Church, this city, last Sunday morning. The pastor, Rev. W. D. Kleinschmidt was confined to his bed.

Mr. Paul Templeton, of Meridian, Miss., writes that he is just out of the army Y. M. C. A. work, and that he is anxious to get back into evangelistic work. He has worked as a pastor's assistant, and has traveled with Rev. J. H. Bell, of Columbut, Miss., as evangelistic singer. He would like to get in touch with any pastor or evangelist who may need his services.

Rev. R. A. Bozeman, of the Louisiana Conference, asks us to state that he will begin his evangelistic work again in April. Mr. J. R. Watson, of South Carolina, will be associated with him as soloist and song leader. Brother Bozeman still has some open dates, and if any pastor desires his services, he may address him at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas.

An office has been secured in the Hennen Building, Room No. 209, corner of Common and Carondelet streets, as the headquarters of Rev. N. E. Joyner, Louisiana Conference Missionary Secretary; Mr. F. E. Gunter, Louisiana State Campaign Director of the Missionary Centenary, and Dr. A. E. Clement, who has general direction of the campaign in Louisiana and Mississippi.

Miss Ernal, the oldest daughter of Rev. C. M. Crossley, died early Tuesday morning, Feb. 5, and was buried from the Philadelphia (Miss.) Methodist Church the following day at 10 a. m. The services were conducted by Rev. L. F. Alford and Rev. S. E. Flurry. The deceased had been a devoted Christian from early childhood. May the Lord's comforting presence be in the bereaved parsonage.

Dr. John T. Sawyer reports having had, last Sunday morning, a delightful service at the Presbyterian Church in Westwego, across the river from New Orleans. Notwithstanding the severe cold, a large number of little children, belonging to the Sunday school of Brother Hayes, were present, and gave close attention to the sermon preached by Dr. Sawyer, which was delivered especially to them.

Mrs. H. E. Pitts, of Ruston, La., writes that the Advocate has been in her family from the first year of its publication. She says: "My parents were subscribers before I could read; then, when school days began, the colored nurse whom I taught to read, would sit with me around the candle on the floor, and enjoy the children's corner. The Christian Advocate has been always, to me, next to my Bible. All the editors have been fine." We are glad to know that the Advocate has such a large place in the homes of our people as is indicated by this kind letter.

One of the oldest readers of the Advocate is Brother J. W. Chamberlin, of Pleasant Hill, Miss., whose renewal subscription has just been received through his pastor, Rev. W. W. Bruner. Brother Chamberlin is 94 years of age. Another aged reader of the Advocate is Brother D. A. Cameron, of Pachuta, Miss. He is 91 years of age, and has been a reader of the Advocate for forty years. In sending in his renewal, his pastor, Brother Dickens, says Brother Cameron "does not feel that he could do without it now." So e'en down to old age the Christian journal proves its worth.

Brother A. M. Mayo, Louisiana Conference treasurer, writes that he recieved, on Feb. 2, a letter from Brother Stockwell, under date of Oct. 12, which was written in his usual cheerful spirit. But the letter was not posted until after Nov. 18, and was enclosed in a letter from Mrs. Stockwell, who says that Brother Stockwell had been confined to his bed with dilation of the heart. He had been attended several times by Dr. Mossey, of the Presbyterian Mission at Lusambo, and by Miss Kathron Wilson, our trained nurse from Wimbo Niama. Brother Stockwell had been suffering since July and was unable to work. Even if he should recover steadily, he could not attempt to go home within a year. His devoted wife wrote: "Mr. Stilz has come down to take over the responsibility of the Mission, and that will leave me free to nurse John and care for baby. * * * John seemed some better to-day, but this evening he is complaining of the pain in his heart again, and is very weak. If the worst comes, I will cable the Board of Missions." Brother Mayo writes: "Realizing the very deep and abiding interest the church has in those so far away representing us on the firing line, I hasten to give you the full news as it has come to me, that we may continually bear them up to a throne of grace." Let us indeed remember our stricken brother, there in the heart of Africa.

THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN.

Rev. R. W. Tucker, our pastor at Crowley, La., this week sent us a check for $102 to cover a list of 43 renewals and 25 new subscriptions to the Advocate. Brother Tucker secured 40 subscriptions last year, and he has been so successful in his work for the Advocate that we commend his plan as found in his letter to the Editor. He writes:

"I gave one week to the Advocate. I began last Monday morning, and have given all the time, when it was not raining, to calling on my people. After a few minutes, and often a short prayer, I presented the claims of our church organ. The forty-odd who subscribed last year all renewed but two, and in my rounds I got twenty-five new subscriptions. Five of us renewed at Conference, and I send you sixty-eight, making a total of seventy-three Advocates coming to us."

We note two things in Brother Tucker's plan, which has been so successful—consecrated work, and faithful presentation of the Advocate as a necessity in the Methodist home. It is worthy of note that of more than forty whose subscriptions Brother Tucker secured last year, only two failed to renew.

Below, we give the results for the past week:

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Help your money to grow.

A CARD OF THANKS.

Dear Brother Carley: Please allow me space in the Advocate to express our deep appreciation of the many letters and telegrams that came to us on the death of our baby boy. It would be almost impossible to answer each one of them personally, so I take this method to thank all our friends for their thoughtful consideration of us in our sore bereavement.

So many of those who wrote have passed through the same trials, and it means so much to know that there is a sympathetic heart-beat and a real kinship of suffering. We want our friends to know that the God of all grace sustains us and we are able to say "Thy will, Lord, be done."

I should like to say that while we are in a new and strange place, the good people of Laurel did not allow us to feel that we were among strangers. Our own relatives could not have been more thoughtful of us nor have done more for us during our long sickness, and then, in the dark hour of death, they did more for us than any one could ask or think. May the blessings of God attend every one.

L. L. ROBERTS AND FAMILY.

Laurel, Miss.

Mrs. MARY A. CONLY, wife of M. O. Conly, was born on August 9, 1838, and departed this life on December 14, 1918, aged 80 years, 4 months, and 5 days. Sister Conly was a devout Christian, a loving companion, and the mother of three children, who preceded her to their heavenly home, leaving her husband to mourn her departure. Mrs. Conly was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, about 60 years. She loved her Church and its services, and did many deeds of kindness for humanity. To know her was to love her. The writer was her pastor for two years, 1901-2, and part of 1918, and conducted the funeral services. She died in the triumphs of a living faith, and said, just before she died, that she had no fears; the way was clear, and she was ready and willing to go. Her remains were laid to rest in the Long Branch cemetery to await the Resurrection morn.

J. M. MASSEY.

On Sunday morning, January 12, 1919, the pure spirit of Mrs. VIRGIE COOPER SUGG, of Eupora, Miss., left us for her heavenly home. Sister Sugg was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Cooper, of Eupora, and was born on January 24, 1883. Her mother lived only a few months after this, but in the heart of a fond stepmother, she received, as far as was possible in her own mother's place, the training and affection she needed. She joined the Methodist Church in her 12th year, and was a faithful, consistent member until she joined the Church above. Her life was a life of true fidelity and lovableness. On December 25, 1902, she was married to Mr. A. W. Sugg, with whom she lived happily and devotedly. She loved her home, and her greatest desire was to make her husband happy and train her children for usefulness and heaven. She loved the house of God, and no greater desire did she possess than to be busy in work for her Lord. On a beautiful day which followed her going, assisted by Rev. W. E. Fendley, pastor of the Baptist Church, the writer held her funeral service, after which her body was laid to rest in the Eupora cemetery. As an expression of the affection and love of her many friends, there was spread over the mound such a lovely and beautiful collection of flowers as is seldom seen. How typical of her lovely life! Husband and children, wife and mother will watch for your coming; father, and all her loved ones, she will be there to greet you. We all know where to find her.

Her pastor, H. M. YOUNG.

Eupora, Miss., Jan. 29, 1919.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to take from us J. H. Holmes to his eternal reward in heaven, prepared for God's own faithful children, therefore, be it resolved:

That the Sunday school and the congregation of Pleasant Ridge Church, DeKalb charge, Mississippi Annual Conference, have lost a faithful Sunday school superintendent, steward and charge leader; that no one could have been more loyal to his country, his Church, and his God.

Signed: Mrs. Kate Clark, Miss Octavia Waddell, for the Sunday school; Abel Key, S. B. Waddell, for the Stewards.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, we the Official Board of the Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of McComb, Miss., representing all the members of our church, are assembled in regular monthly session, this the evening of the 27th day of January, 1919, and,

Whereas, Brother D. C. Lenoir, whose sad death occurred on the morning of January 11, 1919, was a faithful member, efficient steward, and capable Sunday school teacher in our Church; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That in the passing away of Brother Lenoir, the Church and entire community have sustained an irreparable loss. His devotion to the Church, aggressive civic spirit, alliance with every noble cause, and fidelity to his friends, made him a worthy leader among his fellows.

2. That we do now express and record our high appreciation of his life and labor among us, and while we can but feel our loss most keenly, we realize that "he, being dead, yet speaketh" in his influence which elevated us while he lived, and shall abide with us, proving an ever increasing blessing upon our lives.

3. That we extend to his devoted wife and daughters our sincerest sympathy, assuring them that we are ever ready to aid them in any way to bear their burden of sorrow and added responsibility. We commend them to our blessed Savior and pray that at last we all, with him, shall be gathered into the Father's House.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved ones, a copy spread upon our minutes, a copy to the local press and New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Signed for the Board: W. P. Bond, Chairman; J. B. Alford, Secretary; J. Loyd Decell, Pastor.

RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Woman's Missionary Society at Centerville, Miss., January 13, 1919:

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to call from among us our beloved friend and co-worker, Miss Mary Muggah, and whereas, we feel keenly the loss we have sustained; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to Him who is too wise to make mistakes, and too loving to be unkind.

2. That we will always rejoice that she came to live among us, and that we will cherish her memory as a faithful Christian worker.

3. That she leaves a heritage to us worthy of emulation, her loyalty to duty.

4. That our sympathy be extended to the bereaved loved ones, a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes; a copy sent the family, and one published in the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Signed: Mrs. E. L. Alford, Mrs. K. B. Ford, Mrs. W. L. Hagood, Committee.

SUFFERING TRANSMUTED.

Unhappiness is the hunger to get; happiness is the hunger to give. True happiness must ever have the tinge of sorrow outlived, the sense of pain softened by the mellowing years, the chastening of loss that in the wondrous mystery of time transmutes our suffering into love and sympathy with others.—William George Jordan.

NUXATED IRON IS USED BY OVER 3000000 PEOPLE ANNUALLY IN THIS COUNTRY ALONE TO HELP BUILD UP THEIR HEALTH STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE
YOU CAN TELL THE PEOPLE WHO HAVE PLENTY OF IRON IN THEIR BLOOD — THEY ARE THE STRONG VIGOROUS HEALTHY FOLKS

Look around at the men and women you meet in a single day. One glance is enough to tell the ones with plenty of rich, red blood, strength and physical energy to back up their mental power and make them a success in whatever they undertake.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital, (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says that to help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing so valuable as organic Iron—Nuxated Iron. It often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time. It is conservatively estimated that Nuxated Iron is now being used by over three million people annually, and it has been used and endorsed by such men as U. S. Commissioner of Immigration Hon. Anthony Caminetti, also United States Judge G. W. Atkinson, of the Court of Claims of Washington, and others. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists everywhere.

A Godsend to Rheumatics.

Here It Is. Those awful pains of rheumatism so common during the cold, rainy weather are completely forgotten, and the rheumatism is expelled from your system by the very simple treatment of taking Renwar Salts, which neutralizes the uric acid in the blood. The cause of rheumatism is uric acid in the blood, and Renwar attacks the very cause of this malady and expels the uric acid from the system. Renwar is entirely dependable. It does not in any way injure the stomach or affect the heart. It is prescribed by the best physicians, and your money is refunded if Renwar fails to relieve you of your rheumatism. Give Renwar a trial and you will never regret it. Mr. Benagh, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "Within two or three days after using Renwar my rheumatism disappeared." Price 50c. Ask your druggist for it, or write WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE.

PATTERSON AND JEANERETTE.

"And I saw the dead, small and great—high and low—stand before the throne of God: and the books were opened."

My aequaintance with "village Methodism" in the old country, its burdens and difficulties, led me from my earliest days to honor and revere those whom I please to call "the anonyma" of the Church: the heroes and heroines that, under all difficulties, stood by the Ark; men and women, whose names never appeared in Conference reports; who were never mentioned outside a narrow and limited circle—"small" in that sense, but still "great" in God's sight. And I took and gave comfort from the fact that God never overlooked or forgot "their works of faith and labors of love." And the same conditions exist in our churches in this country. It is not merely to the high and the great, the prominent people in the Church whose names are constantly appearing in our public and official church records, that sole honor is to be given. It is the "small" as well as "the great," the little and unknown, as well as the "high and the great," to whom we should give our due meed of praise.

In my charge since Conference, death has been busy with some of these "anonyma;" a few royal women have gone to their reward. First of all, early in December, Miss Mary Muggah, of Patterson, died suddenly one Sunday afternoon in Centerville, Miss., and was buried in the Methodist cemetery at Patterson, La. Dr. Frank Parker and his brother, with Dr. Henry, Briscoe Carter, and others who have travelled in this community, know how helpful in all good works the Muggah family were, loyal and faithful to the Church in all its vicissitudes. Miss Mary Muggah certainly loved the Church, and in her personal character and life, was blameless. One special feature is worthy of imitation. It was said of her, she was never known to speak evil of any one, but always put the best construction on things amiss.

Then followed the death of Mrs. Cora Johnson and, immediately after her, Mrs. Alice Kelso, both of Jeanerette. These women were charter members of the small band of women found in the earliest records of the Jeanerette church when established in 1884. Both were very frail bodily for some time previous to their decease, unable for a long time to attend the services of God's house, yet the presence of God was manifested in their homes.

Then I was called away to Wilson, La., my first Louisiana charge, to bury a younger lady, Mrs. Minnie Johnstone, wife of Dr. Harry Johnstone. Called by God under my ministry at Wilson to enter into the work of our Church (not a Methodist), modest, retiring, but wonderfully fitted by a Christian life, education and a charming, winsome personality, she soon found her "metier" in forming a Men's Bible Class in our Church after I left. The influence of her life and work in that one direction will ever be a permanent monument to her life's work, and only eternity will reveal the result.

Last of all, only a week later, I went to Patterson to bury Mrs. M. B. Trellue, wife of Capt. Trellue. A great gap has been made in the ranks of our Church there by her death, and that of Miss M. Muggah. Mrs. Trellue was prominent in all good works, and earth is poorer, and heaven is richer, by her removal.

I am wondering who will be "baptized for the dead," who can or who will take the places of these fallen soldiers on the battlefield. What an incentive to work and claim the lives, effort, and enlistment of our young people, who are growing so rapidly into manhood and womanhood, into God's service!

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord; they rest from their labors, and their works do follow them."

WORK AMONG SPANISH-SPEAKING SOLDIERS.

My Dear Brother: I thought maybe you might be interested in some of the work I have been doing here in Camp Cody, in connection with the boys who speak Spanish.

Last June there came a consignment of Spanish-speaking boys here from various States, and they continued to come until we had about fifteen hundred of them.

Of course they were all Catholics, or practically so, and it meant careful work to be assigned to them as educational and religious director, as I was. I was the only available man, it seems, to handle them, and I began a series of educational lectures, which finally drifted into semi-religious, and then I began a campaign of giving away New Testaments in Spanish. At first, they refused them, and it was a matter of two months before they would accept them, agreeing to read them. Six months have passed since their coming here; many of them have gone overseas, some have been discharged, and we have now about 400 of the original number in the camp, most of them being regular attendants at our religious services, which are held weekly in Spanish.

Just now, I have entered the hospital for a serious operation, which will mean about two months' confinement for me. In the meantime, my wife is continuing the weekly religious service in Spanish at one of the "Y" buildings.

A Catholic priest has just shown up, who will doubtless try to keep them from attending our services, but we have endeared ourselves to them in many ways, and have but little fear of the result of work among them.

I had thought to be in New Orleans in February, to go to the Cuban Mission Conference, but cannot go now, as I shall not be able to leave the bed until some time in March. We have spent some pleasant times in New Orleans, and one of these days hope to see it again; our only child was born there. MARION BROWNING.

HUMAN FRUITAGE.

Nature does not bear fruit for herself, but for man. The branch does not bear the rich clusters for its own selfish appetite. Our fruitage must be for mankind. Your aim is a mistaken one if you are seeking spiritual comfort, quiet satisfaction, joy here and hereafter, just for your own little self. —Christian Herald.

No man could possibly write a program suited to seventeen thousand Sunday schools. The programs in the Magazine and School Standard are merely suggestive. Work them out to suit your local needs. The World Outlook and Missionary Voice have excellent helps. Write to the Centenary Service Department, Box 38, Nashville, Tenn., for a copy of the Centenary Survey and all Centenary charts. The big world map you have received with the above helps will start things to going.

If you have not received the attractive Centenary World Map, write to J. L. Neill, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn., for your copy. It is free if you are willing to use it for the benefit of the school. This map, properly explained, is a thrilling program itself.

Let us remember this one thing, we must give missionary information, if we would arouse a missionary conscience. The Sunday school is called upon to give this information monthly. In addition to this monthly program, mission studies have been prepared adapted to every department in the school.

The sooner we give the information the speedier and more completely shall be our victory. God does not accomplish great things through ignorance; he must have the truth for his Spirit to move the heart. No wonder the prophet cried, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge!" God has been patiently waiting these years for his teachers to instruct his people.

The following consecrated women are expected to put a Missionary program in every school in the Conference: Miss Linnie Barcroft, Tupelo, for the Aberdeen District; Miss Lillian Wallace, Baldwyn, for the Corinth District; Mrs. J. W. Conger, Vaiden, for the Durant District; Miss Beulah Fite, Byhalia, for the Holly Springs District; Mrs. R. P. Neblett, Como, for the Sardis District; Mrs. Lillie Wadsworth, Winona, for the Winona District. Ought every school in the Conference have the monthly missionary program? Can every school give missionary information? The answer is in the question. Regardless of the cost, let us do this.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Last Sunday was spent with the Capitol Street Sunday school. They have a good school and are taking more interest in the work. Their Intermediate Department is growing and doing a fine work. It was a rainy day and the attendance was small, but all the evidence of work was present. This school has accepted its Centenary allotment. The Primary Department is giving instructions in Missions.

Monday was spent at Terry. We had a good meeting there. It was the occasion of the first quarterly conference. It was a good meeting. The Secretary was given an opportunity of speaking to the officials. Many things were suggested. Both Sunday schools represented agreed to accept their Centenary allotment. Rev. J. M. Morse, the presiding elder, reported the organization of a Sunday school on this charge and the new superintendent was elected at this quarterly conference. This is the first school organized this year that I know of, and the presiding elder is the responsible party.

Tuesday night the first quarterly conference of the Galloway Memorial Church was attended. They had a fine report. They have taken a forward step over last year. The Sunday school was reported in better condition than last year, and things looked bright for a fine year. They accepted their Centenary allotment for the Sunday school.

Wednesday night the quarterly conference of Capitol Street was held, and after the quarterly conference a Workers' Council was held. This was a fine meeting in every respect. Four teacher-training books were ordered and other supplies.

We are anxious that each Sunday school give definite instructions in Missions. Plan to assume your Centenary allotment and to give the programs prepared.

The fourth Sunday in January was spent with Brother Vickers on the Bucatunna charge, at State Line. I found a small but loyal Sunday school. The "flu" had about taken charge of the community and the school was disorganized for this reason. Three enjoyable sessions were held. One teacher-training book was sold.

The last day of the month was spent at Hattiesburg, in a Centenary Group Meeting. It was a fine meeting. I feel that the movement is gathering momentum in our Conference and that it will be put over.

I wish every superintendent would write to Rev. J. L. Neill, Nashville, Tenn., 810 Broadway, for a supply of leaflets in regard to the Centenary in the Sunday school. I notice Brother Black has a note in regard to sending the money; there is a book made for the purpose, free, so the treasurer cannot go wrong in sending in his money. Write to Brother Neill for it.

Attend your Centenary Group Meeting. Come ready to ask about everything you want to know. They will have some one ready to answer you. Pray for me and the work.

I would appreciate any interesting items of Sunday school activity, published in the Advocate or sent direct to me.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

Jackson, Miss.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE NOTES.

The Sunday schools of every district are suffering from the "flu." It is the job of every pastor and Sunday school superintendent to give skillful attention, else we will meet with irreparable loss. Look after absentees, and do it now.

The Wesley Bible Class Federation Meeting at Ruston is coming soon—March 11, 12, 13.

Ruston will entertain all delegates. You are asked to elect delegates or appoint them. Have your school represented by one or more. Let the Wesley Bible classes of a school select one; if you have no Wesley Bible class, choose some one of your school to represent your adult classes.

Every Methodist Sunday school should have delegates. We are counting on you.

Every Sunday school is to pledge now 5 cents per member per month for the Centenary allotment. Do it now.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"God made stone—man shapes statutes out of it. God made childhood—it's up to us teachers an' parents to shape it into manhood an' womanhood that's beautiful."

"You can't do anything in last Sunday an' what you can do in this one's gettin' less ev'ry minute. But you can do a heap in next Sunday—if you begin gettin' ready for it now."

"Us teachers is makin' tracks for our scholars to walk in, so we'd better not walk too close to dangerous places ourselves."

HOW SHIVAR MINERAL WATER RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To relieve Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer from rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

I have personally derived great benefit from the use of the Shivar Mineral Water and have knowledge of its beneficial effects in a great number and variety of cases."—Rev. A. McA. Pittman

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFIES AND DARKENS HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens Hair so Naturally that Nobody Can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The Missionary Society of North Mississippi has again closed its books upon a record which marks the best year in its history. It is with deep gratitude to God that this announcement is made to you. It would be well if each auxiliary would call special attention to this in the February meeting, holding a short prayer and praise service. The plans for the New Year may not be entirely formulated, and with this encouragement should give evidence of greater zeal.

This is my first message to you in 1919 and I should like to ask that as a Conference we adopt for the year the slogan, "Press Forward."

MISSIONARY CENTENARY.

Southern Methodists who have responded so generously to the war needs of the past four years will not fail to heed the call of the Centenary.

The Centenary World Program, based on a careful survey of our mission fields, proposes to send out to Africa, Brazil, China, Korea, and Mexico, in the next five years, twenty-seven medical missionaries and thirty-seven nurses, besides opening several new hospitals, dispensaries and medical schools, and better equipping those already in operation. It is an inspiring effort to combat disease among some forty million people who are largely or wholly without medical advantages and thereby introduce to them the great Healer of Souls.

The whole five-year Centenary program for Africa involves the expenditure of $380,000, which the Epworth Leagues have pledged themselves to raise.

Salts if Bachachy and Kidneys Hurt

Drink Lots of Water and Stop Eating Meat for a while if your Bladder Troubles You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

Mrs. J. D. Miller, Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "For many years, off and on, I suffered from kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had a severe backache and felt miserable, and I got to a place where I had to do something. I bought Foley Kidney Pills and after taking two bottles I can say my backache is gone, and where I used to lie awake nights with rheumatic pains, I now sleep in comfort and enjoy a good night's rest. Foley Kidney Pills did wonderful things for me and I recommend them."

AN ORGANIZATION TO HELP PRISONERS.

Mr. W. G. A. Millar, purchasing agent of the American Steel Bridge Company, Pittsburgh, Mr. A. M. Johnson, president of the National Life Insurance Company of Chicago, and other prominent business men east and west have organized the Steffan Prison Evangelistic Association in the interest of prisoners in the jails, penitentiaries and reformatories of the Eastern and Middle States.

The Association's evangelist, Rev. John Steffan, is a Roumanian who as a boy of 17 came to the United States 16 years ago, fell into bad habits, became known as "Railroad John," a notorious gambler, shot and killed a man who attacked him with a knife over a card game, was sentenced for life, and after six and a half years in the Columbus, Ohio, penitentiary was pardoned.

When planning to kill himself a year after entering the penitentiary a fellow prisoner handed him a copy of the Columbus Citizen. It had an article on the first page telling of a man twice condemned to be hanged, whose aged mother got him on his knees in the cell while she prayed for him, and who was subsequently pardoned.

Steffan says: "I laid the paper on the floor, got on my knees and asked God to forgive me, and He saved me right there." He secured an English and a Roumanian Bible, and reading both at the same time learned to read and write English. His conduct became exemplary, outsiders began to hear of him, a godly old lady in Pittsburgh adopted him as her son, and finally he was released. A few months later he became a student at the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, and started visiting the city's jails, telling his story with marked results. Later on he extended his work to many eastern penitentiaries, with equal success. He was ordained to the ministry in the Moody Church of Chicago and married a gifted young woman, also a Moody Bible Institute student. Mrs. Steffan shares her husband's work, ministering to women prisoners.

Weekly Health Talks

Where Most Sickness Begins and Ends

BY FRANKLIN DUANE, M. D.

It can be said broadly that most human ills begin in the stomach and end in the stomach. Good digestion means good health, and poor digestion means bad health. The minute your stomach fails to properly dispose of the food you eat, troubles begin to crop out in various forms. Indigestion and dyspepsia are the commonest forms, but thin, impure blood, headaches, backaches, pimples, blotches, dizziness, belching, coated tongue, weakness, poor appetite, sleeplessness, coughs, colds and bronchitis are almost as common. There is but one way to have good health, and that is to put and keep your stomach in good order. This is easy to do if you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a wonderful tonic and blood purifier, and is so safe to take, for it is made of roots and herbs. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., stands behind this standard medicine, and it is good to know that so distinguished a physician is proud to have his name identified with it. When you take Golden Medical Discovery, you are getting the benefit of the experience of a doctor whose reputation goes all around the earth. Still more, you get a temperance medicine that contains not a drop of alcohol or narcotic of any kind. Long ago Dr. Pierce combined certain valuable vegetable ingredients—without the use of alcohol—so that these remedies always have been strictly temperance medicines.

If piles are torturing you, get and use Pierce's Anodyne Pile Ointment. The quick relief it gives is hard to believe until you try it. If constipated, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be taken while using Anodyne Pile Ointment. Few indeed are the cases which these splendid remedies will not relieve and usually overcome. They are so good that nearly every drug store has them for sale.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now any time— will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

THE WORK IN THE FRENCH MISSION FIELD.

Dear Brother Carley: Will you please allow me a little space in the Advocate? My mind was recently attracted to these words: "Is there a more heroic test for the powers of manhood than pioneer work in the mission field?" I am sure it would not strike most of our preachers as forcibly as it does me, being in pioneer work myself, in the French mission.

The work here is certainly a great one, but we are not prepared to accomplish much. Since I have been at Lockport, I have made many acquaintances, and the people have been very nice to me. If there is a place where the field is white, ready to harvest, it is here in this section of the country. While Romanism has prevailed, yea, has had perfect control of these people for so many years, they are getting tired of it. They are getting disgusted with the way the priests are serving them.

Just let me relate to you what happened here in Lockport Tuesday: A certain man died suddenly Sunday night, of heart trouble. While I had never met him, I had met his wife just a few days before he died. He was not a member of our Church, but I was told that he came occasionally to our services before I came to Lockport. His wife sent for me early Monday morning to offer a prayer in the house, which I did with great pleasure, thanking God for the opportunity. This naturally got to the ears of the priest in a little while. When asked to bury the deceased, he coldly refused, saying: "I cannot officiate, neither can I take this man into my Church, because he went and heard those Protestants." It was a shock to the whole family—they hardly knew what to do. After conferring among themselves, they decided to ask me to perform the ceremony, which I did. But since we have no burying-place here at Lockport, he had to be put in the Catholic cemetery. The priest gave him a resting place because he could not help it, for the family has a lot in the graveyard. What we need most at this place is a burying-place; but more than that, we need a church building, and also a parsonage. I am now living in a rented house, the front part of which we use for church. There is no need to say that the room is very small. We cannot compete, arranged as we are, with the Catholic Church, which is worth a few thousand dollars.

I am persuaded that the people would flock to us if only we could be prepared to take care of them. To come to us means excommunication from the Catholic Church. But in spite of that, they are coming to us. But only listen to the questions they are asking us: "Where are you going to put us after we die? Are you going to stay with us? If we affiliate with your Church, are you going to build a church building here?" Can we blame them? No, we have scarcely anything to show them.

I am praying that God may somehow open a door here, for we surely need it. I am glad for the Centenary movement, and I trust we can be helped here by the "Methodist Million" in the near future. One of our successful and devout preachers said to my co-laborer in the French mission that he would turn all the money he could raise in the Centenary drive to the French mission. My prayer is that more of our good preachers will take similar action. This is truly a great mission field right at our doors.

I have several appointments, that is, preaching places—more than I can fill regularly. To get to every one regularly, I would need an areoplane. While an airship is undoubtedly beyond reach, I should have a boat. We have one church building at Raceland, the only one on Bayou Lafourche, which is approximately eighty miles long. People from different places along the Bayou, are coming to me, requesting that I should go and hold services in their homes. One of my appointments is five miles below here and I have been there on a Monday night when we counted eighty people. I preach there in a private home. The people just crowd into every room and some are in the doors, while others are standing on the porch, to listen to the Word preached. They are asking us to go there oftener. With no conveyance of my own, I very often have difficulty in getting to those places.

Wife and I are working just as hard as we possibly can. Our people here are willing to do all they can, but the congregation is so small that we cannot do what should be done, yea, what must be done if we want to reap any fruits.

We bought a lot here, but is not fully paid for. This is also pressing upon us. You can plainly see how much we need outside help, how we need your assistance. I firmly believe that we can raise a few hundred dollars here in Lockport. But we need much more than we can raise by ourselves. So won't you please help us in this ripe and very needy field?

Fraternally yours,
A. J. MARTIN.
Lockport, La., Jan. 29, 1919.

HATCHED 175 CHICKS.

G. W. Miller of Pittsburg, Okla., writes: "I used Reefer's Ready Relief and out of 175 chicks hatched didn't lose one." Mrs. T. E. Murphy, of Hughesville, Mo., writes: "Have been using Ready Relief for White Diarrhoea and only lost one chick out of 140."

You can do as well. Reefer's Ready Relief in your baby chick's first drinking water will save them from dying off with that dreadful White Diarrhoea plague. This remedy is the discovery of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 9252 Poultry Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a package that will save 500 baby chicks. Aren't your delicate, downy baby chicks worth five for a cent? You take no risk. Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. If you don't want to try this bank guaranteed chick saver, at least write today for Mr. Reefer's free valuable poultry book that gives the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am the mother of four children, and for nearly three years I suffered from a female trouble with pains in my back and side, and a general weakness. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which I had seen advertised in the newspapers, and in two weeks noticed a marked improvement. A LETTER FROM REV. J. V. BENNETT.

Dear Brother Carley: For a short time I am at the Moody Bible Institute, preparatory to entering my year's work. This is a great place for inspiration and Bible study. Before coming I had heard at different times that the faculty of the institution had gone astray with the "New Thought," or Higher Criticism. I have never seen a faculty that were any more faithful or stronger in their teaching on the "blood of Jesus." I can't say what they have been in the past, but they are certainly straight at that point now. I was in Dr. Jas. M. Gray's class on Biblical Criticism this morning, and he certainly didn't fail to go after Jackson Shurley Case's new book on the teaching that Jesus Christ was a mere man, and died prematurely, and that Paul, who came after, was a greater man than Jesus. He took the books of the Bible that the critics go after, one by one, stated their arguments, and then carefully and tactfully answered their points. He gave the names of the men responsible for the Bible's ever being questioned, and stated emphatically that the whole thing originated in the brain of man, and not from historical proofs. Dr. P. B. Fitzwater, on Biblical Introduction, just before Dr. Gray very impressively and scripturally showed how God had given His Word, how the Canon came together, etc. Last Monday evening I heard Prof. Edgar J. Banks, Ph. D., archaeologist, from Alpine, N. J., and if there had ever been a shadow of doubt in my mind as to the inspirational or divine authorship of the old Book, it would have all been gone after his pictures were placed on the canvas and his explanations given. He spent several years in Egypt, etc., getting these evidences. He showed the pictures of his workers, how they dug these old idols, pillars of the temples, sphinxes, etc., with these hieroglyphics on them. Always he could give Scripture to prove his point. He was great.

Of course there are some things here that I do not agree with, or accept. They are interdenominational, but I am sure the core of the teaching is Calvinistic on the "final perseverance of the saints;" however, I've heard only two suggestions to that effect. One thing is certain: their students know the Book, and they know how to study it. There are other minor points that I could mention, but it is not necessary. I believe, Mr. Editor, I can give my Conference and my brethren more effective and efficient service after my stay here. The practical work has been of special help to me. I've conducted services in the Cook County jail, talking to more than two hundred and fifty men—five surrendered to Christ—and in the Kirk Soap Factory, etc., and I am still going. Pray for me, brethren. You may address me at home, Brookhaven, Miss. I have some open dates the early spring. After leaving here, I'll go home for one day and night, and then on to Brother Oliver at Eden. Pray for the meeting. Pray for me, brethren.

Your servant,
JAS. V. BENNETT.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 31, 1919.

P. S. Last year I preached 518 times, had a number of conversions and reclamations, and 303 accessions to the Church. I want to do a little better this year. J. V. B.

THE GREAT TEST.

Self-control is an easy matter when we are alone. But the moment our lives are thrown in with others, then comes the struggle. To maintain our equanimity; to restrain the sharp retort, the impatient exclamation; to get along smoothly with disagreeable people, without friction or jarring—this is the great life test. This is what builds character, what tests manhood or womanhood, what makes the ideal employee.—New Success Magazine.

Convalescence after pneumonia, typhoid fever and the grip, is sometimes merely apparent, not real. To make it real and rapid, there is no other tonic so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla. Thousands so testify. Take Hood's.—Adv.

The unselfish are the happiest—those who work to make others happy and forget themselves. The dissatisfied are those who are seeking happiness for themselves.—Exchange.

LOVE AND SYMPATHY NEEDED.

Goodness should be the most attractive thing in the world; but we do well to remember that mere correctness of life and principle, unvitalized by love and sympathy, lacks the qualities that charm.—Exchange.

A STUBBED TOE,

a cut finger, a burnt hand, may seem a trifle though painful, and you are likely to let the wound take care of itself. When aided by the careless touch of a dirty hand and by the millions of germs that attack the child every day, however, it is likely to develop into an ugly sore, and if left alone, into blood poison. Don't play with fate. At the first injury apply Yel-O-Pine Antiseptic (formerly Duncan's) Healing Oil. It is made from yellow pine products and consequently safe and effective. It immediately stops the bleeding, cleanses the wound, kills the germs, soothes the pain, and begins healing. Buy a bottle at your druggist's or send 25c to the Yellow Pine Medicine Co., Montgomery, Ala. Keep it on your shelf for the emergency. You will find it indispensable. It is the first and best aid for old sores, ulcers, cuts, burns, bruises, skin eruptions—such as itch, insect bites, tetter, eczema, ring worm, poison oak and excellent for rheumatism.—Adv.

LISTEN TO THIS.

According to the statistics of the recent Conferences, there are 157,583 members of the M. E. Church, South, in Louisiana and Mississippi. These are distributed among 476 pastoral charges, served, of course, by that number of pastors. The figures for the different Conferences are as follows: Louisiana Conference, 148 pastoral charges, 39,216 members; Mississippi Conference, 158 pastoral charges, 58,087 members; North Mississippi Conference, 170 pastoral charges, 60,280 members.

NOW READ THIS.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate is the official organ of the Louisiana, the Mississippi and the North Mississippi Conferences. It is owned, maintained and controlled by them through a Publishing Committee, consisting of three members from each Conference. It is the medium through which all official notices concerning the work of the Church are conveyed to the people. In addition to official notices, it contains every week a large amount of interesting, suggestive, inspirational and devotional matter, carefully selected and prepared with the needs of the Church and of the home in mind. It gives also such information as will enable its readers to keep fairly well in touch with the great movements of Methodism especially, and with the religious world in general. Its subscription price, fixed by the Publishing Committee, is one dollar and fifty cents a year. It has about 7000 subscribers.

DO A LITTLE FIGURING.

According to these figures, only one Methodist out of every 22 is a subscriber to his official Church paper. If five members of the Church read every copy, only 35,000 read it weekly, leaving 122,000 who do not see it. If the statistics reported to the Conferences are correct, the average number of copies to each pastoral charge is a little less than fifteen.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF IT?

These figures furnish food for thought. If we are really interested in the welfare of our Church, we cannot turn carelessly away from the facts as presented. The situation is all right, or it is not all right. If we decide that it is all right, we have agreed that there is practically no need for the 122,000 Methodists who do not read their Church paper to have the information that is contained in its pages, or to have their vision and their sympathies broadened by coming into contact with the currents of thought and the great movements that are making this age epochal in the history of the world. We have agreed that it is not necessary for the great majority of our membership to have the benefit of the knowledge that comes from reading Church literature. If we decide that the situation is not all right, we are bound to consider seriously what ought to be done to remedy it.

IS THIS TOO MUCH?

We have thought about this matter a great deal, and very seriously. We are not especially concerned about the maintenance of a paper as such. We have never made a single plea that the subscription list of the Advocate should bo increased in order that the paper itself might be able to eke out an existence. Our whole emphasis has been upon the fact that the Church needs the paper for its proper development and maintenance, and that the people need it for their own intellectual, moral and spiritual good. Thinking of it in this light, we have reached the conclusion that the Advocate should have not fewer than 20,000 subscribers. That would mean that one out of every eight Methodists in Louisiana and Mississippi would take it. It would mean that the average number of subscribers on each pastoral charge would be forty-two. It would mean that the majority of our membership would know what is going on in the religious world. It would mean that any matter of importance could be brought to the attention of the mass of our people with a minimum of trouble and expense, and that adequate publicity could be given to any movement that the Church deemed wise. It would mean, in our judgment, a tremendous increase in the interest and activity of our work as a whole. If we had 20,000 subscribers, and five members of the Church read each copy, there would still remain nearly 60,000 who would not see it.

SOMETHING WORTH WHILE.

We are hearing on every side nowadays that it takes a big thing to appeal very strongly to men and women. Has the time not come for us to carry out large plans for the circulation of our Church literature? Can we believe that we are fulfilling our mission when so small a percentage of our people are reached by our efforts? Is there a single phase of our work that would not feel a tremendous impetus if, every week, twenty thousand copies of our Conference organ were going into the homes of our people? Would not the respect of the commercial world for our Church be greatly increased if it knew that we were carrying on an enterprise that had the sympathy and support of so large a part of our membership? Would not we ourselves feel the impulse of a mighty forward movement if we realized that we were building upon broad foundations and pressing vigorously a mighty constructive movement?

IT CAN BE DONE.

Anything worth while can be done. Never yet has a task worth doing failed of accomplishment. Men and women have risen up here and there who have said, "We can and we will." They have faced difficulties fairly and squarely, and have overcome them. It has taken time and hard work, but they have given the time and have labored indefatigably, and the thing has come to pass. So it may be with a twenty thousand circulation for the Advocate. We should be ashamed to look our faithful preachers and our loyal people in the face if we felt that we must say to them, "You can't do it— the task is too great." We know what they can do—we have seen them tried. We not only THINK it is possible to secure a circulation of twenty thousand—we KNOW it is possible. You who read this, make the test for yourself: Could not YOU, under the compulsion of a mighty determination, re-enforced by the action of the Publishing Committee and the endorsement of the Conferences in appointing an Advocate campaign, go out into your community and secure a reasonable number of subscribers? Would you be willing to have your ability to bring things to pass measured by your failure to induce your people to pay as small a sum as one dollar and fifty cents for their Church paper for a year? The questions answer themselves. It is possible to give the Advocate a circulation of 20,000, and it is possible to do it in a comparatively short time. Rev. R. W. Tucker, of Crowley, La., gave one week to the work, and he secured 68 subscriptions. He had previously sent in five. The Crowley Methodist Church has a membership of 386—fine people, all of them, but no finer than the Methodists of other places. It can be done.

LET'S DO IT.

Let's go to work. The Church is expecting big things of us. The Centenary Movement is calling forth all our energy and arousing our enthusiasm. We have pledged ourselves to carry it through to a successful conclusion, and we are going to do it. If we can do that, we can do the other. We had almost put it the other way—if we can't do the comparatively small thing of putting the Advocate into the homes of our people, we can't do the much larger thing of putting the Centenary over. We can do both. Let's go to work.

DON'T THROW AT THE SHEEP.

Some shepherds have developed the habit of throwing at the sheep whenever they find them gathered into a flock. As a consequence, some of the sheep stay away from the gathering place, and others are in a constant state of fear and trembling. They are hungry, but their shepherd does not seem to care for them. Hungry sheep should be fed—not abused. Don't throw at the sheep.

WHAT COUNTS.

A man's value to society depends mainly upon two things—what he is, and what he does. Because of this truth, we need not err very greatly in placing properly any person of our acquaintance. If he has within himself those elements of character that adorn and beautify the individual life, he is making a valuable contribution to the social order of which he is a part; if he is doing something that needs to be done for the good of his fellowmen, even though it be only a small thing, he is one of the benefactors of the race. The man who is nothing and who does nothing is of little worth

LOVE AND GOD.

Thoughts that disturb and trouble us seldom come from God. It is generally best to put them away, and throw ourself with increased trust in Him and mistrust of self, at His feet. And never forget, amid whatever may befall you—dryness, coldness, desolation, and disappointment, consciousness of many faults, and of great weakness, and want of faith—that where love is, there God is sure to be. He never yet has suffered any soul to fall wholly from Him which, amid all its frailties and falls, clings to Him in love.—H. L. Sidney Lear.

LIFE.

Thou makest darkness, and it is night.—Ps. civ. 20.—Much might be said on the wisdom of taking a constantly fresh view of life. It is one of the moral uses of the night that it gives the world anew to us every morning, and of sleep that it makes life a daily recreation. If we always saw the world we might grow weary of it. If a third of life were not spent in unconsciousness, the rest might become tedious. God is thus all the while presenting the cup of life afresh to our lips. Thus, after a night of peaceful sleep we behold the world as new and fresh and wonderful as it was on the first morning of creation, when God pronounced it "very good." And sleep itself has a divine alchemy that gives us to ourselves with our primitive energy of body and mind. The days are not mere repetitions of themselves: to-morrow will have another meaning; I shall come to it with larger vision than I have to-day.—T. T. Munger.

THE SOLDIER AND HIS RELIGION.

By Rev. George Craig Stewart, D.D.

It is a saying at the front that the only soldier who doesn't believe in God is the one who has never been under shell-fire or bombs. A battery is going into action; it moves up into a wood; its guns of course are camouflaged, painted strange colors, covered with trees and leaves as it passes along the road to screen it from the enemy eyes looking down from planes high above. As the battery arrives in the woods shells begin to arrive; the enemy has found the range. The guns are unlimbered, the battery is set up, the liaison is established between guns and planes, the cook starts the mess, the chaplain builds his altar. There is not a boy, I don't care what his denomination is, who does not understand and welcome that altar and the invitation to communion with Christ as he stands in the very jaws of death. Up there above Verdun a captain of artillery was fighting, Jack S—— Jack S—— had a brother, also a captain and personal aide to General E—— of the —th Division, stationed at Verdun. That brother was brought to our evacuation hospital with pneumonia. I was with him before he died and I buried him—a fine Christian gentleman and churchman. After his death, his brother, the artillery captain, came to my quarters. He sat down on a chair, loosened his heavy trench coat, and in the privacy of that little room let the tears gather in his eyes and roll down his cheeks, as he said to me: "Chaplain, my brother and I were more than brothers—we were pals, we were close friends." I understood and kept silence. I reached over and pressed his hand. I handed him a card that showed the picture of our Lord upholding a fellow staggering under a shell, and bearing the simple words, "Hard hit—Hold fast!" He looked at it steadily as the gracious message burned itself into his soul, and then he put it into his pocket. He brushed the tears from his eyes and, leaning over, spoke to me words that I shall never forget and that express in the language of the officer the sentiment of officer and doughboy alike: "Chaplain, we of the —th have been in the trenches since last February. You know how I am living and my fellows—like swine, in a dripping dugout. The action is fierce. I want to say to you that every illusion that I ever had as to the value of material things, as to the worth of what can be seen and touched and handled, is gone forever. What happens to me, to my body, my possessions, to my house, to the things that are handled and seen, I don't care at all. And I want to say to you that every vision I ever had as a boy, as a youth, as a young man, has been enhanced a thousandfold. I know that nothing remains, that nothing counts, that nothing matters except the unseen and the eternal!" "Captain," I said, "I know that this is true, every word of it, and I am glad to hear you say it; for I heard yesterday of a man, a captain by rank, in this camp, who said he didn't believe there was a God." Never shall I forget the sharp, piercing look of S—— as he replied, "When did that man land at Brest? How long has he been at the front? Only the rookies fail to recognize God!"

The great central fact he has hold of—God. As to the rest, the theology of the American soldier, his knowledge of the Bible and of Christian teaching, is just as meagre as that which you and I have provided in our public schools and so-called system of religious education. * * *

Oh, if I had only had more Bibles—not merely New Testaments, but Bibles—for I have known fellows to travel twenty-one miles over and over again asking me eagerly if the Bibles had come yet, because they wanted to read the Old Testament, as they had finished the New.

I remember one poor boy from Kentucky, back in the mountains, who was dying from the effects of gas. He had been wounded in the hip, brought up by stretcher-bearers, carried back a little way to a ruined house where they tenderly placed him in front of the fire-place. No sooner was he there, however, than a gas shell burst in the chimney and flooded the poor fellow with gas. He was terribly burned from head to foot. As I went through he said in the voice of a little child, "Chaplain, won't you sit down and talk a little with me, and hold my hand, and keep me company?" Well, I had hundreds of men to see, but I sat down and held his hand and tried to soothe his suffering, which was very intense. "My Lord!" he said. "There's one thing I want more'n anything else!" "What's that?" I said, hoping in my clerical heart that it was something religious. "An onion," said he. "If I could only get my teeth into an onion!" You may be sure that I got the onion, and carved its large, juicy slices and put them into his poor handaged hand. My eyes were full of tears, both ways, as I saw him crunching that onion. The next night, as I passed along the sawdust corridor and passed his tent, a nurse came out and said a man was dying. It was my boy from Kentucky. "Chaplain," he said, "I ain't never had no religion. Is it too late now?" "No, my boy, it's never too late." "Well, could I be baptized?" Then came the explanation of baptism in simple terms and the holy sacrament itself. The end was drawing near. "Chaplain," he said, "I don't know no prayers; I never did learn a prayer." "Oh, yes, you do, my boy." "No, I don't." "Oh, yes, you do." "Well, what do I know?" "Well, you know 'Now I lay me down to sleep.' " "Yes," he said, "my mother taught me that. Would it be all right for me to say that prayer?" And he said it. We said it together, and so he went through the river and up the bank and entered into the city; and all the bells rang for joy.

You see what I mean when I say we must give to our youth, as they grow up, that instruction—that instruction, yes I shall dare to say it—such definite instruction as the Roman Catholics give their children, not only in the Bible but in the essentials of their faith. Mind you, many of these boys have these teachings clearly and definitely. I could tell you of my orderly, a Methodist minister; of a fine young churchman, one of the best of sergeants, who was regular at his duties; of Roman Catholic boys who never failed to attend their services whenever they got opportunity, and said their beads and read their prayer-books; of Methodists who rejoiced in the Lord even on their deathbeds; of Baptists and Christians and Presbyterians who witnessed a good witness. But these soldier boys are coming home to give new support to the Church; enthusiastic over the work of the chaplains, crusaders for God as no young men for generations have been. We must provide for them more definite instruction, and for the generation that is coming up behind them.

The essence of religion—of the Christian religion—is love. Love is sacrifice, love through sacrifice, sacrificial love. The Cross, the center of Christianity, teaches that. God so loved the world that he suffered; Christ so loved us that He suffered for us. "Greater love hath no man than this: that a man lay down his life for his friends." I love the word "buddie." You know, it is short for "brother;" it is the diminutive for "brother." When a soldier calls another soldier "buddie" you feel the loving comradeship that is there. They love their country, and they love each other, and they love humanity. I have seen them again and again wounded terribly, suffering exquisite suffering, but I have yet to see one sign of selfishness or inconsiderateness among the wounded as they are brought in. It is always the other fellow first. It is always, "My wound doesn't amount to anything, look after him." I know of one man who came in and represented his wounds as "just a scratch," and refused to be pushed ahead of the others; but when we had him stripped and ready for operation it was too late. He had a sucking wound in the chest and gangrene had set in in the leg.

I hope that some time I can adequately pay tribute to the splendid Christian example and evidence of religion given in just such sacrificial love. Didn't I bury one heroic aviator whose petrol was struck by an incendiary bullet? His machine went up in flames, but he stuck to his post, never lost his head, determined to bring his observer down. The flames were sweeping back into the fusilage. He called to his observer to get out and mount the wing; this he did, and that pilot brought his machine down in great graceful curves and landed it almost without a bump, and saved his observer's life. And when I said the service over his grave—all our men standing as they did day by day in reverent attention—and the bugle was blown for taps, and all saluted, we knew that we were speeding the soul of one who had fought a good fight and lifted up the Cross before his fellowmen.—The Living Church.

TO THE PREACHERS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: Allow me to suggest that you take your collection at once for Conference work, and forward to W. D. Davis, Treasurer, Brookhaven, Miss. Unless you do this, we cannot pay our worn-out preachers and widows and orphans the first quarter. Please do this; and when you send to the Treasurer, just say, "for Conference work." The need is imperative.

SEEING GHOSTS.

By Rev. Geo. H. Thompson.

Did you ever see a ghost? Dr. Eaton says ghosts must be subjective before they can be objective. Whatever that may mean, I have met many people who have seen them; and I have a distinct recollection of having heard one. It was on this wise:

When I was about fourteen years old my father sent me, after the crop was "laid by," to a school about four miles from our home, taught by a Mr. Mikell. He did not have a watch—they were scarce in those days. On cloudy days he dismissed school at a guess as to the time. On this particular day, the sun was about down before school was "turned out," and darkness overtook me long before I reached home. My way carried me by a place where my brother had been badly frightened some time before, and where the negroes had seen, heard, and smelled ghosts. Naturally ghosts had become "subjective" to me before I reached the place of terror. At this very spot the road forked. On the right hand was a ridgeway which led to my home, which was a mile and a half distant, and the left hand led through a dismal swamp to my home, one mile away.

Just as I reached the parting of the ways at the place of terror, down the nearer way I heard the most hideous noise I have ever heard. After many years of sober reflection, I still say that I have never heard a noise so hideous. I stopped, all attention, and the noise came again, and again, and again. Something had to be done. If I sought shelter with some of the neighbors, my father would soon be scouring the country for me, and scrubbing my hide when he found me. If I went the ridgeway and the thing got after me, it would have a mile and a half to run if it could not catch me. If I went the nearer way, I had to go into the den of the ghost. (Will some one tell me what I should have done then?) Well, I hallooed at it, and it hallooed at me; I at it, and it at me. This dialogue was carried on, as I thought, for some minutes. Something had to be done. I pulled my Barlow knife from my pocket, opened its only blade, summoned all my remaining courage, and marched to the encounter, trying to whistle; but it was the most crooked whistle you ever heard.

When I had reached the spot where I had guessed the ghost was, just over my head a most terrific battle ensued. I did not run, because I could not. In about one minute I could walk, and in about fifty seconds more I could trot, and in forty seconds more I could run; and if I had continued to feel as I was feeling then, I would be still running. Did he catch me? No, that ghost knew better than to waste his labor. But, what was it? It was a young owl, as I learned years after my race. I think it had just ventured out for the first time from its mother's nest. Its tender muscles and pin-feathers would not allow it to get in the tops of the trees, and it found a perch near the ground. I think it was crying for its mother to bring it a bug, or a bird, and I had almost to push it from its seat, and, in its attempt to get away, it seemed to have nearly scared the big schoolboy with his Barlow to death.

I met a young man who was ambitious, and who thought that God had called him to a larger sphere of usefulness, but he was not educated, and the ghost of poverty arose before him. I tried to make him see that this ghost was only an owlet that could be easily scared out of the way. The young woman I met in the revival felt that God was calling her to the life of a missionary, but the ghost of leaving home and friends, plunging into a strange land of stranger customs, arose in a menacing manner. I hope she saw that these things, met in the way of duty, are only owlets. Who has not met the person who once started on the Christian life and failed, and now refuses to start again because of the ghost of one failure? In the commercial wreckage of the world lie a thousand men who were once prosperous, but who were carried under by some crash, who cannot rise again because the ghost of failure is before them. If the schoolboy with a Barlow knife and a crooked whistle can put to flight his ghost, let the ex-merchant and the ex-banker try it on theirs.

Forty years ago men stood cowering in the presence of the giant alcohol, while daily he distended his maw with our fathers, brothers, and sons. We confessed that he was too great to be destroyed. But courageous women went to the task of his destruction, and now we are wondering how it was so easily done. If the men of the United States want to invite the world to look and see what they have done, they should be reminded that the women made them do what they have done.

With a subjective ghost, the objective ghost is easily seen. The Widow Kelly was our neighbor. Jim was her only child—a giant in size, but a pigmy in spirit. He never learned to swim, because he was such a coward he would not go into water deep enough for him to swim. His intellect was as small as his courage. He and I contended vigorously for the foot of the spelling class, and the honors (or dishonors) were about evenly divided. But in the Kelly home the meal had given out. Mrs. Kelly had Jim to shell a half-bushel of corn, saddle the bay mare, and start to Sinclair's mill to get the corn ground. When Jim had gone about two miles (half the distance to the mill) he saw what he had been looking for—a ghost. He saw, he thought, a man standing by the roadside, and as he gazed he saw the man raise a gun and aim it at the widow's son. Jim turned the bay mare around, put whip to her, and returned home at an accelerated speed, and told what he saw. He was considered truthful, and the neighbors thought there must be something to his story. Investigation showed that the threatening man was only a harmless clay-root, and the gun which had been exhibited in a threatening and angry manner was only a slender root which was attached to the upturned tree. But the widow and her son had no meal. Moral: Do not go to your work with fear; too many ghosts will appear.

After thirty years of service, the roof on a church which had a peculiar interest to me had failed. For many years, when I visited this community, I heard that the house was fast going to ruin because the roof was rotten. To the suggestion that a new one should be put on, I heard many excuses. Some said that there was no timber from which the shingles could be made. Others said there was no carpenter whom they could get to cover the house, and there was no money to pay him. One of the members, bolder than the others, determined to investigate the ghost. Result: In two or three weeks the house had a new roof on it, a brick stove-flue in it, a new stove, and some money left for a painting fund.

I have known church officials, good men, to face an inadequate support for the pastor with humiliation, and yet an adequate increase had become to them a ghost. Blank Church had assessed ninety-five dollars when corn was fifty cents a bushel and when it was two dollars a bushel. This sum was named by the stewards for their church for another year, when the presiding elder said: "Brothers, I don't like that assessment. It is a regular Sears, Roebuck & Co. price. Make it at least one hundred dollars." The stewards replied that they wished they could do it. They knew the pastor needed it and ought to have it, but they were afraid they could not raise it. They did not increase it; but that fall they came in and told the Elder that they no longer carried the Sears, Roebuck & Co. mark—that they had overpaid. That church has increased its assessment each year since.

I fear that cold chills are chasing each other up and down the spine of some American Methodists just at this time, even Southern Methodists. They are called to a task that seems large only in church circles. That two million Methodists should be in earnest prayer for the coming of the kingdom of Christ, standing erect before Him acknowledging their stewardship, and ready with men and money to respond to every call of God, is nothing more than what should be a normal condition. When Uncle Sam called, the nation stood at attention with four millions of men, and billions of money. Now the Church calls in the interest of the Christless millions for a few hundred men and only thirty-five millions of dollars. Is this more than a normal task? Can a ghost be seen here, unless it is first subjective?

People sometimes see ghosts by proxy. The great mistake of Israel when it came to Kadesh was to select ten spies who were suffering with subjective ghosts. If the twelve had been as free from the malady as were Joshua and Caleb, Israel would have entered the Promised Land at God's time and in his way. The ten were not unlike my friend Kelly, who was cheated out of his meal by the innocent clay-root. The longer they gazed on conditions in the promised land, the more insurmountable they became. They saw the walls of the cities get higher and higher, until they reached up to the skies. The giants got larger and larger, until the spies felt themselves grasshoppers in their presence. They heard and believed great stories about these monsters, "eating up the inhabitants of the land."

If any presiding elder is suffering from ghostitis, and is saying that the Centenary Celebration can not be put over, he ought to be put under to prevent the infection's spreading to the pastors. If the pastor is badly infected, he ought to be put under with the presiding elder to prevent the infection's spreading to the laymen. A mental bath in the sad history of Israel in the wilderness ought to be a specific for ghostitis. It would be well for them to take liberal quantities of the spirit of Joshua and Caleb.

Mr. Editor, I have found many ghosts in my life, but I have found them just as anxious to keep out of my way as I am to keep out of their way. I routed my first one with a Barlow knife and a crooked whistle, but others have fled from the presence of a determined spirit. Methodism can not afford to see a ghost now.

CHAPLAIN'S WORK—A REPORT.

By Rev. Roy H. Kleiser, Chaplain 304th Engineers.

To the War Work Commission,
M. E. Church, South.

1. You no doubt think I have been unduly negligent in not having written you anything about my work, but since I have been with this regiment I have been quite busy, and time has flown.

2. The Dixie Division, with which I came to France, was split up and used as replacement troops. I went to the Chaplains' School at Chateau d'Aux, near Le Mans, for a few days, awaiting assignment. I was almost immediately assigned to the 304th Engineers, then on duty at the Argonne-Meuse front. I arrived in time to be in the last three days of what was perhaps the greatest battle of the war. After the Armistice was signed, we remained in our dugouts at the front until Christmas, when we were ordered back to billets in the little town of Tilly-sur-Meuse.

3. I am very comfortably situated and very busy, enjoying my work immensely. I am not only chaplain, but recreation officer, athletic officer, regimental postmaster, regimental librarian, and running the officers' mess as a side line. I was exceedingly fortunate in getting a very competent graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University as my private secretary, and I have a competent non-commissioned officer to handle the details of each of the departments. We have the best show troupe in the division, and we were the only regiment in the division to effect our organization for school work according to the comprehensive plan of the A. E. F., and to begin on time. We expect to have a comprehensive athletic program on a competitive basis going within the next few days. We have the largest library in the division except one in charge of a chaplain who came over with his regiment and smuggled in a library of 1000 volumes by having each man carry a book in his individual pack. Religious services are held every Sunday. No emphasis has been placed on the matter of communion and church membership as yet; however, these essential features of the work will not be neglected, and I am planning to give them due prominence at the proper time.

4. I am required to make a weekly report to the senior chaplain of the division, a copy of which also goes to the colonel of the regiment. For your information, I am having a third copy made in the future, which will be mailed direct to you. I believe I acknowledged receipt of the check you sent me about the time we sailed from New York. I still have a good part of this, which has been turned over several times in buying supplies for the men when the Y. M. C. A. man was unable to get them. It has been quite a help. I have also made several loans from the fund.

5. I have been shown every courtesy by my regiment, and my commanding officer, Colonel James F. Barber, of Philadelphia, has been very kind, indeed, in his support of my work. Every facility which was at all available has always been placed at my disposal. I think I can assure you that as long as I keep my health, which is exceedingly good, and normal equilibrium, this regiment is going to fare as well as possible.

6. With highest personal regards, I am

Very sincerely yours,
ROY H. KLEISER,
Chaplain 304th Engineers.

DID THE CHURCH MAKE GOOD IN ITS WORK DURING THE WAR?

By Rev. Chas. W. Crisler.

In a leading editorial in a small daily paper recently the following statement was made criticising the Church in its work during the war:

"If the Church hopes to lift this troubled world out of an unholy darkness into a decent day, it will have to do something more than establish press bureaus.

"The Church in general had a splendid opportunity during the period of world strife, but unfortunately, it did not measure up to that opportunity.

"It was left to the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army, and the Knights of Columbus, to do Christ's work on earth during the darkest hour in human history. The Church as a whole, the Church as an organization, did little or nothing to make the world a decent place to live in."

This gratuitous criticism of the Church is unmerited, unjust, and not sustained by the facts. The Church as an organization has taught, maintained, and made possible the ideals for which this country went to war with Germany. The Church gave to the Republic an army and navy without a peer in moral and religious manhood. Every soldier and sailor was nourished in a Christian home and trained at a church altar. And as the product of the Church, they made good under every test.

As a real power for God, righteousness and humanity, the Church has a clean record and needs no defense at my hands. But there are a few people who do not know, others who do not think for themselves, and many who do not read with discrimination, who may be misled by statements misrepresenting the work of the Church during the war. For the benefit of these it has become necessary to notice the above fling.

Upon declaration of a state of war between this country and Germany, the Church as an organization, either through its official head or assembly, affirmed the absolute justice of the issue joined, declaring it the duty of every citizen to fight unto death rather than that we should, as a nation, be untrue to God and humanity. It approved the course of the government and heartily indorsed the President, pledging the service of every member and the entire resources of the Church in the prosecution of the war.

It is not the function of the Church as an organization to make war. Its business is to rebuke sin, preach righteousness, and build human character. And holding to that high ideal and faithfully performing its mission, it has made the United States the mightiest moral and spiritual force in the world to-day. A delegation from the Church asked President Wilson how the Church could best support him and serve the nation during the war. The President replied, "By calling upon the Church to remain true to its spiritual ideals and to glorify the principles of justice and of liberty which have given it birth."

The Church as an organization formed a federal war council, representing the different denominations, for closer and more effective cooperation with the War Board. It selected chaplains from each Church according to numerical strength to supply the army with moral advisors and spiritual teachers. The Southern Methodist Church, as was the case with other Churches, carefully selected its best and most efficient young men for this service and held a large number in reserve who were anxious to go to the front.

The Church as an organization mobilized its forces and money to send pastors to the cantonments at home and the army overseas. A large amount of money was collected for the purpose of looking after our boys in this way. Many pastors were sent to the camps and were doing a good work among the soldiers when the order came from the war department shutting the Church as an organization out from this work.

There were many false and slanderous statements made by carping critics and ignorant, irresponsible persons as to why this was done. But investigation showed that it was purely an economic precautionary measure, found necessary in reducing extra expense and burden upon the resource of the country and to prevent unnecessary duplication of work, which resulted in more or less confusion. This action in no way impeached the value of the Church as an organization or reflected upon its loyalty, efficiency, or practical usefulness.

In addition to these efforts of the Church as an organization to bring the soldier directly under its influence, the local church in the community where the camps were established, fitted up comfortable club and rest rooms in its building for the use of the men, where they could meet each other and members of the Church socially and spend their leisure hours in a home atmosphere. These rooms were provided with all necessary conveniences, including free stationery for letter writing, where the men away from home could be looked after and entertained.

The Church throughout the United States has raised millions of dollars for the benefit of the soldiers and their families and has expended most of it in taking care of the moral, social, and spiritual welfare of our boys in camp and field. Our own Church is engaged in raising $5,000,000 to assist in making our boys better soldiers and citizens, for re-construction of devastated areas in the war zone, and for the benefit of our soldiers upon their return after peace terms have been agreed upon.

The President personally, and many times through his subordinates, has assured the leaders of the Church that the war could not be won without the moral and active support of the ministry and the Church as such. More than once during the "days that tried men's souls" sorest, he expressed his appreciation of the magnificent work the Church had rendered. His message of greeting last year to a great church gathering expressed the highest commendation of the Church and its war work.

The Church as an organization opened its doors to all kinds of war meetings and every variety of war speaker and propaganda. This was the rule, not the exception. Galloway Memorial became a public forum, as did thousands of other church buildings, for dissemination of war information and for stimulating the people to do their best, even to making, if necessary, the supreme sacrifice, for their country. Not a week passed that the pastor or some one else did not present some phase of war activity.

Galloway Memorial, with the other churches of this city, practically did all the Red Cross work. The work was assembled at headquarters and there distributed to the different church units. Our church gave the use of its building freely for this work, and besides equipped and maintained Red Cross departments at its own expense. As an organization, our church raised something like a thousand dollars extra for Red Cross work and contributed twelve hundred dollars last spring to the starving victims of Hun and Turkish cruelty.

The Southern Methodist Church, with the other Churches of the land, sent hundreds of its choicest and best equipped ministers and leaders to the front to fight for democracy, righteousness, and to sustain the brotherhood of man. They went as Red Cross workers, chaplains, equipped at the expense of the Church, and as common soldiers in the ranks. The Mississippi Conference had preachers in the ranks as private soldiers. In that bloody fight at Chateau Thierry, a Methodist preacher, by appointment of his Church, bearing a captain's commission, led his men as intrepidly as any knight in the days of chivalry.

The Church as an organization gave the Christ spirit to, lived in and spoke through the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Salvation Army, and the Knights of Columbus. Even the most ignorant knows that if you had robbed these auxiliaries of that which the Church put into them, they would not have been tolerated on the front for one moment. The Church organized them, breathed into them the spirit of service, supported them while in action and stood back of them with its best Christian men and women and its every dollar. These organizations were but the working clothes and hands of the Church.

It was not shrapnel or the bayonet that won the war. It was morale. It was what the Church of Christ had put into the soldiers at its altars. The Church won this war for humanity, with its spirit, its service, and its prayers. It put stamina and spirit into the soldiers. It encouraged and strengthened the people and brought them back to confidence in the darkest hours when the Huns were driving hard for Paris and the channel ports. Under that terrible strain, the newspapers broke and became pessimistic, declaring in flaring headlines that Paris must fall and the Germans might win. The Church upon her knees was optimistic, preaching hope and confidence, assuring the people that God still lived and was on the side of right, and it could not fail.

Did the Church make good? Did it perform its part of the great task of winning the war? Yes, if this Republic and its army and navy were true to the moral standards learned at its altars; if our soldiers deported themselves on the field of battle like Christian gentlemen, and not like painted savages; if success was achieved and moral character sustained on the battlefield—the Church made good in its work during the war.

REV. MOUNGER FAVRE ADAMS.

Without entering my home, death could not have come closer to me than in the utterly unexpected passing of Rev. Mounger Favre Adams, which occurred in the Wesley Memorial Hospital in Atlanta, Georgia, Friday afternoon, January 10, 1919. He had been to me much like a younger brother and his going was a great personal grief.

Favre was born on August 20, 1891, the youngest child, and the only living son of Rev. T. W. Adams and his wife, Mrs. Julia Thompson Adams. This boy came to them during their sojourn at Pearlington, Miss. He was named for Dr. E. H. Mounger and for a family of devoted Methodist friends at Pearlington, and was baptized in infancy by Dr. Mounger.

He was a worthy representative of that splendid army of men and women which the Methodist parsonage has given to the world in all its walks of life. When he was converted no one can remember, for as early as nine years, Favre, in the absence of his father, was conducting the family worship, and his call to the ministry, clear and unmistakable, was one of the earliest facts of his consciousness.

With steadfast purpose he set about preparation for his life work, receiving an A. B. degree from Millsaps College and the A. B. and A. M. from Trinity. He had also spent several months in graduate work at the University of Chicago, and at Vanderbilt, and at the time of his death was doing Biblical work in Emory University.

Brother Adams was licensed to preach in June, 1910, while yet a college student, and in December, 1913, he was admitted on trial into the Mississippi Conference and was ordained a local deacon by Bishop Candler. During the previous summer and fall he had served the Harriston charge as a supply, making his home at Lorman among many of my relatives, where his memory will long be held in sacred delight. During 1914, he was pastor at Fayette in Jefferson County and his pastorate there forms one of the brightest pages in the history of the charge, his removal to Flora at the end of the year being a matter of sincere regret to the people of that community. He served Flora the three years immediately preceding our last Annual Conference, when he was ordained elder by Bishop Kilgo and was appointed, at his own request, as student at Emory University. His work at Flora was in every way successful and his ministry there will always form a happy memory. The presence at his funeral of two of the elect ladies of the charge, who made the long journey to Lumberton to bear a tribute from the people of his former pastorate, was one of the most comforting features of that sad day.

On June 4, 1915, Favre was married to Miss Era Jenkins, the daughter of Brother and Sister J. M. Jenkins, at their home in Lumberton, and in this noble, consecrated young woman he found a devoted partner in the sanctified ambition of his life. Some six weeks before his death there came to them a splendid baby boy to bear the name of Mounger Favre, Jr., and, we trust, to wear the mantle so early dropped by his earnest and lamented father.

Brother Adams leaves three devoted sisters to share the grief of their bereaved father and mother, and the sorrow of the crushed wife and bereft baby. They are Mrs. Lera Toler, of Brookhaven; Mrs. W. R. Butler, of Gloster, and Mrs. P. M. Buie, of Driver, Ark. In the death of this brother the heart of the family has been taken away and their fondest hopes seem blighted; and yet who doubts that brighter hopes and ambitions undreamed shall be realized yet in him, by and by?

We buried him at Lumberton, Sunday afternoon, January 12, the service being conducted in the church in which he had preached to the delight of our people two Sundays previous. At his funeral, affectionate tribute was paid him by a number of his brethren.

Favre Adams had in himself the essential elements, humanly speaking, of a successful minister, and his friends looked forward justly to a career for him of great usefulness in the service of Christ. With great native ability he brought to his task an equipment worthy of his calling, while his charming personality brought sunshine to home and pulpit alike, and for a sad world he had a message of gladness irresistible. With splendid energy he gave himself to the details of his work with a thoroughness that guaranteed a good report.

None who knew him well could doubt where lay the anchorage of his soul, held firmly by sincere, devoted consecration to the cause of the Kingdom of God.

Were there no God, there would come to our hearts with his going a sense of defeat, but he who fulfills well the plans of God for him, whether in few or many years, has succeeded beyond human estimate. His earthly probation had gone far enough to show him a devoted son, a loving brother, a whole-hearted husband, a tender father, a loyal Christian, and a workman who needed not to be ashamed. Is there any reason then why his promotion should cause surprise?

Were there no immortality in his going away so soon, as we thought of all these years of preparation and culture, there would come to us a feeling of waste, but true culture is of the soul and the soul redeemed with all of its consecrated power and passion shall never die.

If there were no heaven, we should feel in his passing a sense of loss and separation like despair, but to the children of the King there is no eternal separation, and we know that in the Father's house we shall meet again those "Whom we have loved long since and lost a while."

We do not look backward as we think of them, we do not say "Backward, turn backward, O time in thy flight." The good we have lost are ahead of us and we shall see their faces and hear their glad voices again if we are good.

Upon the stone that marks his grave, write for him the words of his Lord, with which he comforted the astonished grief of his parents. "How is it that ye sought me sorrowing? Wist ye not that I must be in my Father's house?" For there in the Father's house on high, engaged in the tasks of eternity, we shall find him.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT NOTES.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, the honored president of Whitworth College, attended the Y. M. C. A. school of "Reconstruction" at Blue Ridge, N. C., last week.

Rev. J. W. Thompson enters upon his third year at Wesson with well matured plans for revivals and general work of his charge. His salary has been increased from $1000 to $1200.

Rev. A. M. Broadfoot, "flu" at Fernwood for several days, but after careful nursing, medical aid, and kind attention from his people, he has determined upon a "walk-out." He expects to fill his place on the Centenary program at McComb and Brookhaven next week.

Revs. A. B. Barry and J. L. Decell, co-pastors at McComb, are lining up their forces for aggressive and substantial progress. Standardizng of Sunday schools, interesting the members in the Centenary, enlistment in Christian service and tithing, are some of the goals. South and East McComb made their salary $1500 and Centenary $2100. These pastors are well provided for and expect to render service that is worth the price.

Charlie Schultz, the marvel pastor-preacher of the Gallman charge, is enjoying the exhilaration of a progressive atmosphere. The efforts of his several churches have been unified. In a recent pastoral letter to his members he says; "It is a great privilege to live in these momentous times." The record shows he is alive. He Fords at the creeks and along the roads all over his charge. He preached a soul-stirring sermon at McComb Centenary recently on "The Name of Jesus." He occasionally has such bishops as the astute McConnell preach to his people. He delivers philippics on Hell and enjoys Heaven, he hates sin and loves sinners.

ACOUPHONE.

TO THE PRESIDING ELDERS, PASTORS, AND EPWORTH LEAGUERS, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

I have just returned from a meeting of the Conference Presidents and Chairmen of the Epworth League Boards, at Birmingham, which proved to be a very profitable meeting. At this meeting, the date for the 17th annual session of the Mississippi Conference Epworth League was arranged, which will be June 10, 11, 12 and 13. The Conference will open Tuesday, June 10, at 8 p. m., and will continue in session through the next three days; a splendid program is being arranged, and I would ask that, if possible, no meetings in the Conference be held on these dates, in order that all of the presiding elders and pastors may attend the meeting.

On account of not getting the money provided in the assessment until late in the fall, it will be necessary to have the local chapters pay the $2.50 to the Conference Treasurer, Rev. L. F. Alford, Laurel, Miss. Please send this to him at the earliest convenience.

I want to call attention now to the Anniversary Day, the date of which is the second Sunday in May. Order your programs early, and have it well advertised, so that you may have a successful meeting.

If you have not paid your pledge to the African Special, please send it as early as possible to the Conference Treasurer and notify Miss Laura Rankin, Gulfport, that it has been paid.

Our allotment on the Centenary is $1520 per year, and we must pay it without fail. Begin now to plan for your League to be represented at the Laurel Conference. It might be well to raise a fund to be used for this purpose; where there are no Leagues, I ask that the pastor arrange for the attendance of two or more of his brightest young people, and when they return, have their report and organize a League.

I especially covet the prayers and co-operation of the pastors in making the League a real help to our young people, by making it more efficient. Where you have not a League, begin now to plan for the organization of one right away; all literature should be ordered from the Central Office to be used in organization; any assistance that can be rendered from this office will be gladly done.

Yours truly,

W. D. HAWKINS,
President, Mississippi Conf. Epworth League.

The Executive Committee of the Louisiana Conference Board of Church Extension will meet in Monroe, La., February 27, 1919, for the transaction of such business as may properly come before it.

E. K. MEANS, President.

TO THE PREACHERS AND MEMBERS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: The Trustees of the Mississippi Conference Endowment Fund need $1500 to bring our amount up to the $25,000, in order that we may use the interest. Surely we have fifteen men who love our old preachers and the widows and orphans enough to give that amount. When I get that amount, I can get a subscription of $500 from another man. We lose the $500 unless I get the $1500. Send me Government Bond, W. S. S., check, or notes. Please, brethren, help now.

J. M. MORSE,
Chairman of Board of Trustees.

P. S. Dr. C. M. Chapman has donated two lots in Myrtle Addition, Gulfport, Miss. Thanks, Doctor—a good work. Who next?

TOWN OF DON'T WORRY.

There's a town called Don't-You-Worry,
On the banks of the River Smile,
Where the Cheer-up and Be-Happy
Blossom sweetly all the while.
Where the Never-Grumble flower
Blooms beside the fragrant Try,
And the Ne'er-Give-Up and Patience
Point their faces to the sky.

In the valley of Contentment,
In the province of I-Will,
You will find the lovely city,
At the foot of No-Fret hill.
There are thoroughfares delightful
In this very charming town,
And on every hand are shade trees
Named the Very-Seldom Frown.

Rustic benches quite enticing,
You'll find scattered here and there;
And to each a vine is clinging
Called the Frequent-Earnest-Prayer.
Everybody there is happy,
And is singing all the while,
In the town of Don't-You-Worry
On the banks of River Smile.

HOW DOROTHY GOT EVEN.

"I'll get even with Richard," sobbed Dorothy, running to the pump to rinse her mouth with fresh, cool water. "He's horrid and I'll never play with him any more."

"Why, what is the matter?" asked Mrs. Bliss, in alarm. Dorothy and Richard were cousins and the best of friends, so the sudden outburst could hardly be accounted for. Every one said that the children played so happily together always, and here was Dorothy declaring that she would never play with him again. "What has Richard done?"

"He put a box of horrid candy in the postoffice," sobbed the little girl, spitting and sputtering. "Maybe he'll call it a joke, but I won't play with him."

Mrs. Bliss examined the pretty little box her daughter handed to her. It held a dozen or more small pink candies, Dorothy said, when she opened it at the big old tree they called the post-office, and she had put two of them in her mouth. They were filled with nasty stuff, so she had hurried to the pump to get the taste out of her mouth.

"And I gave him a box of the nicest fudge yesterday," said Dorothy, wiping her eyes. "You just wait! I'll get even with him. See if I don't!"

"How do you think you will get even?" asked Mrs. Bliss, never once saying that it was naughty to want revenge.

"I'll put something nasty in the box for him," said Dorothy. "Oh, mamma! I know what I'll do! I'll get some of those big, ugly thistles in the lane and stuff them in out of sight so when he reaches down into the hole he'll hurt his fingers just awful. I'll give him something to think about when he tries to play a joke on me next time."

"I suppose that will make him think twice the next time," said Mrs. Bliss. "Richard has those sore fingers from eczema, and the thistles will scratch him hard when he puts his hand in."

Somehow Dorothy would rather have had her mother tell her that it was wrong to get even, but Mrs. Bliss went on planning ways of hurting Richard. Dorothy slipped off her lap and went away to get the sickle to cut the thisties, while her mother went on with her work, but the morning was not a very happy one. The postoffice was a little secret shared only by the two mothers and the two children, and it held something every day for each child. Once Richard had put a kitten in it for Dorothy, and once she had responded with a dear little puppy; but usually the gifts were little things like candies and fruit. The post-office was a hollow in the big oak by the bars, and it was understood that the morning was the time for Dorothy to get the mail and the afternoon Richard's time. Dorothy gathered the ugliest thistles she could find, and was about to start for the box when the thoughts that she had been thinking for the past hour sent her to the kitchen.

"Mamma, is it wrong to get even?" she asked, soberly.

"Yes, dear," said the mother. "You know it is wrong."

"Then I'll not put the thistles in the postoffice. I'll get that pretty marble I found last week, and put it in for Richard."

"I think that will be better," said Mrs. Bliss. "If Richard only meant it for a joke it would be too bad to spoil the little postoffice with the thistles."

So the pretty marble was well wrapped and placed in the postoffice, and all afternoon the little girl waited for Richard to come over. But the shadows were gathering and still he did not come. Old Mrs. Parker told why when she stopped in a few minutes that evening on her way home.

"The oddest thing happened to me to-day, Mrs. Bliss," said Mrs. Parker. "Yesterday I was going down your lane on my way to my daughter's when a hard rain came up. I saw I was going to get drenched, so I stuffed all my things into that big hollow oak by the bars. After the rain I sent her little Joe after them and he brought me everything but my box of pills. To-day I stopped in to see Richard, and I thought I'd get the pills on my way back. You know Richard fell yesterday morning and bruised his leg so he can't walk. It isn't anything serious, but his mother said he should stay on the lounge for a day or two. Well, I couldn't find the pill box, but I did get this marble out of the tree. I was so surprised to find it all wrapped up so nicely, for I had no marble among my things."

After Mrs. Parker had heard the story of the postoffice and had gone on her way Dorothy crept into her mother's arms and said:

"Dear mamma, I'm so glad I didn't put the thistles into the tree. And now I'm going to go right over and give that marble to Richard and tell him how sorry I am. I'm sure it is naughty to get even—why, I never had any cause to want to get even, did I?"

Mrs. Bliss kissed the eager little girl and said:

"My darling, if people would only wait to have things explained there would be very little cause for any one to want to get even in this world. Don't forget that and you will be a very happy little girl."—Hilda Richmond, in Central Christian Advocate.

MRS. BED'S PARTY.

"Seems to me it's time to get ready for the party. Put away your playthings, children."

Dotty pouted just a little, but Bobby put his soldiers away at once; their mother always made Mrs. Bed's parties seem very attractive.

"Who will be at the party, mother?" they asked. It was always the same people at every party, but the children were never tired of hearing their mother name the guests.

"Well, Mrs. Mattress will be there. She always helps Mrs. Bed make her guests happy and contented. As she is of a retiring nature, very little will be seen of her, but her presence will be felt; then Mr. and Mrs. Sheet will help receive; the Misses Pillow will come with their cousin, Mr. Bolster; the Misses Blanket will be there to-night—one of them has been away during the summer. As they are twins you will not know one from the other, but you will not care; both are agreeable.

"Mr. Spread will be there early in the evening, but before the party begins he usually goes away with Mr. Footboard. It is the same with Miss Counterpane. She helps during the day, but she never stays to the party."

Dotty took her little candle, and Bobby held her trailing, white gown, and joyously they followed their mother up the broad stairs to Mrs. Bed's party.—Youth's Companion.

ESKIMO CANDY

If you were a little Eskimo, you would have a very queer kind of candy. It is nothing but tallow, but the Eskimo boys and girls like it very much. Their mothers and sisters put it up in bright red packages made out of the feet of waterfowl. The men kill the birds, which are called dovekies, and then the women cut off the bright, red feet and draw out the bones, so as to make little bags or pockets of skin which they fill with reindeer tallow for the children. They like it as well as you do your chocolate drops or striped red and white peppermint sticks.—Selected.

Editorial

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

It was necessary for the Editor to be absent from his office last week on account of a bereavement in his family. He desires to express his sincere appreciation of the services of Rev. R. H. Harper, pastor of First Church in New Orleans, in bringing out last week's issue of the Advocate. Brother Harper, whose ability as a preacher and writer is well known, gladly came to the Editor's rescue in the emergency. He desires to give him credit for splendid editorial contributions in last week's paper, and to express his thanks to him for his very great kindness.

THE HEART OF THE CENTENARY.

At the risk of being misunderstood, we venture to state it as our profound conviction that tithing is at the heart of the Centenary Movement. It is a concrete expression of all the spiritual ideals that the Centenary stands for. It is capable of being understood and practiced by every man, woman and child in the Church. It gives the individual member of the Church an assured resource from which he may draw in meeting all the obligations that are placed upon him. It gives the Church itself ample funds with which to meet all the legitimate demands of a progressive and constantly enlarging program.

In these days when emphasis is being placed upon the doctrine of stewardship, we cannot afford to lose sight of the fact that in the minds of most of us, stewardship is calculated in terms of dollars and cents. All of us are not called to the ministry, or to the mission fields, or to any other of the definite forms of Christian service; but all of us are called to the holy work of making a livelihood for ourselves and those dependent upon us, with the obligation, at the same time, of providing for the support of the causes that stand for the promotion of the Kingdom of God upon earth. "If I cannot go, I can send," is the fundamental attitude of every devout and sincere Christian. The sending is to be done with the material resources, more or less of which every one of us possesses. The man who cannot teach a Sunday school class, or conduct a prayer meeting, or make a three-minute speech, can give a dime or a dollar, or scores of dollars to do the work that he knows in his heart ought to be done. When this obligation TO GIVE is thoroughly understood and ACCEPTED, we need have no fear as to other things.

We are not underestimating the value of prayer and personal service in carrying forward a movement that is specifically religious. We know full well that without these, our greatest efforts will come to naught. But we realize also that the giving of our money will enlarge our hearts and open our eyes to such an extent that the giving will inevitably be followed by the development and practice of these things that are inseparably connected with the religious life. It is a simple principle of every-day business life that men become interested in a work very largely in proportion to the amount of money they put into it. Their hearts go with their money. It is likewise a principle of the religious life that we cannot long maintain a vital interest in that to which we give nothing, and that such vital interest almost invariably follows generous contributions.

The adoption of tithing by a large percentage of our membership would go a long way towards making permanent the results that will inevitably follow the intensive campaign that is now being conducted throughout the Church. It is unreasonable to suppose that such a campaign can be maintained year by year. The cost in money and men and the elaborateness of the necessary organization would make it prohibitive. It is natural to suppose that all the results cannot be conserved; but they can be largely conserved by the establishment of a definite and systematic system of financing our work. Let us lay great emphasis upon tithing as a means of grace and of efficiency.

THRIFT.

The Government has announced plans for conducting, during 1919, an intensive campaign to make war-taught thrift a permanent and happy habit of the American people. We give our hearty endorsement to the plan. We are spending money for Government purposes at the rate of two billion dollars a month. When the fever of fighting was in our veins, it was not so hard to get our people to respond to the appeals to help the Government; but since the fighting is over, there may be a feeling that we may relax in our patriotic endeavors. Nothing could be further from the truth, the appeals of skilfully worded advertisements of commercial institutions to the contrary notwithstanding. We need to become a thrifty nation. Thrift does not consist merely of saving, though that is a very important part of it. It consists of wise spending, intelligent investing, and the persiseint avoiding of waste. One of the happy results of thrift is that it helps us individually as much as it does the Government. "Make all you can, save all you can, give all you can," is still good advice.

THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN.

The reports that are coming in indicate that considerable interest is being taken in the effort to extend the circulation of the Advocate, and we believe that our three Conferences will reach the quotas assigned them if the work is vigorously pushed during the next few weeks. It was very difficult to follow exactly the dates fixed by the Publishing Committee for the campaign, on account of the epidemic of influenza; but conditions are beginning to improve, and we trust that every pastor will be able to give some attention to this most important work. We give below the results thus far:

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. B. Baker, of Sherman, Miss., is meeting with encouraging success in his work. He is pushing the Advocate campaign.

Rev. Seamon Rhea, of Tishomingo, Miss., has made a good beginning on his work. He writes appreciatively of the people whom he serves.

Sister Mason, of Benoit, Miss., has been a subscriber to the Advocate for many years. We appreciate her kindly expressions of continued interest.

A correspondent informs us that Rev. W. V. Shearer and wife have greatly endeared themselves to the people of their new charge, Benoit and Beulah.

"Everything looks good on this charge," writes Rev. O. P. Armour, of Houlka, Miss. Brother Armour looks carefully after all the interests committed to his care.

"We are pressing the battle and trusting God for the victory," writes Rev. R. A. Sibley, of Summit, Miss. That is the note to sound in these days of strenuous endeavor.

We understand that North Louisiana has been especially hard hit by the epidemic of influenza. The work at Monroe has been seriously interfered with. Rev. E. K. Means is the efficient pastor at that point.

Bishop F. J. McConnell, of the M. E. Church, preached for our First Church congregation, Baton Rouge, La., on the last Sunday in January. Bishop McConnell is one of the great leaders of our sister Methodism.

Those of our readers who are fortunate enough to have incomes that require them to pay an income tax should remember that March 15 is the limit of the time set for the performance of that patriotic duty.

Lieutenant C. D. Cecil, the eldest son of the late Rev. C. D. Cecil, of the Mississippi Conference, was married to Miss Mary Dorothy Dolan, in Washington, D. C., on February 1. We extend congratulations.

We inadvertently indicated in a recent issue of the Advocate that the postoffice address of Rev. T. W. Adams, of the Mississippi Conference, was Jackson. His correct address is 337 North Church Street, Brookhaven, Miss.

Rev. Claude M. Simpson, the aggressive presiding elder of the Gainesville District, North Texas Conference, has issued a most interesting folder, giving the results of the first quarter's work. We thank some friend for sending us a copy.

We are indebted to some unknown friend for a beautiful postcard picture of our Main Street Methodist Church at Hattiesburg, Miss., of which Rev. P. D. Hardin is pastor. This church is one of the finest houses of worship in Mississippi.

Rev. C. B. Powell and family, of Indian Bayou, La., after suffering severely from influenza, are now able to be up. The reports that come to us from various parts of our territory indicate that the work of the Church has been hindered greatly by the epidemic.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Parks Williams was saddened by the death of their little daughter, Mary Lou, on February 3. The little body was buried in Meridian, Miss., though the family are now residing in Mobile, Ala. We extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Rev. J. W. Ward, of Booneville, Miss., serves a well organized and active church. Among other evidences of progress, is the fact that the pastor's salary has been advanced to $1800.

Rev. Thomas Mills, who has recently been appointed to our church at Wilson, La., has been cordially received by the people. He begins his work under most favorable auspices.

Mrs. Mary Patler, of Fort Necessity, La., is one of the old-time readers of the Advocate. She recently renewed her subscription, having been a reader of it for something like thirty years.

Rev. J. B. Randolph, pastor of Moore Memorial Methodist Church, Winona, Miss., writes, "Everything goes well with us here." The fine list of subscribers he sent us confirms his statement.

Rev. R. M. Brown, of Oakdale, La., secured ten subscriptions to the Advocate by using the telephone on a rainy day recently. We recall a saying to the effect that where there is a will, there is a way.

Rev. S. B. Watkins, writing from Moscow, Miss., says that his work has suffered greatly on account of the influenza. Conditions are improving, however, and he is planning for a great forward movement this year.

Brother B. F. Webb, who formerly lived near Holy Springs, Miss., is now living at Binghamton, Tenn. He is still interested in Mississippi Methodism, however, and keeps in touch with it through the Advocate.

We regret to learn that Sister Ballard, the widow of the sainted Rev. W. E. Ballard, is critically ill in the hospital at Gulfport, Miss. Little hope is entertained of her recovery. Her devoted son, Major Ballard, is with her.

Rev. L. Fayard, who serves the Coalville Mission in the Mississippi Conference, is doing a great work in that difficult field. The church at Big Ridge is being completed this year, and a revival season is being planned for.

A Woman's Missionary Society has recently been organized at Boyce, La., with the following officers: Mrs. M. N. James, president; Mrs. A. Joyner, secretary; Mrs. W. H. Hilborn, corresponding secretary. Rev. J. W. Faulk is the pastor.

Felicity Church of this city, of which Rev. A. Inman Townsley is pastor, will plant trees on Feb. 22, in honor of Grayson H. Brown and Joseph A. Wakefield who gave their lives in the service of their country. An appropriate program will be carried out.

Rev. H. M. Ellis, of Gulfport, Miss., is a very busy man. He is at present serving as county chairman of the Armenian relief fund campaign. He is, however, planning a vigorous canvass of his membership in behalf of the Advocate, which will, we are sure be productive of good results.

Lieutenant Charles Jaco, son of Rev. B. P. Jaco, of the North Mississippi Conference, has recently returned to his home at Winona, Miss., to be with his parents for a few weeks. Lieutenant Jaco has made a fine record in the service—as was to be expected. His noble father set the example for him.

At the close of a social meeting of the Felicity Epworth League, of this city, last week, some one said, "We have had a good time together—can't we do something for somebody else?" The suggestion was made that the Advocate be sent to a shut-in. The suggestion was immediately adopted. Good!

Rev. L. L. Roberts, pastor of First Church, Laurel, Miss., was a pleasant caller at the Advocate office last week. He reported that church work in his city is in a prosperous condition. He had come to New Orleans to attend the Conference of the Inter-Church Movement of North America.

The Treasury Department has expressed its purpose to carry on an intensive campaign during 1919 for the sale of thrift stamps and War Savings Stamps. The development of the habit of thrift during the war will be a great blessing to our people if they will continue it throughout their lives.

Rev. M. R. Jones, of Rose Hill, Miss., who recently called attention in the Advocate to the number of preachers who have been furnished the Church by that community, writes that he omitted the names of Rev. D. W. Ulmer and Rev. J. M. Smith. Possibly there are others whose names are unknown to him.

In compiling the number of subscriptions sent in to the Advocate during the campaign, we are almost sure to make some errors of omission. We do our best to be accurate but we realize that we fall below perfection. We shall appreciate the favor if any of those whose names are not mentioned in our weekly report will call our attention to the omission.

The best report we have heard of in response to the appeal for the Armenian and Syrian Relief Fund, comes from Rev. W. W. Lantrip, the pastor of our church at Eros, La. He took hold of the matter energetically and sent to the treasurer a check for $150. Rev. C. A. Battle, of First Church, Baton Rouge, is the representative of the Churches on the State committee.

The Winona Times of Feb. 7 had a fine advertisement of the Centenary Movement, featuring the work of the minute-men. The advertisement was paid for by Rev. Ben P. Jaco, the wide-awake Conference Secretary. A good brother, impressed by the value of the advertisement, has asked Brother Jaco for "copy" and the privilege of paying for the next insertion. So a good work spreads.

The enrollment of Centenary College, at Shreveport, La., has increased so much this year that it has become necessary to engage an additional teacher for the high school department. Mr. W. B. Gates, of D'Lo, Miss., a graduate of Millsaps College, has been secured. Centenary will have flag-raising and demobilization exercises on Feb. 21, a very handsome flag having been presented to the college by the Caddo Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

Bishop John M. Moore has recently returned to Nashville from his visit to South America in the performance of his episcopal duties.

The spring term of Greensboro (N. C.) College for Women opened with an attendance of 300 students, the largest enrollment in the history of the institution.

Dr. John R. Mott, according to a recent publication, has announced that there are twenty-five hundred fewer foreign missionaries now than before the war.

Bishop W. F. McMurry has recently returned from his trip to the Orient. The China Christian Advocate pays a glowing tribute to him for the work he did while in China.

According to the Dallas News, illness has compelled Bishop W. N. Ainsworth to cancel some of his recent engagements and return to his home in Austin, Tex., for recuperation.

Bishop H. M. Du Bose is making his home at Berkley, Cal. In addition to his own work, he has oversight of Bishop Cannon's episcopal district during the latter's absence in Europe.

The Methodist Episcopal Church now has forty-eight hospitals, representing an investment of more than fifteen million dollars. Last year these hospitals cared for nearly one hundred thousand patients.

The Centenary Movement is making great headway in the M. E. Church. According to a recent announcement, two districts in the Central New York Conference, the Syracuse East, and the Elmira, have already subscribed their quotas.

Dr. T. W. Lewis, pastor of our Madison Heights Church, Memphis, Tenn., was married to Miss Maud King, on Thursday afternoon, January 30. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. S. Lewis, of Greenville, Miss., assisted by Rev. H. S. Spragins.

According to an exchange, Houston B. Teehee, Registrar of the Treasury whose signature appears upon the face of the Liberty Bonds, is a full-blooded Indian. He received his education at Fort Worth University, of Texas, an institution owned by the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Arrangements have been made by the Centenary authorities with the bill-posting agency of the United States to use 14,000 bill boards throughout the country in giving publicity to the Centenary Movement. The agency has expressed its willingness to donate both its space and its services.

Press dispatches state that Bishop E. E. Hoss suffered a stroke of apoplexy at his home in Muskegee, Okla., on Friday night of last week. He was reported to be still unconscious on Monday, and little hope is held for his recovery. This will be sad news to Methodist people throughout the world. Bishop Hoss is one of the outstanding figures in the history of American Methodism.

We saw a statement recently to the effect that a Christian college in New England, which never had, during a hundred years of existence, an annual attendance of more than a hundred students, numbers among its graduates 542 preachers, 70 missionaries, 102 college professors, 32 college presidents, 9 governors and 15 congressmen. The small college certainly has its place in our educational system.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The New Orleans District Conference will convene in the Carrollton Avenue Church on Tuesday evening, March 25, at 8 o'clock. The sessions will continue through the following Thursday.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Help your money to grow.

Mrs. SUSAN ANN RAWLEY, widow of the late Samuel H. Butler, was born in East Feliciana Parish on December 29, 1840, was married in the same parish on January 14, 1867, to Samuel H. Butler, and died on January 28, 1919, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. B. Overton, in Melville, La. Her home, which was for a number of years in the Deerford neighborhood and afterward near the Antioch church, both in East Baton Rouge Parish, will be remembered for its Christian hospitality by many of the preachers of the Louisiana Conference who from time to time were her guests. She was a lifelong member of the Methodist Church and was always interested in its work.

For some years she had lived in Melville, La., where she died. She had become in these late years so deaf that conversation with her friends was almost impossible, but she occupied her mind constantly with good reading, and kept in touch with the affairs of the time. She leaves four living children: Mrs. Overton, of Melville; Mrs. Rabalais, of Moreauville; Mrs. Satterly, of Shreveport, and Hon. R. B. Butler, of Houma, a well-known attorney and former representative of Terrebonne Parish in the State Legislature, besides a number of grandchildren.

At nearly fourscore years she lays down her burdens and goes to her reward. May God comfort the loved ones left behind.

W. WINANS DRAKE.
Shreveport, La., Feb. 6, 1919.

In memory of our dear, precious baby and little brother, who departed this life March 23, 1917:

We miss you, our dear, precious baby, while in your lonely grave you lie. But some day we'll meet again—never to say good-bye.

Sleep on, dear, precious baby; it will not be long until God shall call us to that happy shore, where we shall part no more.

Sadly missed by father, mother and little sister,

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. GRIMSLEY and FRANCES GRIMSLEY.

ANN LEVINIA MINK, wife of N. B. Mink, was born on December 28, 1863, in Tishomingo County, Miss., and departed this life on February 5, 1919. Sister Mink was converted at about nine years of age, and has been practically a life-long member of the M. E. Church, South. About three years ago Brother and Sister Mink sold their farm in Tishomingo County and moved to Lawrence County, Tenn., where Sister Mink went to her reward and was buried. After a well-spent and useful Christian life, our church loses a valuable member and this community suffers a great loss. Sister Mink had made a friend of everyone who knew her here, and it taxed the capacity of the church to hold the people who came to her funeral. Sister Mink was a subscriber to the New Orleans Christian Advocate and a constant reader, and took a great interest in the affairs of her Church. She lived to see her children converted and become members of the Church. She leaves three sons and three daughters and her husband to mourn her departure. Thank God, their parting with mother is not forever.

B. F. ARGO, Pastor.
Loretto, Tenn.

In the late afternoon, on Christmas eve of 1918, we buried in the cemetery here all that was mortal of little CAROLINE ELIZABETH HAMILTON, the infant daughter of Mr. John T. Hamilton and his wife, Mrs. Carrie Tillman Hamilton, and the joy of the Christmas season was mingled with the solemn grief at the passing of a beautiful child. This little girl had come to brighten their home on November 10, and in these few short weeks had clutched the hearts of her loved ones, and, now that she is gone, has left their faces turned heavenward. This child was the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. T. Hamilton and a niece of Rev. H. M. Ellis, of the Mississippi Conference. The large circle of friends of all the families affected by this grief will deeply sympathize with them in their loss and hold them up in their daily prayers to Him who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me."

RESOLUTIONS.

The committee appointed by Mrs. J. H. Hicks, President of the Methodist Missionary Society, Inverness, Miss., submit with saddened and grieved hearts the following resolutions in regard to the passing out of our midst of our dearly beloved member and friend, Mrs. W. H. Hutchins:

Whereas Mrs. Hutchins was one of our most faithful and interested members, we wish to bear testimony to her pure, sweet life among us, the helpfulness of her presence whenever it was possible for her to attend and the encouragement of her untiring zeal for the life and progress of the work in all its branches.

Be it resolved that in Mrs. Hutchins' death our society has lost an earnest and honored member and that we are fully conscious of our great loss and will feel more and more keenly, as time goes on, her absence and the

FORTUNES IN OLD CONFEDERATE ENVELOPES

They may be worth a lot of money. Among the old letters of many Southern folks there are thousands of very rare envelopes and stamps. Many have been found and sold for fortunes. Some as high as $300. Many have brought upwards of $50.00. It sounds "fishy," but its true. They are valuable because they are rare. They are rare, not because there are only a few, for there are many of them, but simply because most of them are stored away and forgotten in old attics.

Look among your old war letters. You are likely to find a fortune. If you find some old Confederate envelopes or stamps bearing the year 1861 and dated or cancelled some time during the spring, summer or early fall of 1861, send them to Mr. Harold C. Brooks, Marshall, Michigan, and he will immediately write you, stating whether they are of value, and if so, will offer you full value for them. He is a private collector of rare stamps and envelopes, and will give you full value for them if they are of value. Send only the complete envelopes nnd stamps.

The advertising manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate has known Mr. Brooks for years and you may place fullest confidence in his integrity. He will advise you frankly and is willing to pay the highest prices for the higher priced ones are the rarest stamps, and he wishes the rarest ones.

In 1861, just after the war was declared, and before the Confederacy had time to make their regular issues of stamps, many local post offices were allowed to make provisional issues. These stamps and envelopes were issued in 1861 by the postmasters of different cities. In marking the envelopes the cancelling stamps of the post office were frequently employed. It is often difficult to determine whether such a mark was used provisionally or merely indicates postage paid at the time the letter was deposited in the post office. Occasionally, the same mark was used for both purposes. These stamps are the ones that are valuable. The regular issues of the Confederacy are not rare. Look for the local issues. You can identify them. They are known to have been issued by the following towns:

Aberdeen, Miss.; Albany, Ga.; Athens, Ga.; Atlanta, Ga.; Augusta, Ga.; Autaugaville, Ala.; Bridgeville, Ala.; Charleston, S. C.; Columbia, S. C.; Columbus, Ga.; Danville, Va.; Emory, Va.; Franklin, N. C.; Fredericksburg, Va.; Gallatin, Tenn.; Goliad, Tex.; Gonzales, Tex.; Greensboro, Ala.; Greenville, Ala.; Greenwood, Va.; Grove Hill, Ala.; Hallettsville, Tex.; Helen, Tex.; Independence, Tex.; Jetersville, Va.; Jonesboro, Tenn.; Kingston, Tenn.; Knoxville, Tenn.; Lenoir, N. C.; Lexington, Miss.; Livingston, Ala.; Lynchburg, Va.; Macon, Ga.; Marion, Va.; Memphis, Tenn.; Milledgeville, Ga.; Mobile, Ala.; Montgomery, Ala.; Mt. Lebanon, Tenn.; Nashville, Tenn.; New Orleans, La.; New Smyrna, Fla.; Petersburg, Va.; Pittsylvania C. H., Va.; Pleasant Shade, Va.; Raleigh, N. C.; Rheatown, Tenn.; Richmond, Tex.; Ringgold, Ga.; Salem, N. C.; Salem, Va.; Salisbury, N. C.; Selma, Ala.; Spartanburg, S. C.; Statesville, N. C.; Tellico Plains, Tenn.; Thomasville, Ga.; Tuscumbia, Ala.; Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Uniontown, Ala.; Victoria, Tex.

Possibly other towns had provisional local stamp issues. But the above are all that are known to collectors. Should you find any of these rare local issues, send them to Mr. Brooks. He will offer what he regards them as worth to him, and in case the offer is not satisfactory, will return the envelopes and stamps to the sender. Don't deface nor detach the stamps, but send the complete envelopes. Your search may be a very profitable one for you and a greatly welcomed one for Mr. Brooks.

Most of these were probably what you might call franked envelopes instead of adhesive stamps. Still, there are both envelopes and stamps in this class of postage. The probability is that they were issued at the time the war began to take the place of the Federal issues and before the Confederate Government had time to prepare regular national stamps.

The first regular issue of the Confederate stamps was late in 1861, so that these issues put out by the various cities were in use from the beginning of the war until late in 1861 and consequently, all would bear the postmark date of the year 1861.

Address Mr. Harold C. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.—Adv.

WILLIAM JOSEPH HAZLIP was born on Trinity Plantation in Adams County, three miles from Washington, on the 6th of December, 1826, and died there on the 1st of December, 1918, having spent his entire life of almost 92 years there with the exception of twelve or fourteen years. He was the son of John Hazlip and Cecilia Rabb. He was married at Clinton, La., on the 21st of December, 1853, to Miss Francis Watkins and to them were born nine children, of whom three are dead and six are living: Cosby W. Hazlip, Washington, Miss.; John W. Hazlip, Torras, La.; W. C. Hazlip, Donaldsonville, La.; Mrs. Kate Hogshead, Galveston, Tex.; Miss Anna Hazlip, Galveston; and Mrs. Nina Lindsay, of St. Joseph, La. The first and last named were with him when the end came. He had, besides these, twelve grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. His first wife died on the 13th of November, 1878, and he was married on the 4th of February, 1884, to Miss Maria Jackson, who died on October 24, 1917.

He was a member of the Methodist Church in his early years, but his membership was lost sight of in some way, so in the latter part of the year before he died he sent for me and said that he wanted to take its vows again. In the quietness of his home, with only his son present, he promised allegiance to its faith once more and in that faith he went out into eternity. I was with him a few days before he died and he told me that he was going to the supper of the Lord to see his loved ones who had gone before and live with them forever. Then he exclaimed, "Won't that be glorious!" He mentioned often his uncle, Peter T. Rabb, a leading member of the Washington church a century ago. He recalled hearing Dr. John G. Jones preach during his pastorate at Washington in 1835 and could relate many anecdotes that had come to him firsthand of the eccentric Lorenzo Dow in his ministry in this section, pointing out the very spot on Clear Creek where the latter preached at camp-meeting. He was possessed of a strong mind, a genial disposition, and a keen sense of humor. To his home the strong men of the ministry in the days when names like Watkins, Winans, and Drake were well-known in every Methodist home, came often, and he delighted to have them there. He always cordially welcomed his pastor. I was there the day before he died and he roused up enough to say, "Glad to see you, come again." We met no more on earth, but will meet again. We laid him to rest on Monday afternoon in the family burying ground to await the resurrection morning. His pastor.

J. B. CAIN.

Washington, Miss., Jan. 24, 1919.

WILLIAM LAMBUTH DRAKE was born in Edwards, Miss., on the 11th day of March, 1894, and died at Camp Pike, Ark., on the 11th day of October, 1918, of pneumonia, resulting from influenza. He was the youngest child of Rev. J. Perry Drake and Mrs. Clara B. Drake, and the joy of the family circle. When nearly eight years old, his father died, and after that his rearing and education fell to his widowed mother and eldest brother. He attended his first school in Vicksburg, a private institution under the instruction of Mrs. Lizzie Kain and her daughter. Two years of thorough teaching he received from them prepared him for five years of very successful work at Chamberlain-Hunt Academy, from which he graduated in 1909 with the highest honors of his class and with the award of the scholarship and Bible history medals. After his graduation, he spent two years with the cotton firm of W. C. Craig & Company and went in the fall of 1911 to Washington and Lee University. During his Sophomore year he was compelled to leave school on account of his health and, after recuperating on the Gulf Coast he moved down on the Drake homestead and began farming, in which he became very much interested and of which he was making quite a success. Here his family often visited him and here finally his mother came to live. His devotion to her was beautiful and in this their friends found a perfect atmosphere of love and affection. He joined the Church under his father's ministry when very young and his faith in the gospel of Christ was always clear. At the time of his death he was a member of the Washington Church, of which his father and grandfather had been pastor.

From the very first, the great war interested him, and when our country became involved his patriotism was thoroughly aroused and he felt the call to service. He volunteered in the summer of 1917, but was rejected on account of light weight and was rejected for the same reason under the draft. Overcoming this handicap, he appealed to the Board again and was accepted, leaving for Camp Pike on the 26th of May, 1918. I have a letter from the commanding officer of his company, who says he was a splendid soldier and won the respect and admiration of those with whom he was associated. He was very anxious to do overseas duty, but was still in camp when influenza broke out, and to it he fell a victim.

We laid him to rest in the family cemetery on the Mt. Ararat plantation near Church Hill, in Jefferson County, the writer being assisted in the service by Rev. W. H. Saunders, of Natchez. There by the side of his worthy ancestors, at least four generations of whom are there, he awaits the Judgment morning. Besides his mother, he leaves two sisters, Miss Janie Drake Lady Principal of Whitworth College, and Miss Claribel Drake, who is with her mother, and three brothers, W. M. Drake, of Memphis, E. S. Drake, of Bay St. Louis, and J. Perry Drake, of Washington City. In addition, there are a host of friends in every community where he was known. His pastor,

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Miss Minnie E. Kennedy is to be with us to hold a conference with all the elementary teachers and officers early in March. Listen for the place and date.

The School Standard, the new magazine that takes the place of the Graded Magazine and Workers' Council, is meeting with a hearty reception. If you have not seen it, send for sample copy.

It may be the Missionary Committee did not work last year, but it will work this year—because there is a big program before us to work for. The whole missionary program for the entire Church has already been voted on. All that is left to be done is for some one that loves God to start it now. No need to wait another day.

Of course there will be indifference and other opposition to overcome, but we cannot stop because there is a "lion in the way." "Resist the devil and he will flee from you." Then, "I can do all things through Christ that strengtheneth me."

NOTES OF THE MEETING OF THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL BOARD.

The Sunday School Board of the North Mississippi Conference met at the Methodist Church, Winona, Miss., Feb. 4, 1919, at 9:30 a. m. The meeting was called to order by the President, Judge J. G. McGowan. Rev. J. E. Stephens led in prayer. The organization being temporary and a quorum not having arrived at the hour of opening, the election of officers was postponed, while other business of a minor character was taken up. The Secretary, Rev. C. A. Parks, being detained at home, the President asked Rev. Mellville Johnson to act as secretary.

Rev. A. E. Clements, representing the Centenary Commission, addressed the Board. He said that the greatness of the Centenary task was a challenge to the leading laymen of the Church to which they were loyally responding by placing their busiess ability on the altar of service for this hour. He warned the ministers that if they fail to undertake with enthusiasm and faith the great task of the Centenary, the laymen will demand other leaders whose vision is commensurate with the needs of the times. The speaker dwelt at length on the place of Intercession in the success of the campaign, citing other campaigns which had been successful through the prevailing power of prayer. He stated that the preachers and laymen, through the possession of the privilege of Intercessory prayer, held in their hands the keys of heaven. He said there is nothing on earth comparable to faith in carrying forward this great task, and that we should pray as though we were not working and work as though we were not praying. He believed the campaign would go over with enthusiasm. In closing, he said that the Sunday school would bear the greater responsibility among the institutions of the Church because through the Sunday school must the people be intelligently and systematically informed as to the needs of the Mission field.

An editorial in the Jackson News was referred to by the President in which the statement was made that the Church had failed during the crisis of the war and all Christian work had fallen to the Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, and other similar agencies. The Board expressed the opinion that such articles should be answered by some of the leaders of our Church, and that the Church should be vindicated. Discussion of the matter was freely indulged in, and the point forcibly made that all the welfare organizations represented the Church, were supported by the Church, and were conducted by the leading laymen and ministers of the Church.

Rev. E. S. Lewis, Treasurer of the Board, read his report, which showed that $1679 had been received from Children's Day offerings during 1918, and that a balance of $963 was on hand for 1919.

The Board accepted the services of Mrs. L. G. Fant to assist the Field Secretary in conducting Institutes throughout the Conference. The Board instructed the Field Secretary to use Mrs. Fant as the needs demanded, the Board paying her expenses while in this service.

Judge J. G. McGowan, the faithful and efficient President for the past four years, insisted that he be relieved of office, stating that a change would be in order according to the "Methodist custom." Rev. E. S. Lewis was elected President of the Board for the ensuing quadrennium. By a rising vote, the Board expressed its appreciation of the services of Judge McGowan, recognizing the phenomenal growth of the Sunday school work under his administration.

Rev. C. A. Parks was elected Secretary and Rev. J. E. Stephens, New Albany, Miss., was elected Treasurer.

A motion by Judge McGowan was adopted authorizing the officers to act as an executive committee to pass on the salary of the Field Secretary, and to appropriate funds to cover the expenses of his assistant. The Treasurer was appointed to confer with the Conference Centenary Committee regarding the use of the $300 expense fund to be used in behalf of the Centenary by the Field Secretary.

The Board approved the suggestion that a part of the Efficiency Conference program be devoted to Sunday school methods, and the President was instructed to secure a capable Sunday school specialist for the Efficiency Conference.

It was urged that all the members of the Board read at least one of the books in the teacher-training course.

The motion that not more than $1... be used to meet expenses of the Efficiency Conference was adopted.

The President-elect made a closing appeal, stressing the need of giving proper attention to the local needs of the Sunday school during the year, pointing out that the Centenary program should work harmoniously with all the activities of the Church.

Acting Secretary

A NEW WESLEY BIBLE CLASS.

The "Wesley Adult Bible Class" of the Sunday school at Tunica, North Mississippi Conference, has just been enrolled at Wesley Bible Class headquarters in Nashville, Tenn. The class has been given certificate No. 7319. This is a class of twenty-five women of which Mrs. J. B. Hardy is the teacher and Mrs. M. K. Sledge is the president. Their motto is "By love serve one another."

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"Whether I'm sprayin' my orchard for codlin' moth or San Jose scale determines th' kind o' solution I spray with; an' if its giggles or sniokers ails my Sunday school class, them determines th' sort o' idees I spray it with."

"Some folks thinks they've done fine reformin' work when they pick a 'kid' 'out o' th' mud-puddle an' wash it off. They'd do a better job by makin' th' mud-puddle impossible."

"A good teacher knows how to figger 'rithmetic—he can add his life to his teachin', he can substract hissel from it, he can multiply his ministries an' he can divide his blessin's with the members o' his class."

The Evening Line-Up

Both children and grown-ups, with coughs and colds, are all the better for a dose of Foley's Honey and Tar at bed time. It wards off croup, stops tickling throat, and hacking coughs, and makes an otherwise feverish, sleepless night of coughing and distress, a quiet and restful one.

BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS, Mr. Chas. Baker, writes: "My wife would not think of using any other cough medicine, as Foley's Honey and Tar is certain to bring quick relief. It is especially effective in cases of bad coughs, and we give it to our children and recommend it always as a safe remedy, for it contains no opiates."

What Doctor Pierce Has Done For Humanity!

BY DOCTOR CRIPPS.

It has always seemed to me that Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., should be placed near the top when a list of America's great benefactors is written. He studied and conquered human diseases to a degree that few realize. Whenever he found a remedy that overcame disease, he at once announced it in the newspapers and told where it could be bought at a small price. He did not follow the usual custom of keeping the ingredients secret, so that the rich only could afford to buy the medicine, but openly printed the name of each root and herb he used. And so to-day the names of Dr. Pierce and his medicines are widely known, and they stand for better health and better citizenship.

One of this great physician's most successful remedies is known as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. These are little, sugar-coated pills, composed of Mayapple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap—things that Nature grows in the ground. These Pellets are safe because they move the bowels gently, leaving no bad after-effects, as so many pills do. Very often they make a person who takes them feel like a new man or woman, for they cleanse the intestines of hard, decayed and poisonous matter that accumulates when one is costive. If you are constipated, by all means go to your druggist and get some of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They may prove to be the very thing your system requires to make you well and happy.

No. 1, McLean, Nebraska.

This famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has been restoring women of America to health for more than forty years and it will well pay any woman who suffers from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues" to give this successful remedy a trial.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD.

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Try It! Substitute For Nasty Calomel

Starts your liver without making you sick and can not salivate.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

RAISED ENTIRE INCUBATOR HATCH.

Mrs. G. Hancock, Sturgis, Ky., writes: "I hatched 200 chicks and didn't lose a single one with White Diarrhoea. I give Ready Relief the praise." Mrs. H. L. Sutton, of Ramona, Kas., writes: "My chicks were dying 20 and 30 a day. I got two packages of Ready Relief and now I don't lose any."

You can get the same wonderful results. Reefer's Ready Relief put in your baby chicks' first drinking water will help save them from the dreadful White Diarrhoea plague. This remedy is the discovery of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 6252 Poultry Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a package that will certainly help you save your baby chicks. Aren't your delicate, downy baby chicks worth saving? Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. Aren't your baby chicks worth five for a cent? RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

FROM ABERDEEN, MISS.

Dear Advocate: Everything is moving on nicely in Aberdeen. When we came we were given a royal, brotherly welcome. This is a most delightful appointment; a beautiful church and one of the finest parsonages in Southern Methodism, neatly and comfortably furnished. As for the people, they have no superiors in our Church. We could not ask or desire to be more comfortably fixed than we are. These people know how to treat their pastor and stimulate the best there is in him and his family.

On the 29th of January, the ladies gave us a reception. The musical program was splendid, the refreshments delicious; and the hour of social enjoyment long to be remembered for its pleasant associations.

January 29 is an anniversary for me. Just forty-three years ago on that day I was licensed to preach. It is one of the most delightful things of my life to know that much of my life has been given wholly to the Lord.

Our work is moving on satisfactorily and there are many unmistakable signs of a great spiritual movement in this Church.

The Okolona church was absorbed at last Conference; and Thompson's Memorial (the old Piney Grove church of long ago) was placed with Aberdeen. I served that church forty years ago, as a part of Okolona circuit. It is indeed a great privilege to serve again with these friends of the long ago.

The Aberdeen District parsonage is in Aberdeen; and one of our sweetest pleasures is to be associated with our presiding elder, T. H. Lipscomb, and his lovable family. I have never had a more efficient, faithful, and lovable P. E. in my long service for the Church. The lines have fallen to us in pleasant places.

RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION.

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is a close relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid diseases, such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache. All of these diseases are probably related and all are probably due in whole or, in part to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimilation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick Headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

IN BLOOD DISEASES

Like Scrofula, Eczema, and Many Skin Troubles,

As well as a general Spring medicine for catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, Hood's Sarsaparilla is of great value to men, women, children.

It does its thorough work in these well-defined diseases by cleansing the blood, on the pure, healthy condition of which depend the vigor and tone of the whole system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is equally successful in the treatment of troubles that are not so well defined—cases of a low or run-down condition or general debility, loss of appetite and that tired feeling, or cases in which we see now very plainly after-effects of the worry and anxiety caused by the world war and the debility following the grip, influenza and fevers. In all such ailments it has accomplished a wonderful amount of good.

Hood's Pills help as a stomach-toning, digestive cathartic.

COMBATING THE QUACKS.

By Dr. W. T. Reid, Ivey Hospital, Songdo, Korea.

It is difficult, if not impossible, for dwellers in the homeland to imagine one-half the misery, despair and death due to the ignorance of the quack doctors and medicine men of heathen lands. The deceit that is practiced, the harm that is wrought, and the darkness that results, are almost impossible to describe. It is the function of medical missions to combat the quacks and witch doctors, and thus pluck many thousands from anguish and a premature grave. The contrast cast by the light of Western medicine over against the darkness of heathen methods makes a powerful argument for the cause medical missions are established to represent.

Cleanliness is said to be next to godliness and no small part of the cleaning up of Christian homes and the contrast presented between their present estate and the filth and squalor and superstition of their heathen days is due to the teaching and example of medical missions. By the training of natives in medical knowledge both as doctors and nurses, the work multiplies itself.

The Centenary World Program, based on a careful survey of our mission fields, proposes to send out to Africa, Brazil, China, Korea, and Mexico, in the next five years, twenty-seven medical missionaries and thirty-seven nurses, besides opening several new hospitals, dispensaries and medical schools, and better equipping those already in operation. It is an inspiring effort to combat disease among some forty million people who are largely or wholly without medical advantages, and thereby to introduce them to the Great Healer of Souls. The need is greater than that which confronted the Red Cross at the beginning of the war. Southern Methodists who have responded so generously to the war needs of the past four years will not fail to heed the call of Africa.

ST. MARK'S BULLETIN FOR JANUARY, 1919.

Christmas.

A double privilege was enjoyed at St. Mark's Hall at the holiday season, that of receiving and that of giving. This Bulletin brings a word of thanks and appreciation to all those who so generously helped us to help others. The only Christmas many of the people had came through St. Mark's Hall. The Camp Fire, girls' clubs, boys' clubs, mothers and clinic patients each had a celebration. We reached, through our ministry, 529 people.

The splendid young people of the Camp Fire had a Christmas tree for the poor children of our district. Although there were about twice as many persons present as were expected, they had a gift for all the children. The program was charming.

We are indebted to the Shriners for entertaining about forty-five of our people at a Christmas dinner given at the beautiful, new Shriners' Temple.

We are also indebted to the Times-Picayune for fifty tickets to the Doll and Toy distribution in Lafayette Square.

One of the outstanding features of our Christmas was the number of beautiful and appropriate stories told from the Bible, from Van Dyke and other good authors. These were used effectively at each entertainment and helped to create a most gratifying Christmas spirit.

On the twelfth night after Christmas, a charming little program was given, after which the Christmas tree and greens were burned in a bonfire on the playgrounds. The odor of the burning fir and holly was delicious, and as the sparks flew upward, all joined hands and sang a farewell song.

Personals.

Because of the illness of Miss Hasler, head resident at Biloxi, Miss., Miss Emma Vogel, who has filled so acceptably the position of district nurse here, was appointed to the Wesley House at Biloxi. The prayers and good wishes of her friends follow her to her new work.

Miss Lydia Rieke is our new district nurse. She has already won many friends, and has entered heartily into the work.

Game Room.

This has been one of the most popular features of the month's work. There has been an attendance of 297 boys. This afforded many opportunities for personal work.

Supplies.

Boxes were received from the auxiliary at Leesville, La.; Young People of Wilkens Avenue Church, Baltimore, Md.; Primary Department of Felicity Church; Junior Missionary Society, Monterey, Va.; Wesleyan Bible Class, First Church, New Orleans; First Church, Shreveport, half dozen silver table-spoons, and teaspoons; Mrs. Lewis Clarke, box of apples; Mrs. R. Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap to make, but it really has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FROM A SUPERANNUATE.

Dear Brother Carley: Just one year ago to-day, I went in my pulpit, then a very sick man. I have not preached since—not because I have not wanted to, but because I dare not do so. I can hardly realize that it has been twelve months since I tried to preach, but time flies. How careful then should we be to improve it! Five of these months I spent in the sanatorium. Mrs. King spent ten of them there, and is now in the Baptist Hospital in Jackson, where she underwent a very severe operation more than a week ago. As soon as she is able to leave there she will return to the sanatorium at Sanatorium, Miss.

I heard a good sermon to-day, preached by my pastor, Brother Sibley. He kindly asked me to preach for him, but, realizing that it was not best for me to exercise my lungs, I refused, notwithstanding the fact that it would be a great joy to me to preach. There was a while I thought I'd do some revival work this summer, but I doubt my being able to do it. I am sure that I am working too hard for my good now, but what can a fellow do but work who has a large family and nothing to live on?

I am praying for great revivals to come to all the charges in the Mississippi Conference, especially to the Adams charge, my home charge and church. There was a time when the Lord visited this people in great power. Pray that He may come again. The Lord bless all my brethren, and if I am able and any of them want me in their revivals, I will be glad to assist.

Your brother,
J. B. KING.

NEWS FROM PARIS, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Just a few words in regard to the Paris charge. This is our second year here, and we are delighted to be with these good people again. Our new presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder, was with us last Thursday night and Friday. Everybody was delighted with him and enjoyed his sermon. He held our first quarterly conference Friday. The report from the stewards was good, considering the bad weather. We certainly have some good, hustling steward on the Paris charge. We hope for great things to come to pass this year.

The Missionary Centenary Drive is being put on. Pray for us. God bless you and yours.

FROM MENDENHALL, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: We are delightfully situated on the Mendenhall and D'Lo charge. On December 17, the date of our arrival at Mendenhall, we were met at the station and the cars lost no time in getting us to our new home. The Methodist ladies had everything in fine shape in the parsonage. A well-prepared dinner was ready for us, and before we had finished eating we were beginning to feel at home. Each lady seemed to take special pride in having us know that we were welcome. The dinner hour was over and the afternoon passing when some one said, "The ladies from D'Lo are at the gate." After spending an hour or so with us, the question was asked, "What is needed in the parsonage?" and on learning, they drove away, soon returning with some nice blankets and pillows.

On the morning of January 23, at 10 a. m., our most efficient presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Morse' held our first quarterly conference at Mendenhall. We had a good attendance on the part of the official membership. The pastor's salary was increased from $900 to $1400.

On January 25, we were heartily pounded by the Methodists of D'Lo with a great variety of good things.

I have just returned from a 10 days' trip to Blue Ridge, N. C. I was asked by the Y. M. C. A. of D'Lo to go as a delegate. The trip was a great one and thoroughly enjoyed.

The Lord help me to be a great blessing to the good people whom I have been sent to serve.

Yours for real service.

Public Is Warned Against Taking Substitutes For Nuxated Iron

Physicians Below Say That Ordinary Metallic Iron Preparations Cannot Possibly Give The Same STRENGTH, POWER AND ENDURANCE As Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron

United States Judge Atkinson Gives Opinion

Careful investigation by physicians among druggists and patients has revealed the fact that there are thousands of people taking iron who do not distinguish between organic iron and metallic iron, and that such persons often fail to obtain the vital energy, strength and endurance which they seek, simply because they have taken the wrong form of iron.

Therefore, physicians mentioned below, advise those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder to go to their family doctors and obtain a prescription calling for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and present this to their druggist so that there may be no question about obtaining the proper article. But if they do not wish to go to the trouble of getting a prescription for Nuxated Iron then be sure to look on the label and see that the words NUXATED IRON are printed thereon—not Nux and Iron nor any other form of Iron, but Nuxated Iron.

The remarkable results produced by Nuxated Iron and its widespread sale (it being estimated that over three million people annually are today using it), has led to the offering of numerous substitutes, and these physicians say that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting substitutes in medicines and they especially warn against accepting substitutes for Nuxated Iron, which, instead of being organic iron may be nothing more than a metallic iron compound which may in some cases produce more harm than good. The widespread publication of the above information has been suggested by Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital; Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author and others, so that the public may be informed on this subject and protected from the use of metallic iron under the delusion that it is Nuxated Iron or at least something as good as Nuxated Iron.

Judge G. W. Atkinson

United States Judge G. W. Atkinson, of the Court of Claims, Washington, D. C., says: "It is without hesitation that I recommend Nuxated Iron to persons who in the stress of physical or mental labors have permitted the system to become debilitated, the body exhausted or the nerves run down. It has restored my appetite and my vitality. I feel that I have dropped off the burden of months of toil in the few weeks that I have been following the very simple directions for the use of Nuxated Iron."

It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older, inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

FROM THE FIELD.

Dear Brother Carley: As a rule, when a man says "tidings from the field," he has something definite to give to the readers of the Advocate. Either he has built a church; had a great revival; gone to a new home, or taken a new grip on an old one, but I make claim to none of these topics of interest, save an attempt at the last one, as this is my third year here. It seems to me if there was ever a time when a ministry should take a new hold on God and thus on its position, the time is the present one. With reconstruction in the material world and the Centenary in our religious world to be influenced by, we are bound to be thrown out of any state of routine which we had formed; and it is well that we are thus placed. I see, as a result, a better church and a more active church people. I pray God each day that he will make me become wrapped up in the future of His Church, breathing prayers for its spiritual growth, burning with zeal for its betterment as an institution among men. But these desires are not materialized by meditation always, but, in a majority of cases, by detail work, and that is what we have before us: a mass of detail work. The program has been outlined and we, at Merigold and Alligator, are trying to follow it to the letter as far as is practicable with us. The chairmen for the three-minute speakers have been working faithfully and successfully to have a short speech on the Centenary at practically every service in the church; so in this manner our people are becoming informed about this great movement. The Epworth League at Merigold has made its financial program and is now at work on it. The Sunday schools at both places have taken up the part allotted to them and are observing the monthly missionary program. It is our plan, when the specials are sent to us, to go away above the minimum by taking class specials. I find it very easy by working with the Council to enlist classes in taking up definite missionary tasks, and that is, I believe, where the benefit is coming—not from a monetary standpoint, but the enlisting of prayerful interest. We have presented the Fellowship of Intercession cards and some people have signed them, but perhaps not as many as should have. I suspect that was for lack of information, which always brings interest. Now we are ready to plunge into stewardship of life and of means. How this movement is a help to the preacher, for it gives us a program to work by and to! I honestly believe people are thinking more of stewardship now than ever before. One lady came to me and asked me to direct her in some of the details of the tithing system, and of course that was just what I wanted to do. I could do it, for that has been my practice for several years; and a happy practice it is.

It may be that this letter sounds as if the ship of Church is sailing smoothly in these parts, but not so in all cases. I find many individuals who see nothing but $35,000,000 to be collected, and that is entirely too big for this time, for we are just emerging from the war. We are simply a typical set of people; but I am optimistic about the future of the Church in general. Let us pray and work that the life of this generation shall be conserved for the Master.

A FINAL CALL TO SUNDAY SCHOOLS REGARDING ARMENIAN AND SYRIAN RELIEF.

The schools of our Churches have been co-operating with the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief in the effort to raise $2,000,000 from the Sunday schools of North America to help the starving orphans in Bible lands. The money is now coming in to headquarters in New York in a steady stream, but it will take the full help of every school to reach the quota that has been set.

Many of our schools have already given generously, but thousands have as yet had no part in this work. Every school that has not yet taken an offering should do so at once, for the sake of the meaning of it to the children themselves, as well as what it will bring in financial returns to the Committee, and bread and clothing to the starving children across the seas.

Every school should make sure that offerings that have been or may be taken are sent promptly to the Sunday School Department of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, 1 Madison Avenue, New York City, checks and money orders being made payable to Cleveland H. Dodge, Treasurer.

While folks are starving, money for their aid should not be left idle.

NEW ORLEANS

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 66—No. 9. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South Whole No. 3288.

HENRY T. CARLEY, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1919. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Manager.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

WE SUGGEST A COMPROMISE.

We gather from the press dispatches that the clergy of England are urgently in need of larger salaries, while many of the people are clamoring for shorter sermons. We respectfully suggest that a compromise might be effected that would be satisfactory to all concerned.

THE EASIEST WAY.

It is comparatively easy to make programs and formulate plans for the accomplishment of any desired work; but our experience and observation suggest that the easiest way actually to accomplish the task is to engage in hard work. Hard work will accomplish a great deal even where programs and plans are not very definitely formulated.

IT CAN'T BE DONE.

The Business Men's Racing Association of New Orleans in the beginning of the racing season gave great publicity to the fact that it was going to furnish clean sport, honestly conducted, for the entertainment of the people of New Orleans and other parts of the country. We commend to its careful reading the sporting pages of the New Orleans daily newspapers. We read them every day—we are interested in clean, honest sports. But the rumors and insinuations that find expression in those pages establish what we have known all the time: horse racing as an institution is essentially a gambler's sport; it cannot, therefore, be conducted in a clean and honest manner.

BETTER STAY IN SCHOOL.

Recent statistics show that from the age of twelve, attendance at school steadily drops until, at the age of eighteen, little more than one-fifth of the boys and girls of our country are at their studies. We cannot find words in which to express the seriousness of this situation as it appears to us. Our continued prosperity as a nation seems to depend upon the adequate educational equipment of our people. Figures recently made public show that in one large city boys who stayed in school until they were 18, at 25 made almost two and one-half times as much as was earned at 25 by the boys who left school at 14. Education pays in dollars and cents. But its largest dividends are in character. The broad foundations of morality and religion are laid in the lives of people who have learned to control and use properly their intellectual faculties. We are not unmindful of the menace of Bolshevism—but we are not afraid of it among our educated classes. It spreads among those who are governed by prejudice and ill-tempered provincialism. The sanity of judgment and the wideness of vision that result from Christian education are a specific for the passionate blindness of the Bolshevistic movement. We may neglect some things without imperiling our civilization, but education is not one of them. We'd better see to it that our young people stay in school.

WE'LL SIGN IT, TOO.

We saw recently a card to this effect: "We, the pastor and official board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Hammond, La., promise to pay one hundred dollars in gold to any member of our church who will prayerfully and faithfully practice tithing for one year, and then testify that he is not satisfied." The card is signed by Rev. Leon L. McCain, the pastor, and a large number of his official members—probably all of them. We have had no communication with Brother McCain concerning the matter, but we venture to say that no claimants for the hundred dollars will appear. So sure are we of this that we are willing to sign the card, too.

NO LAW AGAINST IT.

Some employees of public service corporations seem to be laboring under a misapprehension to the effect that there is a law against their exercising the virtues of patience, courtesy and friendliness in their dealings with the public. We are glad to say that we have investigated the matter sufficiently to be able to state that no such law exists. It is perfectly legal to be courteous and obliging.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.

We do not presume to pose as a teacher of business methods to our preachers or anybody else, for that matter; but we take the liberty of making one little suggestion that we believe is worth acting upon: Get a typewriter and some good stationery. A typewriter is rather expensive, and it may be beyond the reach of some of our men; but good stationery costs very little more than the cheap kind, and it is worth a great deal more. It will be all the better if a neatly printed, unobtrusive letter-head is used. First impressions are sometimes worth a good deal. We know one man who learned to use a typewriter after he was sixty-five years old. He likes it very much—and so do his correspondents.

THE TESTIMONY OF SCIENCE.

The attempted assassination of Premier Clemenceau of France was a dastardly crime; but it furnishes occasion for the very definite testimony of science concerning the effects of narcotics and alcoholic stimulants. Although the wound itself was slight, it was considered necessarily dangerous for a man of the Premier's age. His physicians, however, gave as a reason for believing that he would soon recover from the wound the fact that he has been a lifelong abstainer from alcoholic drinks, has not smoked for twenty years, and that he has followed a careful rule of living. "His heart and arteries are still young," they say. We do not imagine that there is any sentiment in this testimony—it is a scientific pronouncement. Think of the millions of hearts that will be kept young by the abolition of the liquor traffic!

BEWARE OF THE DITCH.

We read once of a man who had to cross a ditch. The only way to get across was by jumping. He took a long running start so long that when he got to the ditch, he was too tired to jump across, and he fell in. Moral: Some of us spend so much time getting ready to do a thing that we are exhausted when the time for doing comes; beware of the ditch.

WHERE ARE THEY?

A good many soldiers have returned to this country from France, and thousands of them have been discharged from the service. We had hoped that their experiences in the trenches, face to face with death, would at least predispose them in favor of organized religious work on their return home. Maybe it has—but we have not seen very many of them at the churches where we have worshiped recently. We have heard a good deal about the kind of services the men would demand when they returned; maybe their ideas are good; but how do they know the churches are not giving those services now? We believe they are interested in religion—all sensible men are—but we should like for them to know what is going on in the churches now before they begin to express wholesale condemnation of them. So far as we are able to judge, our preachers are doing their best to meet present-day conditions.

THE NEW IDEA.

One of the greatest economic losses of the world results from unnecessary sickness. Some sickness is unavoidable; some is caused by pure neglect of the simple laws of health. Some sickness is a misfortune; a good deal of it is sin. Knowledge is not virtue, as the ancients thought it was, but it has a direct connection with religion. The new idea in health is staying well. "Getting sick and getting well again is out of date," says the Red Cross. All new ideas are not to be commended, but this one appeals to us. We hope we can put it into practice.

CORRECT THE EVIL.

A good deal of attention is being given by newspapers throughout the country to the unnecessary harshness of many verdicts in cases tried by courts-martial in the administration of military discipline. We are not personally familiar with any such cases, and our information is based solely upon what we have read. But if even a part of what we have read is true, we do not hesitate to say that an immediate and drastic investigation of the whole system of military jurisprudence should be made by the proper authorities. A private soldier is not a slave, and an officer is not a superior personage except by the accident of rank. One of the evils of militarism is the development of military caste. The United States, of all countries in the world, has no place for such artificial distinctions.

CHRIST HIMSELF.

By A. B. Simpson.

Once it was the blessing, now it is the Lord;
Once it was the feeling, now it is his Word;
Once His gifts I wanted, now the Giver own;
Once I sought for healing, now Himself alone.

Once 'twas painful trying, now 'tis perfect trust;
Once a half-salvation, now the uttermost;
Once 'twas ceaseless holding, now he holds me fast;
Once 'twas constant drifting, now my anchor's cast.

Once 'twas busy planning, now 'tis trustful prayer;
Once 'twas anxious caring, now He has the care;
Once 'twas what I wanted, now what Jesus says;
Once 'twas constant asking, now 'tis ceaseless praise.

Once it was my working, His it hence shall be;
Once I tried to use Him, now He uses me;
Once the power I wanted, now the Mighty One;
Once for self I labored, now for Him alone.

THOUGHTS ON PRAYER.

By H. P. Lewis, Jr.

Scripture, Luke 18:1-8.

These are the words of Jesus about God's sure response to the call of His elect.

Jesus took an extreme case of a poor widow before an unjust judge—extreme need before a poor chance for justice. Yet IMPORTUNITY won the day.

If she gained her request, how about God's elect? She, a widow; we, God's children. She, poor; we, heirs of God. She had an adversary to seek deliverance from; we have the arch-enemy of mankind to overcome and resist. Her prayer limited to personal grievances; ours bounded only by God's limitations. She prayed for personal justice; we, for universal justice and righteousness.

"Shall not God avenge * * * ?" Do you really pray? God's children are a praying people, who "cry day and night unto Him." If God's children would get the salvation of the world on their hearts and pray earnestly to that end, the world would be saved "speedily."

World conditions have broadened our visions and extended the boundaries of our prayers. With our hearts and prayers we followed our boys to the cantonments, across the Atlantic and to the battle-front. The outcome of the world-struggle and the destiny of our own nation became the subject of our daily prayer. And how speedily God answered after we, as a nation, in response to the call of our Christian President, went to prayer!

The world's spiritual and moral needs are being laid before us to-day as never before. The Church leaders see the opportunity before us, and are undertaking to line up the membership in prayer for the world's salvation. These are the biggest plans Christianity has ever undertaken. But they are not too big for our God.

Spiritual forces start every movement for the betterment of the world. The Centenary Movement is a great spiritual force.

The heart-cry of the Church at prayer is for the reign of the Prince of Peace. If the church membership can be aroused to this heart-cry, and will exercise the FAITH, God will answer. But there is the rub—lack of faith. "Will He find faith on the earth?"

Material prosperity is too often deadening to faith. And there lurks a great danger before America to-day. America's opportunity to be the instrument in God's hands to save the world for Christ is NOW at our door. Pray, Christians, that we may enter this door of opportunity, and be saved from a dead faith.

Some essentials to the FAITH that Christ is seeking: Belief in God and His power to save the world; knowing His will and commandments; obedience to them; getting into the spirit of God for world redemption; willing to be His ambassadors; taking the world, its sins and sorrows on our hearts.

And we will pray if we are His elect, if we have faith, if we really desire His Kingdom to come, if we are willing to put the resources of our lives into bringing in His Kingdom.

A NEW SET OF METHODISTS.

By Rev. Charles D. Bulla, D.D.,
Corresponding Secretary General Sunday School Board.

The organized Bible class has made an invaluable contribution toward the solution of many Church problems.

1. Wesley Bible Classes have been loyal to the Church. They acknowledge allegiance to the Church when they enroll and receive Certificates of Registration. When a Bible class is found that is independent of the Church, it is not a Wesley Class; and if it bears the name, it has forfeited its right to family fellowship. There is no place in our Church for an independent class. If a class shall say, "I am not of the Sunday school," is it not, therefore, not of the school? The Wesley Class is of the Sunday school as the school is of the Church. All Bible classes that live in the house and eat at the board of our Methodism should enroll as Wesley Classes and enter into Church-wide fellowship.

2. Wesley Bible Classes have been the most successful of all agencies in bringing nonchurch-going men and women under the influence of our Church. The first Wesley Bible Class Certificate of Registration was issued in September, 1910. There are now more than 11,000 Wesley Classes with a membership of 240,000 at the time of enrollment.

Two State and six Annual Conference Federations have been formed. Twenty-two Federation meetings have been held, with a total attendance of ten thousand delegates. In these meetings, ways of teaching are considered, methods of work discussed, and denominational loyalty is promoted.

Tens of thousands of young men have gone from Wesley Bible Classes into the service of our country. In God's gracious plan they were blessed with upper-room fellowship, Bible study, and service in preparation for their Gethsemane days of agony and sacrifice. It is the prayer of their fellow-members that heaven will grant our noble men heart-warming communion in their Emmaus way with the Comrade in White.

3. Wesley Classes have built barriers about our boys and girls. The very presence in the Sunday school of fathers, mothers, older brothers, and sisters is as a sea wall between the youth of our homes and Churches and the undertow of the world that would engulf them. Boys and girls follow the track mark of men and women, whether they lead to or from the house of God. By means of class organization the physical, mental, social, and religious needs of youth are being met in a better way than was possible in the old-type class. The organized Bible class is flexible enough to include all the activities of boys and girls. Work for, with, and by young people that is not fundamentally religious falls short of the Church ideal and in most instances is hardly worth while. They will outgrow other organizations, but they will never outgrow the organized Bible class. "If I were not a preacher, I would be a teacher of boys," said Martin Luther. Just because we are preachers and parents and citizens we are in duty bound to be teachers of the young.

4. Wesley Bible Classes have contributed to the welfare of the home. They have sent men and women from class sessions better prepared to discharge the duties of parenthood. They have co-operated with the Sunday school in extending the work done in the session to those who do not attend. They have promoted Bible study and encouraged family worship. The home is the unit of society and holds the first place in religious training. A meeting-house religion is no substitute for a dwelling-house religion. The supreme need of our day is a revival of hearthstone religion.

5. Wesley Bible Classes have placed emphasis upon religious service. They have learned from the Scriptures that Christianity is a religion of service. They have not gone on a senseless search for the Holy Grail, but have shed their crust of brown bread and water out of a wooden bowl to satisfy the life needs of men and women and children in the Church, in the home, in the community, and on to the last man in far-away mission lands.

A great work waits for the still more efficient Wesley Bible Class. Fifty million people in this country never darken the door of a Protestant church. Only one-fourth of the twenty million men and women in our industrial world are churched. Multitudes are distressed and scattered, as sheep not having a shepherd. Moved with a Christlike compassion, we must find them and bring them into the fold of the Good Shepherd.

FACTS ABOUT THE LOUISIANA FEDERATION.

What It Is.

It is an organization of the Wesley Bible Class workers of the Louisiana Conference and it holds an annual meeting for two or three days. Its meeting is the only real representative gathering of Louisiana Methodists. All ages of Methodists are represented—men, women, boys, girls, preachers, and laymen. The meetings are open to everybody.

Why It Is.

The meetings are for the purpose of receiving inspiration and acquiring information. It is to help Methodist Sunday school organized Bible class workers get a definite conception of the greatness of their task and to get ideas as to how to accomplish things worth while.

When It Is.

March 11, 12, 13, the very best time of the week and of the year. Draw a red ink line around those dates on your calendar and make your plans to be there. The meeting begins 2:30, Tuesday afternoon and closes at 4, Thursday afternoon.

Where It Is.

At Ruston. If you will look on the map of the State you will see that it is easily accessible, having two fine railroad lines, from the east and west, and north and south. There are enough railroad trains going in each direction every day, so that a large crowd can be easily accommodated. It is a beautiful town, at which is located our Methodist Orphanage, a visit to which is a part of our program.

Who Are To Go.

Presiding elders, pastors, Sunday school superintendents, officers and teachers, and all members of Wesley Bible classes. The most important one to go is YOU.

As to the Program.

Read the program published below and you will see that it is full of splendid things from the opening to the close. You can't help but be pleased with it.

Some of the Benefits.

No one can estimate all of them. It may mean the revolutionizing of yourself and your class, perhaps of your entire Sunday school. Bring a willing mind and an earnest heart and you will undoubtedly receive help, and upon return to your own school be a great help to others. One of the finest benefits is the genuine Christian fellowship, the like of which is experienced at no other meeting we know of. Come and test it and you will be as sure of it as we are.

As to Arrangements.

The meeting will be in the Methodist Church of which Dr. Wynn is the pastor, and free entertainment is to be given by the generous-hearted people. The Chairman of the Entertainment Committee at Ruston is Mrs. S. L. White, whom you should notify at once that you are going. The Reception Committee consists of Prof. W. B. Hale and the Business Men's Class.

Lastly.

First—Make up your mind to go. Second—Go. Third—Be sure and register after you get there. Bring three things with you, yourself, your heart, and a smile. Having these, you will be sure to enjoy this great occasion.

JUST ONE THING AFTER ANOTHER.

By Gulliver.

Filling himself with an oyster pie and a juicy "T-bone," the human took lodging in his big arm-chair, and smoked, and dreamed. His typewriter was at his left, his library-table at his right, and books and charts and magazines and divers "scraps of paper" were all about. Horace and Cicero and Juvenal and Shakespeare and Kipling and the Book of books lay in easy reach. Good friends, these, and wise, also; not always reliable perhaps, except the last-named; but each one speaking out what the "still small voice" said to him. Poor Horace! Sick of writing odes that smacked too much of what we have come to call the "Under World," he takes up the stylus to write of better things. What about it, my bright Venusian friend? "Vilius argentum auro, virtutibus aurum." As gold is superior to silver, so virtue is more precious than gold! Good boy! But what is "virtue?" But I shall not press that question; for Horace does not know. The best he can say is, "that we should avoid evil." But what is evil, son? But the friend of Maecenas is silent. But another friend, here to my right, says that "sin is the transgression of the law." What law, Paulus? "Why," he asks in surprise, "do you not remember what the Master said? 'Love to God and love to man, upon these two, hang all the law and the prophets!'" Humph! Then, according to that, there is no sin but selfishness; and there is no law but love! "Exactly," answers the little Tarsian scholar. By the way, this converted Pharisee was some dreamer himself. He dreamed of powers and principalities and thrones and crowns and triumphal arches and great processions of the members of the "church of the first born," and much else. Some things he saw in his dreams he could not describe. Well, who can describe a dream? and especially such dreams as Paul was blessed with having? Dreams, or rather "visions," the similitude of which no earthly symbols furnish? It was all "unspeakable and full of glory."

But what about the dreamer mentioned at the beginning of this paper? Well, he sat, as I said, and dreamed. He dreamed of phantom faces long since dust, of broken echoes of voices hushed in death. He felt "the touch of vanished hands," and thrilled again with kisses stolen from Sue and Maggie and other schoolgirl friends dressed in pinafores with "pigtails" hanging down their backs, gathered with a ribbon at the end. Man! but that was the life! And then he dreamed of home and mother, and of the old-time flowers in the front yard—touch-me-nots, prince feathers, marigolds, old maids, hollyhocks, bachelor buttons and—and—all the rest. And then he dreamed of the village church, and the quarterly meeting, with the mules and horses tied to "swinging limbs," and the stewards in a group about a table, figuring up the amount of "nubbins" and bacon and other quarterage "in kind," that had been "turned in" on the preacher's and presiding elder's salaries. There sat the old presiding elder watching the process of the calculation, chewing tobacco like a goat, and the poor, debt-burdened preacher-in-charge walking the floor, waiting for the final audit. It was a tense and awful time! And the dreamer dreamed of the camp-meeting, and the lights that danced on headdress and ribbons; of the large congregation, of the straw in the altar, of the songs of the faithful, and the spirit-filled preacher and his burning message (they did not use evangelistic troupes and "teams," those days). He dreamed also of the mourners' bench and the real "mourners" praying there, and the loud hallelujahs when some son or daughter "got religon." The devil knew—and he knows now—that such "carryings-on" were ruinous to his kingdom. He has gotten some of us to let up a little. This is an age of culture, self-control—and noise is not religon. That is true. The expression is one thing and the impression is another. The latter is the main thing—the impression. Let the Holy Spirit have his way, express it how you will. Is it not so? But our dreamer dreamed some more. He dreamed of the love-lorn lad who sang to "Lorena" about the slowly passing years; of sweet Alice and Ben Bolt, of Maggie May, of Mollie Darling, and that pink of all feminine perfection, Annie Laurie, with eyes as blue as the lakes of her Highland home, with a brow like the snow-drift and, and—well, reader you know the rest. The dream took in the old square grand piano with its ring of singers—boys and girls—who, after the play was over (play-party, they called it), sang and "carried the parts"—eh? The dreamer sang with them, and sang so loud that many thought him on the road to fame. Loud! that was the idea. No trills and runs and crescendos and diminuendos. O no; "ad libitum" was the word, and the loudest screamer was the most popular virtuoso. Great doings!

And then the dreamer dreamed of things nearer the present. He dreamed of "drives" and campaigns and Centenary offerings and of other plans for the advancement of the Lord's kingdom in all the earth. How many open doors! America! It is a word to conjure with. Anything that comes from America is welcome in all lands. Shall we not take our Protestant gospel into those lands where the people are stretching out their hands to us for bread and else? Bread for the body and the soul! Let's give it; let's take it to them—all of it.

But, "ting-aling, ting-a-ling, ting-a-ling," and Memory is on the wire. Hello! Yes, yes, I promised last fall I would do it—promised the editor, when I met him in Dallas. I will write that letter—yes, I will do it now." Ah! Juvenal! Prolatus—is not that the word? Prolatus. That has been my trouble. Prolatus—putting the thing ahead. Procrastinatio—putting off until to-morrow what should have, in most cases, been done to-day. But, representatio—coming back to the present. Well I am back. Right back—clear back to February 5, 1919. And here is the promised "Gulliver Letter" the editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate asked me to write. What do you think of it, reader? If you like the taste of it, I may write or dream again.

QUOTAS AND CREDITS—A STATEMENT AND AN APPEAL.

When a local church receives its quota of the Centenary askings it is privileged to credit toward its quota five times its 1918 contribution to budgets included in the entire Centenary budget. These budgets in general are Home, Foreign, and Conference Missions, Church Extension, missionary money raised by the Woman's Missionary Society, Missionary Specials in churches and in Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues.

In other words, if the Centenary askings of a given church are $100,000 and the 1918 contributions of that church to Home, Foreign, and Conference Missions, Church Extension, money for Home and Foreign Missions raised by the Woman's Missionary Society, Missionary Specials in churches and Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues were $5000, that church is privileged, if it desires, to credit five times five thousand dollars or $25,000 toward the $100,000 askings, leaving a balance of $75,000 as the Centenary quota of that church, provided, however, any Special which will not run for the five years of the Centenary period cannot be multiplied by five.

It is understood that each church has this privilege. However, the Centenary Commission wishes to urge most earnestly that each local church waive this privilege and accept the entire askings without making any credits against the total amount.

It is hoped thus to make the whole spirit of giving to the Centenary that of generous and enthusiastic outpouring of funds. If each church will accept its quota in a spirit of enthusiasm and with a real desire to give to the very limit, the whole spirit of the Centenary will be that of generosity and whole-hearted interest. If, on the other hand, churches accept their quota in a spirit of seeking to find every possible credit to apply toward the quota, and thus reduce the amount of money it must give, the whole spirit of the Centenary will be negative and the result to be attained will be seriously limited.

Heartened by the initiative of many churches throughout the denomination in waiving their possible credits, we appeal in faith and hope to the entire denomination to accept its quota in full and plunge into the task of raising its full askings with enthusiasm and a real desire to raise a fund that is adequate to meet the needs of the extension of Christ's kingdom.

Our fear is that unless the local church catches this whole-hearted spirit of generosity and enthusiasm, the individual members in the church will also fail to catch such a spirit and will give to the Centenary grudgingly and penuriously of their time, interest, and money. The success of the Centenary in each church and in the heart of each individual must be measured in terms of the spirit. Therefore, we appeal to each local church and each individual member of the church to spread, from the very beginning, the contagious spirit of generosity and eagerness to raise even more than is asked.

By the most generous giving, and sometimes sacrificial giving, only can we raise so large a fund, and through this spirit only can the Church experience the joy and stimulus of the whole Centenary program.

At the close of the Eight-Day Drive, if a church finds it has not been able to raise its apportionment, it can then add all of its credits to its report. We urge, however, that no church apply its credits except in case of such necessity.

Let us not raise the question—how little do we have to give; let us rather sound the challenge—how much can we give!

THE PASTORAL RELATION.

By Rev. C. B. Powell.

There is, in my opinion, no calling more blessed, even though it has its trials, and many of them are very peculiar, than a divine call to the ministry. It is a work of highest benevolence, aiming at the benefit of human souls. Consequently, it is productive of highest joy. It sets up no goal of worldly ambition, nor promise of earthly wealth or honor; but calls for unselfish devotion to the spiritual welfare of human beings, and its goal is enduring fame of eternity. To go into this pursuit and follow it as a means of making money, would be to prostitute the Gospel of Jesus Christ and profane the temple of God. Nor is it allowable in this calling to work for the applause of men; for in the fullest sense, the preacher is the servant of God, and he must labor to win the approval of his Lord. Nor is he permitted to seek a life of ease, if he is faithful to his calling. The salvation of souls and the superintendence of Christ's mission is the most responsible and urgent business in the world. He will have burdens to bear in leading the erring to Christ, and guiding aright those who have put on Christ. He will receive, no doubt, much criticism, and perhaps much fault-finding will be charged against him, but if he is a man of God, he will at once note his relation as pastor and church. This criticism sometimes may come from the supposed leaders of the church. But the care of his charge will be upon him, and, more or less, the whole cause of Christ, according as he takes interest in the work. In addition to these things, he will have the direction and care of those who look to him for temporal support, for social and educational advantage. Oftentimes it may be that he will have occasion to weep, when he weighs on the one hand his interest in those whom nature has made dear to him, and on the other his responsibility for those over whom grace has given him the charge. But over against these trials will be experienced the consolation which comes from the loving sympathy of hearts which he knows are faithful to him and to the Lord's cause. How cheering, amid the conflicts, is the thought that there are some who are ready to stand by him and share his work, even to death.

The faithful church will not be unmindful of her pastor's cares; but will extend to him sincere sympathy and unfeigned affection; she will be praying for him and thus bearing him up against the trials and difficulties of his work; she will commend his virtues, and earnestly pray and labor for his improvement. The devout church will be jealous of her pastor's welfare and happiness; she realizes that her own interest and prosperity are vitally connected with his success. She recognizes the fact that God has established the relation of under-shepherd, and that church and pastor are one, that Christ may be glorified. The wise church will not stint her pastor in his temporal support; it is to her interest that his hands be untied; and his mind, as far as possible, be relieved of business cares. The prosperity of the cause depends on the mutual love and co-operation of the church and pastor. Neither is infallible; neither is independent of the other; both are subject to Christ, and dependent alike on him. Yet the Scriptures recognize that his official position as overseer, or bishop, gives him influence and real authority as leader. It is his especial duty to study the interest of the church. His opinion, it would seem, on any matter, ought to be received with deference and consideration. The church should be slow to oppose any plans suggested by him, since he is supposed to have a better knowledge of what concerns her interest than any one who has not made these things a special study. The chief thing is the maintenance of a truly fraternal spirit between the pastor and church. If this is otherwise, success cannot be attained. The Kingdom of God, as I understand it, is like unto a mustard seed which is the smallest of all seeds, but when it is sown, and properly nourished and cultivated, it becomes the greatest of all. Here, then, I might say in part, that arrested state of development in the Church, or Kingdom of God, may be due to the relation of pastor and church.

BISHOP JOHN C. KEENER MEMORIAL.

On Friday, the seventh of February, a memorial window in honor of Bishop John C. Keener was placed in position in the Carrollton Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, South. It was not known at the time, but later noted, that this day was the anniversary of the Bishop's birth. This fact made its placing the more memorable, for it was just one hundred years since his birth, the seventh of February, eighteen hundred and nineteen.

The window is quite large, consisting of three panels, a large center one, with smaller ones on either side. The subject of the center one, selected by the donor, is Christ Blessing the Children, while the side windows are, the Christ Child, from Hoffman's Christ Before the Doctors, and an exquisite copy of The Virgin Mother and Child by Bodenhauser. Between the center and side windows is a narrow, long panel of beautifully tinted or stained glass. The general effect is most pleasing and the whole window is a fitting memorial of the Bishop, he having been a lover of children.

The window is the gift of one of the granddaughters of the Bishop, Miss Mary Wilkinson, who, in making her will, made provision that the window should be paid for out of the sum of one thousand dollars which she left to the Carrollton Avenue Church, and further provided that whatever was left over should be applied on the indebtedness of the new church. The window, while a beautiful one, did not call for the entire sum left by Miss Wilkinson, and thus there are two memorials of the grand old man of Carrollton.

The church was organized by the Rev. Christian Keener, the eldest son of the Bishop, and the first building, which is now the Sunday school room, was built by this honored son. As the years passed, the son going to his reward, his remains were borne from this sacred building to the silent tomb. For twenty-five or more years the Keener family were members of this church, and though in the early years and until quite recent years the church was quite a modest one, the good Bishop when at home came here to worship, instead of attending the more pretentious churches.

Miss Mary was the last of the family residing in New Orleans, and, true to the devotion of her family, this little church was likewise near to her heart. She was simple in life, true in walk and ever lived manifesting her faith in the truths of the gospel of her Lord and Master.

He and his family were the most liberal of its supporters; and while its ministers were in the main young, untried men, this man of mighty brain was usually in his place at the hour of worship. He was ever a helpful listener, always having a word of cheer and commendation for the young pastor. When Bishop Keener was in the audience, the pastor, instead of being confused, welcomed his presence and was helped, so that he did better than usual, having far more liberty.

The Bishop was the friend of the pastor, taking him home with him, lending him books, and at no time was he critical, always having a kindly and helpful word to say to the young brother.

If I mistake not, one son, two daughters, one granddaughter and the Bishop himself have all been buried from this church.

The address of Bishop Galloway on the occasion of the funeral of Bishop Keener was an unusual address and one in which Bishop Galloway was at his best.

The church which was nearer his heart than any in all Methodism has now a fitting memorial of the Bishop, and his memory will be perpetuated and be as ointment poured out to the generations to follow.

So far as known, this is the only memorial of the Bishop in the entire Church, the building at Baton Rouge being in memory of the Rev. Christian Keener. May the memory of Bishop Keener ever inspire this church to noble deeds.

The pastor, JNO. F. FOSTER.

MONROE DISTRICT NOTES.

The January Centenary Group Meeting was held at Monroe and was a most successful meeting. The address of Rev. R. S. Stewart was thrilling and most inspiring and he showed that the argument for the world-wide movement was unanswerable.

The February group meeting was held at Rayville where our own missionary secretary, Rev. N. E. Joyner clearly and carefully presented the claims of the Centenary.

The March Centenary Group Meeting will be held at Monroe on March 5, when every pastor, lay-leader, and those directing the campaign will be expected to be present.

Sunday, February 16, was a beautiful day in this section and the report comes that there were large audiences to greet the preachers and hear them on "The General and Providential Aspects of the Centenary."

At West Monroe, Rev. J. R. Roy is meeting with wonderful success. This congregation is planning to build a new church to cost $40,000.

At Bonita, Rev. W. F. Henderson, Jr., is in high favor and the first quarterly conference made the assessment for the pastor $1300.

At Eros, Rev. W. W. Lantrip has won the hearts of the people and they are planning for a great year on that circuit.

At Chatham, Rev. Geo. W. Warren is giving full proof of his ministry and the first quarterly conference increased his assessment $100 over last year.

The campaign for the Advocate is on this district and every preacher is urged to get as many new subscriptions as posible. This last year we reported 320 subscriptions which is the highest number reported and what we want is to bring that up to 600. One of the aims of the Centenary campaign is to increase the circulation of our church papers. Do it now.

IMPROVEMENTS FOR CONFERENCE TRAINING SCHOOL.

A Message for Every Methodist of the Mississippi Conference.

The campaign for improvements of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, Miss., was duly authorized and begun before the meeting of the last General Conference. The many duties devolving upon the President have prevented rapid headway, but some progress has been made and interest has increased.

On account of the Missionary Centenary, with which I am in most hearty sympathy, I have hesitated to push the canvass for the school at present. I have, however, conferred with a number of our leaders who are loyal to all interests and who understand the needs, and the prevailing opinion is that I should not delay the moderate appeal presented below. Dr. Hull, who has special responsibility for the Missionary Centenary in our Conference, advises that I hasten the work for the school, saying that he does not believe the modest sum I am asking will hinder his work at all. Dr. Cooper, the president of our Annual Conference Board of Education, also advises that I present my plans. So of others whom we all trust and honor. Really, by delay we may lose some of the subscriptions we have already secured.

We are seriously handicapped by lack of dormitory facilities especially. There are other urgent needs, but this is paramount. We are helping everything else—shall we neglect our Church? It is all right to contribute to the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., and other benevolent organizations. We would be regarded as "slackers" if we failed to do so: yet these organizations can not take the place of the Church. They are born of the spirit of the Church and supported by the Church and Church spirit. They prosper and serve only as the Church thrives. It is our duty to provide for State and Negro institutions; but shall we provide dormitories, laboratories, libraries and gymnasiums for State and Negro schools and neglect to provide even dormitories for our own white boys and girls? It is our duty to contribute to missions far away and in foreign lands, but are we going to be good missionaries, by neglecting our own neighbors or our own children?

I know that a campaign is contemplated for our schools the latter half of this quadrennium, and we shall have some needs to present at that time; but we can not afford to let one of our most useful schools suffer three years for what can be done now.

My plan is very simple, and should not be burdensome to any. I am simply asking that our pastors of the Mississippi Conference appoint at once teams in each of their churches to canvass the membership for an avorage of one dollar per member. Of course some will need to give more than the dollar to make up for those who do less, but I believe we have liberal and loyal members who will be delighted to make up for those unable or disinclined.

I ask that this canvass be made from March 8 to March 18. Teams should make returns to the pastors on the 19th, then the pastors report to me, and I will announce results from each charge through the Advocate and report to our trustees.

We will gauge our improvements by what we get. If friends outside of the Conference desire to help us, we shall appreciate their kindness and make due acknowledgment.

ROLFE HUNT,
President Mississippi Conference Training School.

THE PLACE WHERE RICHMOND NOLLEY DIED.

By Rev. P. H. Fontaine.

On page 558 of "A History of Methodism," by Bishop McTyeire, the statement is made that Richmond Nolley died in "a dreary swamp of Louisiana." A few years ago, in company with Rev. J. O. Bennett, I made a pilgrimage to the sacred spot where that sainted preacher breathed his last, and learned that he did not die in a swamp, but in the pine-clad hills. I feel sure that Bishop McTyeire never had the privilege of visiting the place, or he would not have made the above statement; for he was very true and accurate as to detail.

The stream referred to is the western boundary of the swamp traversed by Nolley, and the hills rise from its banks. We stood at the ford, shaded by beautiful beech trees, and noticed one whose branches drooped down to the water below the ford. It was perhaps under this very one that he gained the bank. We walked to the place beside the road where under the pines he sank exhausted, and where the prints of his knees showed "what his last exercise had been."

He was buried about a mile from where he died. A monument placed there was later moved to the cemetery in Jena where it can now be seen.

THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN.

We are glad to say that a good many of our friends have been presenting the claims of the Advocate to their people, and the response has been encouraging. We are more thoroughly convinced than ever that all that is necessary to get our people to take the Church paper is to have it brought to their attention in the right way. The "right way" is to set apart a definite time for securing their subscriptions, and then observe that time. A good many brethren have written us that they are planning to make an active canvass of their charges soon. We are confidently expecting to have our subscription list largely increased by these definite efforts to get people to take the paper. Spring is almost upon us, the weather is likely to be favorable, and we hope that every effort will be made to put the Advocate into the homes of the members of our Church.

The results of the Campaign to date are as follows:

The Home Circle

COMING HOME.

By J. F. Dorroh.

With reverent steps, and slowly,
We come with foreheads bare.
For the air we breathe is holy,
Blest by a mother's prayer.
Out of our heart's deep sadness,
As out of the furrowed sod,
Shall blossom the rose of gladness
To brighten the house of God.

Why is the robe of the sumac bushes
Royal in red and yellow with gold?
Why are the songs of the woodland thrushes
Deep, with a meaning before untold?
Why, at the sight of dear Old Glory
Do the hot, quick tears to the vision come?
They followed it there, where the fields are gory,
And the dear old flag is bringing them home.

By day, by night, the words I said,
"God, keep the Twenty and the Nine."
By night, by day, the prayer I prayed:
Shall I not claim the answer mine?
From gold to gray, the slender rod
That Autumn's fingers lightly hold,
Has changed its hue, but, oh, thank God,
Not one blue Star has changed to gold!

No summer charms could cheer our lot,
With anxious hearts our way we went;
Now winter comes, but it is not
The "winter of our discontent."
For thou our Country's arms hath blessed,
And given the victory to her hands,
And those we love, who love us best
Are safe, though far in foreign lands.

It may be months, it may be years,
But "Mother's" eyes shall see once more,
Through rainbow mists of happy tears,
Her loved one, smiling, at the door.
To-day Columbia lays aside
Her peerless arms, her conquering sword,
That smote the mighty in their pride,
To pay her homage to the Lord.

To-day a nation gives to Thee,
Thou, Freedom's God, the homage due,
And longing eyes look to the sea
To catch a first, though fleeting view
Of vessels, with a dearer freight
Than from Golconda's vaults can come;
And echo State to sister State,
"Our Boys, OUR Boys are coming Home."

THE DAY SCHOOL.

By Gertrude Knevels.

The 365 pupils of the day school sat quietly in their places while Mr. Oldyear, the dearly loved teacher, rose to make his farewell speech.

"Dear Days," said he, "I am sorry indeed to say good-by, but now that I am old and feeble the time has come for some one younger and stronger than I to take my place among you." Then, turning to a very young gentleman who sat near him on the platform, the gray-haired old teacher bowed and said: "Mr. Newyear, I introduce your pupils. Pupils, this is Mr. Newyear! My hope is that you will please him, that you will all of you be good days and none of you bad, that at least you may be as good with him as you have been with me, and that some of you may be better!"

Great excitement followed Mr. Oldyear's speech. Some of the big days clapped their hands and shuffled their feet, and some of the little ones got out their handkerchiefs and cried a bit. Order was at last restored and work began in each of the twelve classes into which the school was divided. Four assistant teachers had each three classes in charge, and to each department in turn the old master led the new teacher on a tour of inspection. Mr. Winter, an elderly, white-bearded, rosy-cheeked gentleman, gave a good account of the days in his department. Some members of the January and February classes, he said, were rather wild, unruly fellows, to be sure, but this was made up for by the fact that in the December class was a pupil named Christmas who was beloved by everyone and generally acknowledged to be the best of all the days! Mr. Newyear now passed on to the department of Miss Spring, a pretty young teacher, who smiled and sighed both together as she confessed to finding some of her pupils exceedingly troublesome. Her whole March class was in disgrace for bad behavior, and in one corner of her room she sorrowfully pointed out a little day sitting on the dunce's stool. It was April-First, she explained, a naughty, mischievous fellow, who never would learn anything, and spent all his time playing tricks!

From Miss Spring's room, Mr. Newyear was taken to visit Mrs. Summer's classes, where all seemed quiet and peaceful. On being closely questioned, however, this lady was obliged to admit that not all of her days were quite as good as they looked or as they should be.

Mr. Newyear was led to Mr. Autumn's department next, and here he found most of the days bright, hearty, healthy-looking and industrious; all, that is, with the possible exception of one small pupil whose promising name was Labor Day, but who could not be discovered to have accomplished any work at all!

On the whole, Mr. Newyear was well satisfied with his school, and thanking the old master for his trouble, he bowed him politely to the door, declaring again and again his intention of doing his best to make all the days under his charge good and happy days.—The Churchman.

TRAPPED DOG FED BY MATE.

In the Telegram, Worcester, Massachusetts, Mr. John E. Dearth, field agent of Worcester County farm bureau, tells this story of the intelligence, sympathy, affection and clever understanding on the part of a dog, which came under his observation in a recent visit to Princeton.

"A Princeton man who is fond of horses and dogs, owns a finely bred hunting dog and he missed him for several days. He made inquiries all around, but no person, it appeared, had seen anything of the animal, and after a week the owner gave him up as lost, strayed or stolen. One of the farm-hands was rambling through a chopped-off wood lot a few days ago and came upon the dog caught in a steel trap that somebody set to trap a skunk or some other game. Both fore paws were held in the jaws of the trap and the dog could not escape.

"But, in spite of his terrible predicament, he was not emaciated, and although in pain, he had not gnawed his fore legs as many animals will do when they are in the torture of a steel trap. Strangest of all, scattered all around the trapped dog were bones, scraps of meat and various other things that dogs like, and the creature looked as if he had not suffered for food. Several ham bones and beef bones, with shreds of meat clinging, were right there under the captive's nose and he was chewing a bone when the farmer discovered his plight.

"The trapped dog was carried home in the arms of the man who found him and then, a little later, the owner went to the trap to see who or what brought those bones and scraps of dog food to the suffering captive. While he stood silently regarding the little heap of bones and scraps, another dog from his own kennels came through the brush with her jaws filled with chicken bones, meat trimmings and other gleanings from the kitchen garbage pail. The dog dropped her load close to the trap and sniffed around as if she were worried. She whined and whimpered when she decided that her friend was gone. The owner called her and she came slinking and trembling to him as if she expected to be punished.

"The way the owner tells the story would make a lump come into your throat. He patted the dog and fondled her and went with her to the trap and let her smell around it to her heart's content and all the while he kept calling her 'good old doggie, good dog,' until she seemed to understand that her master was praising her, and then her joy was unmistakable.

"Calling her after him he went back to the stable where the injured dog was licking his wounds and the kennel fellows were fixing him up. When the other dog saw the rescued animal she showed every indication of joy. She barked, capered around, wagged her tail almost off and then lent her own moist tongue to the healing process of her friend's sorely bruised paws. The two dogs seemed to understand one another, and the way those two friends nuzzled together and expressed friendship was a revelation to the humans who looked on. That dog had been foraging all week for bones and food for the captive and no doubt she understood that she was helping him to live."—Our Dumb Animals.

God is love; and towards the fuller possession and fruition of this life, there is but one straight road, devotion. Other things are good and useful; one is vital—heart-communion with God. We may well fear that not only the world, but the Church also, is growing too busy to pray.—Anthony Wilson Thorold.

THE LOUISIANA BIBLE CLASS FEDERATION.

We are giving a good deal of space this week to the Louisiana Wesley Bible Class Federation, which will meet at Ruston, La., on March 11-13. We are doing this not only because the meeting of the Federation is a matter of interest to many of our readers, but also because it calls to our attention one of the most important phases of our Church work. The time has passed—long since passed—when we could think of the Sunday school as one of the minor departments of our organized activities. It is great to-day both in the extent of its labors and the importance of the work it is doing. And in these peculiarly significant days, it is called upon to render a service that cannot be too greatly emphasized. We do not think we go beyond the truth when we say that the Church has no more efficient means of accomplishing a large part of its task than is furnished by the Sunday school.

The organized Bible class furnishes an admirable means of enlisting many of the men who have returned from army service in the service of the Church. It is projected upon a plan that will appeal to big-hearted, energetic, enthusiastic men, and its possibilities for good in community service of a religious kind are practically unlimited. We have absolutely no sympathy with the cry now being heard from some quarters that the Church has failed in its mission under the stress of war; by every consideration, it has acquitted itself admirably. And we know of no better way to prove to the world that it has done its work well, and that it is going to continue to do it well, than to show through our Bible class work that we are alive to the pressing problems of the religious life.

The program of the Federation meeting at Ruston, as given in another column, is an attractive one. Such leaders as Dr. Bulla, Dr. Hightower, Dr. Geo. R. Stuart, Dr. Dietrich and Rev. J. L. Nelll, from outside our own territory, will bring messages that are worth hearing. Rev. Alonzo Early, the Louisiana Conference Sunday School Field Secretary, is to be congratulated upon having arranged such a fine meeting. We trust that every Sunday school in Louisiana will have at least one representative in attendance. The good people of Ruston, under the leadership of their pastor, Dr. R. H. Wynn, are making every provision for the comfort of the guests that are expected. We are confidently expecting this to be one of the great meetings of Louisiana Methodism this year.

THE CENTENARY MOVEMENT IN LOUISIANA

We are glad to learn from Rev. N. E. Joyner, Conference Centenary Secretary, that interest in the Centenary Movement is rapidly developing throughout Louisiana. Reports indicate that the preachers and people are realizing what the Movement means in the life of the Church, and they are entering heartily into the plans for carrying it out successfully. The Standard Plan is being followed in the organization for the "Big Drive," and gratifying progress is being made. Brother Joyner is hard at work, as is also Mr. F. E. Gunter, the State Campaign Director. By the way, the fact that so prominent a man in the business world as Mr. Gunter is willing to give so much of his time and labor to the Centenary work indicates the appeal the Centenary makes to our people generally. It is a big idea, and it is going to succeed magnificently.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

We are glad to note that the Epworth Leagues of our three Conferences are planning vigorous movements for this year. There is no doubt but that the League faces great difficulties in its work. A very practical one is to find a suitable hour for meeting. In most cases, this is solved by fixing upon the hour immediately preceding the evening preaching hour. Then there is the further fact to be considered that the organized Sunday school classes have so enlarged their functions as to do a part, at least, of the work that was formerly done by the League. But in spite of these things, the League has maintained itself and has made a creditable showing because it meets a need. Our experience and observation have shown us that it does one thing better than any other organization in the Church—it develops leadership among our young people. We have seen those trained in the Epworth League take their places easily and efficiently in the management of the general affairs of the Church. They had become familiar with the polity and methods of procedure of the larger organization, and it was perfectly natural for them, in the course of time, to take up the larger tasks.

There may be some congregations where, for special reasons, the organization of a League is not expedient; but under normal conditions, we are perfectly sure it is well worth all the time and energy that the pastor may put into it. We hope our preachers will co-operate heartily with our young people in the work of the League, and that they will give all the encouragement that lies in their power to make this branch of our work thoroughly effective.

THE COURSE OF STUDY.

The young preacher who has not yet enrolled in the Correspondence School for his Conference Course of Study has made a great mistake. It is the law of the Church that he shall do so unless he definitely intends to complete the work at one of the recognized summer assemblies. We have heard a good many excuses given on the Conference floor by young men who had failed to bring up their studies—but we have heard very few that were satisfactory, at least to us. It is a work of the first importance to follow the direction for intellectual and religious development as laid down by competent authorities. We have serious doubts of any man's qualifications for the ministry who does not take seriously the obligation to read and study. In this connection, we call attention of all our undergraduates to the statement of Dr. J. L. Cunlnggim, Director of the Correspondence School, concerning the course in the Bible, which will be found in another column.

CHANGE OF DATE OF THE NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

We are authorized by Rev. J. G. Snelling, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, to announce that the date of the district conference has been changed from March 25 to April 1. This change has been made in order that the district conference and the Centenary group meeting for the district may be held at the same time. Let all the preachers and laymen bear in mind this fact—the district conference and the group meeting will be combined. It is very important that there be a full attendance. The place and the hour of meeting are unchanged: Carrollton Avenue Church, New Orleans, 8 o'clock p.m., Tuesday, April 1.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Easter Sunday, April 20, is Orphanage Day in the Louisiana Conference.

Rev. Jno. W. Ramsey, of Daleville, Miss., expects to move into a newly-repaired parsonage within a few days.

"We are moving along nicely on our work so far," writes Rev. W. E. Dickens, of Pachuta, Miss. He is not forgetting the Advocate in his work.

In spite of the "flu," Rev. M. A. Burns, of the North Main and Taylor charge, Water Valley, Miss., reports his work in a prosperous condition.

Rev. B. E. Meigs, of Monticello, Miss., is in his second year on that charge. The year has begun well, and he feels sure that substantial progress is being made.

"There are indications of progress in the work of the Church at Pleasant Hill, Miss.," writes the pastor, Rev. W. W. Bruner. We like to hear reports of this kind.

Rev. I. T. Reames, our faithful pastor at Rayville, La., has put his charge on the honor roll. All of his stewards now take the Advocate. Good for him and them, too!

Rev. Van R. Landrum, of Escatawpa, Miss., writes that he is pushing the work in all departments and that he is hopeful of a good year for the Church on his charge.

"We have been hindered by sickness and the bad condition of the roads, but we are looking forward to a year of advancement," writes Rev. G. B. Love, of Marietta, Miss.

Rev. A. L. Davenport is serving his fourth year on the Corinth Circuit, North Mississippi Conference. He reports that his work is in good condition. He serves a fine people.

Rev. C. E. Fike, writing from Rayne, La., says: "Our laymen are taking hold of the Centenary proposition splendidly. We expect to raise our allotment." And we feel sure they will raise it.

Rev. K. W. Dodson, of Mission, La., writes that every department of his church is at work. He has a committee of young ladies canvassing the congregation for new subscribers to the Advocate.

Rev. H. H. Wallace, of the Ardabutta charge, North Mississippi Conference, is diligently at work. He is devoting special attention to the Centenary campaign, as indeed all our preachers are.

"All our work is progressing satisfactorily," writes Rev. W. W. Perry of Glenmora, La. To give emphasis to his words he enclosed a satisfactory remittance for twelve subscriptions to the Advocate.

Sunday, February 16, was a good day at Texas Avenue Church, Shreveport, La. The pastor, Rev. E. R. Powe, received five members into the Church, four by certificate and one by baptism and vows.

Rev. V. D. Skipper, a superannuate member of the Louisiana Conference, formerly a member of the Mississippi Conference, is now making his home at Hazlehurst, Miss. He has wrought nobly in two States.

The annual banquet of the official board of First Church, Baton Rouge, La., was given on last Friday evening. A friend who was fortunate enough to be present informs us that it was a most inspiring occasion.

Rev. E. M. Allen, of Harleston, Miss., writes that he is serving a loyal people who are showing their interest in their preacher by many acts of kindness. He is expecting this to be a great year on the Amerlcus charge.

We learn from the Lincoln County Times that Miss Lois Cooper, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. I. W. Cooper, of Brookhaven, Miss., has been accepted by the Red Cross for overseas duty, and that she expects to sail in the near future.

It is with great sorrow that we learn of the death of the little daughter of Rev. and Mrs. M. L. McCormick at the Seashore Camp Ground on Feb. 9. She was their only child. May God sustain the heart-broken parents in their great sorrow.

A big membership campaign for the Noel Memorial Sunday School, Shreveport, La., was launched at a social in the church parlors on Thursday evening, Feb. 20. An attendance of 500 is the goal that has been set. We doubt not that it will be reached.

Rev. W. W. Nelson, of the Scotland charge, Mississippi Conference, reports that eleven persons signed the stewardship cards at his services on Sunday, February 16. He announces that Dr. H. C. Morrison will be in charge of the camp meeting at Caseyville, August 21-31.

Dr. A. E. Clement, field secretary for the Centenary Movement in the Fifth Episcopal District, was called to Humboldt, Tenn., a few days ago on account of the death of his mother. We sympathize sincerely with Dr. Clement in his great loss.

Rev. Hilary S. Westbrook, of Silver Creek, Miss., writes that he thinks that all his official members are subscribers to the Advocate. Brother Westbrook is accustomed to having his work properly organized, and we are not surprised that his people read their Church paper.

We had the pleasure last Saturday of meeting Mr. M. L. Richards, a wide-awake Methodist from Dallas, Texas, who has recently moved to New Orleans and identified himself with First Church. He is a brother of Rev. W. J. Richards, of the Oklahoma Conference, who is serving as chaplain in the army.

Brother W. R. Baker, of St. Joseph, La., is a loyal Methodist and a faithful friend of the Advocate. He writes, in connection with some subscriptions that he sent us, that the paper goes into nearly every home in his community where there is a member of our Church. It ought to be that way everywhere.

Mrs. E. J. Coker, of Vimville, Miss., is indeed a helpmeet to her husband, Rev. E. J. Coker. While he and the children were unable to be about on account of the "flu," she went out and secured three subscriptions to the Advocate. And she writes that she expects to secure more. Good!

Rev. Olin Ray, of Macon, Miss., recently sent us the renewal subscription of Miss Virginia Cole, with the remark that Miss Cole has been a reader of the Advocate from its beginning, her father having been one of the earliest subscribers to the paper. We are always glad to hear of these old-time friends of the Advocate.

We have just received the following note from Rev. J. W. Booth, pastor of Keener Memorial Church, Baton Rouge, La.: "We buried Mrs. Wm. Larguiere last Tuesday. She was a charter member of Keener Memorial and a most faithful member. We have suffered a great loss." We extend sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

The Woman's Missionary Society of First Church, Baton Rouge, La., celebrated this week the organization of the woman's missionary work in Louisiana, which took place in Baton Rouge probably in 1874 or 1875. The organization took place in the home of Mrs. Read, whose daughter, Mrs. Goodale, is now living in Baton Rouge.

In our last week's issue, in the statement of the results of the Advocate Campaign, we inadvertently placed Rev. J. W. Price, Perth, Miss., in the North Mississippi Conference. He is, of course, a member of the Mississippi Conference. We have made the necessary corrections in the totals of the two Conferences in this week's Advocate.

We acknowledge receipt of the very interesting calendar of Central Church, Meridian, Miss., for the year 1919. It presents a well-conceived plan of work for the entire year. We are glad to note that an entire week is set apart for a Church periodical campaign. Rev. H. B. Watkins is the popular and efficient pastor of this great Church.

Rev. A. S. Lutz, the vigorous presiding elder of the Monroe District, Louisiana Conference, is always busily engaged in some good work; and he generally meets with success in his undertakings. He is taking a special interest in the Advocate campaign in his district, which means that we shall receive a goodly number of subscriptions from that part of our territory.

Rev. John A. Randolph has been designated Senior Chaplain of the Second Army American Expeditionary Force, France. This gives him supervision of the religious, educational and recreational activities in eight divisions, something like two hundred and fifty thousand men. It is a big assignment, but those who know Brother Randolph know that he will "make good."

As an indication of the fact that our stewards generally are endeavoring to make adequate provision for the support of the ministry in these days of the high cost of living, we note that the assessment for preachers' salaries in the Jackson District, Mississippi Conference, is more than $5000 in advance of last year. Rev. J. M. Morse is the progressive presiding elder of that district.

A note from Sister T. S. Randle informs us that she will make her home in Yoakum, Texas. Her son, Scott, will live with her. Many readers of the Advocate will remember Sister Randle in their prayers, that she may have sustaining grace in the time of her great sorrow. Her sainted husband, Rev. T. S. Randle, was, for many years, a faithful member of the Louisiana Conference.

We have just received this sad news from Rev. H. W. Ledbetter, of Grand Cane, La.: "On the evening of the 14th inst., L. H. Richardson, chairman of the board of stewards of Grand Cane Methodist Church, passed to his reward. He was a strong stay on this charge, a friend to the ministry and to the Church. He was sick only seven hours." We lament the passing of this good man.

Four boys from New Orleans are attending the Mississippi Conference Training School, at Montrose, Miss., of which Dr. Rolfe Hunt is president, and two more are expected to enter soon. Rev. W. E. Thomas, of the Mary Werlein Mission, is doing a great work in helping the young people of his charge to secure an education. He has the co-operation of some noble laymen of New Orleans.

Readers of the Advocate will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. W. H. LaPrade, wife of Dr. W. H. LaPrade, well known in Louisiana and Mississippi. According to our information, Mrs. LaPrade passed away at the home of her brother-in-law, Rev. H. C. Howard, in Atlanta, Ga., on Feb. 13. We have not learned the particulars of her death. We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

Rev. R. G. Moore, formerly of the North Mississippi Conference, but now a member of the faculty of Soochow University, Soochow, China, in a personal note to the Editor states that he and his wife have been most kindly received by the members of the University Compound, and that he is greatly pleased with his work. He sends his love especially to the brethren of the North Mississippi Conference.

We have received a copy of the program of the meeting of the Educational Association of our Church, to be held at the Hotel Chisca, Memphis, Tenn., March 4-6. It is most interesting and suggestive. We trust there will be a full attendance of those interested in the extremely important work of the Association. Dr. C. M. Bishop, of Southwestern University, Georgetown, Texas, is president of the Association.

Rev. A. B. Barry, the wide-awake pastor of South and East McComb, Miss., is attending the Government Y. M. C. A. School at Blue Ridge, N. C., as the representative of the pastors of Pike County, Miss. Brother Barry had offered himself for Y. M. C. A. work, and probably would have seen service overseas if the armistice had not intervened. He is greatly interested in seeing an organization of the "Y" effected in McComb. Reports that come to us indicate that he is meeting with great success in his pastoral work.

We were greatly pleased to have a call from our fine young friend, Mr. Marlin Drake, one day last week. Mr. Drake is a son of Rev. W. Winans Drake, of Shreveport, La. He had just returned from overseas duty with the U. S. Army, and was on his way to Camp Beauregard to be discharged. Mr. Drake had the distinction of being the youngest sergeant-major in the army. He had just completed the course in the officers' training school in France and had been recommended for an officer's commission, when the armistice put an end to hostilities.

Dr. George R. Stuart was to have delivered an address at the Louisiana Conference Wesley Bible Class Federation at Alexandria, March, 1917. Sickness in his family called him to Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md., at that time. The Federation was greatly disappointed; but Dr. Stuart is the kind of man to even things up. He was invited to speak at the approaching meeting of the Federation at Ruston, and he immediately sent a telegram to Dr. Bulla, notifying him that he would be present on March 12. Dr. Stuart is worth going a long way to hear.

The many Louisiana friends of Rev. A. G. Shankle, who for twelve years served some of the leading appointments of the Louisiana Conference, will be interested to know that he has recently been appointed by Bishop Candler as pastor of First Church, La Grange, Ga., in the North Georgia Conference, to succeed Rev. S. E. Wasson, who has been appointed Conference Missionary Centenary Secretary. La Grange is one of the leading appointments of the North Georgia Conference, and we congratulate our people there on their good fortune in having Brother Shankle as their pastor. In a personal note to the Editor, Brother Shankle expresses his affectionate regard for the brethren of the Louisiana Conference and his friends throughout the State.

ALGIERS METHODIST CHURCH.

I have been planning in my mind, for many weeks, the pleasure of worshiping with our people of Algiers. Sunday, I carried my plans into execution. I do not know the population of that part of New Orleans. I have no historic statement, or record, how long we have been preaching there. One thing I know: Louisiana Methodism should see to it that this church has, without delay, a house of worship. What impression can we make on that people as we prolong our religious activities under such environments? I expected something good in going to hear Brother Wier. I was pleasurably surprised—in that it was so good. He preached a sermon which for length, incisiveness, freshness, clearness, and with food to nourish, was worthy to have been preached in Atlanta.

If this is his usual habit—and he seemed natural in delivering it, as if this was his weekly custom—then the little flock has a shepherd who feeds, rather than cudgels.

So much preaching now—and, it maybe, has always been—is mere exhortation, nothing constructive, nothing to edify. It is a misfortune that so many of us live so far from Brother Wier.

I wonder how many more years are to be thrown to the winds, before Algiers will have a suitable house of worship? P. A. SOWELL.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Help your money to grow.

PLEDGED INTERCESSORS IN NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

Aberdeen District, 321; Columbus District, 113; Corinth District, 260; Durant District, 109; Greenville District, 61; Holly Springs District, 162; Sardis District, 166; Winona District, 173. These are those reported from these several districts on Feb. 12, 1919. I just happen to know that there are two churches in one district whose pastors told me some time ago, they had as many pledged intercessors each as are reported from the whole district. This shows that reports are not being made to Rev. S. A. Neblett, Box 38, Doctors' Building, Nashville, Tenn.

Brethren, be sure to report as requested, by sending in the pledge card filled out by each person. If they are in your hands now, send them in; if they are lost, get blanks, fill them again, and send them in. There is a Big Reason.

BEN P. JACO,
Centenary Secretary.

Winona, Miss.

The Central New York Conference of the M. E. Church has finished its financial canvass for the Centenary, and has pledged $150,000 more than the $2,161,000 assigned to it. This is the first Conference in Methodism to complete its Centenary task.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR
FREE FROM DANDRUFF.

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.—Adv.

Mr. JNO. VANCLEAVE was born on January 24, 1831 and died on February 12, 1919. He was buried by the writer assisted by Dr. J. C. Zeller. Brother Vancleave was one of two praying men on the Eden charge when I came here. He was a Confederate soldier, belonging to Co. I, First Miss. Light Artillery. Just a few days before he died he told me that when quite young he was convicted, convinced and converted, but went away from God; but that in the public road Mr. McCormick cried over his lost condition, he confessed to the Lord and he took him back. This was while he was single. He leaves four sons and one daughter, and a host of grandchildren to mourn their loss, but they mourn not as those that have no hope. No one knows, except a preacher, what this man of God has been to me, always ready to talk about the cause of Christ. As we would have prayer with him from time to time, his hearty amens were an inspiration to all that were present. Mr. J. P. Vancleave said, "If I were as good a man as I believe he was, I would be all right. To him and the other children I would say, "Worship your father's God and be reunited in that last day." So mote it be.

A. S. OLIVER.
Eden, Miss., Feb. 15, 1919.

Mrs. ELIZABETH TARPLEY was born on January 5, 1882, at Arizona, La. She joined the Methodist Church when nine years old. She married Jas. M. Tarpley on February 24, 19—. One child, Mary Louise, was born to them. Four years ago, because Sister Tarpley's health failed, the family with a niece, Miss Eula Malone, moved to El Paso seeking a climate more favorable. She improved until six months ago; then her health began to decline. In December she took influenza, dying Tuesday morning, December 10, surrounded by her grief-stricken family. Brother Tarpley took her back to Homer, La., for interment.

Besides those mentioned, she leaves at Homer, La., her mother, Mrs. Mary Palmer, a sister, Mrs. Mattie Fortson, two brothers, W. P. and M. E. Palmer; at Arizona, La., a sister, Mrs. J. M. Malone, two brothers, Dr. N. M. Palmer, U. S. A., and Jas. G. Palmer, Shreveport.

She was a lovely character, loyal to her church and pastor, her family and her God. In the closing days of life she greatly missed church services, of which she was deprived. Her room was a Bethel of prayer, a gateway to heaven. Where she breathed forth the sweet influence of her life.

HUBERT M. SMITH, Pastor.
El Paso, Texas, Feb. 4, 1919.

Mrs. FANNIE E. BALDRIDGE, nee Draughon, was born on the 30th of March, 1850, in Wilkinson County, Miss., and died in Natchez, Miss., on December 18, 1918. She was educated in the Silliman Institute, Clinton, La., and devoted the early part of her young life to teaching in Franklin Parish, La., for which she was especially fitted with a bright and happy Christian experience and character. Worldliness abounded in those days in this part of the State, and it took a strong and determined life to stand out against the social conditions that prevailed, but in every community where she taught she organized a Sunday school, and there are many who will testify that they owe their start in Christian life to Miss Fannie, as she was called in the community where she lived. In 1880 she was happily married to Mr. W. C. Baldridge, and moved to Jefferson County, Miss., where many blessed and happy days were spent.

They were not blest with the gift of children of their own, but they took the children of others and fitted them for life and started them on the way. To the Church she gave the best of her Christian influence especially the Sunday school among the young, and there will be many in the McNair and Woodlawn communities who will miss her. To the Red Cross during the war she gave the best she had with the same devotion that she did to Church. She came to Natchez for treatment, but she seemed to realize that perhaps her time had come. She brought everything that she might be prepared for the going. She said to the writer the day before she was operated on, "Brother Saunders, if I should go please comfort my husband, for he will be so lonesome without me." The next morning, a little after daylight, her pure spirit went home to God. A good life has come to the end of the way; she has taken up residence in the house not made with hands; she enjoys the association of those gone before; and a blessed and hallowed influence lingers behind to soothe and bless many lives. May God's richest blessings abide upon the companion who waits alone, but comforted with the fact that all was done to save the life longer if possible.

W. H. SAUNDERS,
Ex-Pastor.
Natchez, Miss.

Mrs. MARY GREER DUNAVENT was born at Sarepta, Calhoun County, Miss., on October 10, 1858. She was one of a family of four children. The home of her parents and hers as a child was so lighted by a Christian influence that, as a child, she felt the necessity of becoming an active Christian and made the start by uniting with the Methodist Church at the early age of ten. She was married to Robt. H. Dunavent at Looxahoma, Miss., December, 1875, and thus was a Christian home begun. Into this home seven children were born, five of whom live to mourn the loss of their mother. Sister Dunavent's life was checkered with sorrow and responsibility, for her husband and companion died on March 4, 1896, leaving her with the responsibility of rearing her seven children. This she did to her credit, and two of them have gone on before her: Rob't, Jr., died in 1910, and Edna, Mrs. F. E. Jones, died in 1916. Her children living are Shands and Virgil Dunavent and Mrs. W. M. Choate, all of Sledge, Miss., Miss Annie Dunavent, Merigold, and Cecil Dunavent, with A. E. F., in France.

The above are the outstanding facts of a useful life which came to its earthly end on February 11, 1919, after a somewhat lengthy case of complications from influenza. It was the writer's privilege to have known this good woman only a short period, but it does not take years of association to convince one of the worth of consecrated life. For many years she had been trusting in God and her daily life in advanced years was but an outpouring of such a trust. One of the most beautiful things about her life was her devotion to the Church of Christ. Her children tell me that it was her life custom to make her way to the house of God and there worship Him in spirit and truth; and not only did she manifest her devotion to her Lord, in gathering with others to worship, but her hand and heart were ever ready to help in deed or in sympathy. As a wife, she let her light shine; as a mother, her children shall rise up and call her blessed; and as a faithful follower of the Master, we shall all remember her. How beautiful is the full grown rose of life that sheds its fragrance for those with whom it comes in contact!

Her last charge in this life was nurturing the four small grandchildren which her daughter, Mrs. F. E. Jones, of this place, left motherless, and it was in this capacity that we at Merigold knew her. To the bereaved, it can be said you have the privilege of mourning as those who have hope. May many such as this our Sister see the light of day, live, love and pass on that the world may be made better, purer, and sweeter.

W. R. LOTT,
Pastor Methodist Church, South.
Merigold, Miss., Feb. 20, 1919.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Made Up a Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss and Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the sure mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation.—Adv.

LETTERS FROM RHEUMATICS.

Possibly you have imagined that you could not get your own consent to write a testimonial letter, but if you have ever experienced the excruciating pains of rheumatism you can at least appreciate the feelings of those who have been relieved of this terrible disease by drinking the Mineral Water from the justly celebrated Shivar Spring. This water overcomes many diseases, including Indigestion, Gout, Uric Acid Poisoning and Liver and Kidney diseases, but no patrons of the Springs are more enthusiastic in their praise of the water that those who have been relieved of their rheumatism. Hundreds of letters like the following have been received by the Management:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick Headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisoning matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of Stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefitted. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr Rhodes, of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The Water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McCann of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

You cannot serve God truly unless you serve man, too.—W. H. Hutton.

"THEN WHOSE SHALL THOSE THINGS BE?"

Copyright, 1918, By H. A. Boaz.

This important question was asked by the Son of Man. Will the reader answer to-day, as some day you must?

To each of us there comes a day of final accounting. The charges and the credits are all entered; the balances closed. Then the final disposition of capital and profits must be made. If ever it shall behoove a man to prove himself fair as well as just, it will be upon the day when his final accounts are made up.

Few men wait until the last to make this final settlement. Long before that they know what its outlines should be. They know, too, that the mind harassed by bodily infirmity and impending death is not the mind to consider calmly and weigh with precision. They determine what that ultimate disposition should be; and they write it into their wills.

At such a time an honorable man will first provide for his debts. An obligation, whatever its nature, is doubly binding upon him then. His ledger discloses many of these obligations; but there are others (and they are often the most sacred ones) that are only found upon the pages of his will. There are some of these that we would like the man who reads these words to consider.

What do you owe to God? He gave you, remember, the sunlight upon which you opened your eyes; the earth and its fruits which have nourished and sustained you; the orderly procession of the seasons which brought seed-time and harvest, with all which that has meant to your welfare. But he has given you much more. He gave you your fellow-men, without whose presence your life would have passed upon the level of the brutes; without whose co-operation, wealth would have been an impossibility. And he gave his only begotten Son that all this wondrous world might be a safer, better, pleasanter place for you; and that your share in the world that is to come after it might be more assured. Do you owe nothing, then, to God?

What do you owe to Christ? He gave His life for you. He drank the cup that He prayed might pass from Him, for the remission of your sins. He taught lessons of brotherly love, of self-denial and of cheerful service, that gave you Christian men for associates, when your life might have run its course among the heathen. Do you owe nothing to Christ?

What do you owe to your church? It has brought you the temporal pleasure of kindly, helpful association. It has sustained you in temptation and comforted you in affliction. These are the minor details of its ministry; perhaps you have overlooked them. But you cannot forget how it opened heaven's door for you. You cannot forget how much of all that is best in your life sprang from its inspiration. You know how you will turn to it when the last solemn moment comes. Do you owe it nothing?

No; the Christian cannot, must not, forget such obligations when he comes to write his will. Since he has received so much, he will not fail to return a little.

"This stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be God's house: and of all thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee." Does not that vow of Jacob's still ring true? Does it point the way to you?

"This stone which I have set for a pillar, shall be God's house." Will you, at the last, erect a pillar to Him—a house of God that shall shelter His people? Will you erect it as a lasting testimony of all He has done for you?

"And of all thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee." That is a modest rule; but will you, at the last, live up to it?

"Then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?" Shall God and Christ and your church have a share in them? Shall selfishness attend you into the beyond; or will a tithe, at least, return to God who gave it?

You will make that final settlement; but your neighbors will audit it. They observe the outward evidences of your real self as you live. They will scrutinize them when you have passed on. Shall they say: "This man valued his spiritual life—he has done what he could to transmit it to others?" Or shall they read your will and find nothing but selfish suggestion in it?

There are 2120 homeless congregations in Southern Methodism. Every one of them is trying to spread a gospel that is very precious to you. You may deny them a share of what God has placed in your hands until the very last. But can you deny it them? Shall they have no part in what God has given you? Shall their cause find no mention in your will?

THEY'S A KETCH IN IT.

Dr. Harvey Reeves Calkins was one day explaining to a group of church officers God's financial plan of weekly giving on a tithing basis. Turning to a shrewd farmer, he asked if he had made the matter clear. The man replied, "They's a ketch in it."

"Why, my brother, I intended to make it very plain," said the speaker.

"Oh, it's plain enough," replied the farmer, "but they's a ketch in it, all the same; for I can see if we adopt that plan we'll be paying out more money than we intend to give"—Missionary Voice.

A REAL BLESSING

F. M. Hammonds, Shamrock, Tex., writes: "I used Ready Relief. Had 104 chicks hatched and not one has died." Thos. A. White, of White Pigeon, Mich., writes: "I have not lost a chick. They are fine and grow fast. Ready Relief is a godsend."

You can have the same success. Reefer's Ready Relief in your baby chicks' first drinking water will help save them from the White Diarrhoea that kills off more than half the chicks that are hatched. Reefer's Ready Relief is the discovery of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 2252 Poultry Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a package of Ready Relief that will positively help you save your baby chicks. Aren't your delicate, downy baby chicks worth saving? You take no risk. Mr. Reefer guarantees to refund every cent of your money if you are not entirely satisfied and a million dollar bank backs up this statement. Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. Aren't your baby chicks worth five for a penny? That's about the cost of Reefer's Ready Relief. If you don't want to try this bank guaranteed chick saver, at least write today for Mr. Reefer's valuable free poultry book that gives the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Rheumatism Quickly Relieved!

The Well Known Remedy For Rheumatism, Gross' Specific, is a Powerful Blood Purifier.

G. S. removes uric acid and impurities from the blood, and at the same time acts on the liver and kidneys, carrying the poisonous secretions out of the system through the natural channels. The system is thus cleansed of the poisons of Rheumatism, and the sufferer is relieved of those dreadful pains and the swelling. G. S. is a very safe and sure remedy and a powerful enemy of Rheumatism. It is an effective uric acid solvent and gives quick relief to the sufferer. G. S. is also very efficient in treating related diseases, such as Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Constipation.

Absolute Guarantee.

Such excellent results have been secured from the use of G. S. and so surely will this remedy relieve rheumatic sufferers that the manufacturer guarantees G. S. to give beneficial results. If no relief is secured, your money is promptly refunded.

Fort Smith, Ark.

L. M. Gross:-

I have practiced medicine for forty-two years and have had a great deal of experience in the treatment of Rheumatism, but I have not found anything that equals G. S., and I take a great pleasure in recommending it for Rheumatism in any form.

G. S. USED BY SOLDIERS AT CAMP HANCOCK WITH SPLENDID RESULTS.

W. H. Morse, M. D., 449 Zion Street, Hartford, Conn.

Dr. Gross, Little Rock, Ark.

Dear Sir: I enclose a Consulting Chemist's Certificate on your "G. S.," which came to my notice as the "Great Stuff" used by our boys at Camp Hancock. That which they said, made me curious to know the Why and Wherefore of its chemical character and therapy. The Certificate states results.

I have said to the boys that at the camp, or anywhere else, where the renal, hepatic and splenic functions become deranged, if "G. S." is used, "Hic Habitat Felicitas" may be written over the door.

Finally, I congratulate you on your preparation, and am sure that with it in the house one will not find any pleasure in having rheumatism, gout, or a bilious spell. Heartily yours,

W. H. MORSE.

ENTIRELY RELIEVED OF RHEUMATISM AFTER TAKING ONE AND ONE-HALF BOTTLES OF G. S.

Hot Springs, Ark.

L. M. Gross:

Dear Sir: I have been taking G. S. for two weeks, and I am receiving great benefits when all other treatments have failed. I would recommend G. S. to anyone suffering with rheumatism. I have received much benefit from one bottle of this medicine, and more than I did from 60 baths and 40 electrical treatments. Yours truly,

O. A. PATTON, (A Visitor.)

A CONSULTING CHEMIST'S STATEMENT.

W. H. Morse, M. D., Consulting Chemist.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that I have had the opportunity of examining the preparation "G. S.," purchased in the open market in Atlanta, Ga., and of exhibiting the same in medical practice.

I find it to be a meritorious remedy, carefully compounded, and of high therapeutical value in the treatment of derangements of the functions of the kidneys, liver and spleen, which derangements are indicated by rheumatic, rheumatoid and gouty disorder.

The exact cause of rheumatism is unknown, but it is generally supposed to be due to an excess of uric acid in the blood. That excess occurs when the functions of the kidneys, liver and spleen are deranged.

Therefore, as "G. S." restores those functions, and thus frees the blood of uric acid and all else that is contaminating, it stands to reason that it is remedial of rheumatism, gout, lithaemia, uricacidaemia, and auto-infection from all suboxidation products of the uric acid type.

Respectfully and heartily submitted,

W. H. MORSE.

NATCHEZ LOOKS FORWARD TO WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

Dear Brother Carley: As you doubtless know, the Mississippi Conference Woman's Missionary Society will meet in our city from the sixth to the tenth of March. Our good women are planning to make this a great time for those who attend, and a great blessing for our own church. Some of the very best of our leading ladies will be with us, and we are expecting to have a real feast of good things during these four days. Bishop Kilgo will preach for us on the second day, the first Sunday in March.

This will be a blessing we do not usually have in many places of our Church.

Taking these two occasions, we are surely fortunate in Natchez for the start of this year. Your brother.

FROM GREENSBURG, LA.

Dear Advocate: We held our first quarterly conference last Saturday, January 8. We had representation from each church. The stewards fixed the salary of the P. C. this year at $1040, which, with 15 per cent added for P. E., makes $1196.50. They also assessed the charge $250, prorated among the several churches, for the purpose of finishing the parsonage and making other repairs on parsonage property. We have been handicapped in getting around to our appointments on account of the bad weather and bad roads.

The report on this charge last year in some respects was better than has been for some years. We are hoping and praying that this year will pass all others in every respect. The Centenary program is somewhat difficult in this country to carry out, but we are doing our best to put it over. I believe it is going to bring the greatest blessing to the Church in this section, as in every other part of the Church, of anything that we have been able to do yet. The plan could not be improved on, to educate our people in their duty to do the work of the Kingdom of our Lord.

We look into the coming months with a great deal of concern, as I think of the responsibility of my task, and we pray that God may help me and my people to realize more and more that he is depending upon us to do his work and is expecting something from us.

I am seeing after the Advocate some, but haven't been able to do it as planned. But I am urging our people to renew and am trying to get some new ones.

Yours in His service,
L. E. CROOKS, P. C.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.

Our Society holds its meetings regularly every Sunday of the month. One is devoted to business session, two to study and the fourth to a literary program. When a fifth Sunday comes around, we give a literary program for the benefit of all the children of the Home. Each has responded faithfully when asked to take part on a program.

We have given two public programs lately. One was a literary program on Mexico and Brazil and the other on Temperance. From these, the children of the Home gather many interesting facts which they enjoy greatly. Those saying on the program have a chance to become accustomed to speaking when called upon.

Our Society recently finished the study of "The Life and Work of Jesus" by St. Mark, and have ordered another study book for this year. This is one of the most helpful activities of our auxiliary as we are brought face to face with the deep, spiritual truths of life and service.

Last year our Society made the number of credits which enabled us to be placed among the leading auxiliaries on the Honor Roll. We are very proud to know that such a young auxiliary as ours has, by striving hard, won a place among the first in Christian work.

We pride ourselves on paying all our dues on time, sending in each quarter on time a full account of our work and at the close of the year we come out clear of debt with our pledge paid in full.

Let us hope that we may do more in helping to carry the gospel to others this year.

Signed: Clara Crossman, President; Hattie Royal, Recording Secretary.

A LETTER FROM THE SUPERINTENDENT OF STUDY AND PUBLICITY.

Dear Mrs. Snelling: You are more familiar than I am with the excellent work of the Young People's auxiliary at the Orphanage. The report is remarkably fine, I think, and should set a new pace for our other young people throughout the Conference. These capable girls are availing themselves of the splendid opportunities they are having for training in Christian service and it is natural for us to expect that from their ranks will come a goodly number of young women who will take special courses to equip themselves as missionaries or deaconesses.

It is indeed a pleasure to me to look forward to meeting the women of the Louisiana Conference at our Annual Meeting in Mansfield. I shall be very happy to be associated with them again as Superintendent of Study and Publicity and shall give my best endeavors to the work that is very dear to my heart. I am trying to familiarize myself with the situation so that I may possibly be of some help at that time. Sincerely,

Mrs. R. H. WYNN.

WOMAN'S PART IN THE CENTENARY MOVEMENT.

A Message from the Home Base Secretary.

The Centenary Movement appeals to the womanhood of the Church as an integral force of the Church and not as an organization. It would reach every woman and every child of every Church with its inspiring and compelling message; but it is the privilege of those of us who have trodden the blessed paths of missionary endeavor all these years in our organized work to stand in a peculiar place of service in the movement and to put at the disposal of this movement any part of our organization that can assist in making the Centenary a success. Hence I would assure you that the presiding elders and pastors will look to you for asistance in the promotion of intercession, in the practice and teaching of stewardship, in carrying the Centenary message to the women of the Church, and in securing gifts of life and money. We beseech you, therefore, that you have your eyes and ears open to the call of the hour and that in a peculiar way you dedicate yourselves to the Missionary Centenary. However, at the end of this great effort as an organization we shall have between four and five millions of dollars to be devoted to the enlargement of our organized work.

"We are dwelling * * *
In an age on ages telling.
To be living is sublime."

CENTENARY GLEANINGS.

No greater evidence of the effectiveness of the Centenary idea could be given than the fact that women of mission lands, having received the gospel message themselves, are enthusiastically "carrying on."

America must prove herself. Now is the time in Jesus' name to make men free. In God's providence the Centenary has come to help. The evangelization of the nations is the safety of the world.

First Church, Buenos Aires, a mission church, has the distinction of leading not only the Methodism of South America, but that of North America as well, as the first church in the whole world-wide connection to raise its allotment in the Centenary campaign.

The leaders of the Centenary movement are calling on the Church to enter as never before into the ministry of importunate intercession. This call to prayer is a call to a renaissance of faith in prayer—to put aside the insidious rationalism that has been evident for several decades.

We who owe all our prosperity to Christianity must not profiteer on the blood of Christ. We must use our rich resources to carry on Christ's campaign to plant the Cross wherever man is found. Tithing is approved to systematize our handling of God's means, but it gives only the minimum and should not be a mere mechanical device.

This is the day of large things in the world. It is said that an elephant can be trained to pick up pins, but that it is always awkward and painful work for him. Our Church, no doubt could go on doing the small things it has been doing, but the awkwardness and pain of the process will increase. The Centenary movement in a real offensive against the forces of darkness and sin!

In one mission station at Saltillo, after prayer and thorough discussion, the Mexican Church at that point decided that they should collect 25,000 pesos (Mexican dollar) on the field for Colegio Ingles, our Girls' Normal School, and 10,000 pesos for the new church building. This was their voluntary assessment for the Centenary and was made without suggestion from the missionaries.

The Centenary Movement, with its emphasis on the duty of stewardship and proportional giving, will have a decided tendency actually to increase the wealth of our Church. Systematic giving will teach our people, young and old, the value of method. The testimony of an impressively large number of tithers is, that they have been really surprised at their prosperity after they have begun to bring all the tithes into the storehouse of God. What God has promised should not surprise us!

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts before Breakfast if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

RENWAR RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

It is certainly a pity that so many people suffer year after year the intense pains of rheumatism when it can be so easily expelled from the system by the simple treatment of taking Renwar Rheumatic Salts. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood; and in order to effect a complete cure, it is necessary to entirely eliminate this acid from the blood. Renwar is guaranteed to relieve or your money is refunded. It contains no injurious drugs. It is the one sure remedy, and it does not in the slightest degree injure the stomach or affect the heart. Mr. Joseph L. Boehmer says: "One 50c bottle has done me more good than all sanitarium treatments, and what it did for me, why should it not do the same for others? Should anyone doubt the virtue of Renwar and the certainty of curing this malady, refer them to me." For sale by druggists, price 50c; or by mail on receipt of price from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

Mitchell, Ind.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me so much during the time I was looking forward to the coming of my little one that I am recommending it to other expectant mothers. FROM TEXAS AVENUE, SHREVEPORT, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: Some months ago, Rev. W. W. Drake, the worthy and popular pastor of the James S. Noel, Jr., Memorial Church of this city, wrote an article to the Advocate in which he spoke of Methodism in Shreveport in rather flattering terms, but in detail spoke of First Church and Noel Memorial, overlooking entirely Texas Avenue, Queensboro, and Cedar Grove; hence, one might draw the conclusion that there are no other Methodist churches in Shreveport, save the two my fellow-pastor mentioned. However, the other three above named are here.

First Church and Noel Memorial are great churches, doing great things. They are all Brother Drake said and then some.

Queensboro, with Brother Davies as pastor, is one of our suburban churches and they did splendid work last year, and I am sure they will do great things this year.

Cedar Grove, another suburban church, with Brother E. B. Daniels as pastor a part of the year and Brother Mayo the last quarter of the year and on the job again this year, is doing a fine work.

Texas Avenue Church is located in West Shreveport on the Fair Grounds and Highland car lines. I am too modest to speak of the pastor only to say he is here. Last year we received seventy members and paid all our Conference assessments—a thing that had not been done in ten years before. The pastor was paid in full, with a salary a hundred dollars more than it was the year before, and we paid four hundred and fifty dollars on some old debts of several years' standing. Our second year begins well, in spite of the "flu" and other hindrances.

Soon after my return from Conference, a number of our people stormed the parsonage one evening and "pounded" us enough to last a month, and, of course, we didn't have them arrested for chunking us. My stewards have fixed the salary for this year at fifteen hundred dollars—some jump over last year. We have received twenty-three members since Conference; baptized one baby; buried ten persons; married eight couples, and have nearly enough money in hand to finish paying our parsonage debt; which is a balance of more than three hundred dollars. Dr. Sexton proposed to finish paying our church debt of more than three hundred dollars, if we would pay the parsonage debt off, so I got busy. I am anxious to get everything in the clear, and then we are going to start something. I'll let you know what it is when we get it going.

I am sending you some subscriptions to the Advocate. Hope to send more later. Yours fraternally.

F. R. POWER,
Pastor Texas Avenue.

Shreveport, La., Feb. 10, 1919.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas Brother J. W. Peyton, Sr., was, for fourteen years and more, a member of Texas Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, South, during which time he served as steward, and for a number of years as Sunday school superintendent, and whereas in the providence of God he fell on sleep Tuesday, January 23, 1919:

Be it resolved, That we, the members of Texas Avenue Methodist Church and Sunday school, greatly deplore his death, and that we enter with his loved ones in their bereavement over his going away; and we pray God to bless and comfort their hearts; and we ask them to join us in prayer that God may bless our church and Sunday school in raising up another to take his place, in so far as is possible, in the church he loved so much.

Be it also resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of our next quarterly conference, a copy be sent to each of his children, and a copy to the New Orleans and Texas Christian Advocates.

Signed: F. R. Power, Pastor; C. T. Hitchings, Sunday School Superintendent.

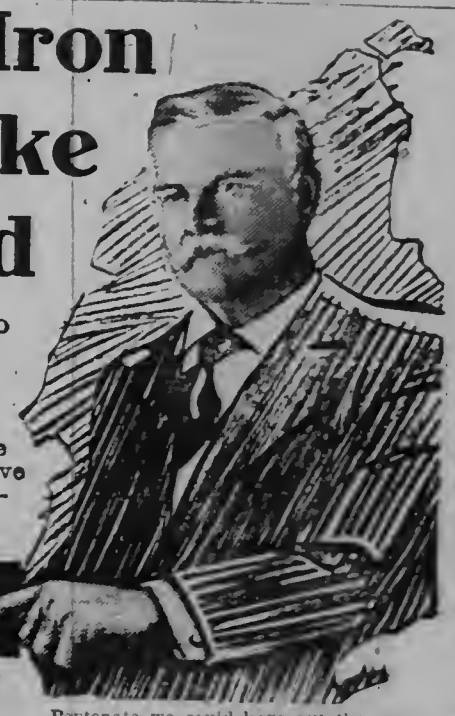
Nuxated Iron Helps Make Red Blood

The Kind That Puts Roses Into the Cheeks of Women and Force, Strength, and Courage Into the Veins of Men

Watch the People You Meet On the Street—You Can Tell Those Who Have Plenty of Iron In Their Blood—Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Folks



Cut this Out

Sworn Statement of the Composition of the FORMULA of Nuxated Iron

It is conservatively estimated that this remarkable formula is now being used by over three million people annually. Among those who have used and strongly endorse it are many physicians who have been connected with the best hospitals and medical societies, former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential nominee, Chas. A. Towne, of Minnesota; U. S. Commissioner of Immigration, Hon. Anthony Caminetti; Judge Atkinson of the United States Court of Claims at Washington; Wm. L. Chambers, Commissioner of the United States Board of Mediation and Conciliation at Washington, and former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr, of Chicago.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this statement for the benefit of their readers. It is suggested that physicians make a record of it and keep it in their offices so that they may intelligently answer questions of patients concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to anyone who desires such. It is as follows: Iron Peptonate (Special specific Standard) Quantity given below. Sodium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto). Calcium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto). P. E. Nux Vomica U. S. P. Cascarine Bitter. Magnesium Carbonate Po. Ginger U. S. P. Oil Cassia Cinnamon Precip. U. S. P. Calcium Carbonate Precip. U. S. P.

Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron peptonate, of a special specific standard, which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost; but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy. Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increase brain power, as glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorus in that particular state so similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of men.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphates) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron" by the Pure Health Laboratories, Paris, London and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have been taking other forms of iron without success, it does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you.

Manufacturer's Note: Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy, but on the contrary it is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Nuxated Iron is not recommended for every conceivable ailment, but rather for those cases of acute illness, run down systems, weakness and blood builder who desire to build up their health always consult your family physician and be guided by his advice. If in doubt as to whether or not you need a tonic, ask your doctor, as we do not wish to sell you Nuxated Iron if you do not require it. If you should use it and it does not help you, return us and we will return your money. Sold by all druggists.

Biliousness

WHEN you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. There is nothing better.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Names of chairmen of Missionary Committees are coming in and calls for literature keep me busy. I just can't help but think of the fellow that has not heard the call.

You are going to receive your card to sign for your allotment of five cents per member in a few days; sign and mail to J. L. Neill, Nashville, Tenn.

Schools from every part of the Church are signing up and many are promising far more than the allotment.

Mr. E. E. French, superintendent of McKendree Sunday school, was the first to sign the pledge card. He stands at the head of the class of Southern Methodist superintendents. The school at Canton is the first from Mississippi. North Mississippi will come in later. We won't stay foot long.

Winona is in the "Movement" and is on the move. Several of the teachers agreed to study one of the books in the teacher-training course and receive one unit credit. The Missionary program is on and one class expects to do something worth while.

The Missionary Committee in the Sardis school is using the page edited by Dr. Bulla in the School Standard for their February program. The school in Sardis has a "friend" for superintendent. He is original, bright, and keeps his school out of the ruts.

Mathiston is not waiting for the sun to warm things up, but the pastor, superintendent, and Missionary Committee are working for the great Centenary movement.

In spite of an inadequate church building, some of the departments in the West Point school are doing high grade work. The church cannot stagnate under the supervision of Lovick Wasson.

It is difficult to put a Methodist movement on in a union school, but Brother Anderson, of Maybew, is going to try to give the instruction if he has to mix it with what other churches are doing.

Artesia, is one church that says, "We are willing to underwrite for our part of the Centenary any day." Two juniors in this school feel the call to the foreign field. Praise God. Only a few braved the winter wind to hear what the Field Secretary had to say, but they were the best.

Olin Ray goes into his Sunday school regularly and lends a helping hand. The Macon people are congratulating themselves that they have a Sunday school pastor. The teachers of this school agreed to take one book of the course and complete it for one unit.

Every school visited this month has subscribed for the World Outlook, to be used in preparing missionary programs. This periodical is ahead of anything of the kind in the country. If you want the best thing published on missions, get it and use it to give the people information they want.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BOARD.

North Mississippi Conference.

At a recent meeting of the Board at Winona, the undersigned was elected chairman to succeed one of the finest laymen in the Conference. Judge J. G. McGowen. Rev. C. A. Parks, of Ackerman, was elected Secretary and Rev. J. E. Stephens, of New Albany, Treasurer.

The new Board has some splendid Sunday school workers among its membership: J. H. Ledyard, of Tupelo, big manufacturer, big Sunday school superintendent; Dabney Lipscomb, college professor at the I. I. & C.; Judge McGowen, Chancellor of the Third District and superintendent of the great school at Water Valley; H. A. Sorrels, lifelong supporter and long time superintendent at Belzoni; Grady Johnson, fine young lawyer at Hernando; J. T. Mathis, druggist and superintendent at Leland, a man whose vacations are spent at the Methodist Conferences; D. T. Yeates, of Sherman, and W. M. Armstrong, of Vaiden, successful business men who love the Church. I have mentioned only the laymen—add to this list E. R. Smoot, J. T. Lewis, J. M. Guinn, and C. A. Northington and you will see what a fine working force we have.

We make this appeal to all the pastors and superintendents of the Conference. Fall in line with the great forward movement in Sunday school work. Tie your Sunday school on to something definite, some special outside of and beyond anything you have undertaken before. The bane of many of our Sunday schools is that we are satisfied if we do as well as we did the past year. Holding one's own is not necessarily a shining virtue. Progress is the law of life and let us catch its meaning.

Plan for a great Sunday School Day, the third Sunday in May—not a "little Children's Day," but a great Sunday School Day.

Use the Field Secretary. Write to him to come and hold an all-day institute or just one service if that is the best that can be done. Use him. He'll work. Cordially.

E. S. LEWIS.

Greenville, Miss.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES

The Brookhaven Centenary Group Meeting was visited. It seemed to be of high order to have a fine, representative attendance. I heard many compliments of the work done there. The Fayette Group Meeting of the Centenary was enjoyable. They served lunch in the church and the fellowship of breaking bread together was delightful. This was a strong meeting. The Group Meeting at Crawford Street was also a very strong meeting, and had the added delight of all breaking bread together. These meetings are doing much and abiding good.

On Wednesday, the 12th inst., I had the delightful pleasure of presenting teacher-training diplomas to the following Millsaps students: R. T. Hollingsworth, R. H. J. Sessions, R. R Simpson and Miss Ollie Pickens. This was indeed a great pleasure.

Sunday, the 16th, an Institute for the Crawford Street, Vicksburg, Sunday school was held and there was much interest manifested. The Superintendent of the Elementary Department Mrs. Z. M. Davis, pledged her teachers to take one training book a year This made 16 pupils and they lack only 4 of meeting Third Rank Standard of teacher-training for the school. The Superintendent promised the Third Rank Missionary Standard and the Kentucky Allotment. That is, he assured me that we would not be disappointed in the returns from Crawford Street.

Gibson Memorial will meet the Third Rank Missionary Standard, and I feel sure, will meet the Centenary Allotment.

Don't forget the Drive for membership in the Sunday school for May Rev. C. D. Bulla, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn., will be glad to furnish you supplies to put this movement on.

Pray for me and the work. We cannot go forward unless it is by the way of prayer. JOHN C. CHAMBERS,

Field Secretary

SHE SAVED 200 CHICKS.

Mrs. Dan Holycross, Silverwood, Ind., writes: "Reefer's Ready Relief is all it is said to be. I have not lost one of my last Inoubator hatch and they are now four weeks old." And G. W. Miller, of Pittsburg, Okla., writes: "Hatched 175 chicks and haven't lost one."

You can have the same success. Ready Relief in your baby chicks' first drinking water will save them from dying off with that dreadful plague, White Diarrhoea. Reefer's Ready Relief is the invention of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. "CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP.

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets To-night.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.—Adv.

Weekly Health Talks

A WORD ABOUT THE KIDNEYS

BY DOCTOR WATSON.

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart, and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. When the kidneys are diseased, the poisons are spread everywhere, and one of these poisons is uric acid. The uric acid is carried all through the system and deposited in various places, in the form of urate salts—in the feet, ankles, wrists and back—often forming bags under the eyes. Sometimes the resulting trouble is called rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and backache. Finally, come stone in the bladder, diabetes and Bright's disease.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., in recent years, discovered that a certain combination of remedies would dissolve uric acid (urate salts) in the system. He found this combination to be harmless, so that he made it up in tablets, of double strength, and called them Anuric Tablets. They dissolve uric acid in the human system as hot coffee dissolves sugar. If you have uric acid troubles, don't delay in taking Anuric Tablets, which can be secured in the drug stores. You can write Dr. Pierce, too, and he will tell you what to eat and how to live so that more uric acid will not form in your system. Dr. Pierce will not charge for this advice.

80 YEARS AGO

Mr. Edward Goodenough, of Goodenough and Woglam Sunday School Supply House, secured a remarkable formula for a skin ointment, which he sold privately for a half century by personal recommendation, making up the preparation at his home. So remarkably efficient did it prove for all skin troubles that Mr. Goodenough received large numbers of the most enthusiastic commendations from his customers. His grandson, Mr. F. E. Kirby, as vice-president of The Morgan Drug Co., 1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., is still active in the production of this ointment under the name so widely and well known to grateful users as Palmer's "Skin-Success." Mr. Kirby is as enthusiastic as his grandfather over its merits and declares that it is the best preparation of its kind on the market or known to the medical profession for freckles, tan, sunburn, pimples, eczema and other skin troubles. BANISH CATARRH

Breathe Hyomei for Two Minutes and Relieve Stuffed Up Head.

If you want to get relief from catarrh, cold in the head or from an irritating cough in the shortest time breathe Hyomei.

It should clear out your head in two minutes and allow you to breathe freely.

Hyomei often ends a cold in one day. It will relieve you of disgusting snuffles, hawking spitting and offensive breath in a week.

Hyomei is made chiefly from a soothing, healing, antiseptic, that comes from the eucalyptus forests of inland Australia where catarrh, asthma and consumption were never known to exist.

Hyomei is pleasant and easy to breathe. Just pour a few drops into the hard rubber inhaler, use as directed and relief is almost certain.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler and one bottle of Hyomei, costs but little at druggists everywhere. If you already own an inhaler you can get an extra bottle of Hyomei at druggists.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

STICKING TO A THING.

We heard a wise layman remark the other day that the trouble with a great many movements in the Church, local and general, is that they are begun in a great burst of enthusiasm, but are soon left to make their way as best they can, with the enthusiasm gone and the energetic efforts of the prime movers directed along other lines. We have seen something of this sort, ourselves. There is a current expression to this effect: "Don't begin something you can't finish." We suggest this revision: "Don't begin something you don't intend to finish."

STILL MEN.

A great many of our men will return from overseas physically disabled by wounds and disease. As they face the future, it may seem dark to them—almost hopeless. They will receive the sympathy of friends and relatives, and many a helping hand will be extended to them in their efforts to gain for themselves again a place among the productive forces of society. Much of this sympathy and help, however, will be largely emotional and temporary. The United States Government is looking at the situation in a thoroughly practical way, and it is making provision for the rehabilitation of these disabled men that will fit them not only for the resumption of their work in making a livelihood, but that will, in many cases, equip them even more thoroughly than before for remunerative employments. The Government has established reconstruction hospitals and re-educational institutions where these disabled men, by the help of highly developed scientific methods, may almost be "made over." The loss of legs and arms and eyes will not be the handicap that it formerly was. For those who will accept the good offices of the Government, there are almost limitless possibilities of activity and usefulness, in spite of what would have formerly been insuperable difficulties. The American Red Cross is adding its highly efficient services to those of the Government for the rehabilitation of these men. It has established a department of After-Care of Returned Disabled Soldiers and Sailors. The function of this department will be to re-enforce the Government by acting as a friend to help the disabled combat their fears and discouragements, and as an adviser in solving the problems incident to temporary situations arising from personal and family financial needs. These disabled men need this practical and helpful form of ministry. They are not, and they do not want to be considered helpless and dependent members of society; they want a chance to show that they are as brave in the battle of life as they were in the war for freedom. They are still men. The Government and the Red Cross are doing a great work in helping them to maintain their manhood by restoring them to the ranks of independent and self-supporting citizens.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Considerable opposition seems to have developed in some quarters to the proposed League of Nations as advocated by President Wilson and as unanimously agreed upon by the delegates to the Peace Conference. We have read the proposed Constitution of the League with much interest. We do not presume to be able to express an authoritative opinion as to the merits of that document; but we do express ourselves as unreservedly in favor of its adoption and the organization of the League at the earliest possible moment. Whatever objections may be urged against the League as contemplated, this indisputable fact remains: It is a serious and determined effort to bring about such an association of the nations of the world as will put an end to war, and it has received the unanimous approval of those who are in a position to estimate properly the difficulties to be overcome in the accomplishment of that great end. Our great President has declared that, in his judgment, the proposed Constitution does not violate any of the fundamental positions of the United States, and that its adoption is of the utmost importance for the security of the aims that have been achieved by the war. In our judgment, the least that can be said of it is that it is a step in the right direction; and we are in favor of taking that step. If those who oppose the League have anything better in mind, let them propose it in definite form. The world wants constructive action instead of carping criticism.

HE HAS MADE A MISTAKE.

We have unqualifiedly supported President Wilson in his war policies because we have believed in the integrity of his character and the wisdom of his views. But we have never thought of him as infallible in his judgments—no man is so to be thought of. And in one matter, we believe he has erred lamentably in judgment: he has appointed George D. Herron as one of the commissioners to Russia to investigate and report to the Peace Conference concerning the Bolshevist movement in Russia. We do not care what Mr. Herron's other qualifications for the position are—his attitude on certain great social and moral questions makes him utterly unfit to represent the American people anywhere on anything. We quote from the resolutions addressed to the President and adopted by the World Program Conference, representing the Methodism of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, at its recent session in Kansas City. The Conference was presided over by Bishop Wm. A. Quayle, who signed the resolutions: "We most earnestly protest against the appointment on that Commission of George D. Herron. His record in the past, as made public by the press of this country, makes his selection and appointment to this high commission an insult to all Christian people, and an affront to all our moral ideals. His life and teachings, as revealed by his writings and by the public press, express his belief in a type of extreme and destructive socialism which can scarcely be distinguished from Bolshevism itself. Any man who forsakes his own wife and children, and takes up with another woman, and, finally, lives with her in practically a common law marriage, and justifies and defends himself in the act, and by so much seems to endorse the principles of free love, is not a fit man to represent the American people and the American ideals anywhere. Therefore, on behalf of our womanhood, our childhood, our homes, our common decency, and the true Christian sentiment of America, we demand his removal from the commission."

THE WRONG NAME.

We saw an item in a New Orleans newspaper the other day headed, "New Headquarters For Liberty League." We read further, as follows: "At a meeting of the bartenders and members of the Personal Liberty League Sunday afternoon," etc., etc. "The object of the organization is to inaugurate a campaign against prohibition," etc., etc. We hate to see the sacred word, "Liberty," prostituted to such uses.

PROHIBITION AND BOLSHEVISM.

One of the reasons why the American people overwhelmingly defeated the liquor traffic by the adoption of the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution was the determined, persistent and flagrant violation of the law of the land by brewers, saloonkeepers and others engaged in the nefarious business. They seemed to set themselves in opposition to regulations that even they themselves might have been supposed to look upon as reasonable regulations concerning their activities. The people became tired of their lawless interference with the operation of laws for the protection of the public, and put them where they belong—out of business. But they seem to be unable to realize that the Constitution of the United States is a document to be respected, and they have apparently organized a movement to prevent the enforcement of the amendment, even though it is a part of the organic law of the nation. This is the essence of Bolshevism. The "No beer, no work" propaganda is a direct thrust at the sovereignty of the State. It has in it the germ of revolution against all constituted authority. We have felt a certain degree of sympathy for those who have been forced to readjust themselves to a new order of things; we would have been glad to join with all other right-thinking people in an effort to make it as easy as possible for them to adapt themselves to changed conditions with a minimum of loss and inconvenience. But their present attitude puts them beyond the pale of sympathy. They seem to be deliberately attempting to overthrow the foundations of government. There is but one attitude to assume toward them. They are national enemies and they should be dealt with accordingly. If necessary, they should be arrested for treasonable words and acts, and made to suffer the penalty that is meted out to traitors.

THE SPIRIT.

As silent as the sun-gleam in the forest,
As quiet as the shadow on the hill,
Is the shining of the Spirit in our dimness,
Is the falling of its calm upon our will.

And subtler than the sun-lift in the leaf-bud,
That thrills through all the forest, making May,
And stronger than the strength that plants the mountains,
Is that shining in the heart-lands, bringing day.

THE MOUNTAINS OF JEHOVAH.

By Wm. C. Allen.

A few years ago when in Korea I several times enjoyed fellowship with one of the best interpreters I have ever had. He was a native Korean, a devout Christian and a pastor. The spiritual needs of his distraught country rested heavily upon him and often he would go up into the mountains adjacent to Seoul and pass the nights in prayer. There under the stars or in the storm he would hold communion with his Lord.

Did not this Korean when thus sacrificing his body also lift up his eyes to the eternal hills of God from whence all help comes? Is Jehovah not found by all of us when nothing intervenes between Him and ourselves—when in the silence of our inmost souls we pour out our thoughts and entreaty to Him? How vital is the prayer? how vibrant is the answer! The hills of God are holy ground, yet all of us may daily tread them if we will, and lay our temptations, our weaknesses, our burdens at His feet. Then, after such a period of communion and we perforce return to the valley of commonplace existence, to its enjoyments, its sordidness and its carking cares, we joyously exclaim with that grand old Hebrew prophet, "He maketh my feet like hinds' feet and will make me to walk on my high places!" Even in the somber lowlands of life we may live on the spiritual hills of God.

Those glorious elevations are beautiful to look at from a distance—they seem like exquisite amethyst in our quiet moments, like transparent amber in hours of questioning, like massive battlements in days of fear. But it is infinitely better to arise and go to them than simply to view them from afar. Every sinuous canon within them leads upward, every rugged rock is of immutable strength, every towering peak points to the Son of God. Every flower is refreshed with the dew of heaven, every shrub is redolent with the fragrance of love. The rills of divine goodness pour down their rugged slopes—we satisfy our thirst for Jehovah in their refreshing pools. I ask my readers to set their feet toward those beautiful mountains where they may commune with the Holy One and find strength and rest for their souls.

The sacred charm of the unchangeable mountains of God is found in the fact that they are all around us. We do not always know this—our eyes are sometimes holden that we do not see them. How unprotected at times we feel ourselves to be! How the swirl of apparently uncontrollable events threatens to engulf us! How frequently we gaze on the clouds big with darkness and are filled with dread lest the rage of the tempest sweeps us away! Then we remember the everlasting hills—we again look up to them because from them cometh our help. We behold them behind the menace of the storm and its fury is stayed by their sheltering sides. Over their lofty tops is arched the bow of promise, and renewed confidence in the Eternal Goodness speeds us on our way. We know that God is all about us and we understand the sweetness of the glory of the peace of the prophet who declared:

As the mountains are round about Jerusalem,
So Jehovah is round about His people
From this time forth and forever more.

THOUGHTS ON PRAYER.

II.

By H. P. Lewis, Jr.

Scripture, Acts 16:13, 25.

The Christian loves and naturally gravitates to the place of prayer. It is the place for communion between God and His people.

The call to prayer by the Church for the Centenary Movement is revealing to us our real spiritual standing. Many are dead spiritually because they have lost love for prayer, its spirit and power. If you do not love the place of prayer, both public and private, your spiritual life is at a low ebb. It may be dead.

A church fully alive towards God will seek the place of prayer. There is always a live prayer meeting in a live church.

A prayer life in sunshine and success will sustain and comfort in time of adversity. Too many neglect to pray till adversity comes, and then wonder why they are not heard.

We do not know the contents of the prayers of Paul and Silas in prison, but we may imagine from the prayer of the early church (Acts 4:24, 29-30), from the testimony of Paul's life (Acts 20:22-24; II Cor. 11:23-33), from the consciousness of their relationship with God. So, I imagine they prayed for the young Church just established; Lydia and her household; for the damsel that had been delivered; for their tormentors (Matt. 5:44); and they rejoiced "that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for His name."

When one is right with God and doing His will, this is one of the peculiar experiences he falls heir to. Under persecution and hardship, the spirit of rejoicing is aroused and put in action.

So, in spite of their sufferings and cramped condition, Paul and Silas got happy. Prayer burst forth into praise. The other prisoners heard them. God answered by opening all the prison doors and bursting the bonds. Before day, they had led the jailor to Christ.

Has your heart been ever thus gripped for His cause? Will the Church find in you one of its real intercessors?

Prayer possibilities:

Prayer brought Pentecost; 120 intercessors, 3000 converts the first day.

Prayer opened the doors of prisons when other means had failed.

Prayer sent the early Christians everywhere, under persecution, preaching.

Prayer of the Holy Club started Methodism and saved England from a bloody revolution.

Prayer has opened the doors of heathen nations to the gospel.

Prayer started the Missionary Movement in America.

Prayer has spied out the heathen lands and made report.

Prayer has led our great Church to real ventures of faith.

Prayer and faith make real Joshuas and Calebs of us, and in the spirit of this great Movement we may possess the kingdoms of this world for our Lord and Christ.

"OVER THERE."

Orleans.

By Elmer C. Gunn.

Dear Mr. Editor: It makes one feel young in years and wisdom to stand among the ancient things that are to be found in this glorious but strange country. It is not at all unusual to find a man living in a house built four hundred years before he was born, nor is it out of the ordinary to find statues, relics, souvenirs of the dead past, which are at least 1800 years old. This is naturally the more strange to members of the A. E. F., because we come from a land where oftentimes the oldest inhabitant of a town is the Methodist preacher who has been returned by a gracious Conference for his fourth year.

The writer went to Orleans—"Old Orleans"—the other day and there he found a city of almost perfect design, crowded with historical interest, filled with magnificent art, the whole of which is dominated by Joan of Arc—for this is her city—and all this design, history and art is presided over by one of the five or six finest cathedrals in France. This cathedral sits there like a sentinel guarding the interests, holding the hearts and saving the souls of the people of this city and section.

It is of great interest to me to be able to visit a town or city whose chief building is a church. Not seldom in the States I have visited places where there were buildings, art, and scenery of more or less interest pointed out to travelers, and the church buildings were passed by as not only being unworthy of special notice, but such as were actually an eyesore to all whose hearts were not bound up in them. Such ought not so to be. May we of the A. E. F. learn in this fine old country the valuable lesson that our art, our history, our very lives and souls, must have their centers not only in the invisible Church but in the church buildings as well! May we go to work to build here and there in our own loved land churches which will compare favorably with the best of our buildings, and let us build not only for temporary purposes, but let us so catch the vision splendid of the princes and peasants of other lands and ages as to be inspired to build monuments to our day and generation of which those who follow us need not be ashamed!

The two items of especial interest in Orleans meet a visitor while he is yet on the outskirts of the city. In fact, it may well be said that the heart or core of all interest is in the cathedral, while the history and art are presided over and dominated by Joan of Arc, "The Maid of Orleans."

The cathedral itself is not quite so old as the one at Le Mans of which I wrote in a former paper. It was finished in the fifteenth century, which was the century in which Joan of Arc lived and died a martyr. It is, of course, Gothic in architecture, as are all the great cathedrals of the country. The glass of the windows is beyond description. It is of the kind that will never be duplicated for the simple reason that the art of making it is buried in the tombs of those ages. Out of the mists and shadows and mud of the streets one may step into one of these old cathedrals and to his surprise find that the work of lighting it from the skies is so perfected as to give a more satisfying, more soothing effect than can be found in any other building or even out in the open on the ordinary day in France. I have heard mention made of the semi-darkness, the twilight effect, one finds in the great cathedrals here, but I have found the light better within than without. There is no semi-darkness, no twilight, but a perfect system of sky-lighting that cannot be equaled in our own land.

One is always struck by the seeming utter dependence of the people upon these buildings. Scores of priests may be found at any hour of the day ministering to the visiting members of the parish. The communicants come in quietly—never a word above a whisper being spoken by them while inside—and they come in by ones, twos or, at most, half a dozen. They come for worship only. Here one finds a real expression of one side of the French nature. The representative Frenchman is deeply religious; no use telling me hereafter that this people do not believe in God. I have seen them at their worship and I know.

Of Joan of Arc little need be said aside from the fact that she lives to-day in the dreams and visions of the French of all classes. The writer stood in the room in Orleans where Joan received King Henry VII on his journey from Chateau Chinon. The ceiling of the room is just as it was at that time, 1430, nearly 500 years ago. There is also the old fireplace exactly as it was when she sat before it in those far-off days. In the two museums may be seen countless relics of the age of Joan and earlier. There are several pieces of priceless tapestry which were presented to her during the days when her popularity was at its height. Some of it is many years older than her time, even reaching back into the early days of the 12th century. There are the devilish machines of warfare just as they were used by her warriors, and, my dear Mr. Editor, in the five hundred years since that time we haven't improved so much after all. To me, after looking at these infernal machines, it seems that our improvement has been rather in numbers than kind. There are also pieces of armor which were used by Joan in battle. There are casts and statues and supposed photos of the Maid almost without number. Outside the museums there are to be found statues of Joan in every nook and corner of the city; one is never out of sight of them in one form or another.

Orleans is a city of about 100,000 inhabitants and is one of the most beautiful of the inland cities of France. It is typically French and because of its location so near to Paris it is almost left alone by the A. E. F. Base Hospital 202 has been located there, but is now evacuated, its inmates and officers having been sent home.

These are strenuous days with us; the eyes of the men turn homeward with all the longing of the old Psalmist of the Babylonish captivity and with even greater reason, since their absence has not been that of the captive who is being punished for his sins, but rather that of man who has fought well and nobly the battle of freedom in the cause of Liberty, Democracy and Christianity and who now sees beckoning to him the tremendous opportunities of a world set free. This difference from the old captives of Babylon we will also remember: whereas they returned to a land desolate and waste, the men of the A. E. F. will return to a "land of brooks of water, of fountains and springs, flowing forth in valleys and hills; a land of wheat and barley, and vines and fig trees and pomegranates; a land of olive trees and honey; a land wherein they shall eat bread without scarceness, they shall not lack anything in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills they may dig copper. And they shall eat and be full and bless Jehovah, their God, for the good land which He has given them."

It is not only a great army that we have, but it is coming to be an army of great men. The A. E. F. as I have found it has a more or less rough exterior, has a broadened, chastened, purified vision of life as it is and as it may be, but, throbbing in and through all, it has the heart of a man who has laid his all on the altar of sacrifice and feels that in his renuneiation of the best he had he has found his soul. Life to a member of the A. E. F. can never look again quite as it did before he faced the dangers and trials of a foreign campaign. He has offered all in the supreme sacrifice and he goes back knowing that the things worth while are the things he has fought for and for which he volunteered to die. Now these things will help to keep him steady, but he needs your help also, dear people at home. Don't forget him; pray for him, write to him, give him still the best of your loyal support that he may finish the work over here and return to the home and the opportunties over there with the vision splendid shining in his soul, and courage, faith and loyalty burning in his heart. Thank you?

Gierves, France, Jan. 27. 1919.

IN MEMORIAM—JUDGE T. C. W. ELLIS.

By Rev. F. N. Parker, D.D.

Thomas Cargill Warner Ellis was born in Covington, La., on November 26, 1836. His father was the late Judge Ezekiel P. Ellis, of English descent, but a native of Georgia. His mother was Tabitha Emily Warner, a native of Louisiana, but of Scotch-English descent. Her father was Judge Thomas Cargill Warner, who settled in Louisiana in 1804.

Judge Ellis graduated from Centenary College, Jackson, La., in 1855, and from the old New Orleans College of Law in 1857. If my memory serves me right, Judge Ellis was a professor in the Law Department of Tulane University in his prime. Among his associates at Centenary College was the late Dr. C. W. Carter, of precious memory, with whom a lifelong friendship was sustained. I recall attending a commencement occasion during Dr. Carter's presidency at which a class reunion took place when the principal feature of a delightful commencement was an address by Judge Ellis, in which he bore witness to his sense of obligation to the old college and in happiest manner told of its influence for good in the State.

Judge Ellis was married to Martina Virginia Hamilton, daughter of Judge Wm. Hamilton, of Alabama, in 1857. Of this union six children and nine grandchildren were born. In 1863 he organized a company of cavalry and served to the end of the war, surrendering with General Forest's Cavalry in 1856. He was elected District Attorney from his District in 1859, and State Senator in 1865.

Perhaps his greatest public service was rendered in withstanding the menace of political corruption and social demoralization attending two great issues. The first was the Reconstruction period, a time that called for manhood and ability. Judge Ellis was a leader in this critical time. His sound judgment, moderation and absolute integrity made him an adviser who commanded the confidence of the best elements in the State. His influence in the great Anti-Lottery Campaign was conspicuous. His unquestioned antagonism to this vested evil made him a tower of strength, and his great gifts as a writer of clearness and force came into effective play.

He was appointed one of the Judges of the Civil District Court of New Orleans by Gov. Francis T. Nichols in 1888, reappointed by Gov. Murphy J. Foster, and elected to the office at the close of the appointed period two years before his death. His thirty years on the bench were a period of honored service. The New Orleans Bar looked upon him with confidence in his integrity, esteem for his ability as a judge, and warm personal regard.

Judge Ellis was never an office seeker nor a man to plead his services for his party of his country as the basis of a claim for a share in political spoils. Every office held by him was the result of genuine service, eminent qualification and moral worth. There were none to contend for or contest his position in the confidence of the public. He was beyond the reach of the self-seeking politician, and the sure friend of all upright men. He was one of the most unassuming men I ever knew. His reading was extensive, his culture genuine and deep, and his personal charm engaging. I had many conversations with him. His thoughts were pure, his judgments charitable and his conversation entertaining and informing. He made no effort to set forth his opinions or to conceal his convictions. He did not shrink from the place of public service, but preferred the retirement of his home. His home life was beautiful. Tenderness and deathless affection ruled in his family circle. He was rarely gifted with the power that wins and holds the human heart. I have never known a man of finer feeling or more exquisite courtesy.

He was not a man to say much about the deeper concerns of his life, but he was profoundly influenced by the great and good. He had an exalted idea of the purity and elevation of religion. He had never had any other conception than that of the fundamental relation of Christianity to the home and the State. He was a member of the Methodist Church and knew the spiritual realities of religion. I think of him now in connection with the 23d Psalm. It fits his case and was loved by him: "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want."

He died at "Ingleside," his father's home near Amite, La., on August 2, 1918. There the Good Shepherd led him weary to his rest after eighty-two years of mortal life. He was buried in the family burying-ground near by the old home. I say buried, but merely the familiar form was placed there; his noble spirit has joined the choir invisible.

NOTES FROM SEASHORE DISTRICT.

By Rev. Jno. D. Ellis.

The Seashore District has its distinctive features, and, in some particulars, is "facile princeps." It covers the extreme southern part of Mississippi between Alabama on the east, and Louisiana on the west, and extends inland over live-oak and pine, until it salutes the boundary of the Hattiesburg District. Geographically, it fraternizes with the Brookhaven District, and its boundary is close enough to the Meridian District almost to peep over and address courteous expression of good-will.

When the wind is lazily sleeping in the sunshine around Port Gibson, Jackson, or Newton, it is fully awake on the Seashore, and sometimes it is as active as a shouting Methodist.

If other districts of the Conference enjoy a delightful sea-breeze, it must be generously loaned from the Seashore.

If some pious church member at Vicksburg, Canton, or Meridian says grace over a dozen oysters, he is under obligation to the Seashore.

If, when summer time comes, he feels that he must go where "the swimming's fine," or where speckled trout wait to make the fishing line sing, he must travel toward the Seashore.

The Seashore teaches lessons to those of pious trend, especially when they look over the wide expanse of the Mexican Gulf, and behold the Power and Immersity of Him who said: "Let the waters under the heavens be gathered in one place, and let the dry land appear."

Pride and self-sufficiency are swallowed up in other thoughts, especially when one witnesses the angry billows, or looks across the unending expanse of the trackless deep.

There is one characteristic which can excite the mind of the erudite Editor of the Advocate, and which he would be gratified to behold: the sunrise over the Mexican Gulf. He is reminded, however, that he cannot indulge an extra hour or two of sleep, if he beholds the splendid phenomenon of nature. "At first, the eastern region of heaven, clothed in the Aurora, announces the approach of the sun. The sky gradually assumes the tint of the rose, and soon flames with a fiery brilliancy: then the rays of light piercing the clouds, the whole horizon becomes luminous, and the sun opens in unrivaled splendor, gradually rising in the heavens."

Under the rays of the climbing orb, the sea shines like molten silver; and, however beautiful the phenomenon to the eye of the casual observer, or the inconsiderate, to the thoughtful, the superb spectacle excites pious reflections over the wonders of our God.

It is said that people who live all their lives in the mountains have no conception of the grandeur of the scenery that surrounds them. It is possible that some who have lived all their lives on the coast are insensible to the beauties of the sunrise at sea, et al., but the thoughtful mind sees not only natural beauty, but the power and glory of that God who spake and it was done.

The angry waves also suggest the turmoil of the wicked, and when the sea is placid, it is symbolical of that peace of soul which belongs to the people of God.

The Seashore District is taking first rank in assessments, Christian activity, and optimism, and other districts may soon be saying: "Where Seashore leads, we will follow."

There are problems which must be gradually and faithfully met.

The opportunities for pleasure are so many, and diversions so numerous, the temptation is great to neglect the Lord's work. Some sit down to eat and drink, and rise up to play. A few Methodists who move within the bounds, fall into the ways of the pleasure-seeker, and of the indifferent, and they fail to let their lights shine. But upon a whole, the Methodists upon the coast are a moral force, and set good examples to others in citizenship and Christian activity.

If some of the people are concerned with matters of religion, they are careful not to show it. Should they apply at last for a harp and a crown, there will be a loud protest at the bar of heaven, either from his satanic majesty, or from some of the saints, who know the characteristics of the Lord's people.

This scribe is apprehensive that, if some get to Celestial Paradise, they must unlearn the false teaching of tradition and of custom, which permits them to live curiously and oddly.

Some seem to hold religion in superstitious respect, without practicing its precepts, while in other directions there is a reckless disregard for the Sabbath.

'Tis a pity also, that many young people are not as wise and practical as they are beautiful, and that they permit the malady of "youth" to run away with them. Some, even beyond their teens, dance so late on Saturday night, they miss Sabbath school on Sunday morning. It seems that to many life is but a gaudy sheet of music, containing a rag-time song, while things serious and worth while are ignored and cast into the background.

From all accounts, each pastor is at his post, with a cheerful spirit, and "Grandpa" Jones rides the district, preaching the gospel, and lending brotherly sympathy and help. More anon.

AS SEEN IN PARIS.

A Letter from T. Wynn Holloman.

Dear Mr. Editor:—I stood Saturday, Jan. 18th, on the Quasi D'Orsay and saw the formal opening of the Congress of Paris. It convened at the Palais D'Orsay, the home of the French Foreign Office. A crowd, principally French and American, lined the street from the magnificent Pont Alexandre III to the Pont de la Concorde and watched the carriages roll by and into the gate. The occupants stepped out and were saluted by a military escort and then mounted the steps into the splendid and gorgeous interior where M. Pichon, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, met them. They came quietly and quickly. Only a few were recognized. President Poincaire was, and off came hats and up went hands to salute. But only Clemenceau and Wilson drew applause. Mrs. Wilson accompanied her husband, but of course did not get out.

To the southwest is the Hotel des Invalides, where, in the most magnificent mausoleum in the world, rest the mortal remains of the last man but one to attempt world domination. He, too, failed and after the abortive attempt the Congress of Vienna met and fixed the status of Europe and of the world for a century. Its "Balance of Power" provisions were conceived in iniquity and were based on selfishness and autocracy. Its structure, sustained for so long by Metternich and Bismarck and their kind, has collapsed. Yet, inconceivable as it is, its diplomatic and governmental ideas held control for 100 years.

In front flow the waters of the ancient Seine. What might those waters tell, could they speak! Across the Seine are the modern buildings of the 1900 Exposition, the Grand Palais, and the Petit Palais and the Palais de Glace, where I work and am now writing, over the biggest skating rink in the world and now, it is said, the biggest "hut" in Europe. Up the Seine is the Place de la Concorde, where the Obelisk presented by an Egyptian Prince to Louis Philippe stands, looking west along the Avenue des Champs-Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe, east through the heart of the Tuilleries and the Louvre, north right into the Madeline and across the Seine into the Chambre des Deputies. On or near the spot where the Obelisk is, stood the guillotine where Louis XVI, Marie-Antoinette, "the Austrian," and some 2800 French men and women dropped their heads. A mile east is Notre-Dame and the islands on which the Gauls and Romans settled 2000 years ago.

Such, in brief, is the geographical setting. Will the conclusions of this congress govern and rule the world for a hundred years? That remains to be seen. But if its work is to be lasting, some things are certain. Justice must be done as between the Hun (the unspeakable Bosch, as the French say with the utmost hate and in an indescribable manner) and the Allied peoples, and between the nations of the Allies. This is the first thing. If it is accomplished, it will be the greatest achievement of history. If the congress fails here, the chain of its accomplishments in other respects will ultimately break. In the desire for what seems more idealistic, let us not forget this. This is the point the American soldier wants guarded. I speak from the vantage-point of one on the ground, who talks to hundreds of soldiers day by day. Whatever your fervid orators and statesmen may say about it, that's what they came here for. Concretely put, it is Belgium, Servia, Poland, bleeding France, English schoolchildren, the Lusitania and a list too long to print. To right these wrongs our men made the great sacrifice, a life offered, whether required or not. To this end they braved a submarine-infested Atlantic and clamored for front-line work. From Belleau Wood through the Champagne and the Argonne to Sedan and down the Meuse to St. Mihiel they enriched the earth with the blood of heroes. Acres of crosses testify to this. And thousands bear for life their scars, their Croix de Guerre indeed. Ask the "dough-boy" what he came here to fight for. His answer is found above. In fact, he thinks (and many Frenchmen) that we quit too soon. But the victory seems to me to be complete. Every demand of Marshal Foch was accepted. History has no parallel to the ignominious surrender of the German fleet, aircraft and other material. But, say the French, the German has simply come back to Bismarck who is his only God. He said a fleet was unnecessary. Nevertheless, the victory of arms is ours. Can we win the victory of peace?

And then liberty, freedom, must be secured for the peoples of the world. It is not simply that liberty "shall not perish from the earth." It must be secured to all, white, yellow, black, variegated. Dr. Stoddard-Kennedy, "Woodbine Willie," speaking here Sunday night, said that Great Britain went into this war for three reasons: because her own liberty was threatened (the very quick of an Englishman), because Belgium was violated, and to put an end to militarism. Not only "must the world be made safe for democracy," but an atmosphere must be secured in the smallest and remotest nations where the white rose of democracy may blossom and fruit. Democracy has fruited in England, America, France, under the protecting aegis of freedom. This freedom was secured by many a struggle. We have made a last great struggle to preserve our own liberty and to establish its principles in all the nations of the world. This is, as I see it, the answer to Bolshevism.

Finally, it must be made impossible for supreme selfishness, under whatever name, to deluge the world again in blood. If the first two points can be secured, then the action of the congress in the third will be permanent. The edifice will be crowned. The dream of poets, philosophers and sages will come true. War and international friction may not be obliterated, but holocausts like this now will be effectually prevented. Would-be usurpers of world dominion will have no chance and the species will die off. The disturbances will be but ripples on the surface of world calm. The time will have come when "the battle-flags are furled in the parliament of man, the federation of the world." That was an unrealizable dream before this great war to end war. It is now within the reach of practical statesmanship. The whole world has found out what an inferno, what a hell, war really is, so that it wants no more of it. To learn this has taken a sacrifice of life and treasure and caused suffering and anguish, equal, I suppose, to the combined results of all the wars of the last thousand years. Life and progress come through the travail of the body and the soul. The principles of His kingdom are established in national and international affairs by the sacrifices of humanity.

On this point, we Americans may have pride. Long ago, when others saw only immediate results, our President "dipped into the future, far as human eye could see," and saw clearly that for the first time in history the opportunity had come to secure the peace of the world by a League of Nations. I seriously doubt if the statesmen of Europe would have gotten this far. Mr. Wilson saw that the sacrifice would be in vain unless Kaiserism were prevented from doing the thing over again. He insisted on this as the primary point. From him the European statesmen caught the vision. That is why he came here. He did not propose that the ghost of past European polities should have a chance to prevent this consummation. And he did right. Condemnation of his coming indicates lack of insight or petty intolerance.

But how can so much be achieved? Colossal hardly describes the undertaking. Can national, age-long jealousies and rivalries and injustices be laid aside? I believe that they could be and that nothing has done so much to bring statesmen to the frame of mind where a Christian peace can be achieved as President Wilson's insistence on the principles that should control. As far as the peoples are concerned, these evils have been burned out of their hearts. But there was danger that their governors were not so enlightened. The principles of Christianity must prevail in the settlement—surely justice, liberty, peace, are Christian attributes. If attained, it will mean that Christ's kingdom is making progress in the world. The Lord answered the prayers of the Christian peoples of the world and brought an astonishingly quick end to this war. Will he not answer the prayer Jesus taught us, the one millions of faithful Christians have prayed for nearly two thousand years, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven?" Nobody but the Infinite knows how often this prayer has ascended to the throne of grace. It has been as a continuous stream of incense. If the Conference attains these great objects, what a step forward for his kingdom in the earth it will be! Numberless doors will be opened. But that leads to the question of the Church's opportunities, which I cannot discuss now. And so I close with these noble words, undying words, of Rupert Brooke, who gave his own life at the Dardanelles:

"Blow out, you bugles, over the rich Dead!
There's none of these so lonely and poor of old,
But, dying, has made us rarer gifts than gold,
These laid the world away; poured out the red
Sweet wine of youth; gave up the years to be
Of work and joy, and that unhoped serene,
That men call age; and those who would have been,
Their sons, they gave, their immortality.

Blow, bugles, blow! They brought us, for our dearth
Holiness, lacked so long, and Love, and Pain;
Honor has come back, as a king to earth,
And paid his subjects with a royal wage;
And nobleness walks in our ways again;
And we have come into our heritage."

JACKSON DISTRICT NEWS.

"Our Beloved."

Brother Morse has made the round of the first quarterly conferences, and as a result of his deep interest in the care of the preachers under his leadership, together with the love and interest the members have for their pastors, reports that with but one or two exceptions every charge has increased the salary of its pastor. Jackson District has promised to pay the pastors in it over $6000 more than was assessed them last year. The Terry charge did the "unheard of" thing, that of increasing the P. E.'s salary above that assigned it by the District Stewards.

Debts and Improvements.

Yazoo City, under the leadership of L. E. Alford, is rejoicing over the liquidation of a $7000 debt on church and parsonage, the dedication of their handsome and commodious church by Bishop Kilgo on February 23, and the securing of $1000 for improvements on church and parsonage. Yazoo City has increased the pastor's salary from $1600 to $2100.

Canton, C. C. Evans, pastor, has gotten rid of an $800 debt on the parsonage, and increased the pastor's salary from $1200 to $1500.

S. F. Harkey, on the Terry charge, has under way a new church building at Byram to cost $3000. His salary has been increased from $735 to $1000.

The Bolton church has doubtless taken the most advanced step of all in the district. The charge consisted of three churches last year. This year Bolton is a station. The congregation is spending $400 on church repairs and improvements. Including the Conference collections, their assessments are increased over last year from $850 to $1725. The pastor's salary is fixed at $1200. Brother J. H. Foreman is serving a fine people. And his salary is paid monthly.

Other Progress.

The Mendenhall and D'Lo charge increased the pastor's salary from $900 to $1400. J. L. Smith, the pastor, is making a fine impression and securing inspiring support. Congregations are large and the D'Lo evening services are full to overflowing. The pastor was given a trip to the Blue Ridge "Y" School.

J. W. Chisholm, at Brandon, had his salary raised from $1100 to $1350. He leads the district in cash secured on Confederate collections. He has about 60 per cent cash on hand.

Brother Massey, on the Fannin charge, where prairie mud abounds and bad roads have prevailed this winter, is getting the work of the charge in good shape. His people have increased his salary $50. He is going after new subscriptions for the Advocate, and will get up his quota.

Two churches were taken off the Flora charge, where B. W. Lewis serves. It now consists of Flora and Bentonia. The pastor's salary has been increased to $1200, the stewards assumed responsibility for all church finances and the charge uses the budget system, and Flora pays the preacher monthly. Bentonia at the first quarterly conference paid nearly half the pastor's salary for the year.

The Advocate Campaign is getting under good headway over the district. Jackson District is going "over the top" in this drive. H. F. Tolle holds the banner for the most spectacular work done for increased subscriptions. A recent drive among his members, at Capitol Street has brought in about 80 subscribers. This puts Capitol Street the first large congregation, "over the top."

The Centenary Movement.

The preachers are wide-awake on the Centenary Movement. Alford, at Yazoo City, says that the spirit of the Centenary Movement was at the bottom of the move that raised the debt on the church property there. He felt that the debt had to be liquidated in order to get the congregation ready for the Centenary Drive. Alford has been made chairman of the churches in Yazoo County for the Centenary Drive.

All but four of the pastors attended the Centenary District meeting at Yazoo City. Their hearty "Amens" to the mentioning of the salient points of the Movement by the speakers attested the deepness of their interest. They realize it is a challenge of faith for BIG things in the Kingdom of God, and they are girding up their strength to make the Movement count for the most possible to all their people.

Brother Morse has divided up the district for the Centenary Drive by counties, assigning a pastor as leader in each county—Alford to Yazoo, Crisler to Hinds, Chisholm to Rankin and H. P. Lewis to Madison.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE EPWORTH LEAGUE COUNCIL.

The Council of the Mississippi Conference Epworth League met February 20, 1919, at Hattiesburg, in order to discuss means of carrying on the plans of the Centenary and of promoting the summer conference which will be held at Laurel, Miss., June 10, 11, 12 and 13.

Those present were: W. D. Hawkins, Meridian, Miss.; Miss Laura Rankin, Gulfport, Miss.; Mr. J. H. Weems and Rev. W. A. Terry, Hattiesburg, Miss.; Rev. L. F. Alford, Enterprise, Miss.; Rev. L. L. Roberts, Laurel, Miss., and Miss Erma Kile, Jackson, Miss.

A lively interest was manifested and the entire Council feels that this year offers a greater field of opportunity than has ever before been given us in Epworth League work.

The League of this Conference has gladly begun its work in meeting the needs of the Centenary and is already reaping some of the benefits. The greatness of the tasks before us has not staggered us, but incited us to greater effort.

The plans being made for the summer conference most certainly show prospects of the greatest and most instructive of conferences in our history. Whereas we have had only three days of meeting heretofore, this year's program includes four. This, with a number of other added features, will greatly increase the worth of the conference.

ERMA M. KILE.
Jackson, Miss. Conference Secretary.

DISTRICT COUNCILS, NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

Dear Brother Carley: Please announce in the Advocate the following concerning District Councils: Aberdeen District, Okolona, Miss., March 13; Columbus District, West Point, Miss., March 12; Corinth District, Corinth, Miss., March 14; Durant District, Durant, Miss., March 20; Greenville District, Shelby, Miss., March 19; Holly Springs District, Holly Springs, Miss., March 15; Sardis District, Senatobia, Miss., March 17; Winona District, Greenwood, Miss., March 18.

The Conference Council held at Winona, Miss., February 21, was largely attended by pastors and others, as well as all the presiding elders, and every man who had been selected as district director. It was refreshing to see and hear Mr. D. H. Hall, of New Albany, Miss., our Conference Director, preside and direct the meeting. We surely got the right man when we got him. His grandfather, Rev. A. A. Houston, was worthily represented in this able layman. Cordially,

BEN P. JACO.

A NOTE OF APPRECIATION.

Dear Brother Carley: I want just a little space in the Advocate to express, or to try to do so at least, our appreciation for the many letters and telegrams that have come to us from the brethren, both lay and ministerial, expressing their sympathy for us in the great sorrow that came to us on the fourth of February in the passing away of our dear daughter.

Brethren, you can not know how your words of brotherly love and sympathy cheer and help us on our way. I would that each of you realize that you have helped a tired heart up the hill of life, making the load lighter and life brighter. The good Lord has given us a chance to test the gospel we preach to others, and we find in it everything needful for a bleeding heart. God bless you, brethren.

Your brother in Christ,

Philadelphia, Miss. C. M. CROSSLEY.

METHODIST GAIN IN LOUISIANA FOR 1918.

By P. H. Fontaine.

Dear Brother Carley: I have just finished a careful examination of the Annual of the Louisiana Conference for 1918, and am gratified to find that we had a gain of 1111 members, instead of a loss of 698, as indicated in the Statistical Table No. 1. We should have reported a membership of 41025, instead of 39216.

In arriving at the present total membership, we must take last year's statistics as a basis, and I regret to have to state that the statistics for 1917 are as erroneous as those for 1918.

The main trouble is that our preachers do not add or substract correctly.

In the statistics from the Shreveport District, there are errors in fifteen of the reports in Table No. 1.

Five years ago I made a motion, which carried, to the effect that the Statistical Tables for publication in the Minutes be submitted to the presiding elders of the several districts for criticism and correction before publication. This was intended to have the presiding elders see that the preachers' reports were correct before being turned over to the Statistical Secretary. By some means, the motion was misunderstood by some, and at the next session of the Conference, on motion of the Statistical Secretary, it was rescinded.

I am sure that the presiding elders can remedy this state of affairs if they will give it the proper attention. They are the only ones who are in position to do so.

We ought to have correct statistical reports.

CHANGE OF DATE OF MEETING OF MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

In as much as the district meeting for the Centenary drive for the Jackson District is to be held in Jackson on March 24, we have decided to change the Executive Committee Meeting of the Church Extension Board to that date instead of holding it on March 18, as formerly announced.

"HOW TO TITHE AND WHY," STILL FREE.

The time during which the pamphlet "How to Tithe and Why" will be sent free, postpaid, to pastors in sufficient numbers to supply one copy to every family represented in their congregations, has been extended until July 1, 1919.

We further invite Sunday school teachers and superintendents, also active members of the Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League, and Baptist Young People's Union who are interested in tithing, to write us for a very special offer which we are sure will interest the young people and children of the Sunday school.

Please mention the New Orleans Christian Advocate and your denomination.

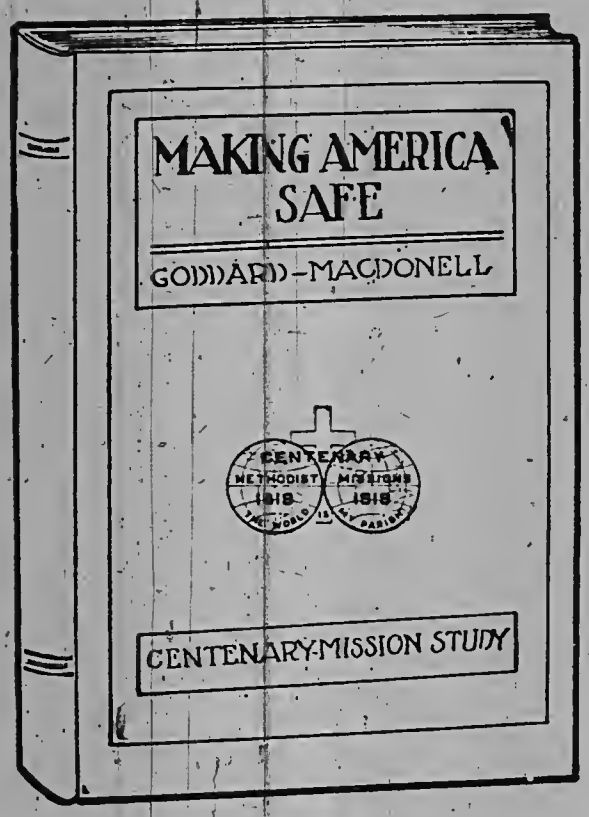
Making America Safe

By O. E. Goddard and Mrs. R. W. MacDonell,
Administrative Secretaries,
Home Department, Board of Missions,
M. E. Church, South.

Price, Cloth 60c, Paper 40c.



This study of Home Mission problems as prepared by Dr. Goddard and Mrs. MacDonell will prove not only an interesting Mission Study book, but a valuable addition to missionary literature. A long acquaintance and thorough knowledge of the subject enable the joint authors to speak with authority. The headings of the eight chapters are as follows: "Our Newly Discovered Problem—Home Missions;" "The South's Challenge;" "The Twentieth Century Rural Church;" "The Dropped Hyphen;" "Folk of Southern Hills and Plains;" "Evangelism;" "Social Evangelism;" "Stewardship." A questionnaire on each chapter and an appendix, showing the itemized askings of the Centenary, especially adapt this book to study.

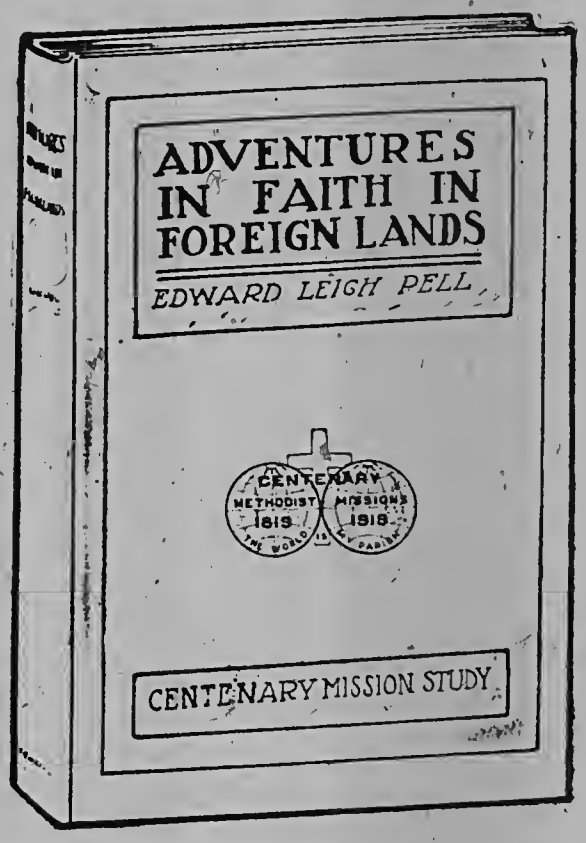
Adventures in Faith in Foreign Lands

By Edward Leigh Pell.

Price, Cloth 60c, Paper 40c.



Dr. Pell is a most fascinating writer and possesses the ability to invest the facts and figures necessary to a study book with a charm that thrills even while it instructs. "Adventures in Faith In Foreign Lands" is quite up to the standard of Dr. Pell's former efforts. The book will help the pastor in the preparation of his sermons. The men and women of the Church will find in it a most convincing argument for foreign missions. Its deeds of daring and spirit of adventure will delight the young people; while the teen-agers and children will rejoice in the fine spiritual calf and the appeal to the hero-worshiping instinct. In short, it is a book which should be in the hands of every member of the Church and Sunday school.

Order these two books from SMITH & LAMAR,

Nashville, Tenn. Dallas, Texas. Richmond, Va.

Every Methodist

should read and study these two books. No better preparation could be made for a clearer understanding of the great Centenary Movement—and a more intelligent and generous participation in the Big Drive.

SLUMBER BOATS.

Into misty Dreamland,
When the day is done,
Far beyond the opal clouds
And the setting sun,
Slumber boats go drifting.
Count them, one by one,
Shaking out their silken sails—
For, oh, the day is done!

Out of misty Dreamland,
When the night is done,
Breaking through the golden East,
With the rising sun,
Slumber boats come sailing.
I see them! Every one
Rides proudly into Daybreak Port,
For, oh, the night is done!

WHY BILLY WAS A FAVORITE.

One day Billy was a stranger; at the end of a week he was as much at home as any boy on the street. "We are glad he came," Teddy Farr said; "we like him."

And the other boys said pretty much the same thing.

"Why is this Billy such a favorite?" Mr. Farr asked Mrs. Farr.

"I don't know yet," said Mrs. Farr. "I'm watching to find out."

When three more weeks had passed, she thought she knew.

A group of boys were out in front of her gate one afternoon, and she heard one of them say: "Pshaw! What can we play? I wish the snow hadn't all gone into mud."

"We had just finished our fort," said another, "and we were ready to begin, but it washed down in the night."

"Anyway, we had fun making it," said Billy. "Let's not waste the whole afternoon. Let's start and play something that doesn't need snow."

When Mrs. Farr looked again, they were sailing ships down the gutter and discovered the Mississippi with great excitement. Another time Teddy had to go on an errand and asked the others to keep him company.

"Oh, we can't," objected somebody. "We've got it all planned to walk out in the other direction and see the place where the fire was last night."

"Why wouldn't it do," said Billy, "to go with Teddy first? We needn't come all the way back, need we? There ought to be some short cuts, I should think."

Well, when they had put their heads together they remembered that there were.

Then there was a day when Joe had lost his arithmetic. Joe and Billy were the best in the school in arithmetic. Joe hated to miss any of his lessons.

"Never mind," said Billy. "My book will do for both until yours turns up. We are pretty quick at it, you know. We can manage."

On one afternoon when they were having a game of ball in the schoolyard, Billy broke a cellar window. After a crash there was a pause of dismay.

"We must have kept getting nearer to the house without noticing it," said Billy.

"How would it do," said Joe, "to be quiet until we are asked about it? Maybe Mr. Nevil will think that other boys did it. They broke one."

"It wouldn't do at all," said Billy quickly. "It wouldn't be fair."

He told Mr. Nevil and paid for the pane; and after that he was short of money for some time, for Billy was poor.

After the three weeks, Mrs Farr said to Mr. Farr: "I think I know why the boys like Billy."

"Why?"

"Because he has the delightful habit of getting the best for himself and his friends out of what he has at hand. He makes things 'do' except the things that won't do at all. I like Billy myself."—Child's Hour.

"KEEPING AN EYE ON TINA."

The little old woman looked at the clock as the girl came in. It was a small, bare room. The old woman's figure was bowed by years of unrelaxing toil. The younger showed the effects of going into a factory when she should have been playing in the fields and searching the woods for wild flowers. It was a depressing picture they made.

"I am late," the girl acknowledged, her eyes following the direction of her mother's gaze. "I went out of my way, walking home with Tina."

The mother made a sound of disapproval. "And after standing all day on your feet, Sue? It isn't right. You're too tired."

The girl sat down at the table wearily. In the light of the little kerosene lamp her features looked sharp and thin. She put her hand to her head, as if she still heard the hum of the great factory wheels.

"Well, you see, it's this way. Tina's the sort that must have company. She can't bear to be alone. She likes me, but if I am not there to walk with her she'd rather go along with some of those girls on the hill than trudge off by herself. There isn't a bit of harm in Tina, but she couldn't be with those hill girls long and not learn some. And so, even when I'm tired, I'd rather walk a little out of my way and keep an eye on Tina. I can't do much for other folks, but that's one thing that I can do."

A poor little home, a feeble old mother, a plain girl robbed of her girlhood by exhausting toil—that was all. And yet not quite all, for along with the poverty and weariness was a self-forgetfulness beautiful enough to redeem the plainness and poverty.—Exchange.

WHEN HEALING HUMBLED PRIDE.

Nyagina, "every inch a king," held unquestioned sway over his little village of mud huts. When the missionary from the near-by station made friendly approaches to any of his people he was met with the words, "Nyagina will not let us have to do with you. Nyagina hates you." And so he did. Through fear of his anger parents would not send their children to the mission school, and other chiefs refused to allow the missionary to preach in their villages.

But one day a native man who had been seriously injured was ordered by the Native Commissioner to be taken to the mission for treatment. His friends did not dare to disobey the Commissioner, but on reaching the mission they tried so persistently to interfere with the white doctor's treatment that finally three of them were put in jail.

The sick man's father, who was the brother of the great Nyagina, felt sure that his son must have died. So he summoned all the people of his kraal to the funeral exercises. After the whole village had howled itself hoarse, the father went to the mission to recover the body of his son, only to find that young gentleman in very good spirits and well on the road to recovery.

The father stayed on at the mission until his son was completely cured. To him the works of healing which he saw the white doctor perform were all miracles. Once, when the doctor had been trying to explain to him the uses of certain medicines, the old African burst out: "It must be that when God gave out the medicines He called the white men first and gave them all the good medicine; but when He called up the black men He found that He had already given away all the medicines that were any good and had only a few leaves and roots remaining."

When he and his son returned to their village they told Nyagina of the many wonders they had seen and experienced, but the old chief still hardened his heart against the mission.

Several months later a young man, very sick and down-hearted, appeared at the mission and asked for treatment. He was so ill that the missionary did not try to discover his name or from what village he came, but did everything in his power to bring about his recovery.

One day when the young man was convalescent the missionary was astonished to see the great Nyagina standing before him. Humbly the old chief bowed his head. "Nyagina is sorry for the evil he has done against this place and against this man," he said. "This young man is my favorite son. They told me he must die. I had heard stories of the healing here, and so I sent him to you."

Since that day Nyagina has been the firm friend of the mission. His word is law among his people and the other chiefs, and so the missionary now has the right of way everywhere.—Selected.

WORK FAST—AND HARD.

The Associated Press is our authority for the statement that the date for the Centenary "Eight-Day Drive" has been slightly changed in order to avoid conflict with the Fifth Liberty Loan. We have no official information concerning the matter; but we take advantage of the opportunity to say that it is urgently necessary that we work fast—and as hard as we can—in order that we may be thoroughly prepared for the intensive campaign for the $35,000,000, whatever the date may be. We have had to face many difficulties in perfecting the Centenary organization, but we have overcome them—or we ought to have done so. Hard work between now and the time of the "Drive" will insure the successful completion of our great undertaking.

A LITTLE VISIT TO ALEXANDRIA, LA.

An editor has so little time for making trips that when he does get a chance to leave his office, even for a day, it marks an event in his life. Perhaps we should say a different kind of event; for an editor's life is just one event after another—in the office or out of it.

Be that as it may, we had the privilege on Monday evening of last week of going aboard the Pullman attached to the train on the Texas and Pacific Railroad, bound for Alexandria, La. The occasion of the trip was the meeting of the Centenary State Council in Alexandria on Tuesday morning. What otherwise might have been a very tedious journey was made exceedingly pleasant during the waking hours by the presence in the same coach of Mr. F. E. Gunter, the busy banker but enthusiastic State Campaign Director of Louisiana for the Centenary Movement; Rev. N. E. Joyner, the energetic and efficient Conference Centenary Secretary; Rev. J. G. Snelling, the business-like and hard-working presiding elder of the New Orleans District; Rev. W. E. Thomas, the great-hearted superintendent of Mary Werlein Mission; and last, but not least, Mrs. C. F. Niebergall, of New Orleans, and Mrs. A. P. Holt, of Crowley, president and corresponding secretary, respectively, of the Woman's Missionary Society—elect women, both of them.

The train arrives at Alexandria at the most inconvenient of all hours—about 3 a. m.—but the railroad company very accommodatingly detaches the Pullman and leaves it on a sidetrack, allowing the passengers to complete a more or less unsatisfactory night's sleep. This puts the travelers into a proper frame of mind to enjoy breakfast, especially if it is taken at the Bentley (we receive no consideration for this complimentary mention.) But before breakfast we found it expedient to engage a berth for the return trip Tuesday night. People are traveling nowadays as we have never known them to do before—at least, it is unusually difficult to secure Pullman reservations unless they are taken a considerable length of time in advance. We understand from reliable sources that money is more plentiful than usual, and those who have it are using some of it to see the world with—a very good use to make of it, in our opinion. We hope, however, that Methodist people will save out enough from their traveling expenses to make sure that the $35,000,000 for the Centenary cause is paid in full.

All the presiding elders of the Louisiana Conference were in attendance at the Council meeting, and a goodly number of preachers and laymen. We noted the presence of Revs. W. W. Holmes, C. V. Brelthaupt, C. A. Battle, W. L. Doss, Jr., Alonzo Early, and H. T. Young. Among the laymen were such men as Judge H. H. White, A. M. Mayo, W. S. Holmes, Mr. Klein, R. E. Bobbitt, J. A. Foster, Mr. Carter, R. T. Moore, J. F. White, and J. W. Baker. Dr. S. H. Werlein, our pastor at Alexandria, was a most gracious host. The ladies of the Alexandria church served a most delightful luncheon to the visitors.

The Council was called to order promptly at 10 o'clock. After devotional exercises conducted by Rev. J. G. Snelling, Mr. F. E. Gunter, the State Campaign Director, made an illuminating address concerning the necessity, the opportuneness and the urgency of the Centenary Movement. We have not often heard a more telling speech than was made by Mr. Gunter. He is a close student of world conditions as a result of the war, and his business connections are such that he is in a peculiarly favorable position for knowing some things that the ordinary man is unaware of. We do not hesitate to say that his address deserves to take rank with the statesmanlike utterances of our national leaders. He has a world point of view—and he believes in the Centenary.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, the Centenary Secretary, then took up the "Standard Plan" in detail and led the meeting in a "school of instruction" that fitted the leaders present for the proper performance of the exceedingly important duties that have been assigned them. Emphasis was laid upon thorough organization and strict adherence to the Plan. The spirit and attitude of those present were altogether admirable and inspiring. It is impossible not to believe that the Centenary cause will succeed in Louisiana under such enthusiastic leadership. The district quotas were carefully worked out and cheerfully accepted after a most generous spirit had been shown in the adjustment of certain apparent inequalities. The quotas are as follows: Alexandria District, $105,000; Baton Rouge District, $100,000; Lafayette District, $100,000; Monroe District, $105,000; New Orleans District, $100,000; Ruston District, $105,000; Shreveport District, $140,000.

The editor is greatly indebted to Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Haas and family for most gracious social courtesies. To have been a guest in their home is to have seen the grace of Christian hospitality at its highest point of development.

A NEW PAMPHLET BY BROTHER PEEBLES.

Rev. Isaac Lockhart Peebles, of the Mississippi Conference, is one of the most prolific writers in our Church. He has recently had issued from the Publishing House at Nashville a pamphlet under the title, "Prosperity: Its Occurrences in the English and Greek Bibles; Its Uses, Meaning, Kinds, How Obtained, Results, And Signs of Each Kind." Brother Peebles is a diligent student of the Scriptures, and whatever he writes is based upon exact knowledge of his subject. We commend this latest production of his pen as having many interesting and valuable suggestions. It may be ordered of the author, Meridian, Miss., or from the Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. H. A. Wood, of Lauderdale, Miss., gives a good report of the work on his charge.

It has been announced that Bishop Kilgo will preach the commencement sermon for Grenada College on May 25.

Rev. E. B. Sharp, of Inverness, Miss., is comfortably domiciled in a new parsonage. He reports a fine outlook on his charge.

Mrs. D. D. Gibson, of Newton, Miss., has been reading the Advocate for forty or more years. The "Old Guard" is a noble company!

Rev. J. B. Randolph, of Winona, Miss., has received 36 members into his church since Conference. He is serving acceptably a fine people.

Rev. J. C. Price, of South Mansfield, La., writes that the "flu" situation in his territory is improving, and that the outlook on his charge is encouraging.

"We are getting along splendidly with our work," writes Rev. Claude P. Jones, of Long Beach, Miss., in sending us some names for our subscription files.

Rev. Jno. W. Ramsey, of the Mississippi Conference, requests us to state that he has moved from Lockhart, Miss., to Daleville, Miss., at which place his correspondents will please address him.

The pastor of our Seventh Avenue Church, Meridian, Miss., Rev. H. R. McKee, reports progress on his charge. He serves a good and appreciative people who practice the Christian virtue of hospitality.

"We have been reading the Advocate about forty years," writes Brother W. S. Pierce, of Pickens, Miss. And he shows his appreciation of the Church's paper by sending a fine list of subscriptions.

Rev. R. T. Hollingsworth, of Millsaps College, who serves the Linfonia circuit in the Mississippi Conference, has been diligent in visiting his people and ministering to them. He finds them kind and responsive.

Rev. W. D. Barrett, of McCall Creek, Miss., says: "We are having a good time on the McCall charge, with plenty to do." He is planning to put the Advocate into every Methodist home in his charge, if possible.

The many friends of Dr. W. H. La Prade will be glad to learn that his health has greatly improved, and that he has recently been appointed by Bishop Candler as pastor of College Park Church, Atlanta, Ga.

Rev. G. P. White, of Plaquemine, La., is "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." A correspondent from his charge recounts some of his activities that remind us of the heroic labors of the early Methodist itinerants.

Rev. J. L. Grecnway, of Lucedale, Miss., has already sent nineteen new subscriptions to the Advocate on an allotment of ten. And that in spite of the fact that he has been greatly hindered in his work on account of the influenza.

Rev. Osmond S. Lewis, of Gibson Memorial Church, Vicksburg, Miss., is attending the Y. M. C. A. Conference at Blue Ridge, N. C. He writes that fifteen men from Mississippi are in attendance, and that the Conference is a great occasion.

Rev. A. G. Hall, formerly a member of the North Mississippi Conference, is now stationed at Katy, near Houston, Texas. He lives in a splendid parsonage, and serves a fine people. He reads the Advocate, which is, he says, like a letter from home.

We acknowledge the receipt of a beautiful postcard from Rev. T. M. Bradley, written from Blue Ridge, N. C., where the great Y. M. C. A. meeting is being held. We understand that Rev. V. G. Clifford and Rev. R. A. Tucker are also at Blue Ridge.

Miss Mollie Higginbotham, of Mer Rouge, La., is one of the Advocate's best friends. She has made it a habit for several years to send in a fine list of renewals and new subscriptions. We express our thanks to her for what she has done this year.

Rev. V. D. Skipper, a superannuate member of the Louisiana Conference, underwent a serious operation at the Touro Infirmary, this city, on Friday of last week. His many friends will remember him in their prayers in this time of suffering and trial.

Rev. Lastie N. Hoffpauir, of Zachary, La., is happily situated. His people keep their pastor's salary paid in full, and they respond to other calls that are made upon them. Brother Hoffpaulr has recently received two members into the Church and baptized one infant.

The second term of the Religious Workers' Institute is in progress at the First Methodist Church, Baton Rouge, La. The courses of study, as given in the Church Bulletin, are most suggestive and interesting. Rev. C. A. Battle, the pastor, is a wise leader of his people.

Rev. W. W. Graves, our pastor at Hazlehurst,

Miss., favored the Advocate office with a call on Saturday of last week. He was in the city to be with Rev. V. D. Skipper during his operation at the Touro Infirmary. Brother Graves gave a good account of the work at Hazlehurst.

Rev. R. I. Collins, of Shannon, Miss., writes appreciatively of the people whom he serves. They raised the pastor's salary at the first quarterly conference, and in other ways have shown kindness in supplying the needs of the parsonage. The outlook on that charge is encouraging.

Mrs. A. B. Barry, wife of our pastor at South and East McComb, Miss., has recently undergone a surgical operation, but is recovering her strength rapidly. She is a fine "assistant pastor" to her husband—she secured a fine list of subscriptions to the Advocate the other day.

Rev. B. D. Watson, of the Olive Branch charge, Louisiana Conference, in sending us the renewal subscription of Brother J. W. Lipscomb, of Oaknolia, La., says that Brother Lipscomb has been reading the Advocate for fifty years. That makes him almost a charter member of the "Old Guard."

Rev. D. H. Crowson, of Potts Camp, Miss., having recovered from the "flu" and complications, is busily at work. He reports that the Centenary cause is gaining ground on his charge. Brother Brinson, of Byhalia, Miss., has recently rendered splendid service in presenting the Centenary movement.

Rev. Theodore Copeland, D. D., who is well known throughout our Church, has been engaged to assist Rev. W. H. Saunders in a meeting at Natchez, Miss., early in May. We are sure Dr. Copeland will feel at home among his Mississippi friends. He is pastor of our First Church, Texarkana, Ark.

Rev. A. S. Oliver, of Eden, Miss., has just closed a successful revival meeting on his charge, in which he was assisted by Rev. C. V. Bennett. There were ten additions to the Church on profession of faith. He began another meeting last Monday, assisted by Rev. B. F. Lewis, Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., and Rev. B. W. Lewis.

The Editor had the privilege last Sunday morning of preaching at our Rayne Memorial Church of this city. It was an inspiration to minister to that great congregation. Dr. U. G. Foote, the pastor, was absent from the city visiting his old home in Kentucky. Rev. H. N. Harrison filled the pulpit at the evening hour.

A Church Workers' Conference will be held in the city hall at Meridian, Miss., March 3-9, under the direction of Rev. Geo. H. Thompson, presiding elder of the Meridian District, at which Bishop Kilgo and Dr. S. A. Steel will deliver courses of lectures. The program, a copy of which we have received, is very attractive.

According to reports coming to us, Sunday, February 23, was a great day in the history of Methodism in Yazoo City, Miss. Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo dedicated the beautiful Methodist church on that day, the debt on which was recently raised. The pastor, Rev. L. E. Alford, is now at Blue Ridge, N. C., attending the Y. M. C. A. Conference.

Rev. Jno. F. Foster, pastor of Carrollton Avenue Church, of this city, was called to Coushatta, La., last Friday to officiate on Saturday at the funeral of Mrs. Rachel Armstead, of Armstead, La., formerly of Arcadia, La. Mrs. Armstead was an aunt of Mrs. H. R. Singleton, whose late husband was a brilliant and highly useful minister of our Church.

Rev. G. A. Morgan, of Jonesboro, La., writes that already the Centenary movement has augmented the spiritual life of his charge and increased its financial strength. He has secured Rev. B. L. Sutherland, of Meridian, Miss., to assist him in a revival, beginning the fifth Sunday in March. Rev. A. L. Harper, of Sibley, La., will lead the song services.

The Grenada Sentinel of February 28 makes extended editorial mention of a sermon preached the previous Sunday in the Grenada Methodist Church by Rev. J. R. Countiss, President of Grenada College. The editor of the Sentinel says: "Dr. Countiss is one of the ablest men in the Methodist Church, and he is doing a great work at Grenada College." We agree with him fully.

The Aberdeen District, North Mississippi Conference, under the wise leadership of Rev. Thos. H. Lipscomb, the presiding elder, is making notable progress. Only one charge in the district has an assessment of less than $800, and the financial reports of the churches are most encouraging. Bishop Kilgo is expected to preside over the district conference, which will meet at Pontotoc in the latter part of May.

A note from Brother F. A. Howell, of Durant, Miss., informs us of the death of Col. J. G. Hamilton at Pueblo, Col., on Feb. 22. Col. Hamilton had been a steward in the Methodist Church for more than fifty years, and a subscriber to the Advocate for practically all that time. We extend sincere sympathy to all those who have been bereaved by his death. We have promise of a suitable memoir in due time. His daughter, Mrs. Minnie Hoyt, lives in South Pasadena, Cal.

Mr. J. P. Yeliowley and Miss Edna Trotter were married at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. T. B. Trotter, in Sardis, Miss., on February 26, 1919, Dr. R. A. Meek officiating. The groom is a citizen of Clarksdale, Miss., being connected with the freight department of the Y. & M. V. Railroad of that city. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Trotter, is a niece of Dr. J. W. Boswell, formerly Editor of the New Orleans Advocate, and has a wide circle of friends in North Mississippi. The Advocate extends to the happy couple congratulations and best wishes.

We had the pleasure of meeting on last Sunday Mr. W. H. Riderbaugh, of Lancaster, Ohio, who is superintendent emeritus of the fifth largest Sunday school in the world, according to the Sunday School Times. Mr. Riderbaugh was in New Orleans on business and took advantage of the opportunity to call on his friend, Rev. Jno. F. Foster, our pastor at Carrollton Avenue, with whom he made the journey to the World's Sunday School Convention at Jerusalem, some years ago. The notable Sunday school with which he is connected is that of the First M. E. Church, of Lancaster.

Mrs. H. F. Tolle, the wife of our pastor at Capitol Street Church, Jackson, Miss., has just passed through the great sorrow of losing her father, Mr. Henry A. Hills, who died at her home in Jackson on Wednesday, February 12. He was a native of New York, but for many years had been a resident of Kansas. He was a devout Christian, and died in great peace. His remains were carried to Highland, Kansas, for burial, Brother and Sister Tolle accompanying the body. The Highland Vidette gives large space on its front page to an account of the life of this good man. We extend sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN.

Cuba Mission Leads the Church.

A canvass has just been completed in Cuba to put the Church paper, El Evangelista Cubano, into every Methodist home on the Island. It has been done, and the circulation is now one paper for every four members. Our church at Havana, with four hundred members, secured 227 subscribers. The total circulation has been increased fifty per cent in one week by the concerted efforts of our pastors. These pastors believe in the value of the denominational paper, and are willing to devote their time to increasing its circulation. Our pastors at home can do as much if they try.—A. C. Millar.

Isn't This Worth Thinking About?

Suppose five years ago you had $100.00 and have been saving it in some "secure" place, such as the dresser drawer? If you now wish to use it, you still have $100.00. No more—no less.

Had you placed that money in our bank you would now have $116.00 instead of just $100.00, for that's just the amount of interest your money would have earned, without the slightest worry or exertion on your part.

Freckles

There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

Mrs. MAGGIE HINTON HALL was born in Jasper County, Miss., June 20, 1878. She was converted when a child and united with the Methodist Church. On July 26, 1897, she married Mr. Jerry Hall, of Bay Springs. Five children were born of this union. One child preceded her to the Better Land; two sons and two daughters are still living. The mother, Mrs. T. R. Hinton; a brother, S. M. Hinton; a sister, Mrs. Will Hall, are among the surviving relations, closely related. Mrs. Hall died on January 27, 1919, and was buried from the Bay Springs Methodist Church, her pastor officiating, and Rev. W. A. Hays, a former pastor, assisting. Brothers Miley and Glenn, of the neighboring Baptist churches, also took part in the devotional exercises.

ROLFE HUNT, P. C.
Montrose, Miss.

JNO. P. SINCLAIR, son of H. M. and E. J. Sinclair, was born on August 29, 1897, and died on January 1, 1919. John was an unusually good boy. As he grew to young manhood, he remained the same truthful, honest, and courteous young man. He was of a very friendly and lively disposition and this gained for him many friends. He will be greatly missed by all. He will be missed in his Sunday school class, in the choir, and at the regular preaching services. His father died when John was a mere boy and the responsibility of the home was left upon his shoulders. He took pride in the improvement and upkeep of the home. He took special pride in caring for his sisters as best he could. He managed the home far better than many older men could have done. Just six weeks before his death, he took a trip to Texas, expecting to return Christmas, but was delayed. He took the influenza, and was carried to St. Paul's Hospital, Dallas, Texas. He bore his sufferings patiently and was ready to go and be with God when the summons came. May the grace of God be given to his loved ones, and may they be ready to say, "God's will be done."

His pastor,
JASPER L. SMITH.
Mendenhall, Miss.

Mrs. Fannie Atkins, nee Miss Fannie Lewis, daughter of Rev. Wiley Lewis—"Uncle Wiley"—departed this life on November 26, 1918, at her home at or near Sapa and Old La Grange, Choctaw County, Miss. She was born at or near Cedar Bluff, Miss., on September 18, 1855. She was a member of a large and well known family. She was a loyal member of the Methodist Church, South. She married Mr. James Atkins, an ex-Confederate soldier, who was also a beloved Christian gentleman whom we all loved. To them were born four children, two boys and two girls, who live to mourn their loss, with two brothers, Asbury Lewis, of Houston, and Wiley Lewis, of Woodland, Miss.; also one beloved sister, of Mathiston, Miss.

She was the Lord's faithful servant, an affectionate wife and a tender, loving mother, and the loss of her to her loved ones and friends makes many hearts sad, but beat in tender emotion as they claim one more, beyond the Pearly Gates where there is no sickness, pain nor death, no last, sad farewell!

Methinks I see her smiling as she receives the welcome plaudit, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things. I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

She lived to see her baby, Miss Myrtle, a rural carrier and teacher, able to be independent so far as material things are concerned, her family Christians so far as the spiritual is concerned, thus completing her mission in life.

Fathers, mothers, if we could only live to have the dying enjoyment of the knowledge of our loved ones' being reared to independence, and safe in Immanuel's love, how glorious it would be to conquer death as she!

Loved ones, look to him, who loveth you.
Tho' my path be strewn with thorns or flowers,
He promised not to forsake or leave me,
He saved me in my evening hours.
Sons, daughters, try to love each other too,
For where I am you should roam.
Father and I love you as others do,
And wait your coming "Home, sweet Home."

Friends, "What shall our answer be," when we reach eternity?
May God bless and save the loved ones!

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas the Young Woman's Missionary Society of Central Methodist Church, South, has received tidings of the death of Mrs. Wm. H. La Prade, beloved wife of our former pastor, and the founder of this Society, her death occurring in Atlanta, Georgia, Thursday, February 13, 1919, and

Whereas the members of this Society greatly revered her character and her life and feel deeply bereaved in her passing away, and

Whereas this Society deeply sympathizes with Dr. La Prade, her husband, and Rev. W. H. La Prade, Jr., her son, and all other loved ones in this severe loss, therefore be it resolved:

First—That in Mrs. La Prade we saw a woman who was a model in the dignity of her womanhood and in the beauty of her character, who was mistress in executive leadership, and yet who was delightful in her fidelity as a wife and mother and a sister in the depth and tenderness of her friendship.

Second—That in her passing a parsonage has lost a queenly wife and mother, a large circle of friends have lost a devoted comrade, and the Kingdom of God has lost a leader approved unto God and, that needeth not to be ashamed.

Third—That in the memory of her devoted life and particularly of her contribution to the life of this Society, we pledge ourselves to renewed consecration in order that the work from which she has been called may go on, that, though "being dead," through us she may "yet speak."

Fourth—That to her husband and son, and to all of her other loved ones, we extend our sincerest sympathy, assuring them that we share the grief that has come to them.

Fifth—That we spread these resolutions on the minutes of this Society, that a copy be sent to her husband and to her son, and that a copy be furnished to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
MADGE STUART,
ELLA WAYNE ORMOND,
Committee.
Meridian, Miss.

The Many Mysteries of Nature

BY L. W. BOWER, M. D.

You can take an onion seed and a pansy seed, and plant them side by side in the same spot of ground. In one case, you get an onion, with its peculiarly strong odor, and in the other you get a flower of rare beauty. You can plant a poppy seed and get opium (a dangerous, habit-forming drug), or you can plant a rhubarb seed and get something that helps constipation. No scientist, living or dead, can explain these mysteries of Nature. Behind the invisible life germ in each seed is hidden the deep secret that nobody understands. Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening drains, bearing-down pains, periodical irregularities, pelvic inflammations, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it.

Favorite Prescription should have the full confidence of every woman in America because it contains no alcohol and no narcotics. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. for trial pkg. Tablets.

A NOTE FROM MONTPELIER, MISS.

Mr. Editor: My family and I have at last about recovered from the disease, influenza. For weeks our bodies were limp with the malady, and our hearts were crushed over the death of our son. But we have been cheered and strengthened by the unusual kindness of the people of my pastorate and the warm, sympathetic messages from many friends in North Mississippi. For these helpful agencies, we are thankful. They have been as the very voice of the Father to our stricken hearts. Sincerely.

W. L. GRAVES,
Montpelier, Miss., Feb. 19.

FROM AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

Dear Old Advocate: I have been a subscriber to your columns for more than forty years without a break, until recently, when the demand upon us were so great, that it seemed that I could not spare the meager subscription price. But we are thankful the war is over, and I shall read your columns again. I was reared in the Mississippi Conference in Meridian District, and served as steward for Mount Hebron, De Kalb circuit. I joined the Church under Rev. James Gann's pastorate.

I moved to Alabama in 1880, where, I suppose, I am located for life. I guess few of the boys of 1880 are yet alive, but I have kept in touch with the Mississippi Conference through your columns. I am yet able to do work for the Master. I held two splendid meetings for Brother J. T. Abney on the Scooba charge last year.

Please say to your preachers, if they wish my help at any time this year as a minister, to notify me at Emelle, Ala., as I hope to get my slate filled before the summer meeting commences. Those who do not know me can write my P. E., Frank Rodgers, at Greensboro, Ala., for information.

TO THE CONFERENCE UNDERGRADUATES.

There has been considerable confusion as to the Bible study in the four years of the Conference Course of study. In order to clear up the matter, I addressed a letter to Bishop Mouzon and have from him the following statement which makes the matter plain:

"You may say to all young preachers in the undergraduate classes that while the Synoptics by Hall, and the Gospel of John by Riggs were used last year, they are not to be used at all this year. The course in the Gospels and Acts for the first year, and the one in Romans to Revelations for the second year are to be taken without any text-book. The Correspondence School is preparing instruction sheets covering the Biblical texts. In the third year, the first volume of Prof. Seay's Handbook is to be used. The second volume of his Handbook, covering the Old Testament from Job to Malachi, will be ready shortly and will be used in the fourth year."

Director, Correspondence School.

A JEWISH OVERTURE TO CHRISTIAN CLERGYMEN.

Christian clergymen in the active pastorate may receive a copy of Rabbi H. G. Enelow's recent book, "The War and the Bible," absolutely without charge by making application addressed to: J. M.—P. O. Box 202, Noroton Heights, Conn.

This offer is made by a group of public-spirited Jews with a desire to promote a still better understanding between American Jews and American Christians.

They hope that this small opportunity for a better acquaintance with the religious sentiments cherished by living, English-speaking Jews will be generally welcomed. They trust that their purpose will not be misunderstood, but that information in regard to where progressive rabbis put the emphasis to-day in the proclamation of the great principles of their religion will add to the respect in which the religion of the Old Testament is already held in the Christian Church.

"The War and the Bible" is the work of one of our most representative religious leaders, H. G. Enelow of Temple Emanu-El, New York City, who has been serving for months at the Paris headquarters of the "Jewish Welfare Board." It has been selected as a good example of the addresses to which our people listen from their working pastors covering some one great theme in a connected series of discourses.

THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMITTEE.

The undersigned willingly vouch for its good faith and recommend to their colleagues the acceptance of this overture in the same spirit of enlarging fellowship in which it is given.

Signed:
S. PARKES CADMAN,
HENRY SLOANE COFFIN,
CHRISTIAN F. REISNER.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

FROM OAK RIDGE MISS.

Editor Advocate: Enclosed you will find the money for two renewals to the Advocate. I have had practically no opportunity to push any work so far. Our high school just began February 17, and some are still staying away from school and church on account of the epidemic. There is only one case just now in the immediate community, yet it was so severe and universal that it will be a month or more before we can get down to real work again.

We held our first quarterly meeting February 15, and Brother Sharbrough laid the foundation for Centenary work in his sermon on Sunday. It was an unanswerable and Scriptural argument in favor of Christian Stewardship and it had a good effect on those who heard it. It is impossible for all the circuits to observe all the special days designated by the Centenary Commission and Uncle Sam, but as for me, I know what it will take to have real success with all the assessments on my charge. There will have to be a genuine Pentecostal revival before all the moneys can be gotten, and, knowing this, I am letting the Gospel plow down deep; and not since I've been here has the presence and power of God been more manifest at the regular preaching services. One writer up North, quoting some of the Northern Centenary commissioners, said "it will be a calamity if we raise the eighty millions without a revival." The revival has not come as yet. It will take this revival to get it on my charge, for the local assessments have had a signal increase over last year. One church on the charge that paid on salaries $200 and $65 for Conference assessments has been taken off, and yet there is an increase on the salaries, alone, of $184 over last year, making the charge, as it is now, to pay practically $400 more than it paid last year to pastor and presiding elder, besides the increase in Conference assessments. However, I am preaching, praying, singing, shouting, writing letters, sending tracts in said letters, studying the Centenary program, and will undertake to follow its directions, and remember that "God is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us." Amen!

Sincerely and brotherly,
J. A. WELLS.

Gentlemen:—I was bothered with Kidney and Bladder Trouble for about twelve years, and finally got so I could not walk without a cane and had to be careful how I stepped. FIRST THINGS FIRST.

Many things thrust themselves upon our time and attention: are you laying aside all that is not positively essential and giving the "Centenary" your first and best thought?

The days of this fairest opportunity are numbered; are they speeding by without you, or have you felt the fine spirit of the time and caught step with the Methodist Millions as they tramp, tramp forward to fill up the place that is ready for occupation?

ST. MARK'S HALL.

It is a real privilege to be present at the monthly meetings of the City Mission Board held at St. Mark's Hall. Here we meet women from all of the New Orleans Methodist churches, all giving so cheerfully voluntary service in this splendid work among the foreigners of our city.

We listen with interest to the reports of Miss Gibson, our head deaconess, and the other workers as they tell of their lives in this "Home mission field." Here is the February Bulletin from St. Mark's: How busy our workers are, trying to make these foreigners a happier and a better people!

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Please Notice:

The first service of the Annual Meeting to be held at Mansfield will be on the evening of Monday, the seventeenth. The last meeting on Thursday afternoon. All State officers are urged to arrive at Mansfield in time to attend an executive session at 2 o'clock Monday, p. m.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The seventh annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of North Mississippi, will be held at First Methodist Church, Columbus, March 18-21; please notice the change of date. The Chairman of the Entertainment Committee is Mrs. W. J. Burt, to whom the names of all delegates should be sent. Elect your delegate now. It will be an unusual session and it would be a great mistake to fail to have your auxillary represented. Mrs. M. L. Hargrove will be our Centenary and Council representative.

Mrs. J. W. CONGER,
President.
Mrs. G. C. JONES, Rec. Secretary.

CENTENARY GLEANINGS.

The distinctive feature of the Centenary Movement until March 9 is a Church-wide, closing-up campaign for enrollment in the Fellowship of Intercession and the "Methodist Million" of Tithing Stewards.

It must be Church-wide; otherwise the greatest good to the Church itself and the largest results for the Centenary are not obtained.

It is a closing-up campaign in the sense that we deliver our supreme effort on enrollment, endeavoring to complete this one phase of the Centenary in order to make way for the next step.

Of course the good women of the Missionary Society want to be 100 per cent in the prayer army.

A handful of missionaries determined China's stand in the war. A soldier of the Chinese republic says, "What good-will China has shown toward the Allies has not been a windfall but a definite missionary achievement. The big Chinese who have influence on Chinese sentiment are all the intellectual products of faithful missionaries." China's askings for the Centenary include 100 new missionaries — evangelistic, educational and medical.

The native Church of China has agreed to raise $10,000 as their share of the Centenary $35,000,000.

Japan is the "key to the Orient," so recognized by America and other world powers. Through churches, schools and Christian literature the Missionary Centenary will give the Gospel message to the dissatisfied multitudes who are turning from the old religions to test the truth of Christianity.

The mission of the Centenary to Cuba will be realized in giving to the Cuban people the open Bible and guiding them into an intelligent conception and acceptance of Christ as their only hope of salvation. The task before the Church is to reach the number for which Southern Methodism is responsible—860,000. Only 4000 have been reached.

The ratio of Christians in Korea is one to each 119 of population, so the task of the Church is a tremendous one, calling for investment of prayer, life, and money. Could the Centenary Movement have a more thrilling mission than to satisfy the heart-hunger of this host of unreached Koreans and make known to them the abiding, never-failing love of God?

The Missionary Centenary will carry the light of education into darkest Africa.

The medical missionary is often the first messenger of Christ to knock at the door of the heathen heart. The Centenary is calling for doctors and nurses to take the place of witch doctors and native treatment in heathen lands. Are you making the most out of your life? The need for medical missionaries may be your call for life investment.

"Who is the human mole who tunnels the earth with miles of subway that we of the city may ride to work in thundering rapidity? Who endangers his life placing girders and laying tracks on our modern city elevated? Who spends months cut off from family ties and the hand-shake of neighbors that our railroads from North to South, from East to West may be built and kept safe? "The foreigner."

Two-thirds of the men working on our railroads are foreign-born. By responding to the call of the Centenary you can in a measure pay your debt to the man you have been wont to call alien, but whom the war revealed as our "ally." One-third of our entire population is foreign born. One-fourth of the arm-bearing power of our army had been raised under other flags. America is a land of many nations.

ACONA STATION.

Dear Brother Carley: I think the progress of Acona Station deserves some mention. Our first quarterly conference was held the 23d inst. We had a great sermon by W. W. Mitchell, P. E. The pastor and presiding elder's salaries were fixed at $1389, a raise of over $500 above last year. The pastor's and P. E.'s salaries were paid in full for the quarter, and all the benevolences were paid in full for the year.

Acona led the conference last year in early collections, and I think we are still in the lead, and that is not all, or best: we had a great revival, receiving 32 members into the Church. Now this financial success is not at all due to the pastor, but to an efficient, church-loving, God-serving board of stewards. We have the budget system and it works. We also have the most liberal membership that I know of in the Conference. Our people love the Lord, and they love his Church.

My people take the church papers. I think at least two-thirds of the homes in my charge get the weekly visits of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and a fair percentage of them get the Christian Advocate.

Our capable Sunday school superintendent, R. P. Johnston, is no small factor in this great success of the Church.

Taking into consideration the numerical and financial strength of the church, I do not know a church in our bounds that is equal to Acona.

Ever Salivated By Calomel? Horrible!

Calomel is quicksilver and acts like dynamite on your liver.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.—Adv.

Public Should Demand Original Nuxated Iron

Physician Warns Against Danger Of Accepting Substitutes—Says

That Ordinary Metallic Iron Preparations Cannot Possibly Give The Same

Strength, Power and Endurance

As Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron

The remarkable results produced by Nuxated Iron and its widespread sale (it being estimated that over three million people annually are today using it) has led to the offering of numerous substitutes, and these physicians mentioned below say that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting substitutes for Nuxated Iron, as these substitutes instead of being organic iron may be nothing more than a metallic iron compound which may in some cases produce more harm than good. Those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder, should go to their family doctors and obtain a prescription calling for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and present this to their druggist so that there may be no question about obtaining the proper article. But if they do not wish to go to the trouble of getting a prescription for Nuxated Iron then they should be sure to look on the label and see that the words NUXATED IRON are printed thereon.

There are thousands of people taking iron who do not distinguish between organic iron and metallic iron and such persons often fail to obtain the vital energy, strength and endurance which they seek simply because they have taken the wrong form of iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note: The widespread publication of the above information has been suggested by Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Department) New York and the Westchester County Hospital; Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author and others so that the public may be informed on this subject and protected from the use of metallic iron under the delusion that it is Nuxated Iron or at least something as good as Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older, inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

DOUBTING.

By G. M. S.

Doubting, doubting, ever doubting;
Striving not thy shame to hide;
Must thou also see the nail-prints?
Thrust thy hand into his side?

"Fool; and slow of heart" to doubt him,
Deem him but a "stranger" now;
Thou who bore the travail with him
Even unto Calv'ry's brow.

Ah, thine eyes are truly "holden,"
Surely thou would'st bend thy knee,
Couldn'st thou know thy ris'n Savior
As he treads the road with thee.

As the "eventide advances,"
Would'st thou let him "further go?"
Does thy heart not burn within thee?
Would'st thou not the "stranger" know?

Bid him; he will "tarry" with thee,
He will plenteous proof afford;
Thou'lt not need to see the nail-prints,
Thou shalt KNOW thy ris'n Lord.

FROM SALLIS, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Brother W. W. Mitchell, P. E., of the Durant District, was with us at the Sallis church Sunday, the 17th inst., with two logical and stirring discourses, to the delight and profit of all who were present. And on Monday morning he held our first quarterly conference, where he dispatched business like a bishop. The board of stewards made the same assessments for the support of the ministry as was made last year, though seventy dollars in advance of any previous year, which was paid and "over the top." Question 22 was called, and each steward arose with a smile and made his report. The grand total was $135.55, which will be ample for this parsonage for at least three months. Talk about poundings! This good, loyal people have not ceased to keep pounding this pastor for the last 14 months. Your brother,

T. L. OAKES.

Sallis, Miss.

THE WORK AT WHEELER, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Will you please allow me space in the Advocate to mention some things the good people of Wheeler are doing? Wheeler, Hodge's Chapel, and Asbury, had planned to give a nice shower of good things for New Year's; but as Mrs. James was visiting at that time they waited a few days, and then the ladies came with some of the nicest things, namely, sacks of flour, buckets of the finest coffee, the finest sacks of sugar, more nice towels than we knew what to do with, hose, handkerchiefs, etc. I'll not mention all; but Mrs. James was given some nice bills of money, too, and a nice lot of fruit. In fact, there were just such things as a pastor's family needs, for all of which we wish to express our sincere thanks to this good people.

Next came our first quarterly conference. The stewards had made good collections; they came and the ladies came, and many children came.

Brother Dorsey, P. E., preached, and it was grand; hearts were stirred, and the service was rich.

The pastors of Boonville and Boonville circuit were present. Dinner in the old-fashioned way was spread, and believe me, these ladies know how to cook, too.

Well, Wheeler is not the least thing in our Conference by any means, and by the help of these good people and the leadership of the Divine hand, we hope for great things on Wheeler charge this year.

BIBLE STUDY IN THE CAMPS.

One of the most important features of the religious program of the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. has been the Bible Study Work. In addition to the Bible classes on Sunday, were the study groups which met certain evenings of each week. These weekly classes were among the most popular of Y. M. C. A. activities, the men taking part in larger numbers than was believed would be the case when the work began.

In addition to the regular program of Bible Study, the "Y" features Bible Study Week, which is observed by all associations throughout the country. This has brought most satisfactory results in the Army Camps, and has resulted in securing pledges to definite Bible Study from thousands of our soldiers.

We mention only a few of the reports that have come from army camps in the Southeastern Department concerning Bible Study Week. Camp Jackson: nine classes were organized, and there were 2491 pledges to definite Bible Study; Miami, Fla.: fourteen classes, with an attendance of 1450; Camp Wadsworth: total attendance, 2703; in addition to the Bible study classes, there were thirteen other religious services during the week in which Bible Study was featured. In the Negro unit of this camp, five classes were organized and met daily in company streets. The average attendance at special services at "Y" building, featuring Bible study, was 250. These special services were held four evenings of Bible Study Week.

The men of the Army and Navy, many of them at least, have shown a real interest in Bible study—and it is the experience of "Y" workers that the study group plan makes strong appeal to them. Let the Churches at home feature this work as the men of the Army and Navy return to their home communities.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare, and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known as the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Rheumatism Back on the Job With its Old-time Fury

No Let-Up In Its Torture.

Pretty soon you will be reaching for the liniment bottle again, for the millions of little pain demons that cause Rheumatism are on the warpath. Winter weather seems to awaken them to renewed fury.

But your Rheumatism cannot be rubbed away, because liniments and lotions cannot reach the disease. It is in the blood, and only a remedy that goes deep down into the circulation, and routs out the disease germs, can rid you of this disabling disease.

S. S. S. has given some wonderful results in treating Rheumatism. Being a purely vegetable blood remedy, it purifies the blood of every germ, and thus removes the cause of Rheumatism. Get a bottle to-day at your drugstore, and start on the right treatment that will get results. Free advice about your case can be had by writing to Medical Director, 26 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Sunday School

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Sunday schools are paying the way of delegates to the Federation meeting at Ruston where distance is great.

A beautiful loving cup will be presented to the charge which raised the largest amount for Children's Day last year. Who gets it?

It will be held by such charge until some other charge raises a larger amount. It will be presented at Federation meeting, Wednesday, March 12.

The program is a feast of good things on Wesley Bible Classes.

The Advocate gave our Federation a great boost last week.

Remember Dr. C. D. Bulla speaks first night, Dr. Geo. Stuart, second night. Others in day sessions.

Mrs. J. M. Henry's class demonstration will be one of the best things on the program. ALONZO EARLY.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

February 20 and 23 were spent in Hattiesburg. All the Sunday schools were visited, but the institute work was with the Main Street school.

Each school in Hattiesburg assured me of its acceptance of the Centenary allotment. The Main Street school signed up.

From what was developed in the institute and promises made, the Main Street Sunday school grades 100 per cent on the New Standard of Efficiency. This is a fine forward step and I feel that it will mean much to the future of the Church.

One Senior Class of young ladies and an Intermediate Class of boys were organized. Both classes showed much interest. I feel sure that under the wise and capable direction of the teachers these classes will do much good.

Sixteen signed for the teacher-training course; 19 books were ordered. Enough teacher-training pupils were promised to meet Third Rank Teacher-training Standard.

The Elementary Department was raised to Third Rank Standard.

The Broad Street school has a messenger service which is commendable. They have a printed telegram with a place for signature of the absentee pledging attendance next Sunday. The boys take these messages each Sunday afternoon to all absentees. It is a go. If it is a pupil absent, the teacher signs the message to him; if it is a teacher, the superintendent signs the message. This has increased their attendance very much.

I wish to commend as highly as I can "Learning and Teaching" and "A Methodist Church and Its Work." These are very fine books indeed.

I wish to announce the employment of Mrs. Sue Stewart Brame, Jackson, Miss., as Elementary Superintendent, by the Sunday School Board. She is very fine indeed. I commend her to you and assure you that she can be a help and inspiration to your school. Use her.

Pray for the work and the workers. Without prayer the work fails.

Don't forget to assume your Centenary allotment by signing the pledge card and sending it in.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The great Centenary Movement is moving—in spots. It is moving where the people are informed. What about the spot you are occupying, Brother Superintendent?

A tame, lifeless missionary program in this day of need is entirely out of place. Put prayer back of the program so God can get into everything that is said and done. If God fills those who render the program, it cannot be dull and uninteresting.

The superintendent that is indifferent or is in any way opposed to missionary instruction in the Sunday school now, has been asleep for the past four years. And some one is responsible that he is still nodding while the whole world is in an agony of suffering. Awake, awake, put on the whole armor of God!

The school at Richland on the Pickens Circuit has formally accepted the Centenary Allotment of five cents per member and each teacher has agreed to take one book in the teacher-training course at once. This school has been a gracious blessing to the community and will continue to improve in every respect.

Goodman Methodists are suffering for the lack of a modern church building, adapted to the program of religious education. Some of the teachers have covenanted to pray God to open the hearts of the people to be made willing to build, and that right soon. Of course the missionary program will be given in this school.

The rain prevented us from accomplishing a great deal at Pickens, but the missionary committee was appointed and have the promise of a broader, fuller program in this excellent school. It is not possible to estimate the good that a man like Brother E. W. Burton has accomplished through the years of faithful service. Thank God, the Church is still making saintly men and women.

Teachers, Members of the Missionary Committee, suffer a word of exhortation from your fellow-worker: Do you desire to learn how to pray, do you want your prayers to be effective? Settle on a few things. Have a time and place set apart for this holy exercise. Read enough of your Bible to realize that God is talking to you, that he is really feeding your soul. Read some good book on prayer, like Andrew Murray's "With Christ in the School of Prayer." Take one or more definite objects of prayer, such as praying for the Lord to call teachers, leaders, preachers and other workers. Ask God to give you an object to pray for. Then practice prayer daily until the soul is filled with the spirit of prayer. God, raise up intercessors in this time of our need!

Abundant Health is assured when there is good blood in the veins. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine to make good blood. Begin taking it now. It is just what the system needs at this time and will do you great good. Sharpens the appetite, steadies the nerves.—Adv.

THE NEW FORM OF CHURCH CERTIFICATE.

Dear Brother Carley: I want you to give me space in the paper to call attention to the new form of church certificate and the law of our Church regarding the same. Let all the pastors read the new Discipline, page 65 and paragraph 161, and they will see the new form and the law. If we preachers will comply with this law, we will not come up short with our reports at the Annual Conference, and the loss of so many members.

Then again, some of the preachers will not be holding on to the Methodists moving from one town to another and sending the assessment of such to them for the little church at home. Brethren, we should keep up with the Methodist people.

W. H. SAUNDERS.
Natchez, Miss.

INDICATING PROGRESS.

Dear Brother Carley: On yesterday we had an every-member canvass for the Conference funds. Our total assessment is $900, and we went over the top. These folks are as good as the best. I have received eighteen members this Conference year. We are happy in the work.

Yours very truly,
J. E. STEPHENS.

ROBINA VAUGHT,
District Secretary.

If you mean to act nobly, and seek to know the best things which God hath put within the reach of men, you must fix your mind on that end, and not what will happen to you because of it.—George Eliot.

HATCHED 175 CHICKS.

G. W. Miller of Pittsburg, Okla., writes: "I used Reefer's Ready Relief and out of 175 chicks hatched didn't lose one." Mrs. T. E. Murphy of Hughesville, Mo., writes: "Have been using Ready Relief for White Diarrhoea and only lost one chick out of 140."

You can do as well. Reefer's Ready Relief in your baby chick's first drinking water will save them from dying off with that dreadful White Diarrhoea plague. This remedy is the discovery of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 9253 Poultry Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a package that will save 500 baby chicks. Aren't your delicate, downy baby chicks worth five for a cent? You take no risk. Mr Reefer will refund every cent of your money if you are not entirely satisfied and a million dollar bank backs up this statement. Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. If you don't want to try this bank guaranteed chick saver, at least write today for Mr. Reefer's free valuable poultry book that gives the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

HOW SHIVAR MINERAL WATER RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To relieve Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys, it corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer from rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

Shivar Spring,
Box 17B, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. Girls! Use Lemons! Make a Bleaching, Beautifying Cream

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is simply marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.—Adv.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A GOOD MAN.

A good man is the most marvelous product of Christian civilization. We ...w one [illegible] day. He stands flat-footed and [illegible] squarely in the eye. He [illegible] es him; and as for men [illegible] quails in the presence of the highest. He works hard for a living—but he takes nothing [illegible] honestly. He speaks the truth [illegible] is his nature to do so, and he expects truth from those with whom he deals. He is a champion for righteousness and against evil. He is a tower of strength to all those who contend for justice against injustice and oppression, and evildoers flee from him. He makes no loud professions of his own goodness and he abhors self-righteousness. The widow and the orphan find a strong friend in him, but [illegible] and designing persons are quickly discovered. As he goes along the streets people point to him and say, "There is a good man." That commendation is better than [illegible] leum, or marble memorial column. Little children love him.

GROWING BIGGER.

We owe it to [illegible] in which we live [illegible] We expect the world to [illegible] low men to become [illegible] remember that we are a part of the world and that we have no right to expect of others [illegible] that which we fail to [illegible] We need to increase [illegible] and we can easily do it, if we are willing to do a little reading, studying and thinking. We need to broaden our sympathies and widen our range of vision—and we can easily do that if we are responsive to the myriad influences that bear upon us from a world that is full of longing and heartache. We need to grow in grace day by day and we can do it if we will learn the divine will concerning us and subject ourselves to it. Growth is the law of life; unless we are growing bigger, we are sinking into death.

WE HOPE SO.

Secretary Redfield protests to see, according to newspaper reports, a tendency toward the restoration of normal price levels. We hope his eyesight is good—we confess we have seen no indication of the tendency worth mentioning. We have a friend who amuses himself by making a list of the things he ought to have but is not able to purchase and calling it his "ought-to-buy-ography."

TALK IS CHEAP—BUT NOT THIS KIND.

The American Telegraph and Telephone Company has just announced net earnings for 1918 of $54,293,016. We have often heard it said that talk is cheap, but we are convinced that it all depends upon the kind. We have heard some that was not worth anything.

FORGET SELF.

The man who is thinking of himself overmuch his words, his actions, his attitudes, the impression he is making upon other people is necessarily forgetting his obligation to minister as helpfully as possible to those whose lives he touches. Sincerity and earnestness are swallowed up in self-seeking and an eager itching of the ears for public applause. The real ministries of life are performed by those who forget self.

A BIG SCHOOL.

The largest university in the English-speaking world is the American Army University, now in operation in France near Paris. It has a faculty of five hundred teachers to instruct about fifteen thousand students, drawn chiefly from the American expeditionary force. We are glad that such adequate provision has been made for the educational equipment of our young men who, by force of circumstances, are deprived of the privilege of attending school at home. It is a direct recognition by the Government of the importance of giving to our young men intellectual training for the duties of citizenship. And the men themselves probably realize more fully than ever before the necessity of their being thoroughly fitted for the heavy responsibilities that will rest upon them upon their return to this country. We hope that our young men and young women at home are likewise aware of the advantages that will accrue to them from college and university training. An uneducated citizenship is a menace to established government and to all intellectual, civil and religious progress.

IT SOUNDS LIKE PROPAGANDA.

Considerable publicity is being given by the secular press to a statement purporting to have been made by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., to the effect that there is a general feeling of annoyance among the army men still abroad that the prohibition law should have been passed during their absence. He is quoted as having said that there is a general opinion that somebody had "put over something" while the men who were vitally interested had been over in Europe working and fighting for the nation. The home-comers say the soldiers feel that they are American citizens, and should have been consulted before such an important step was taken. Of course we do not know such to be the case, but we hazard a guess that such publications are propaganda pure and simple, and if they could be traced to their source, they would be found to emanate from the headquarters of the forces that are fighting against the enforcement of the prohibition laws. As a matter of fact while our soldiers abroad were fighting to save the nation from the Huns, those of us who had to stay at home were fighting to save the nation from its other great enemy, rum. And, thank God, we were victorious at home and abroad.

THEY ARE THINKING.

The man who imagines that the rank and file of the people are not doing their own thinking, is sadly deceiving himself. If he will go out into even the remotest rural districts and put himself in touch with the men and women who are living simple, unpretentious, hardworking lives, he will find that they have very definite convictions about a great many vital issues of the day, and that they are not slow to express those convictions. The only question that may arise is as to the adequacy of their information to enable them to reach right conclusions. They are doing some energetic thinking.

THE HORROR OF IT.

We do not know what starvation is, though we have heard of it and read of it. But it is a terrible, a horrible thing. The reports that are coming to us from Central Europe are enough to break our hearts. Famine is stalking brazenly and boldly throughout the land. Men and women and children—yes, little children are dying daily by the thousands of hunger. They are digging in the ground for roots and herbs to eat—and then dying because they can find nothing with which to support life. We do not know what hunger is. We sometimes say we are hungry, but we misuse the word. We have never seen our children grow weak and pale, their eyes become glassy and their little bodies horribly bloated, for lack of food. We have never seen them die, one by one, while we were too weak to give them interment. But all this is happening every day in Europe—not just a few cases, but thousands of them. And it has all resulted from war—bloody, brutal, bestial war. While this is going on, the Huns, who are responsible for these conditions, are whining and haggling for soft peace terms. The Allies will not be mislead by their wiles. They will impose terms that will make them realize what they have done. We have no fear that the Allies will be unjust—they cannot be, no matter what terms they impose. Eternal justice demands that they be made to feel the enormity of the crime they have committed, and to pay the penalty as far as possible. Thousands of starving children—the horror of it!

WE ARE GLAD OF IT.

It was announced a few days ago that Major General Wood had consented to act as president of a newly formed national commission for the control of boxing. The presumption was that he had lent his name to the promoters of the brutal pastime of prize fighting. We are glad to note, however, that General Wood has stated that he will not serve as president of any organization that is not strictly and absolutely confined to amateur sport. Professional pugilism is about as far removed from amateur sport as anything we know of.

A TRINITY.

OUR PILOT.

There is one thing which humanity needs so sorely and so frequently that the need is universally recognized, and this is guidance and direction over the uncharted seas of life as we sail ever onward, often amid dense darkness, into the unknown. And if there is one thing which is most definitely promised in the Word of God it is this very guidance. In every age anxious, and sometimes very timorous, souls have cried unto God for divine light and divine leading; and in every age God has heard and answered that prayer. And in our own day, when the future stretches before us with possibilities of success and failure greater far than ever faced our fathers, we have the same right to ask for guidance, and the same right to expect such guidance.

There may be men so self-confident that they have no fear whatever of blundering, men to whom the challenge of the unknown suggests no possibility of mistake or defeat, but only a fresh opportunity to distinguish themselves and to reveal their mastery of fate. But the most of us are not like this. We have had too many defeats not to anticipate more; we have made too many mistakes not to dread fresh blunders; and we have had too many convincing and disagreeable proofs of our own ignorance and our own weakness not to feel the need of a vision clearer than ours and an arm stronger than ours.

And there is most welcome assurance and much-needed comfort in the words of Holy Writ, "In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." It is this thought which Tennyson emphasizes in his immortal hymn, "Crossing the Bar," when he says "I hope to see my Pilot face to face, when I have crossed the bar." It is this thought which makes so many thousands love that modern prayer, "Jesus, Savior, pilot me." The human soul which realizes its helplessness turns gladly and confidently to the unseen Pilot, "the one who holds the chart of stars, whose fathom lines touch lowest deeps, whose eye the boundless spaces sweeps," and under His guidance, content with the knowledge that He is at the helm, we face the unknown future, not only without fear, but even with joyous confidence. We may blunder, we may fail, but God never does.

But as we pray for guidance we must be prepared to accept it. There are many who ask the Lord to lead them, but the understanding is that He will lead them just where they want to go. They profess to trust in God, but their hand must always be on the wheel. Even good men sometimes make the blunder of thinking that they know better than God what is good for them, and when the Lord leads them by ways that they know not, and takes them where they didn't want to go, they are sorely tempted to tell Him that He has blundered. It is incredibly foolish, and yet it is amazingly easy, for humanity to insist that its own way is best. And many a time we complain and grumble because our God thought He knew better than we. When we pray for guidance it is well that we should be prepared to go God's way, and to do it without either doubting or murmuring. We often say that "God knows best," but we say it much more confidently and much more easily when it refers to other people.

Just at this juncture we seem to have special need of divine guidance. Some hundreds of thousands of our young men are coming home from the war with all their life-plans upset, and they find it hard to decide what they ought to do. Even some of our young preachers and students who four years ago had no other idea than that of preaching the gospel now face the future with hesitancy and doubt. What will they do? What ought they to do? A decision must be reached, and they must reach it, and it is no easy matter. And the prayers of the Church which followed the boys so closely during the war, are needed now as much as ever, perhaps more than ever, that these lads of ours may be divinely guided at this parting of the ways.

And as we face national reconstruction, and even peaceful revolution, it is apparent that never before in all our history have we needed the guidance of God more than in these restless and fateful days. If we forget the lesson of the past few months, and decide to go our own way, each one for himself, we shall head straight for national ruin. If our leaders are weak and blind, and fail to recognize the signs of the times, and allow a few men of great wealth and ability to dominate the situation for their own advantage, there can be no escape from a national catastrophe. But if our leaders are wise enough to recognize clearly the true situation, and strong enough to deal with it wisely and firmly, our country will enter upon a new era of progress. Surely if ever the Church of God had need to pray for national guidance it has need just now. May the great Pilot in His unerring wisdom guide our national barque safely across the troubled waters into more peaceful seas!—The Christian Guardian.

REV. J. A. BOWEN—A MEMOIR.

By Rev. O. W. Bradley.

James Asbury Bowen, son of Randall A. and Sarah Ann Bowen, was born near Waterford, Marshall County, Miss., on December 18, 1850. He was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, under the ministry of Rev. Elias Jackson and Rev. Charles B. Harris. His early educational advantages were limited on account of the school buildings of that section being destroyed by the Northern army during the Civil War. He was fortunate in having the advantages of a good private neighborhood school in his home community and a fine school of higher grade in Tennessee, where he enjoyed many kindnesses at the hands of his uncle, Rev. John W. Bowen, a Baptist minister of that State. On his return home he was honored by his neighbors by being chosen as their neighborhood school teacher for several years. During this period, while rendering considerable assistance to his family, he was able to improve his own education. He was licensed to preach at Asbury Church on the Holly Springs circuit in 1872 and did much active work as a local preacher for four years. He was admitted on trial in the North Mississippi Conference at Sardis in 1876 and at this same Conference ordained a local deacon by Bishop Pierce. His first appointment was Ashland Circuit in the Holly Springs District which he served two years. His next appointment, Early Grove circuit in the same district, he served one year. He was received into full connection in the Conference at Macon, December 13, 1878. He was ordained elder at Columbus by Bishop Pierce, December 19, 1880. His next appointments were Ripley and Falkner (Corinth District) one year, Corinth station, four years, Kosclusko and Durant, one year. At this time he became the first agent for Grenada College, in which position he served two years. Other stations then became his appointments—Greenville, Aberdeen, Macon, Water Valley (Wood Street), Columbus (First Church), Tupelo, and Winona. From Winona he was transferred to the North Alabama Conference. Here he served Huntsville (Holmes Street) two years, then was appointed one of the Conference evangelists of that Conference. After holding this office for six months, he was appointed in mid-year to First Church, Ensley, where he remained six months to fill out the unexpired term of Dr. J. D. Simpson, at that time elected president of Birmingham College. At the following Conference he was reappointed Conference evangelist and served in that capacity five years. In the fall of 1915 he transferred back to the North Mississippi Conference and was appointed Conference evangelist at that session. This appointment he held till his death.

He was also a member of the great prohibition convention in Jackson, Miss., which settled the future policy of all the later temperance work of the State, being a member of the committee at that convention with Bishop Galloway, C. H. Alexander, and others. He was highly honored by the Masonic fraternity of the State, being once chosen grand chaplain of the Grand Chapter of the Knights Templars. He assisted in the location and building of the Mississippi Methodist Orphans' Home at Water Valley, and served as trustee of the Home until he was transferred to the North Alabama Conference. He was a member of the North Mississippi Conference Sunday School Board, Board of Education and Board of Missions. During his pastoral and evangelistic work, he held meetings in ten States, witnessed over 20,000 conversions and 12,000 accessions to the membership of our Church. He was trustee of Grenada College up to the time of his transfer to the North Alabama Conference.

These are the brief facts of our friend and brother who closed his eyes on earthly scenes on the afternoon of January 24, 1919. The end came peacefully and triumphantly after being confined to his room for a few days over a year's time. He was out of the house only twice during that time, when he insisted on being taken in the car to the church services. On account of illness, the writer was not privileged to be with him the last few days of his illness, but it was a real pleasure and blessing to have visited him through all his sickness; there were no complaints or expressions of impatience. He was determined to win the fight for life, if it were God's will; and he was desirous of preaching a while longer, as he expressed it, "to crown his life's ministry," but he was submissive to the Father's will in the matter. His going has caused many hearts to mourn and the Church has lost a true and faithful servant.

His was a faithful and effective ministry. He did not have the educational advantages that many of his day enjoyed, yet he filled the leading appointments of his Conference. His preaching was notably effective. His convictions were never lukewarm—there was always a purpose, definite and distinct, in his message. Endowed with unction, and sometimes with great power, his words won many hearts for Christ and left life-long impressions. To him, the Bible was the very word of God—its statements, historical and theological, he accepted without question. He displayed no effort to regard rules of homiletics, but he came before his audiences with a message as an ambassador of Christ beseeching men to be reconciled to God. The light of eternal fire burned within his soul; the joy of the Lord gladdened all his days. Thousands were converted under his ministry, and many who have been under his pastoral care will ever hold him in grateful remembrance.

As a pastor he had few equals—genial, always courteous, cheerful, earnest and intent upon whatever he undertook. He thoroughly identified himself with his people—their burdens, sorrows and joys were his. He took an interest in all community affairs and often made a vigorous fight for right. His social qualities made him an acceptable visitor to the home, his sympathy, kind words and optimism left encouragement and cheer in many disconsolate hearts. His going was the sailing-time of a full-freighted vessel, full of years, replete with service, loaded to the water line with the golden grain of nearly a half-century of sowing and reaping.

Knowing him as I learned to know him in these recent months, it will be charming some day to hear him tell in his own peculiar style what he has seen, heard and enjoyed since we saw him last. He leaves a wife and one child, Rev. C. A. Bowen, a member of the faculty of the Woman's College of Alabama. To these we extend our deepest sympathy in their great loss.

Tupelo, Miss.

APPEAL FOR PRAYER

Addressed to the Christian People and Churches of North America and to Their Missionary Representatives in Foreign Lands

By the Committee of Reference and Counsel of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America.

We stand in the presence of critical decisions. After four and a half years of war marked by unprecedented sufferings and appalling losses of life, we have come at last to the days when the conditions of peace are being formulated. Issues of incalculable importance are at stake in the negotiations of the Paris Peace Conference. These decisions fix the future policies of Christian nations. They likewise affect the welfare of millions of people in non-Christian lands. They involve the major portion of the human race in agreements whose binding force reaches far into the future and affects every sphere and relationship of life, whether political, industrial, commercial, social or religious. The decisions of the Peace Conference bear an intimate and determining relation, especially to the future of vast populations which have been the object of our foreign missionary effort. Shall political conditions within these areas be marked by Christian principles of justice and service, or shall they subserve selfish and unworthy ends? Shall religious freedom and missionary liberty be established or shall they suffer limitations? Shall reasonable and genuine missionary activities be safeguarded and extended or shall they be hampered and reduced? Shall conditions be established which make easier and more effective every effort to uplift the race or shall they be such as to contradict the Gospel of the Christ we seek to carry to all the world?

Unquestionably the difficulties are great. In spite of high intent and unselfish motives, how difficult to define the right pathway! How may divided opinions at Paris be reconciled? How shall the wide differences in racial viewpoints and national attitudes be bridged? And should unworthy motives enter in, how greatly will the difficulties be increased! The whole problem of Christianizing our international relations is now brought to the front. Those who at this critical moment have come into most intimate touch with the actual situation, declare that our supreme confidence must lie in the mighty power of the Spirit of God. His wisdom alone will suffice. Only His skill can fashion the decisions of the nations to subserve the infinite possibilities of coming days. No power but His can adequately rule and overrule.

Let our appeal, therefore, be unto Him in these days of crisis and far-reaching decisions. It is the peculiar function of the Spirit of God to impart wisdom unto those who know and fear Him—and let us thank God for the God-fearing men who are members of the Peace Conference. Nor is the power of the Spirit of God limited to those who know and fear Him. He who said to Cyrus, "I have called thee though thou hast not known me," is able to lead those who are strangers to Him so that they shall build better than they know. He who is able to turn the hearts of kings as the rivers of water are turned may, through our supplications, order all the decisions of the peace delegates for the advancement of the Kingdom of God.

To this end we issue this appeal for prayer, asking that the Christian public of the United States and Canada, and also our missionaries abroad, give themselves to such regular and occasional individual intercession as may be possible until the peace negotiations shall have been completed; that they remember these great needs at the family altar and at all public services; and that the noon hour of each day be used as a momentary reminder of this great obligation to prayer and as an opportunity for such intercession.

On behalf of the Committee of Reference and Counsel of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America.

WM. I. CHAMBERLAIN, Chairman.
FENNELL P. TURNER, Sec'y.

SHALL MISSISSIPPI METHODISTS HAVE A STANDARD FEMALE COLLEGE?

By Rev. W. H. Lewis.

For the last few years Whitworth College has met every requirement of an A Class college except an endowment. The Commission on Education created by the General Conference to fix educational standards, has made such changes in existing standards that it is now imperative for Whitworth to be endowed to maintain its present classification. This fact is made clear in the Seventh Report of the Commission, which was appointed by the College of Bishops, at Atlanta, Ga., and which met at Signal Mountain Hotel, near Chattanooga, Tenn., on August 13 and 14, 1918.

Passing over some of the requirements for an A Class college, such as the number and pay of the professors, etc., all of which could be met by Whitworth College, I call attention to items 3 and 4 of the report. (3) Laboratory equipment in science worth $5000, so distributed as to establish efficient working laboratories for Chemistry, Physics, and Biology.

(4) Financial Requirements—A permanent productive endowment of $200,000 above indebtedness and exclusive of annuities and money invested in dormitories and other college buildings; or a permanent productive endowment of $100,000 and an assured annual income for the payment of the academic faculty of $10,000, including income from said endowment and exclusive of literary tuition and after the interest on all debts of the college has been paid.

Requirements of a B Class college as to teachers, entrance units, etc., are the same as of an A Class college. Note items 3 and 4 under this head. (3) To be classed as a B Class college there must be a laboratory equipment for science worth not less than $3000 and so distributed as to provide practical working laboratories in Chemistry, Physics, Biology, and Domestic Science.

(4) An assured net annual income of $10,000 for current expenses exclusive of tuition and other fees.

It will be seen that to meet this last requirement (4) of a B Class college an endowment of not less than $100,000 would be the most practical thing.

Surely our girls in Mississippi are worthy of the very best, and we owe it to them to provide a standard college where they can have every advantage enjoyed elsewhere. The Commission gives us two years in which to meet the new financial requirements. What are we going to do about it? Let us fix as our goal not less than an endowment of $200,000. Whitworth has accomplished too much for Mississippi Methodism for us to fail to render the assistance needed. Under the efficient management of Dr. Cooper, the college has steadily grown and there is every indication of a brighter future if the Church will only rally to his support in this hour of imperative need.

I would call attention to the fact that when the new financial requirements go into effect two years hence, the contract which the trustees have with the present administration terminates. At that time, should the trustees be able to meet certain conditions, the president will present to the college all pianos, furniture, heating apparatus, etc., amounting to at least $10,000. One of the conditions is the securing of an endowment.

Brookhaven, Miss.

BATON ROUGE DISTRICT NOTES.

The first round ends well. Eighteen charges have increased their assessment for the support of the ministry, two charges as much as five hundred dollars each. The Wilson charge has raised the salary to one thousand for full time.

The group meetings have been held at Baton Rouge and Hammond. The Centenary Campaign of education has been a most helpful feature of the celebration. Many of our pastors and laymen have rendered valuable service. My observation is that in the measure of attention given by pastor and minute-men, is the interest shown by the people. The outlook for a great year is "as bright as the promises of God." The slogan for the year is: "One thousand tithers at least; a revival in every charge; the best collection for the benevolent work of the Church in the history of the district."

The Church papers are receiving attention in all the quarterly conferences. I am exhorting in their interest.

"GETTING READY FOR THE BIG DRIVE."

By A. C. Marts.

The problem of the Methodist Church, South, in this campaign for thirty-five million dollars, is not primarily a problem of raising money, but it is a problem of organization.

During the next seventy days we must project over the entire denomination a tremendous organization which will include three hundred thousand Methodist men and women mobilized for one special purpose; drilled, trained, and equipped according to a Standard Plan, who will be ready on the morning of April 27, all to rush "over the top" together, determined and prepared to reach the objective of $35,000,000 in eight days' actual work.

We must then devote ourselves for seventy days to building this organization. We will give ourselves only eight days in which to raise the $35,000,000. The relative importance of actually getting the money to building the organization is in the ratio of eight to seventy.

We must, therefore, all of us, think in terms of building a big, well drilled, effective, organization. We have our Standard Plan, which will be our guide in building this organization in every conference, district and local church. This Plan contains the best experience of the past in building such an organization and has been worked out by men successful in the recent patriotic campaign.

During these coming 70 days is the time when the success of the campaign must be determined. The faithfulness and devotion of the Campaign Directors, and other leaders, in each Conference, in each presiding elder's district, and in each local church in building according to the Standard Plan will determine in advance of April 27 the results of the Eight-Day Campaign.

If our work is well and faithfully done between now and April 27, we need have no fear of the results of the actual solicitation during the eight days.

Let us all work as a unit in forging this magnificent army which will move forward to certain victory during the eight days of April 27 to May 4.

The Standard Plan plus enthusiasm plus hard work, multiplied by prayer and devotion, equals thirty-five million dollars plus.

The Lord requires us to be soldiers for the right rather than victims for the wrong.—Messervey.

REV. THOS. S. RANDLE—A TRIBUTE.

By His Brother

Rev. Thomas S. Randle son of Rev. Richmond and Mary A. (Scott) Randle, was born in Natchez, Miss., on October 17, 1842, and his parents moved to Louisiana and settled near Minden in what was then Claiborne Parish, now Webster, in 1844, toward the close, where he grew up. He died in Yoakum, Texas, on January 23, 1919, being something over 76 years of age. He and I were twins and the only living members of our family, and had been since 1898, when our only sister died. She was much younger than we.

Brother had been in feeble health for many years, and I had feared that I would be left alone much sooner than I was. He had a severe stomach trouble that threatened his life and caused him to superannuate in 1895. His health was restored and he became effective in 1899 and continued so until 1911, when there was a general breakdown and he was superannuated again and continued in this relationship, doing such work as his strength and circumstances allowed. During 1912 he moved to Texas on account of the failing health of his daughter, thinking also that it might benefit his own health, as he was suffering from some heart affection. He continued there most of the time. He spent last summer and the summer before with me at the parsonage in Farnerville. He and his wife made the parsonage their home and made it very pleasant for me. The first year, they both had a very pleasant and joyous time visiting their many friends at Bastrop, Oak Ridge, Winnsboro, Monroe and through the country, and were with me at my appointments, visiting and preaching.

It was a season of joy and great pleasure to us, and profit and pleasure to the people. He preached nearly every Sabbath and took great interest in the church work and general condition of the country. He read a great deal and kept up with the conditions at home and abroad. He assisted me in my meeting, preaching once each day for several days in succession without giving down, and seemed to have promise of several years of pleasure and usefulness in the work. But last summer he was very feeble, unable to get out except on one short visit, and came near dying on that. He was unable to preach at all, and I had to quit calling on him to pray, even in the family prayer. This depression and the early change in the weather hastened their return to Texas. He was anxious to remain and be at Conference, but could not. I feared when he left that I would not see him again in this life. I intended going to see him after Conference as soon as possible. I am so glad that he and his dear wife spent these summers with me.

Brother and I were twins and had never been separated until the Civil War. From our first schooldays to the breaking out of the war, we went together and were in the same classes. When the war broke out, we enlisted in the same company on July 1, 1861, and were together until November 5, when I was discharged after a long and very severe spell of pneumonia, during which he nursed and cared for me as well as could be in the army. I was down in the tent over thirty days. I came home and after recovering reenlisted in the Cavalry, March 27, 1862. We were apart until in the fall of 1863, when he was transferred to our company, and we remained together to the close of the war. We rode alone from Gainesville, Ala., to Minden, La., about four hundred miles. After reaching home, he remained a short time and then sought employment elsewhere, and we have been with each other but little since. I repeat that it is a source of great pleasure that he spent his last summers with me and enjoyed them so much, though feeble.

He was a Christian from childhood. He professed faith in Christ and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the close of his thirteenth year, and through school, in the army, at home and in a ministry of 46 years, he continued a faithful, consistent Christian; among friends, strangers, or enemies, he remained steadfast. He was a brave citizen, soldier and Christian. He was as pure a man as I have ever seen, at home, at school or in the army. I never heard or saw an unchaste, mean or low word or act from him.

He was a good and an efficient preacher, at times strong and eloquent. He was acceptable to his people, a successful pastor, and builder of the Church in every department, especially in parsonages, where he was sent. He made friends and held them. He was received on trial into the traveling connection in 1872, and continued effective until 1895, when, as I have already said, he came near dying, and was superannuated, but, regaining his health, he again became effective in 1899 and continued so until 1911, when his general health gave way and he was again superannuated and continued so, doing such work as his strength would allow. He had been gradually declining all the time, but especially since 1914, when Nannie May, his oldest daughter, died, which was a severe blow to him and his wife. They had learned for many years to lean upon her as a companion and help otherwise. They were very greatly attached to her, yet they did not murmur or complain at the providence that took her. He was patient and trustful in all things.

He was married to Miss Sallie Ross, daughter of Maj. E. W. K. Ross, of Bastrop, on August 25, 1867. During their early married life his wife was for many years in very bad health, and the burden of the family as well as the responsibilities of the ministry fell upon him until Nannie May was able to share the care with him, when she was 12 years of age. But his wife afterward recovered her health and became a great help to him, especially during the last years of his life; she repaid him for his patience and care in early life. She was most devoted and careful and thoughtful of his needs—the help that he needed at all times. They lived together nearly 52 years. They had seven children. Two died in childhood, Arthur and Sallie Jack; two in mature life, Nannie May and Robert Wilds. There are still living, Richmond Ross and Scott who are living in San Antonio, and Mrs. Pauline Tharpe, who is living in Yoakum, Texas. The living were all present at his death and burial. All of the children who reached maturity were members of the Church and more or less useful. He was a faithful and affectionate husband and father. He was a safe companion and advisor. His stay with me was a benediction and a great source of spiritual strength as well as social pleasure. The Church has given up or passed on another faithful soldier and heaven has received another triumphant victor. His wife wrote me that his death was very trimumphant and glorious. I wish so much that I had been there. But knowing his life, we could but expect such a death.

Affectionately,

ROBERT RANDLE.

Monroe, La., Feb. 23, 1919.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

A great deal is being stated these days concerning the service rendered the M. E. Church, South, by its superannuated preachers. As a rule, however, the statements are quite general in character, and do not reveal in concrete form the value of the service they have rendered. I have taken the time to make a very careful study of the the General Minutes, and after the most painstaking computation, I find, on the basis of averages, the following interesting facts:

They shall not want

(1) These self-sacrificing men, during the time of their "active service," raised on assessment for benevolent purposes, $10,500,000; raised $8,048,000 to build churches enough to provide places of worship for 1,000,000 people; raised $2,237,000 to build parsonages enough to provide homes for 1000 preachers in the active service; raised for the purposes stated a total of $20,785,000; christened 150,000 children; added 700,000 members to the Church; did a work of encouragement, inspiration, comfort and love which cannot be computed in figures; accepted without a murmur the promise of an average annual salary of $600 each; suffered a salary shortage of more than $1,000,000 which if now paid to the Superannuate Endowment Fund would yield $60 annually to each of them as long as they live; saved nothing for themselves in their old age, because there was nothing to save.

(2) The M. E. Church, South, superannuated these heroic servants, because of age and physical impairment, and gave them the pitiful annual allowance of an average of $200 for each; it let them out, at the time of their greatest need, when most of them were without a home, money, or the possibility of other employment; it had received at their hands millions of dollars in property and other values, but it permitted them to retire in loneliness and poverty with only a beggar's equity in the values they had created; it has promised for nearly twenty years to raise an endowment fund large enough adequately to provide for these men, but it has made annually-repeated excuses and postponements of one sort and another, until it has at present but little more than $500,000 in this fund to save it from dishonor, and out of the interest on said amount it is now able to pay each of its superannuates the trifling average sum of $12 annually; it is the only great denomination in the world which has such a miserable and reproachful record in this regard—the Congregational, Disciplies, Baptist, Episcopal, Presbyterian, and Methodist Episcopal Churches, having from three to twenty-five times as much in their respective Superannuate Endowment Funds as has the M. E. Church, South.

(3) However, it should be stated that the last General Conference created The Board of Finance, with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo., and went on record as desiring some time to raise through said Board the sum of ten million dollars for the S. E. F. But the same General Conference also ordered that the Missionary Centenary should have right of way in the Church for the first two years to raise its $35,000,000, and the General Board of Education should have right of way for the second two years to raise $22,000,000 for Education. Therefore, it is evident that the Board of Finance cannot launch an organized and sweeping campaign to raise its $10,000,000 for the S. E. F., until the two campaigns named above have been completed. The Superannuate Endowment Fund does not receive a dollar from the Missionary Centenary or from the campaign for Education. It must stand on its own legs, if it stands at all.

(4) In the light of the foregoing, it should be clear to all that whatever is done for the Superannuate Endowment Fund for the next four years, must be voluntary. The Board of Finance and others can talk and write about it, beg for it in generalities, pray for it, etc., but we cannot organize a drive to go "over the top" and get for it that $10,000,000 in one tremendous and systematic effort. So I give herewith a few ways by which those interested can volunteer to do something now for the superannuated preachers and the widows and orphans of deceased preachers. Recently one of these grand old men died. He left no land mortgage, house, or money. Strangers were called upon to raise the necessary amount to buy his coffin, dig his grave, pay the undertaker and his medicine bill. In twenty years, three other similar cases of superannuated preachers have come under my personal observation. In the name of pity, humanity, justice, and of the Christ it preaches, let the M. E. Church, South, rise in loving service and sacrificial giving to remove this shameful reproach.

"WHO'S BEEN HERE SINCE I'VE BEEN GONE?"

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

At the first inauguration of Mr. Cieveland, in 1885—the first Democrat elected to the presidency for 24 years—it was reported that as the procession passed the White House the band facetiously piped out, "And who's been here since I've been gone." From Buchanan to Cleveland—how many and how radical had been the changes! So getting back to the oid home after 45 years of absence, except for an occasional visit, taking a survey of the many changes, with a pressure upon the soft pedal, I am hummng "And who's been here since I've been gone?"

The dweiiing known in its earlier days as "the white house with the green blinds," now almost as innocent of any such adornments as the lumber just from the saw and iess attractive; the wind whistiing through its window panes; the oid barns faiiing to their decay, which once gave sheiter to the boys' ponies, the father's roadster, the faithful Black Beauty of mother's care, teli the taie of the rutiiess visits of Father Time. The orchards of acres of pears, appies, peaches and piums upon the adjoining hiiis, now abandoned to the commons, grown up in persimmon sapiings and cedar bushes, teii their story of negiect. The great mulberry, which gave roosting and nesting to the mocking-bird, fruit without faii, annualiy, for chiidren and fowis, and which protected from the evening sun—of it, not a trace can be found. The very rock put in place by my grandfather, upon which we sat and cracked the rich walnut, shows, too, that the tooth of time has been busy there.

Occasionaily, I have heard disputes as to the iongevity of trees; I am reminded by a concrete case that the size of the trunk does not aiways teli the age. When I was quite a youth, there came up in the corner of the yard a young oak, which became my pride. I protected it until it was beyond the ravages of the animais. Year after year, I tried its strength by ciimbing into its boughs, and one of the iast things before throwing saddie-bags across the itinerant pony was to ciimb up into the little oak, caress its branches and bid it a fond good-by; I find its trunk, gnaried and knotted, with a circumference of nearly nine feet, uprooted by some cruel wind, rotting upon the ground. Upon the right hand, and upon the ieft, there are constant reminders of a iong absence, and that who or whatever else has been here, there are changes sore.

At the neighborhood postoffice I meet many faces, to be reminded, by twinkie of eye or peculiar cast of features, of some that I had known in the by-gones, to be assured that the father and mother have passed over the river and left to me oniy these shadows of a happy boyhood at the old schoolhouse. Once in a whiie one ieaning upon the staff "for very age," telis the story of the grim Reaper. A visit to the neighboring town brought aiso its reminders; it was the same singie street with its row of wooden stores; but others were behind the counters and at the desks, and the stores didn't iook so big as before associations with iarger cities. The oid Masonic lodge building, which had such an awesome appearance to us youngsters, where our fathers met to work in the different degrees, and where we knew was the hiding-piace of the goat, still stands, but they teii me that "old Biii" made his escape some years ago, which closed its doors until another, trained in the mysteries of that ancient craft, can be found. Here I went into the [illegible]wing home of one of my boyhood friends from which had been taken the Nestor of the iittie community—one whom aii deiighted to honor, the iast of his circie, and one who giaddened me in our associations with the sobriquet of our younger life, "Tommie." Yes, to those who have known Yazoo County these forty and more years, it wiii come as a grief that "Sweet Sixteen," the versatiie, humorous writer, is no more. But this must have an end, so I desist.

The same community but not the same peopie; the same hiils and daies but not the same scenes; the same house and barn and yard but not the same associations; and the refrain comes again and again, "Who's been here since I've been gone?"

PEACE CELEBRATION IN SOOCHOW, CHINA.

By R. G. Moore.

Just at this time, when the jubiiant shouts of miiiions over the signing of the armistice by the Central Powers have scarcely died away in the distance, when the approach of peace seems to be drawing very near, when rejoicing over the cessation from arms, the return of heroes who have covered their names with glory and the bright hope of a coveted peace has become an universai grace, it might be of interest to you to know how this glad news has been received in antiquc China, and in what spirit her citizens have entered into the celebration of this memorabie event, with especiai reference to the celebration of the event in Soochow. I may add, however, tiiat from aii reports that have come in from various sections, aii of China is characterized by a similar spirit.

You noticed that I referred to China as "antique" China. You wiii at once recognize that as being the usuai and natural way of putting it. However, it is the opinion of many to-day that there is a regenerating spirit at work upon the hearts and minds of the Chinese peopie which is surely destined to transform the once "antique," "conservative" China into the "new," "progressive" China. This leaven which, let us pray, shaii one day ieaven the whole and renew the old, is none other than the principles, religious, social and political, incorporated in the teachings of the Christ of men, which is so profoundly gripping the hearts of individuals of the world to-day and is doing so much toward ordering the future interrelations of the nations of the whole earth, drawing them cioser to each other with mutuai interests and knitting them together into a common brotherhood under his banner.

To the recent United War Fund Campaign, the Soochow officiais responded by trebling their quota. Closeiy foiiowing this, the officiais and the Chamber of Commerce gave a feast in celebration of the Aiiied victory, to which the Americans (known here as foreigners) were invited. To the Chinese, a feast is the supreme manner of celebrating any great or joyous event. On this occasion nothing was iacking with reference to sumptuous feasting and the prevalence of good feeling.

The next demonstration which filled our hearts with interest and joy, was a magnificent lantern procession, in which about three thousand students marched through the streets with cheers and brass band music. I watched this host of bright, enthusiastic young men as they assembled in a large pubiic park in companies of three hundred and less, each carrying banners or figures according to their own designing, such as the "11th" (of November), the "Goddess of Liberty," "Liberty Beii," "Aeropianes," "Machine Guns," etc., and last but not ieast the portrait of him who is the incarnation of liberty and justice, "Woodrow Wilson," and involuntarily I lifted a prayer to God that ont of this so large number of fine young men there might come many strong men who shaii make it the business of their lives to lead China forward to better things and to her rightfui piace among the great family of nations. About three hundred and fifty of this number who participated in the parade were from Soochow University.

I have mentioned several notable events, but the most imposing of all was the grand parade which was started by the Chamber of Commerce, composed of the volunteers of the city and the several fire-fighting organizations of the city. The participants assembled at a big athletic park near the center of the city, and marched from there to the Soochow University campus, marched into the grounds and around the athletic field, where they were saluted by the students with an outburst of fireworks.

Throughout the long procession could be seen the several units, some wearing helmets of brass, others khaki uniforms, and others mounted on horses. There were also six or eight brass bands, a large number of drums, buglers and Chinese music of great variety.

The number in the procession was variousiy estimated, but the commander in charge of the parade stated that there were at ieast four thousand. You wiii think this estimate conservative when I teii you that it required two hours for the whoic procession to assemble within the campus, though several of the units were a iittle iate in arriving. Just the passing out of the campus gate aione required forty-five minutes.

I oniy wish that I possessed the gift of description, so that I might give you some idea as to the fascination of the many-colored lanterns, the fiery figures of dragons which the carriers showed as chasing a ball, and many other figures of interest and novelty.

A notable fact connected with this day of celebration was that the stores did no business. The banks were also closed, this being the first time in one thousand years.

The spirit of reciprocity was further fostered when the foreigners of Soochow entertained the officials and the Chamber of Commerce at a most delicious feast, which was served at the Soochow University. This was a most enjoyabie occasion and was indeed a spiendid token of good feeiing and cioser relationship between these two countries.

TASKS AND DOERS.

If "Satan finds some mischief still
For idle hands to do,"
The God of Heaven surely will Find tasks for toilers true.

He ever looks for willing hands
To take up burdens new,
But while the vineyard is so large,
The laborers are few.

Never do to-day
What may be done to-morrow;
Follow this rule and you will pay
A heavy toll of sorrow.

Do well your task, do it to-day
As though it were your last;
Then having done it, memories sweet
Will be yours of the past.

A SILENT WITNESS.

"Mother, why are you hanging a looking-glass there?" asked James, looking at it curiously. "Such a pretty one, too," he continued. "It seems to me I should want it where it would be seen oftener."

"I want it right here in the dining room where it can see," answered his mother laughingly. "I am putting it here for a witness."

"A witness!" scoffed James. "It can't tell anything."

"We shall see. It will tell your faults to you as well as to others."

"I'd like to know how."

At supper James found that he and his brother Ned were to sit side by side, facing the glass.

"What's that for?" demanded both at once.

"Your father and I think best to have it so," explained their mother.

The boys sat down with scowls on their faces and an air of great injury. Ned happened to raise his eyes, when the ludicrousness of those frowning reflections struck him so forcibly that it provoked a shout of laughter.

"What is the matter with you?" growled James, looking up to make an ugly face, when his attention also was arrested by the truthful mirror. His startled stare added so much to Ned's glee that he began to thrust out his tongue at James. The silent reminder brought him to a sudden stop.

"I see you are caught also," remarked his father quietly.

The boys were silent. The day following, their experiences were repeated with such good results that their mother was beginning to congratulate herself on the success of her plan. In her absence from home of several weeks, where she was attending her mother in a serious illness, the boys had acquired the habit of bickering at the table, greatly to the humiliation of their parents.

Their silent witness had been with them two days when their cousin, a bright, manly little fellow, came to visit them.

At dinner Mrs. Lane said: "William, you may sit between James and Ned, where you can all enjoy yourselves."

But, oh, how two boys reddened as the mirror showed them how beautifully William's hair was combed and how their own tously locks looked in comparison! Their mother had remained discreetly silent and allowed them to see for themselves.

Ned spoke first: "Mother, will you excuse me a minute?"

"Certainly," agreed his mother.

"And me, too?" questioned James.

They returned with shining faces and well brushed hair, and smiled at each other over the changed reflection. If William noticed, he was too much of a gentleman to say anything; but three pairs of eyes returned often to the pleasing picture.

"It is nice, isn't it?" said Mr. Lane.

"What?" asked all three at once.

"Three good-looking boys in a row."

"Oh," answered William, "I believe auntie had a reason for putting the glass there."

After William's visit was over and he had returned home, James came to his mother. "Mother," he said, "your witness is all right. I couldn't understand before; but I do now, and I vote that we keep it there."

"Vote carried by a big majority," shouted Ned.

"Very well," promised mother; "it shall stay with you as long as you want it—a silent witness, but a good friend."—Baptist Boys and Girls.

A STRIKE.

The snow was deep in the paths, the barn door hard to open, and the ax was dull on the morning when Phil and Harold decided to strike.

"I'm tired of chores," said Harold. "Bill and Jack Lee never had anything to do out of school."

"But isn't that because they live upstairs in a flat and there's nothing to do?"

"I don't care why 'tis. I only know I've had enough of chores. Lessons out of school are enough for any boy."

"Sam Dunn could just as well do them all the time. Let's strike," said Harold. "Father's away. It would be a good time."

"Strikes are all the go," admitted Phil.

"Let's do it," said Harold. "We can see how it works, anyway, and declare it off if it doesn't work well."

So on the following morning, as the boys left for school, a placard was posted outside the kitchen door with the words:

"A strike is on. No more chores for boys. Phil and Harold."

Nora, the maid in the kitchen, called Mrs. Allen to see it, and the two in some amusement made arrangements which seemed to involve something like a strike of their own.

So when the young strikers returned at noon they found the house quiet, the key of the back door under the mat, as always understood at times when there was nobody at home. It was easy to guess that mother had gone on one of her very frequent visits to her parents, who lived at the other end of the town; but there appeared no reason for the absence of Nora, and there was some grumbling as the two realized that no preparation had been made for dinner.

"Never mind, we can find plenty to eat."

They made a cold lunch, at supper time, ate what was left of it, and then went to find mother and declare the strike off.—Selected.

BEETHOVEN'S PIANO.

A party of American tourists visited the old home of Beethoven a few years ago—many years after the noted pianist had died—but the house, the piano and many other things were still there. A young lady in the party seated herself at the piano and played Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata." After she had finished, she turned to the guide and remarked, "I presume many travelers come to this famous place every year, don't they?"

"Yes," replied the guide. "Paderewski was here last year."

The young lady was interested to know that such a famous pianist as Paderewski had been there, and, being quite interested, she asked, "And did he play on Beethoven's piano?"

"No," replied the guide. "He said that he was not worthy."

Great men and women are very humble. Their desire is not to "show off" or make themselves conspicuous, for there is more important work in this world to do than that. They feel that they are not worthy of much which the world does for them, but all the time they are doing for others.

The truly great person does not have to put himself forward; in fact, he will not. He is like John the Baptist, who, telling the people that Jesus was coming after him, said that the Messiah was so much greater and better than he was that he himself was not worthy to unloose the latchet of the Messiah's shoes. And Jesus was even more humble than any other person, teaching a beautiful lesson of humility the last thing in his earthly life, saying He came not to be ministered unto but to minister. That is true humility, a Christian virtue.—Nathan Howard Gist, in Congregationalist and Advance.

A PRESENT.

A little girl at Christmas had ten cents given her—ten bright new pennies.

"This," she said, laying aside one, "is for Jesus."

"But," said her mother, "you have already given one to Jesus."

"Yes," said the child, "but that belonged to Him; this is a present."—Ex.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

A CENTENARY EDITION OF THE ADVOCATE.

It is our purpose to issue in the near future a special Centenary edition of the Advocate. We believe that our people will read with interest an account of the origin, development and present status of this great missionary movement in the Church, and that the information thus acquired will arouse their interest and activity in carrying out the Centenary program. We suggest that our preachers make mention of this special edition in presenting the claims of the Advocate to their congregations, and that they urge them to subscribe for it in time to secure copies of that special number. We intend to make it as interesting and helpful in its presentation of the Centenary cause as we can. We wish every Methodist in Louisiana and Mississippi could have the benefit of the information and inspiration its pages will contain.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGNS.

Evangelism is the very breath of life of the Christian Church. How shall the people hear and believe unless the gospel be preached to them in terms of the love of God, which includes the offer of divine mercy as well as the threat of eternal punishment? The Church cannot escape the responsibility that rests upon it to entreat the people to turn to God if it would maintain its character as the divinely ordained custodian of the oracles of God.

We believe that this obligation is generally recognized by Christian ministers, especially those of the M. E. Church, South. But we sometimes fear that this recognition expresses itself in a professionalized temporary expedient for doing spasmodically what ought to be done every day in the year. We have almost come to look somewhat askance upon the term, "evangelistic campaign," not because of what the words mean, but because of what they have come to stand for. The idea that a revival can be "worked up" in any community merely by the mechanical process of organization in the church, and by the labors of "evangelistic troupes," in a highly advertised and spectacular "campaign," is, in our judgment, altogether a mistaken one. We know it is possible by such means to bring about a state of emotional excitement that appears, on the surface, to be the result of genuine religious fervor; a practical psychologist can, by taking advantage of favorable circumstances and by applying the simple laws of normal mental activity, produce almost any effect he desires to produce, almost entirely in a mechanical way. And men whose success is measured largely by the visible results they produce become, consciously or unconsciously, exceedingly skillful practical psychologists.

We are in no sense opposed to special revival seasons or to evangelists as such. In fact, we are strongly in favor of both. We doubt if we, as a Church, are making sufficient use of the means and opportunities at our disposal for reaching the unsaved masses of our population. Instead of lessening our evangelistic efforts, we should increase them. But we are opposed to the idea that a "revival campaign" is merely an incident in the course of a year's ministry that can be provided for by a more or less perfunctory performance of certain conventional methods of "holding a meeting." Unless the salvation of the world—of individual souls as well as of society as a whole—is a passion with us, we cannot feel the full weight of the responsibility that rests upon us. Nothing can take the place of the daily ministry of the shepherd of the souls of his people in bringing them into a saving knowledge of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus.

THE METHODIST ASSOCIATION.

In our issue of February 13, we made mention of the organization of the New Orleans District Methodist Association. It was a part of the plan of the Association to secure suitable offices for down-town headquarters; we are glad to state that this has been done, and the wisdom of the step is being demonstrated every day. New Orleans Methodism is feeling the impetus of this forward movement in business methods, and it is hoped that the Association will be able to render a real service to the Methodist people throughout Louisiana and Mississippi.

The offices that have been secured are on the second floor of the building at the corner of Carondelet and Union Streets. This building is most conveniently located, in the very center of the down-town business section of the city. It is within three squares of the leading banks, hotels, office buildings, and business houses of the city. The offices themselves are commodious, well-lighted, with plenty of fresh air from windows opening on the outside. They have been equipped with modern office furniture, including desks, reading table, chairs, telephone, and everything else that will minister to the convenience and comfort of those who make use of them.

We are authorized by the Board of Directors to extend a cordial invitation to Methodists from abroad to call at the headquarters while in the city, and to make use of its facilities in any way they can. It will be a good place to secure information, not only about church affairs, but also about other things in the city that a visitor might be interested in; those who are in the city for only a few hours will find it a convenient place in which to rest between trains, or to leave small packages and hand-baggage; information concerning any Methodist preacher, church, or church member may easily be secured, as a complete file of the church membership will be kept. In general, the offices have been opened for service, and it will afford the organization great pleasure to render a helpful ministry in any way possible.

We should like to stress the fact that this invitation is not at all formal or perfunctory. It is realized that a great many Methodist people from Louisiana and Mississippi and other States have occasion to visit New Orleans, and there is a very earnest desire on the part of this organization, which represents New Orleans Methodism as a whole, to make them feel thoroughly comfortable and at home. Let no one feel any hesitancy at all in calling at the offices and making himself known. Mr. Tudor B. Carre, the president of the Association, and Rev. J. G. Snelling, presiding elder of the District, who is acting at present as general secretary, have desks at headquarters, and they will spend a part of practically every day there. The offices will be open all day, and somebody will always be in charge. The telephone number is Main 5688. When you come to New Orleans, call at the Methodist Association Central Office.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. R. I. Collins, of Shannon, Miss., writes that his work is moving along fairly well.

Rev. T. L. Houston, of Sturgis, Miss., reports that his work is moving along nicely, and that he is planning for a great year.

A Junior Epworth League was organized at Felicity Church, New Orleans, last Sunday evening, by Miss Georgie Goldsby.

A New Orleans layman is sending the Advocate as a present to five people who, otherwise would not receive it. A good example!

Dr. O. E. Goddard, of the Mission Board, was in New Orleans during the early part of this week looking after the work of the Board in Louisiana.

Rev. R. G. Lord, of Coffeeville, Miss., is serving his first year on that charge. He serves a fine people who know how to take care of their pastor.

Rev. Jas. G. Galloway, of Forest, Miss., does his work quietly but most efficiently. We are not surprised to hear good reports from that charge.

Brother Wm. A. Powell, of Liberty, Miss., has been reading the Advocate for fifty years. He is now 75 years of age. His kindly words of commendation are an inspiration to us!

Rev. J. G. Snelling, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, has been selected by the Preachers' Meeting as a delegate to the Y. M. C. A. Reconstruction Conference at Alexandria, La., March 17-20.

Rev. W. H. Lewis, of Brookhaven, Miss., issues a "Weekly Messenger," which brings matters of importance to the attention of his people. The copy that came to our notice was full of interesting items.

Rev. Robt. W. Vaughan, superintendent of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, called at the Advocate office on Friday of last week. He reported large plans under way for the improvement of the Orphanage work.

Rev. A. F. Moore, of the Sardis circuit, North Mississippi Conference, has been greatly hindered in his work by sickness, but he serves a generous people, who are willing to help their pastor in the work of the Church.

Brother Mc. C. Stuart, of Georgetown, Miss., is another old friend of the Advocate. He has read it for forty years—first in his boyhood home, and then in his own when he married and began housekeeping. A good record!

Rev. F. N. Sweeney, who is serving his fifth year on the Franklinton circuit, Louisiana Conference, was a caller at the Advocate office on Monday of this week. We were glad to hear good reports of the work on his charge.

Several charges on the Port Gibson District, Mississippi Conference, of which Rev. M. B. Sharbrough is presiding elder, have increased their assessments for the present year. Among them are Crawford Street, Vicksburg, and Natchez.

Rev. Otto Porter, of De Soto, Miss., informs us that a member of his charge, Brother W. H. McRee, has been a continuous subscriber to the Advocate since August, 1878. We are glad to add his name to the roster of the "Old Guard."

A personal note from Rev. H. W. Bowman, presiding elder of the Lafayette District, Louisiana Conference, informs us that the work of the Church in that district is advancing. The Centenary Movement especially is making headway.

Dr. P. E. Wells, pastor of Highlands Methodist Church, Birmingham, Ala., was a visitor to New Orleans this week. He attended the Preachers' Meeting on Monday morning and gave an inspiring talk on the achievements of Alabama Methodism.

Rev. J. R. Jones, the presiding elder, requests us to call attention to the change of date for the meeting of the Seashore District Conference. The time has been changed from April 16 to April 30, at 2:30 p. m., Lumberton, Miss. Let all concerned take notice.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, our pastor at Bogalusa, La., was in the city last week to consult with the architect concerning the new church that is to be erected at Bogalusa in the near future. Plans are being carefully drawn, and construction is expected to begin by July 1.

With great sorrow we record the death of Lucy Millicent, the little daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Pickett, of Collins, Miss., on February 23. The little one was nearly five months old when she succumbed to an attack of influenza. May sustaining grace be given the heart-broken parents.

The Sunday schools of Noel Memorial Church, Shreveport, La., Mansfield and Lake Charles are carrying on an attendance contest. The figures for the first Sunday in March are: Noel Memorial, 287; Lake Charles, 286; Mansfield, 234. We find it impossible at this date to "pick the winner."

A competent judge who heard it, informs us that the sermon preached by Rev. J. T. Leggett, the presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, Mississippi Conference, at Brookhaven, on Sunday, March 2, was a great deliverance. The subject was, "Patriotism and the Centenary, or World Reconstruction."

At the recent quarterly conference of the Silver City charge, Mississippi Conference, of which Rev. T. H. King is pastor, more than a full quarter's salary was paid the preacher, and the Conference collections were likewise in full to date. The Silver City church paid two full quarters' assessment on both salary and collections.

We call attention again to a standing rule of the Advocate office that no unsigned communication will be published. It is not necessary that the name of the writer appear in print, but the Editor must have the name of the writer. Several communications are on hand now that cannot be published for the reason named above.

We acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt of an invitation to attend a reception given by the pastor, the board of stewards and the Woman's Missionary Society of our church at Kirbyville, Texas, in honor of the first twenty-five members received this Conference year. Rev. D. B. Boddie is the pastor of this progressive congregation.

We inadvertently placed the name of Rev. S. B. Watkins, of Moscow, Miss., in the North Mississippi Conference list in recording the results of the Advocate campaign in last week's Advocate. As is well known, Brother Watkins is an efficient member of the Mississippi Conference. We make the necessary correction of totals in this week's Advocate.

Rev. F. L. Applewhite of Sharon Miss., informs us that his charge has been sorely bereaved by the death of two faithful members, B. F. Pace, a steward, and Mrs. H. G. Galloway, a young woman of fine Christian character. We extend sincere sympathy to those who are in sorrow on account of the passing of these two faithful workers in the Vineyard.

In a note renewing his subscription to the Advocate, Brother C. W. Flowers, of Smithdale, Miss., says: "I was married in 1854, and subscribed for the Advocate then, and it has been coming to me all this time, except three or four years during the Civil War. I was born and reared, and expect to die, on the same place." Brother Flowers belongs to the "Old Guard."

Rev. J. A. Wells, of Oak Ridge, Miss., reports that he had a most gracious service recently at one of his afternoon appointments. He preached on the Centenary objectives and the Scriptural way to raise money. The congregation was small, but the power of the Spirit was manifest. Eleven people signed the tithing pledge, and ten enrolled in the League of Intercession.

A note from Rev. Hilary S. Westbrook informs us that his father, Mr. D. S. Westbrook, of Auburn, Miss., was seriously injured by being kicked by a mule on February 28. Brother Westbrook was with his father at the time of writing, and he requested that prayer be made for his recovery. We are sure many petitions will be addressed to the throne of grace to that end.

Rev. Robert Randle, a noble veteran of the Louisiana Conference, who was granted the superannuate relation at its recent session, paid the Advocate office an appreciated call last Monday. He was in the city on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. R. C. Root. He was vigorous in mind and body, evincing a lively interest in the affairs of the Church that he has served so long and so faithfully.

Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, and Rev. C. A. Battle, pastor of First Church, Baton Rouge, were in New Orleans on Tuesday of this week to discuss with Dr. Goddard home mission work in the Baton Rouge District. Rev. H. W. Bowman, presiding elder of the Lafayette District, was also expected to be in the city in connection with the work in his district.

Rev. H. W. Jamieson, who entered the local ranks at the late session of the Louisiana Conference in order to continue in Y. M. C. A. work, has recently been appointed Associate Religious Director for the Southern Department War Work Council, Y. M. C. A., with headquarters at San Antonio, Texas. This Department embraces Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico.

We regret to learn that Rev. M. L. Burton, our pastor at Port Gibson, Miss., has been sick for a week or more with a severe cold, contracted by getting wet while attending to his duties in rainy weather. Brother Burton is chairman of the Centenary Committee for his district, and is doing hard and effective work. Mrs. R. L. McLaurin is secretary of the Committee for the District, and Hon. N. Vic Robbins is campaign manager.

Rev. H. F. Tolle, pastor of Capitol Street Church, Jackson, Miss., in spite of serious interruptions, has done a great work thus far. The parsonage has been repaired at a cost of more than $700, and 43 members have been received since Conference. In addition to his other activities, Brother Tolle carried out the Advocate campaign, and, as a result, sent us 80 subscriptions from his charge. We are impelled to say again, "It can be done."

A personal note from Rev. W. L. Duren, presiding elder of the Columbus District, North Mississippi Conference, informs us that in spite of various handicaps, the first quarter was a good one. Payments on pastors' salaries are substantially in advance of the first quarter for last year, and there has been a disposition to make better provision for the support of the ministry in the matter of salary assessments. Interest in the Centenary movement is growing.

Our church at Hammond, La., under the consecrated leadership of Rev. Leon I. McCain, is making rapid and substantial progress. The pastor's salary has been increased $500 this year, and there is a marked increase of interest in spiritual things. At a recent service, a young man accepted the call to the ministry, and a young lady offered herself for service wherever God might call her. The fact that nearly a hundred members of that church have enrolled in the Fellowship of Intercession probably has something to do with this spiritual flood-tide.

ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN.

A minister who has sent us one of the best clubs we have received during the present campaign, wrote us as follows: "You ask how I did it: I would say that the matter got on my heart first; that is, I felt that the people needed the paper and that it was my business to go to them and tell them so. I did not say a word about the paper's needing their support, but I simply pointed out wherein they needed the paper. Of course I prayed over the matter a great deal. I walked a great deal, too. That is about all there is to it. I am sure you are right in saying that the Advocate ought to have 20,000 subscribers. I think you might double that number and still be within reasonable bounds."

When the spirit indicated above becomes general, the problem will be solved. The results to date are as follows:

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

Bishop McCoy, who has been seriously ill, is reported to be improving. He hopes soon to be able to make the trip to Southern Florida for a few weeks' stay.

Bishop R. G. Waterhouse is reported to be improving in health. He is hopeful of becoming strong enough to perform again his episcopal duties. The Church will pray to that end.

The news from the bedside of Bishop Hoss is not encouraging. The latest report we have received states that he seems to be sinking slowly, and there is practically no hope of his recovery.

We have seen an announcement to the effect that the North Carolina Christian Advocate and the Raleigh Christian Advocate will be combined under the name of the North Carolina Christian Advocate. Greensboro, N. C., will be the place of publication.

We thank the editor-in-chief, Chaplain Henry Grady Gatlin, for a copy of the final issue of the Mare Island Bulletin, the official organ of the Mare Island, California, Naval Training Camp. The Bulletin has done a great work in maintaining the interest and morale of the men in service. Editor Gatlin has demonstrated his ability in journalistic lines.

Plans have been perfected by the American Red Cross whereby photographs of identified graves of American soldiers in France will be sent to relatives of the deceased in this country. The photographs will be sent to the next of kin.

Rev. Arthur H. Mellen has been appointed by the American Bible Society as Agency Secretary for Mexico.

Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, after considering invitations to make his home in Little Rock, Ark., and in Tulsa, Okla., has definitely decided to remain in Dallas, Texas. He bases his decision upon the ground that he can give as close supervision to his episcopal district from Dallas as from any city within the bounds of the district, and upon the further fact that he sustains a peculiarly intimate relation to Southern Methodist University, which makes it possible for him to render service to the Church at large by remaining in Dallas.

SHE SAVED 200 CHICKS.

Mrs. G. Hancock, Sturgis, Ky., writes: "I hatched 200 chicks and didn't lose a single one with White Diarrhoea. I give Ready Relief the praise." Mrs. H. L. Sutton, of Ramona, Kas., writes: "My chicks were dying 20 and 30 a day. I got two packages of Ready Relief and now I don't lose any."

You can get the same wonderful results. Reefer's Ready Relief put in your baby chicks' first drinking water will help save them from the dreadful White Diarrhoea plague. Freckles—

There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

INEZ PALMER was born on November 13, 1893. About the middle of January, 1919, she went to her sister's to nurse those sick with influenza. She was soon stricken and she passed to her reward the first of February. So utterly unselfish was she that those who know her best say that had she known that it would mean her death, she would have gone just as willingly. "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend." At the early age of eleven she joined the Church—she lived her profession, her life typifying the life of Christ. When she was thirteen, her mother died. She gave her life, sacrificed her education, to be a mother to her four younger sisters. She was the "Good Samaritan." When any one of the community was sick, Inez was the first to go. Such was her tenderness, her watchful care, that, in spite of her youth, mothers gladly entrusted their sick babies to her. It may truly be said of her, "She hath done what she could." JULIAN S. DUNCAN.
University, Miss.

Miss ELLA HUMPHRIES JONES, daughter of Dr. Richard H. and Frances R. Jones, of Charleston, S. C., and a granddaughter of Rev. Thomas Humphries, of Virginia, who married Elizabeth Calhoun of South Carolina, died of angina pectoris, the result of influenza and pneumonia, at her home near Richland, Miss., on Nov. 17, 1918. Miss Ella was of Huguenot and English ancestry. She joined the Methodist Church when young. She embodied the strength and beauty of character that come from noble blood and careful Christian nurture. Her entire life was devoted to the service of her Lord for the happiness and welfare of others. Though in poor health for the past four years, she spent her strength in Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., and other relief work.

Miss Ella's life was truly hid with Christ in God, and no wonder she unfolded the virtues of Christ—patience, meekness, gentleness, long-suffering, kindness, and above all, a great love. She died as she lived, peacefully, triumphantly. The last word from her lips was the name of Jesus. Her church will miss her presence, her prayers, her ever liberal contributions. She has joined a host of loved ones who have entered into rest. Her sister, Miss Lottie Jones, who was her life-long companion and counterpart in all beautiful Christian graces, is left to carry on the work alone, but His grace is all-sufficient.

Mrs. AMANDA FUSTON (nee Hamil) was born in Georgia, on March 9, 1835. When she was nine years old she was brought to this State and when seventeen she was married to Mr. J. L. Fuston. Of this union were born six girls and two boys. On February 13, 1919, Sister Fuston was called away from this world of toil and sorrow to meet with her loved ones in glory. She was preceded to the grave by her husband, two daughters and one son, leaving behind four daughters, one son, and a host of loved ones and friends to mourn her death.

Sister Fuston was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for more than 60 years. She loved her Church dearly and took great interest in all its work. Next to her own children, she loved her pastor and took great delight in encouraging and helping him in his work. She is not dead, but sleepeth; and in the lives of her children and all people whom she could influence, she is living to-day and shall live with an influence for good throughout the ages. Weep not, dear loved ones, she is at rest and we all know where to find her! Her pastor,

Walnut Grove, Miss.

SELINA JACKSON was born in the State of Alabama in 1837, and departed this life in Robeline, La., on February 12, 1919. Sister Jackson was converted when quite young and joined the Missionary Baptist Church. About 1878, when Brother J. B. Cassity was pastor on the Pleasant Hill charge, she and her husband came into our Church. She was a devout Christian and lived a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for 40 years. After she had completed her education, she was happily married to F. V. Jackson. This union was blessed with seven children, of whom six are living, four boys and two daughters. After her marriage she did not lay down her work as a teacher. She felt that teaching was a part of her mission in this world. For many years she taught school. She loved children and young people, and in the schoolroom and in her Sunday school class she never failed to try to make a lasting impression on the minds of her pupils that religion is the chief concern of mortals here below. The writer was her pastor three different times during the past thirty years, visiting the home, meeting her at church and in the schoolroom, and among the sick and the bereaved. I believe she was one among the best women I ever new, an affectionate wife, a good neighbor, a kind and loving mother; a woman of great faith—she was a spiritual member of the Church. But she is gone from us. Her modest face will be seen no more in the congregation. Her earnest prayers will be heard no more in the church she loved so well. We will say to the bereaved ones that mother is not dead but sleepeth. Mother has passed over the river and is living near the tree of life. She is waiting for you. On the evening of the 13th, after the funeral services conducted by the writer, her remains were laid to rest in the Robeline cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

SCOOT EVANS, little son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Evans, of Conway, Miss., was born on December 9, 1912, and died on October 31, 1918. He lived only six years to bless and brighten the home, and his life was of untold comfort to his father and mother. The little life which shone so brightly has been extinguished here, only to shine more brightly in the heavenly home.

Only six days later, Effie Jane, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Evans, passed away. She was born on October 20, 1916, and died on November 6, 1918.

"God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform." "He doeth all things well." "The Lord hath given and the Lord hath taken away; blessed he the name of the Lord." Our loss is heaven's gain, and while earth has been made poorer, heaven has been made richer and more enticing. While the hearts of fond parents, brothers and sisters have been made sad, they have the consolation that Scoot and Effie Jane are happy in their heavenly home, where they will be awaiting the coming of those left behind. They cannot come back to us, but we can go to them.

May God bless and comfort the bereaved ones in this time of sorrow and sadness.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst one of our most beloved members, co-worker and friend, Mrs. J. S. Eason, be it resolved:

1. That we, the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, of Coldwater, Miss., with sorrowing hearts, bow in submission to the will of the loving Father, having the assurance that he knows best and doeth all things well.

2. That this faithful mother, devoted wife and loving daughter who has gone before may be a guardian angel to her loved ones here, and that a life so pure and unselfish will be sadly missed.

3. That we desire to express to the bereaved loved ones our deepest sympathy, and pray that they may feel the comforting presence of the Lord.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, spread upon our minutes and sent to the New Orleans Advocate and to the County paper for publication.

Signed: Mrs. A. Y. Gillispie, Mrs. F. F. Veazey, Mrs. E. S. Mosby.

CombSage Tea in Hair to Darken It

Grandma kept her looks dark, glossy, and youthful with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

Drugs Excite Your Kidneys, Use Salts

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Weekly Health Talks

Where Most Sickness Begins and Ends

BY FRANKLIN DUANE, M. D.

It can be said broadly that most human ills begin in the stomach and end in the stomach. Good digestion means good health, and poor digestion means bad health. The minute your stomach fails to properly dispose of the food you eat, troubles begin to crop out in various forms. Indigestion and dyspepsia are the commonest forms, but thin, impure blood, headaches, backaches, pimples, blotches, dizziness, belching, coated tongue, weakness, poor appetite, sleeplessness, coughs, colds and bronchitis are almost as common. There is but one way to have good health, and that is to put and keep your stomach in good order. This is easy to do if you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a wonderful tonic and blood purifier, and is so safe to take, for it is made of roots and herbs. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., stands behind this standard medicine, and it is good to know that so distinguished a physician is proud to have his name identified with it. When you take Golden Medical Discovery, you are getting the benefit of the experience of a doctor whose reputation goes all around the earth. Still more, you get a temperance medicine that contains not a drop of alcohol or narcotic of any kind. Long ago Dr. Pierce combined certain valuable vegetable ingredients—without the use of alcohol—so that these remedies always have been strictly temperance medicines.

If piles are torturing you, get and use Pierce's Anodyne Pile Ointment. The quick relief it gives is hard to believe until you try it. If constipated, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be taken while using Anodyne Pile Ointment. Few indeed are the cases which these splendid remedies will not relieve and usually overcome. They are so good that nearly every drug store has them for sale.

FROM CEDAR BLUFF, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: We started off well on the Cedar Bluff charge. The kind people gave us a cordial welcome at each point. The people of Cedar Bluff, irrespective of denominational connection, expressed kindly their appreciation of our coming by a handsome pounding on Christmas Eve. But there have been some things to hinder of late. Early in January, my dear wife, in an accidental fall, suffered a broken arm and other painful bruises, from which she has suffered much since. But the unfortunate affair has revealed to us plainer than ever that we live among the kindest of people. They have been to us as angels of mercy in our affliction.

And then we have had the worst and most generally spread epidemic of influenza that has yet visited this part of the country. The constant rains, too, and muddy condition of the roads has interfered very much with services in our country churches. But we know that the Lord is on our side and we still hope for, and are expecting, the victory.

We like the Advocate very much, and are trying to extend its circulation among the people as we have opportunity. A. W. LANGLEY.

A FEW LINES FROM COUSHATTA, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: Only a few lines to let you know how it is happening. We have just about rounded out the circuit. Sickness in the community, sickness in our homes and the impassable conditions of the roads have kept us from doing this, and much else, earlier.

We found a very pleasant and agreeable people here. I never saw a company of ladies anywhere that undertook their church work with more zeal than these do here. But lo, where are the men? It is not yet time to finish, and I understand that the game warden is on his job. So, when I thought about this, I organized a Men's Bible Class. That was two weeks ago and it is now bearing good fruit. We have a Woman's Missionary Society, a Junior Missionary Society, a Ladies' Aid and a splendid Epworth League, all doing fine.

Brother Atkinson was with us recently and magnified the office (not his office) of the presiding eldership. We had a full delegation of the stewards and a splendid quarterly conference.

With best wishes and prayers for you. A. A. BERNARD.

NEWS FROM COLLINS, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Collins is still on the map, and the church and W. M. S. are still alive. We had a very pleasant quarterly conference Monday, while the pastor was sick in bed with—no, not "flu"—but that same old Mississippi malaria that he has been troubled with for forty years. The conference was held in the pastor's bedroom for his accommodation. Brother Jones preached two sermons on the Centenary Movement. This is the greatest movement that the Church has ever inaugurated. I am putting all my power behind it. Wednesday, the W. M. S. came to the parsonage, each one loaded with all kinds of good things to eat. Then two drays unloaded a number of healthy packages for the pastor's wife. These expressions of appreciation rejoice our hearts and stimulate our efforts. We have some fine Christian people here. One member of Bethel Church sent me $25 for Conference work and $25 for pastor's salary. The Bethel and Collins people are pushing the Centenary movement. We are expecting this to be the greatest year of our ministry here. Your brother,

W. M. WILLIAMS.

Collins, Miss., Feb. 22.

A NOTE FROM BROTHER VARNER.

Dear Brother Carley: I just returned to this, my home Conference, this winter from Holston, where I've been for the past several years. It is good to be back on the home ground once more and to mix again with many of the brethren whom I had known before I left here. The people here at Hernando have received us most cordially, and, in addition to many favors, have given me a very substantial increase in salary. We have some very choice folks here in our Church. We are all much pleased with Dr. Meek as elder. He at one time served this charge and they hold him in very high esteem.

I am planning to hold my own revival here at some early date if nothing interferes. The surest way to make our Centenary movement a success is to start at once a revival campaign over the entire Church. Our goal ought to be a revival in every charge, as well as $35,000,000 in money. I hope you will use the influence of your paper to this same end—which I am sure you will do.

Success to you in your new field of labor! Sincerely,

CARROLL VARNER.

Hernando, Miss., Feb. 24.

READ AND ACT.

Dear Brother Carley: Brother J. R. Jones held our first quarterly conference Friday. He is well qualified to make the Centenary drive a victorious one. We greatly enjoyed his remarks on intercession and stewardship.

Brother L. Fayard, our famous infant baptizer, was just a little under the weather at conference Friday. He said, "Brother Jones, I have but eight babies to report this quarter, but I'll have a better report next time." And he will if they are to be found anywhere in two days' reach of him with his horse. Brother Fayard is worth much to our Church. He never grows tired of serving, yet he is poorly paid for his work, being among poor people. His report Friday showed only $10.

Brethren, if you have any money that you can spare, you could not place it in a more worthy cause than this work of Brother Fayard's. In one of his Sunday schools they have on roll 75, and 50 are Catholic children. The work that Brother Fayard is doing for Methodism among the Catholics is worthy of a liberal donation from every believer in Methodism; and yet his service is the least paid for. I take it upon myself to write about Brother Fayard, for I know his needs. If I didn't live near him, I would never know, for he will never complain.

Pardon me for this letter, but this cause is on my heart. I help him and expect to continue so doing. Brother Fayard's address is as follows: Rev. L. Fayard, Biloxi, Miss., Route 2.

Your brother,

R. A. ALLUMS.

DO AWAY WITH INDIGESTION

How to Purify a Sour, Distressed Stomach in a Few Minutes.

Let us talk plain English; let us call a spade a spade.

Your food ferments and your stomach isn't strong enough to digest the food you put into it, so the food sours and forms poisonous gases, and when it does leave your stomach it has not furnished proper nourishment to the blood, and has left the stomach in a filthy condition.

Take Mi-o-na stomach tablets if you want to change your filthy stomach to a healthy, clean, purified one.

If Mi-o-na fails to relieve your indigestion, rid you of dizziness, biliousness and sick headache, your dealer will cheerfully refund your money.

If you want to make your stomach so strong that it will digest a hearty meal without distress, and you want to be without that drowsy, all tired out feeling, take Mi-o-na; it should give you prompt relief. For sale by all leading druggists.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time— will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation.

FOOT TROUBLES

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, J. R. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

For this week there is only one word to say, and it is this—appoint your Missionary Committee, have the program carried out, sign the Allotment Card and mail to J. L. Nelll, Nashville, Tenn. A few men have done this. To delay longer means defeat all along the line. God forbid that any man should fall in this important matter.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

This is the elosing day of the W. B. C. Federation and next week we will give report of it.

The next Important Sunday sehool gatherings will be the seven Distrlet Sunday Sehool Institutes held at the time of the district eonferenees. The first one will be Tuesday or Wednesday, April 1 or 2. A program that will toueh the local sehool and the distrlet organization will be given. I wish we could make this Sunday sehool institute so helpful to the district conferenee that next year we would be invited to meet with it. Let us try to make it the best for all.

At this district eonference instltute we will elect the following officers for the New Orleans Distriet: A seeretary, who shall be exeeutive officer of the district; a superintendent of Elementary Department, superintendent of Intermediate-Senior; superintendent of Young People, Adult; superintendent of Missionary Education, and superintendent of Teaeher-training. These department superintendents keep close oversight of every sehool in the district, every sehool making report to the district officer. A blank report sheet must be made for such reports to be properly filled and filed.

It cannot be over-emphasized that our pastors, Sunday sehool superintendents and teachers be prompt to give information to those requesting it. Negleet is dangerous and disastrous to our work, for these district officers are donating their service and cannot give all their time to it.

Everybody at work in the sehool, every school at its task of instrueting in religious edueation.

ALONZO EARLY,
Sunday School Field Secretary.

Proof that Some Women do Avoid Operations

Mrs. Etta Dorion, of Ogdensburg, Wis., says:

"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

How Mrs. Boyd Avoided an Operation.

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

PEPTIRON IS GOOD

Made from a formula that uses iron in most digestible form, pepsin and gentian, great stomach tonics, nux and celery, the best vegetable remedies for the nerves, and also manganese and other valuable nutrients—there's no question of the value of Peptiron as a blood builder and strengthener.

The larger size of Peptiron contains enough for a full month's treatment, while other so-called iron preparations contain only one-half or less.

The "pep" or promptness with which Peptiron does its work is noted by everyone who takes it.

From the first dose the system responds to the treatment, and you realize you are at last using a medicine that begins right, continues and ends right. Better get a bottle of Peptiron today. Take two Peptiron after each meal—then comes good blood, good appetite, and—pep.

THE DAY.

"Come with me," said the Day, "and let us do things together!"

"What kind of things?" asked the man.

"Beautiful things!" said the Day. "Your friend is sick, and a visit from you would give him infiinite pleasure. Also it is long since you saw your sister, who is poor and sorrowful; and on the way, you might get some presents for her children, since they have no father to buy them gifts.

"Then suppose we take a walk in those woods, outside the city, where you and your brother used to play. How long is it since you saw them? or saw your brother? He is back again, and I hear is minded to lead a new life. We might go to him, and take him by the hand, and go a few steps with him. Then we might—"

"What nonsense is all this," cried the man. "These are things I should like well enough to do sometime, but not with you. I expect to make ten thousand dollars with your aid; sit down with me at the desk, instead of talking idly."

They sat down together, and the hours passed. By and by it was time for the Day to go.

"Good-bye!" she said.

"Oh, good-bye!" said the man. "Why do you look at me so sadly and strangely? I mean to do all those things that you spoke of, I certainly mean to do them, with one of your sisters."

"I have no more sisters," said the Day.

And passing through the door, she met the entering Night.

MAKING DEMOCRACY SAFE.

In the Social Service Questionaire on "Making Democracy Safe Politically," which was used in our March programs for auxiliaries, the question is asked: "What agencies are interested in the development of citizenship among the native and foreign-born?"

Our women are happy to answer that the Church in its mission work among the foreigners seeks to build American citizenship. Loyalty to a true democracy is a product of Christian religion.

St. Mark's as a Religious and Social Service center is showing the Italians here in our midst how to be American citizens.

MEETING OF LOUISIANA CONFERENCE EPWORTH LEAGUE CABINET.

The Louisiana Conference Epworth League Cabinet met at Mansfield, La., on Tuesday, February 18. The following were present: Rev. J. B. Grambling, of Shreveport, president; H. J. Bussa, of Vivian, vice president; J. J. Hamiter, of Shreveport, treasurer; Miss Gladys Means, of Baton Rouge, Junior Superintendent; Miss Odile Mallery, of Mansfield, Era Agent. The following district secretaries were also in attendance: Miss Julia Reid, Lafayette District; Miss Robina Vaught, New Orleans District; Miss Monika Goldsby, Baton Rouge District; Moreland Lewis, Ruston District. Rev. W. E. Thomas, Rev. L. L. McCain, Dr. S. A. Steele, members of the Conference Epworth League Board, and Rev. P. O. Lowrey, were also present.

The week of June 10-17 was fixed upon as the time for holding the League Assembly at Mansfield Female College. A registration feel of $1 for each delegate was agreed upon. President Bobbitt very kindly agreed to furnish room and board for the small sum of $1 a day. Mr. Grambling will endeavor to secure reduced railroad fare for the occasion.

The program for the Assembly has been carefully worked out by Rev. W. Winans Drake, the Dean, Rev. C. D. Atkinson, presiding elder of the Shreveport District, and Mr. Grambling. It promises much for the information and inspiration of those who attend the meeting.

The following pledges toward the expenses of the Assembly were received: New Orleans District, $100; Shreveport District, $125; Baton Rouge District, $100; Lafayette District, $100; Ruston District, $25. The hope was expressed that the Alexandria and the Monroe Districts would also make pledges. The New Orleans District paid its pledge of $100 in advance.

The League in its relation to the Centenary Movement was discussed. Emphasis was laid upon the necessity of our doing all in our power to meet the League's obligation. The local chapters were urged to pay their pledges to the African Special as soon as possible. The Centenary quota for Louisiana Leagues was announced as $1600.

We are determined, with God's help, to make this a great year in League work in Louisiana. The meeting adjourned on Wednesday morning with prayer for deeper consecration in the work of the League.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

A REAL BLESSING

F. M. Hammonds, Shamrock, Tex., writes: "I used Ready Relief. Had 104 chicks hatched and not one has died." Thos. A. White, of White Pigeon, Mich., writes: "I have not lost a chick. They are fine and grow fast. Ready Relief is a godsend."

You can have the same success. Reefer's Ready Relief in your baby chicks' first drinking water will help save them from the White Diarrhoea that kills off more than half the chicks that are hatched. Reefer's Ready Relief is the discovery of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 3253 Poultry Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a package of Ready Relief that will positively help you save your baby chicks. Aren't your delicate, downy baby chicks worth saving? You take no risk. Mr. Reefer guarantees to refund every cent of your money if you are not entirely satisfied and a million dollar bank backs up this statement. Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. Aren't your baby chicks worth five for a penny? That's about the cost of Reefer's Ready Relief. If you don't want to try this bank guaranteed chick saver, at least write today for Mr. Reefer's valuable free poultry book that gives the experience of a man who has made a fortuno out of poultry.—Adv.

FROM AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

Dear Brother Carley: Here comes another one of the old guard. At the meeting of the Mississippi Conference, which met in Canton, Miss., in the fall of 1875, I was sent as junior preacher on Amite work under Rev. John Ritchey. In January, 1876, I sent my first subscription for the Advocate. It has been on its weekly visits ever since. I have loved all of the Editors, and have often wondered if it would always have the "best," and I think it has been best all along. I have missed only a few copies (one about two weeks ago). Every year since Brother Ritchey went to the North Mississippi Conference, I have looked to see where he has been sent, so after forty-odd years I still think of him. We'll soon meet on the "other side." I wish every family in our Church could realize what a great blessing they are missing by not taking the Advocate.

I think our pastor, Rev. R. W. Smith, is going to do something in this sawmill town. Yours truly,

D. W. McLEAN.

Longville, La.

A LETTER FROM GRAND CANE, LA.

Dear Mr. Editor: Please let us have a little space for a letter from Grand Cane. It is seldom we ask for this. The Minutes will speak somewhat for Grand Cane, but not all. This is surely one of the delightful charges of the Conference. The Lord has many elect here. They love Him. The charge consists of three appointments, viz., Grand Cane, Stonewall and Kelthville. They are all on the Jefferson Highway. To attend these in an auto is a delight. The personnel of the charge is strong. There are no outstanding evils as we find in some places. The influenza has struck us hard. We have had many funerals. The charge is further bereaved in the loss of Dr. Bannerman, who had moved to Shreveport a few weeks prior to his death, but still had his membership here. L. H. Richardson died on the 14th inst. He was chairman of the board of stewards.

We are pushing the Missionary Centenary. We are giving out literature and writing letters and preaching on the subject. We are also holding special afternoon meetings for the promotion of this cause. Shall we "go over the top?" Well, I can't say, but we are pushing it. We are now beginning to get our League of Intercession organized. Pray for us.

We are making some improvements, placing our water cistern on a brick foundation, and placing it so as to run the water into the house. We have built a new garden and back-yard fence. It is out of post-oak and Ellwood wire. It will be here for my successor, several years from now. The chicken yard is fixed to perfection. This fall we will fix and repaint the parsonage. Then the property will be in most excellent condition.

What about our P. E.? He is faithful and worthy.

Now, Mr. Editor, how would you like to come up this summer and preach some for us, and we would raise a large number of subscribers for the Advocate? H. W. LEDBETTER, Pastor.

Grand Cane, La., Feb. 22.

What Makes Men of Blood and Iron? Men of Stamina, Force and Success—Men Who Lead The Way

Physician Explains Secret of Strong Nerves, Keen Active Brains and Great Physical Energy—says

Nuxated Iron Helps Put Strength and Energy Into the Veins of Men.

Will War Help Make New Race Of Supermen With Strength and Endurance Like Athletes of Old?

It is the men of blood and iron—on a par with the war-hardened fellows returning from camp and field—who will forge ahead in the business and political life of the country today. Living in the open, eating coarse foods and leading regular lives have made blood rich in iron for these strong, healthy, vigorous specimens of manhood. But no such opportunity for building up their health is open to thousands of men and women in civil life whose wearing tasks and iron-impoverished food sap their energy, and make them weak, anaemic and run-down and often cause their blood to literally starve for want of iron.

In commenting upon the probability of building up a stronger race of people by increasing the supply of iron in their blood, Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey, says: "Iron is absolutely necessary to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. Without iron there can be no strong, red-blooded men or healthy rosy-cheeked women, and unless this strength-giving iron is obtained from the foods we eat, it must be supplied in some form that is easily absorbed and assimilated. Refined foods and modern methods of cooking have robbed us of much of the iron which Nature intended we should receive. For supplying this deficiency and increasing the red blood corpuscles, I know of nothing more effective than organic iron—Nuxated Iron. From a careful examination of the formula and my own tests of Nuxated Iron, I feel convinced that it is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results. The fact that Nuxated Iron is [illegible] three million people annually [illegible] blood-[illegible] of [illegible] friends [illegible] and I am convinced that if others would take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or run down, it would help make a hundred times better men and women.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to [illegible] test. See how much you can [illegible] you can walk [illegible] Next take two [illegible] of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have multiplied their strength simply by taking Nuxated Iron. And this after they had been doctoring for months without being benefited. Nuxated Iron is prescribed and [illegible] not a secret remedy [illegible] druggists everywhere. It [illegible] iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make you [illegible] the stomach. The manufacturers [illegible] and their [illegible] satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

THE TEST OF TIME

When an article is without merit public sentiment condemns it. It immediately dies a natural death. When an article has merit, it will be everlastingly in demand. Gray's Ointment has now been used for a full round century. No greater proof can be offered of its effectiveness. One hundred years of honest, good old-fashioned value for money received has made it a family word in every household. Effective for sores, boils, burns, cuts, bruises, stings, eczema and the many forms of skin eruption. Ask your druggist. If he can't supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 800 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be sent you free.—Adv.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

KEEPING FAITH IN SMALL THINGS.

We sometimes wonder if men regard their word sufficiently in regard to small things. A speaker will accept a place on a program with the distinct understanding that he is to occupy ten minutes; he will deliberately take fifteen or twenty. A friend will promise to meet you at an exact time; he will keep you waiting and apparently think nothing of it. An associate will promise to attend to some little matter for you, and straightway forget all about it. These are small things—but keeping one's word is a big thing always.

THE WAR MAKES A DIFFERENCE.

Somehow or other, the fact that hostilities have ceased in Europe seems to have had a very depressing effect upon the spirit of generosity that was so characteristic of the American people while the fighting was in progress. The appeal for the relief of the sufferers in the Near East does not seem to meet with the ready response of other appeals to our Christian and humanitarian instincts, yet none of them was reinforced by stronger sentimental or practical considerations. We fear that the innate selfishness of human nature is reasserting itself at the expense of one of the worthiest causes that have been brought to our attention by the world revolution. Some things are worth a great deal more than money; the spirit of charity is one of them.

"THEY HAVE THEIR REWARD."

The chief claim to fame of some of the young women who went to France in the service of the Red Cross seems to lie in the fact that they had the privilege of dancing with certain celebrities while abroad—at least the only mention of their names we have seen in the daily newspapers was in connection with such terpsichorean activities. Of course we know that they did their work well—otherwise, they would have been dismissed—but they were evidently not unmindful of the possibilities of social achievements. "They have their reward."

SLOW JUSTICE.

A prisoner in a New Orleans jail charged with murder complains bitterly because he has languished in prison for seven months without being brought to trial. The district attorney in a published statement says that this delay was unavoidable. Among other reasons for the delay, he gives the fact that the section of the criminal court before which the case is to be tried was closed during September, October and November for vacation. There may be angles to the case that we know nothing about; but it is slow justice that forces a man to stay in jail seven months before he has a chance to attempt to prove his innocence. We had not thought such a thing possible in this enlightened country.

A CHANCE FOR SOMEBODY.

One of the most frequent complaints that we hear concerning Sunday school work, is that there is a great scarcity of efficient teachers. We do not believe that this scarcity is due to a lack of competent men and women in the Church, but to the failure of such men and women to take advantage of a magnificent opportunity to render service of the most telling kind. We do not know any department of our work that means more to the development of Christian character than the Sunday school. Perhaps you, reader, are called to the work of teaching. Think it over prayerfully, go to your pastor and your Sunday school superintendent and tell them what you want to do, remembering all the while that you cannot be a good teacher unless you are willing to prepare yourself diligently for teaching. Here is a fine chance for somebody to make an investment of work and influence that will bless the world.

A GREAT NEED.

We do not hesitate to express the opinion that the greatest need of the Church to-day is good preachers. We do not mean by this statement to reflect in any sense upon the character or ability of the men who at present are engaged in the sacred calling of the ministry; but we want to direct attention to the imperative need of recruiting the ranks of the present-day ministry with men who are thoroughly qualified in mind and heart to assume positions of heavy responsibility in a world that is sadly in need of constructive leadership. We are weary of the apparent assumption on the part of a great many people that almost any kind of man, provided he is religiously inclined, will make a good preacher. We are likewise weary of the apparent assumption on the part of a great many people that a man, once he has become a minister, is, by that very fact, automatically elevated to a superior state of mind and heart which makes it unnecessary for him to labor for greater efficiency in his accepted calling. We have never advocated the adoption of a compulsory education law for candidates for the ministry—that is, to the extent of requiring them to have a college degree—but we do advocate a conception of the ministry that will make it practically impossible for a man to get his own consent to assume spiritual oversight of a congregation before he has made extended, diligent and thorough preparation for the heavy responsibilities that necessarily go with that position. We do not mean to speak harshly, but it is our conviction that it is altogether too easy for a candidate to be admitted to the traveling connection of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. It is easier to become a preacher than it is to become a lawyer, or a dentist, or a doctor; but surely preaching is not a less important, or a less exacting calling than are these professions. The Church needs more good preachers; it will get them when it insists upon having them.

IT MAY BE SO.

We heard a thoughtful man declare the other day that, in his opinion, one reason for the apparent weakening of moral restraints throughout the world is to be found in the changed attitude of parents toward their children. Formerly, there was something of parental control; nowadays, children learn very little of authority and government in the home. He may be right.

POOR BUSINESS.

A secular newspaper reported a few days ago that a school teacher in a Northern city teaches by day and dances in a cabaret at night. She is a widow with an eighteen-months old child. Her defense is that she cannot support herself and child properly on the salary she receives for teaching and that she has to supplement her income in some other way. We have not, in a long time, come across a sadder commentary upon present-day habits of thinking and living. We suggest only a few of the thoughts that come to mind in connection with this incident: In the first place, no mother with an eighteen-months old child has any business teaching school—her duty is at home. In the second place, it is a reflection upon our boasted interest in educational affairs that we do not pay our public school teachers enough to enable them to live comfortably. In the third place, it is a poorly developed economic system that produces economically dependent members of society. In the fourth place, a cabaret dancer is not a fit person to teach school. In the fifth place, it indicates a low conception of social responsibility for a community to allow such a situation to exist. In the sixth place, it suggests that the moral sense of great masses of our people is at a low ebb. In the seventh place—but why continue? The reader may follow the subject in his own way.

ALL HE'S WORTH.

It has been estimated that William Hohenzollern, former emperor of Germany, has earned, at current rates, about $30 by sawing wood in his retreat in Holland. He is a better wood-cutter than he was emperor.

IT IS A SHAME.

Press dispatches last week announced a cigarette shortage in England. In explanation of the fact, the opinion of experts was quoted to the effect that the shortage is due to two things: increased smoking by women, and increased smoking by the soldiers at the front because they have less to do than formerly. These things may not be the explanation of the shortage—we hope they are not—but if they are, we cannot refrain from remarking that it is a shame that the cigarette habit has become a kind of national sin of the English people. It is bad enough for men to smoke cigarettes—but the women! Let us pray that American women will not follow the example of their English sisters.

ETERNITY, ETERNITY.

By Oscar Kuhns.

My heart has risen from earthly things,
And turns itself alone to thee,
O thou who art my love, my all,
Eternity, Eternity!

Dear as the touch of lips that love
The contact of thy soul and mine;
And all my inmost soul is filled
With joy unspeakable, divine.

I gaze upon the boundless sea;
I look up toward the mountain height;
I see the sunset's mystic glow;
And lo! my soul is filled with light.

"'Tis God," I murmur to myself,
"Who gives this joy that will not cease;
'Tis He who, through the shining years,
Has filled my soul with His own peace."

How blissful are the hours I spend,
Alone with God, my soul and thee,
O, thou who art my love, my all,
Eternity, Eternity!

FIFTY-FIFTY RELIGION

We read the other day of a wealthy shoe manufacturer who owned six factories, and who, when war broke out, was doing a good business and making record profits. When the war began and the Government called for shoes for the soldiers he accepted the unsalaried chairmanship of a Government committee, but his six factories were still running night and day for their owner. But the pressure became stronger, and first one factory and then another was handed over to the Government until three of his factories were working for the country and not for the owner. Then his son enlisted, and finally he handed over to the Government all his six factories to help win the war, and he explained that he had come to realize, albeit slowly, that a fifty-fifty loyalty was not the right kind. His country had a right to his all.

And as we read the story we could not but feel that he was right. The true patriot is the 100 per cent. patriot. And the true Christian is the 100 per cent. Christian. We have known men try to dicker with the Lord just as this man did with his country, and we have noticed that they never really enjoyed their religion until they quit their dickering. The men who hold back something from God lose vastly more than they save. And the man who is always afraid that his religion is going to absorb too much of his time or too much of his money will never know what the joy of religion means.

The feeling that what I kept back from God is so much saved is all wrong. The idea that the ideal religious life is the one which grips all of this world that it can and relinquishes only enough to make sure of escape from hell is wholly mistaken, and is not only a libel upon our God, but also makes impossible the peace and joy which Christ so freely and so gladly gives to all His whole-hearted followers. By so much as we withhold ourselves and our services from the Lord, by so much we prevented His love and His power flowing into our hearts and lives. Giving, we get richer; withholding, we get poorer. And yet this experience is one of the commonest. Everywhere we find men and women making the experiment, and everywhere we find the same miserable results following the experiment.

But why should Christian men make such an experiment? The reason seems to be that we do not trust God. To many of us religion is an undesirable addition to life which a man must needs have in order to escape perdition, but of which it is almost as great a calamity to have too much as it would be to have too little. Of course we all disclaim any such belief, but our actions belie our words. The human heart seems easily to deceive itself, and when we find a man protesting that his religion is the grandest thing in his life, for which he would be willing even to die, while at the same time he coolly tells us that religion and business do not mix, or that religion and politics should not be yoked together, or that religion and social life should be separated most carefully, we cannot believe that that man really accepts the fact that religion is the grandest thing in life. He may say what he likes, but he really does not believe that God is good, or that Christ is the incarnation of divine love. Deep down in his heart there lurks the belief that religion would spoil his business, would injure his political career, and would sadly mar his social enjoyments. He has enough religion to get him to heaven, and he wants no more.

Why should we doubt our God, or imagine that Christ came to earth to kill every innocent joy? Surely there is something wrong with a theology which makes men afraid to be too friendly with Christ, and which leads us, while we accept God's way of getting to heaven, to prefer and choose our own way in running our business, conducting our politics, or meeting our social obligations. Are we not just a little ashamed of our Lord at times, just a little afraid to follow Him through evil report, just a little shy of mounting the hill Calvary with Him? This is all wrong. Christ means heaven to men here, now, and forever, no matter what skies may frown nor what foes may threaten. The only religion which can always be victorious, always be singing, always be glad, is the 100 per cent. religion, where Christ is all-in-all and we are wholly His, where we have no secrets He does not share, no ambitions He does not approve, and no aims upon which He does not smile. Let Him have His way, and life will be sweeter than ever before, and filled with a power which must otherwise be lacking.— Christian Guardian.

HOW IT IS DONE.

By Chaplain A. F. Vaughan.

I said we were digging in after the big drive on the 12th of September. That does not mean we were idle or that there was no fighting going on. The fire from the big guns was going constantly day and night and there were frequent gas attacks. Patrols were out every night making observations, keeping in touch with the operations of the enemy and bringing in prisoners. As a rule they used the old-fashioned American shotgun, loaded with buckshot, with splendid success. A protest was made by the German government and a threat went with it that every American prisoner caught with that deadly weapon would be shot immediately—a protest from the people who introduced poisonous gas, submarines and every other barbarous thing that they could conceive in their hellish minds. Occasionally there would be raids, a little more ground squeezed from the Germans, always improving the position of our troops. When a new drive started above us, the artillery would "put over a barrage." It meant that for several hours the great guns would send over a regular hurricane of shells for several hours without cessation into the enemy trenches. A barrage always preceded an infantry attack and was intended to open the way for the "doughboys to go over the top." It cleaned out a great many of the machine gun nests and would clear the woods of the German heavy artillery.

I remember very distinctly a raid that took place on the 26th of September. A big drive was to be made on the Verdun sector. We were told to put over a barrage to be followed by a raid, largely in order to distract the attention of the Germans and make them think that the attack would be general. Just one batallion was to take part in it. Not only was it intended to deceive the Germans, but there were two important towns that lay in the valley that separated the two front lines, and we wanted to occupy them. It was the first time that I had been present at an officers' meeting when such a program was mapped out. Of course, the general plan of attack had been made out ahead of time, but there were many practical details to be worked out. I was personally acquainted with most of the officers, and had become very much attached to them. While sitting there listening to their conversation, I could not help but admire their courage, optimism and determination. Many of them had a personal grudge against Jerry on account of the inhuman practices that he was guilty of in this war. They had lost a number of valuable men, many of their warm personal friends, and were always glad to give the Huns a little of their own medicine. As a matter of fact, there had been just a little impatience among the men because they had not been permitted to go further on after the first drive, when the German morale had been so perceptibly broken. The idea of digging in did not appeal to the average American soldier. Perhaps he was just a little impatient and daring, but he did not come to France on a pleasure trip and the idea of fighting a few months during the warm summer months and resting the balance of the year was entirely foreign to his mind. Therefore a raid or a drive, or anything else like actual warfare, was just the thing he wanted.

These officers made their plans as if they were going on a hunting expedition, and freely predicted where our headquarters would be next day. Among them was a bright young fellow to whom I had become very much attached. We met at the mess and the very first day he shared his mess kit with me. We used to sit in our dugout for hours and talk about the folks at home, swap yarns, settle the war and start new ones. Just the year before he had graduated from one of the leading universities of the South and had his plans all made for a place in this busy old world. With high ideals and brilliant prospects ahead of him, he faced the future with every hope of success. He told me of his good mother and sweetheart and proudly dug their pictures from the inside pocket of his blouse. Every soldier who has a sweetheart at home thinks she is the finest girl in the world, and they are all correct. After the officers' meeting that afternoon, we sat down behind the stump of an old tree. He had no idea of being injured, was glad of another opportunity to carry his men over the top, and thought the oftener we had real action the sooner the war would end, for every one counted heavily against the Germans. When we parted I shook his hand, wishing him good luck and offered a little prayer that he might come out safe and sound. Laughingly, he said, "Oh, there is nothing to this; the Huns are on the run."

The artillery had been instructed to begin the barrage at 11 o'clock, zero hour was fixed at 5 o'clock in the morning, the first aid men were given their stations, and every detail was worked out with absolute precision so that there would be no hitch in the work. We went back to our dugouts to wait for the final summons to go forward to the place from which the raid would start. What are men thinking about just before they start on a raid like this? I remember reading a chapter in "Over the Top," that describes it better than anything I can think of just now. It is a foregone conclusion that some are going to be killed, others will be wounded, and if a man comes out without a scratch, he is simply "in luck." A great many of the men honestly feel that they are not going to be injured and the strange thing is that they are usually the ones who do escape. When a fellow makes up his mind that he will be "knocked off," it seems that he almost invited death; at least, that seemed to be the conviction of most of the men. Here is a place where Calvinism seemed to have worked in pretty well. Some of the men argued that they had only one time to die. If death came in this raid; it was all right, for they would have died anyway, so what was the use to worry? Others were strong on their "hunches," and not many of them ever had a "hunch" that they would be killed. And, if they were hit with a shell, it might just wound them a little bit and that would be all right. When a fellow came out with just an arm gone, one eye shot out and a wound somewhere on his body, he was considered very fortunate. The men were not as jovial that night as they usually were. Occasionally, some one would tell a funny story, everybody would laugh at first, then suddenly the smiles would disappear from all faces and there would be a serious pause. They were not downhearted, nor were they regretting the business that was just ahead of them, but these men knew that they were soon to look death in the face, that their lives would be hanging in the balance; and then they wanted to win. The regiment had made a good name for itself during its short experience at the front and the men were proud of it. Some of the men wrote letters, not many of which were ever mailed, nor did a living soul, save the writers, ever see the contents. They were written "to be mailed in case of—"

At the appointed hour the men moved forward and the barrage started. It seemed to me that all creation broke loose—the hillsides and the dugouts shook with the roar of artillery. It was a magnificent sight. The night was dark and it was misting a little, but the fire from the guns made the sky as clear as day. Hour after hour they blazed away, carrying destruction and death into the enemy's trenches. Suddenly it all ceased and the night became dark again—zero hour had come. The men were waiting for the command to go forward. It was not a question of "going over the top," for we had no top to go over—our men were stretched out along the ground and the Huns had been sending over a regular hurricane of shells. Long before the raid had started, many an American soldier had made the great sacrifice. The men were on their toes, ready to jump at the command of their officers, when suddenly the order came and the men started forward. There was no singing, no Yankee yells, but quietly and with determination they went forward to do their "bit" for the great cause. I lifted my heart to God that these brave men might not fail in their effort and that there might be as little loss of life as possible.

Suddenly, a terrible thing happened. The Germans started a counter-barrage and it was one of the most terrific in the history of this war. In some way they had discovered our plans, probably by tapping the wires, for they timed it just right. Our telephone connections had been cut, no runners were available and it was impossible to get word to the artillerymen to come to our aid. Regardless of that fact, the men went on, only to be driven back by German fire. But there was one captain who reached his objective an old army man who could not be driven back. He sent word back that he had succeeded, asking for assistance from the artillery, but nothing could be done. His men saw him when he fell wounded saw the Germans pull him into their trenches, and then as many as could do so returned to our lines, leaving a number of dead and wounded on the field. It is said that German soldiers were seen killing the wounded American soldiers and laughing at their cries for help.

I remembered my friend and tried to locate him, but he was not to be found. Early in the morning I went to his headquarters. A guard was standing at the door, there was a look of sorrow on his face, and I knew then that his commanding officer had not returned. We saluted and I turned away with a great lump in my throat, for I knew full well that his noble body was lying out in that valley between our line and the Germans', and my next duty would be to find it and lay him away side by side with others who had been killed. Still another was numbered with those whom I loved, but would see no more in this life.

Evidently, we had failed that time and there was a general feeling of depression among the men. I ate breakfast with a lieutenant of the Machine Gun Battalion and he told me of the harrowing experiences through which he had passed early that day. His own men had been shot up badly, he had stumbled over the dead bodies of many others, had tried to stop the flow of blood from the wounds of his closest friend, but saw him pass to the Great Beyond. We tried to be cheerful but it was rather a dark day. Had we really failed? A message came from the General congratulating the men on their splendid effort and bringing the news of a very successful drive on the Verdun sector. We had failed to capture two towns in the valley, we had lost a number of men, but the Germans were badly fooled. They thought the attack was to be general and were unable to determine just where the big blow would fall. And so it goes in warfare as well as everywhere else—sacrifices have to be made for the good of a common cause, however much a few have to suffer.

THE PREACHER, GOD'S LEADER.

By Rev. Lastie N. Hoffpauir.

Preachers are primarily responsible for the condition and success of God's Church. They shape its character, give tone and direction to its life. Pre-eminently they are God's leaders, and the Church is made to look up or down by the kind of life its leaders live. Whenever the Church has failed, it has failed for lack of spiritual leadership. The Apostles laid themselves out in work and prayer, that the saints might be perfect; not that they should have a little relish for the spiritual life, but that they might be "filled with all the fullness of God," be wholly sanctified. By their fervent prayers and holy lives they led the people to hunger and thirst for the things of God, that "they might stand perfect and complete in all the will of God."

God depends on the preacher as His leader. He sent Elijah to lead Elisha into the ministry. When God made the world, He did not call men to help make a material world, but when he wants leaders He calls men to lead in all His ways. When God wanted Israel out of Egypt, He had Moses to lead them out toward the promised land. The preacher shapes the times and institutions of the country. Saintly leaders do much in making saints out of those who are not apostles. Apostolic preachers make apostolic saints and keep apostolic times of purity and power in the Church.

The Church is divine, the treasure it holds is heavenly, but it bears the touch of the human. The treasure is in earthen vessels; and it tastes of the vessel. The Church of God is shaped by its leaders, and it will be what its leaders are; spiritual if they are so, worldly-minded if they are, conglomerate if its leaders are. All Israel's kings gave character to Israel's piety. A Church very rarely rises above the religious condition of its preachers. Spirituality follows in the wake of strong, holy preachers, while, on the other hand, disaster follows the wake of feeble or worldly-minded leaders. Spiritual leaders bring times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. The Spirit-filled preacher will never be like the rivers that flow into the Arctic Ocean—frozen at the mouth—but they will be on fire with a holy message that they may lead their people on in the things of God. When we have these times, sinners are convicted, mourners are converted and believers are sanctified. Spirit-filled leaders are men of might, and march with a conquering tread like the Apostles on the day of Pentecost. Jesus Christ can work wonders in this old sin-stained earth if he just can get the suitable man. Spiritual leaders can lead the Church on in fellowship with Jesus Christ. The Church of God has never been without these men; they adorn its history; they are examples of unfailing inspiration and blessing to God's people all down the ages. Leaders who can stir things mightily for God, whose spiritual revolutions change the aspect of things, are the crying need of the Church to-day. That which has been done by spiritual leaders can be done again, and even better. Christ had that in mind when he said, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me, the works that I do, shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." The great past has not exhausted the possibilities for the men of God to do things.

BISHOP E. E. HOSS.

By Rev. Theodore Copeland, D.D.

The sympathy and prayers of many devout souls are enlisted in behalf of this afflicted servant of God, as he lingers amid the shadows of earth and patiently waits for the sunrise of a better world. Like the great apostle, he can truthfully say, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith; from henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me in that day."

Bishop Hoss descended from a sturdy stock of brave pioneers, whose sterling qualities adorned and beautified his lofty character. His maternal grandfather, Colonel John Sevier, was a valiant soldier of Revolutionary fame, a popular statesman of marked ability, having served six terms as Governor of Tennessee.

The Bishop has been a conspicuous figure in American history for many years, and is well acquainted with men and measures abroad. As a citizen he has displayed the traits of a true American, invariably espousing and defending civic righteousness in public and in private, and using his influence to bring about better moral conditions. As University professor, as editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, and as Bishop of the Southern Methodist Church, his ability has been recognized and widely appreciated. As a preacher of the gospel he has adorned his high vocation by his zeal and masterly eloquence. In the social realm he has had no superior—a delightful story-teller, a charming conversationalist, entertaining, but not monopolizing the entire situation. In the domestic circle, he was kind, gentle and tender, making his home a paradise of all the Christian graces. For many months he sat beside his invalid wife and ministered to her every want, till God took her to her reward. His sons, E. E., Jr., and Dr. Sessler Hoss, and his daughter, Miss Mary, are ardently devoted to him and are bestowing upon him every possible attention to make him comfortable and happy.

Back in the nineties, while editor of the Christian Advocate, he visited Russellville, Ala., and preached at the re-opening of the Methodist Church at that place. Some of his relatives were living there, and "Bonny Kate," the second wife of John Sevier, was buried there. She figured in a pretty bit of romance during the wars with the Indians. The Bishop visited her grave, and asked of Dr. Sevier, her son, permission to remove her dust and place it beside that of her husband in Tennessee. The request was refused, however, the body was not molested, and will rest there until the resurrection.

Bishop Hoss has several times been a guest in my home, always bringing a blessing to my entire family. He was one of my best, truest friends, and I shall mourn his departure as the going of a great man, a veritable Prince in Israel. In the long roll of eminent saints who have blessed and honored the people called Methodist, the name of Bishop E. E. Hoss shines with resplendent lustre.

PROVING GOD.

By Dr. John T. Sawyer.

A consuming drought had come upon the land and all animal and vegetable life was suffering for food and drink. In the big room of the Temple, where the offerings of the people were kept, the meat was gone and the frankincense was gone and the room was quite empty, though it was the business of the people to keep that room full of their offerings to the Lord of the Temple. Such was the state of things when God gave his challenge to his people. God's challenge through his prophet was this: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

The people brought their offerings and, after that, the cloud was seen. How glad the people were to see that, though some likely said, so hard are some persons to be convinced that God will do what he says he will, "It does look like a cloud to be sure, but we have been deceived so often—it may not be a sign of rain." The cloud, however, grew, spread, got very big and dark, and the few large drops fell, and then, the driving, rushing, flooding torrents descended and all nature, and all that breathed, revived. In due time the barren lands, suddenly made fertile, yielded such a harvest as never before was known.

Of a truth, God blesses his Church and his people a hundred-fold and over when they bring all their tithes into his storehouse. Many a church and many an individual Christian in our land is suffering for lack of spiritual blessings, because they have withheld from God and his cause their tithes of liberal offerings of money, efforts and prayer. God gives us to know that the cure for spiritual despondency and drought in the Church at large, or in our individual selves, is to begin and to keep on giving, doing and praying. While the late years—though years of bitterest war—have been very far from a drought or spiritual famine in the Christian Church, yet they might have been even more abundant in spiritual blessings. While much has been accomplished in the way of giving, doing and praying, yet it must be that we have somewhere or somehow been behind with our offerings to God. Think it over—has every one of our millions of Methodists given all that he or she could in money for the maintenance of the Gospel and the spread every whither of the Master's Kingdom? Has each of us given in service, time, influence, and labor of head, heart, and hand all that we could? Has there been all the real praying on our part that there might have been? Has there not been often more words than faith in our prayers, and have we not at times neglected to honor God by expecting answers to them? God would have his people pray for Zion—pray for all men everywhere—have we been doing it? Is our account all square in this very important matter of bringing our tithes of prayer into the storehouse of God?

The past has gone and its record is made—we must act in the present; and, securing a glorious future, have given to all of us the too-big-to-receive blessing God has promised. The splendid opportunity is up to Southern Methodists to raise the thirty-five millions alloted to them as their part of the Centenary sum. The rule for all God's people, as stated by his prophet, is this: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse." The call upon our Church, and upon every member of it, is to loosen the purse-strings that the Lord's money may flow into his treasury; and to gird up the loins and get down to the hardest sort of work in the Master's vineyard; and to go to praying mightily and believing heartily while they pray, remembering that would they be prevailing Israels, they must first be wrestling Jacobs.

Our membership have signed up and entered the Fellowship of Intercession. It is well to ask right here—what is prayer? It is not the utterance of certain cold formalities of speech, nor is it the bowing of head, the kneeling, the standing, or the prostration of one in the dust. No, but it is the coming with all the burdens on our heart, the sins, the wants, the sorrows and expectations—the bringing of them to our sympathizing Father.

There is a picture of the Cross coming right up out of the angry waves, and a woman with her arms clasped about it. So, we must come to God, not only for mercy, but for all we need, and for his blessing on all we do. Just one hand carelessly raised and placed on the Cross will never pull one out of the waves. No, both arms clasped around it, and the heart thus drawn up to it, will bring the relief and blessing asked. We must be thus bold in the ardor of our faith and in the fervor of our desire. Sincere, earnest praying helps to liberal giving and successful working. Is it any wonder that the praying Havelock won so many victories? Two hours every morning he pleaded with God in prayer. So, our own praying Stonewall Jackson. Such a man goes into his work like a thunderbolt shot forth by the arm of the Omnipotent God. Assuredly none can successfully resist the man who has been in the secret place of the Most High, and comes forth panoplied with power divine. It is said of Jonathan Edwards that he once preached in such power that the people held on to the pillars of the church lest their feet should slip into perdition. Prayer did that—a company of Christians spent all the night before in prayer. They were in downright earnest. John Livingstone in Scotland with one sermon brought five hundred souls to Christ. Prayer did that too—for his people had been praying all night long for that blessing. Are we Southern Methodists going to raise the thirty-five millions?

Of course we are, if we believe it; agonize for it; and expect it of God. To this end we must have the divine strength and the working power of the Holy Ghost.

Oh, that the Church, and its every member, might be endued with a Pentecostal baptism of power! How shall that come? Just as it did to the first disciples; and, as God exhorts by our bringing all the tithes and offerings into God's treasury and laying all upon the altar in thorough consecration.

Herewith, as He asks us to do, shall we prove God; and, proving him, find that God "will open the windows of heaven and pour us out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR METHODIST HOSPITAL.

Dear Mr. Editor: The Building Committee of the Methodist Hospital awarded the first of the series of contracts for the erection of the new hospital on the large and spacious lot known as the Old Mallory Home in Memphis. This contract provides for the excavation, plumbing and wiring, and the reinforced concrete frame, the cost of which will be $105,000. It is expected that the work will begin about the middle of April, and the work will progress without hindrance until completion.

It is the plan of the Committee to award the contracts for the other parts of the structure so soon as prices and the cost of labor have been brought somewhat to normal conditions. The price agreed upon between the Building Committee and the builders for the work to be done is but little above the prices that were paid when conditions were normal, and the Committee thinks that they have done the best that could have been done for the present, or might be done within the near future. The building when completed will cost approximately $500,000.

The Building Committee is composed of L. M. Stratton, Chairman; G. T. Fitzhigh, R. W. Bailey, R. R. Ellis, and F. N. Fisher, all of whom are among the best equipped and most influential business and professional men of the city. They have had bids submitted repeatedly in the past, but have rejected them because they thought prices were too high, notwithstanding the fact that they were exceedingly anxious to begin work, so that the public mind would be put at rest as to whether the building would be erected at all or not.

It is thought that some time in May and not later than the first of June, the corner-stone will be laid, at which time there will be appropriate ceremonies.

There should be no excuse now for further delay on the part of the subscribers to the hospital fund in paying their subscriptions. We will need all the money now that can be secured, and we especially urge that those who are behind with their payments send checks at once.

NOTES FROM SEASHORE DISTRICT.

By Rev. Jno. D. Ellis.

Signs of spring are numerous within the bounds of the Seashore District, and soon there will be the pleasing variety of a new world. The season of hope, which has been held a prisoner by the frosts of winter, is being liberated in all its beauty, and thousands of plants and flowers are rising out of sleep to greet the eye of man, and praise their august Creator. If the Church has reposed during winter, spring teaches the lesson of renovation and renewed activity, and is emblematical of the resurrection of the human body by power Divine, when the saints of God will be introduced into new and happier realms.

During the entire winter, church work has suffered because of excessive rain; and the protracted quarantine incident to the epidemic of influenza has interfered with worship and church enterprises. But the district is getting back to normal, and is taking on new life, under the efficient leadership of Rev. J. R. Jones, P. E.

Pastors and people are consecrating their energies to regain what was lost, and even to go forward to greater things. Every preacher is at his post, and busy. The new men of the district, Norton, Miller, Higginbotham, Landrum, Phillips, Corley, and Ellis, have taken hold of things in the same way Paul exhorted Timothy, and all the pastors are giving their time and zeal to the Kingdom. None is ashamed of the old-time religion, and all are laying foundations, planning and praying for a revival and better things. Congregations are gradually increasing, and the Sunday schools have caught the spirit of the season, and are taking on new life.

Official boards are realizing the necessity of giving the pastors better financial support, and already Logtown, Gulfport First Church, Wiggins, Moss Point, Brooklyn, Bond, McHenry and Howison, Long Beach and Lyman, and Picayune, have increased the assessments for ministerial support. Other charges will fall into line, to the end that every pastor will have an adequate salary to meet the expenses of operation. In some of the charges the official boards are paying the pastors more than ever before, without having yet raised the salaries by quarterly conference action.

Consecrated laymen, together with the pastors, are interested in the Centenary movement, and the district will do its part toward the world's reconstruction, and to strengthen the institutions of the Church. Group meetings have been held at Lumberton, and Gulfport, where the Centenary movement was fully discussed, enthusiasm aroused, and financial allotments made.

The presence of Mr. D. C. Hull, Conference Missionary Secretary, added greatly to the success of the gatherings. Brother Hull has a wonderful mental grasp of things, and walks along modestly and unostentatiously with the tread of a giant. A fellow like him should be employed by the Church, and given "carte blanche," to go anywhere and everywhere over Zion, because thousands of laymen and preachers can sit at his feet with profit.

THE BATTLE OF ARRAS.*

By Uysses Grant Foote.

'Twas Easter Day—what an irony—
And the village bells began to play
From St. Quinten to far off Lens.
At shattered altars the humble bends,
While chanting choirs respond "Amens;"
The cannon tones the heaven rends,
As a thousand lights began to play;
And brave men thought of God that day.

Arras could gain no truce of peace,
For war's wild rage had no surcease.
Black shadows fell in the golden aisles
Of her Cathedral's smouldering piles.
The big guns barked for miles on miles.
To where great Vimy Ridge defiles
On down the distant plains release.
It seemed their wrath would never cease!

The dogs of war had begun to wake!
The fate of England was at stake!
For days that mad inferno flamed
With a fiery wrath as yet unnamed;
Though an hundred battles, red and famed,
Had left their millions dead or maimed.
Once more war's storm began to brake.
And earth's foundations made to shake.

Brave men must wait—must bide the time;
Must wait till patience grows sublime.
It tries the mettle of men's souls
To wait—to pass from holes to holes.
Then wait again. An hundred goals
Are seeming lost in the cloudy folds
Of such delays. Men wish meantime
The open charge and to fight sublime.

The night had flamed its weary hours;
At last the dawn appears and flowers;
A thousand buds of fire, which bend
And arch the hills and vales, descend
In one plaid wreath; then blooming lend
Their fumes to Death and Mars, and blend
In sleep the brave whom war devours.
And thus men died through hours and hours.

Shells burst and star the sky, and rain
Great showers of fire on town and plain.
White streams of liquid death gush out
And flood the fields; or put to rout
Those burrowed in; then those about
Their guns; then those in deep redoubt.
God help brave men in such a rain!
And those gone mad and die insane!

Some who, alone, had feared the dead,
And sat for hours with stifled dread,
Were here unmoved when they passed by
Where heaps of comrade brothers lie;
Or sat all night where spirits fly
Homeward from those who begged to die.
And many vows and prayers were said
By those who saw great banks of dead.
Haig's men swept on towards Vimy Ridge

O'er piles of Huns who formed a bridge
For them to pass the reddened streams.
What grace their ruler's soul redeems?
For these had paid the price his dreams
Of empire cost. This last it seems
Would fill his cup: For on Vimy Ridge
Stands Haig—his right and privilege.

MISSISSIPPI REPRESENTED AT WAR WORK CONFERENCE.

By Rev. O. S. Lewis.

A rare privilege is being enjoyed by the Mississippi delegates at the War Work Conference of the Y. M. C. A., now being held at Blue Ridge, North Carolina. Here, in the heart of the Blue Ridge mountains, are gathered a hundred representative ministers, educators, lawyers and business men from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, and Tennessee. These men, under the leadership of some of the ablest instructors of the South, who have devoted their lives to the consideration of economic, social and roligious problems, are studying the great vital questions of the after-the-war period.

This is the fourth of a series of seven schools of ten days each, at each of which Mississippi is entitled to fifteen delegates. The State is divided into districts, and two delegates, one a minister and one a layman, may be sent from each district.

It is not the purpose of these conferences to map out arbitrary programs or to formulate opinions for those who attend, but simply to afford an opportunity for the instructors and the delegates to study together the great problems which have arisen, or which will arise in the near future.

Those who attend should not do so with the idea simply of enjoying a vacation. Here are gathered some of the most earnest thinkers of the Southeast; and devoted minds are striving to reach a solution of the religious, economic, social and civic problems which confront us. About seven hours a day are given over to the lecture work.

Those who comprise Mississippi's present delegation are: A. B. Barry, McComb; T. M. Bradley, Cleveland; R. M. Boone, Cleveland; O. S. Lewis, Vicksburg; R. A. Tucker, Grenada; M. McKibben, Grenada; J. S. Andrews, Enterprise; V. G. Clifford, Enterprise; J. A. Huff, Poplarville; B. M. Russell, Monticello; E. Strickland, Belmont; Wayne Allen, Collins; R. H. Watkins, Collins; J. F. Henderson, Iuka; W. T. Winston, Cleveland; B. W. Griffith, Jr., Vicksburg.

These men have been strengthened and inspired by their study and experience. Some small sacrifice may be necessary to give the required time for the conference, but each delegate will feel amply repaid; for there will come the realization that probably during no equal period during his life has there been the same development and growth. Mississippi is asked to continue to send her full quota of fifteen delegates, since hers is the loss if she falls short.

A NOTE FROM BROTHER J. M. HUGGIN.

Editor Advocate: Will you kindly give space in your excellent paper for a little correction of Brother Miller's "Recollections?" Brother Miller was mistaken as to the date of the Conference held at Grenada, of which he wrote. The Conference convened in the fall of 1881, and not in 1879. Brother Miller's "Recollections?" Brother Miller about his kindness to me. Not only did he lose much of the pleasure of the Conference, but he attended to some business for me at its close, without which I could not have gone back to the charge of the previous year, or moved to my new charge. He sold my horse and brought me the money. Brother Miller has a very warm place in my heart. I wish I could, in a substantial way, show my appreciation of his great kindness. Brother Miller was as true to principle as the needle to the pole, which caused him to suffer at the hands of a time-serving superior in office. I hope Brother Miller will write frequently for the Advocate.

TO THE FRIENDS OF PROHIBITION IN LOUISIANA.

In a few weeks men will begin to announce for the Legislature. Please request each and every candidate to state publicly whether or not he will support and vote for a State law, giving State and city officers authority to enforce national prohibition.

The Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution confers this power upon the State officers. But in order for our State courts to act, we must have a State law corresponding with the National law.

National prohibition has been written into the Federal Constitution. So it is no longer a question of Pro and Anti—it is simply a question of enforcing the law. Any man who would aspire to the office of legislator would surely be in favor of law enforcement. In fact, he would be required to uphold the Federal and State Constitution when he takes the oath of office. This being true, why should any man hesitate to pledge himself to support a bill empowering our State courts to enforce National prohibition? Please see that every candidate is respectfully requested to express himself on this important matter.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY.

The authorities have changed the time for Sunday School Day from the fourth Sunday in April to the third Sunday in May. Because of the Centenary this will be a better time. May I not urge all our pastors in the North Mississippi Conference to see to it that Sunday School Day is observed in all our schools? A good program is being prepared which will be sent to all the schools requesting it. Write to Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss., for the programs and they will not cost you anything.

A number of our schools held very remarkable services last year as measured by the offering—Coahoma and Lyon reported $115; Itta Bena, $106.43; Winona Circuit, $50; Cockrum, $40.50, and Byhalia, $10. We are planning to make this a banner year.

A CORRECTION.

Dear Brother Carley: The Journal of the last session of the Mississippi Conference is in error with reference to the financial report from Hawkin's Memorial Church. Evidently things got considerably mixed on the Statistical Secretary's table, and Hawkin's Memorial was credited with the report from another charge.

Hawkin's Memorial was assessed for Pastor, $1200; for P. E., $100; Bishops, $12; Conference Claimants, $70; Foreign Missions, $77; H. and C. Missions, $80; Church Extension, $38; Education, $35; American Bible Society, $5; Avocation, $7; Superannuate Endowment Fund, $9.

The assessments were all paid in full, reported and verified by receipts and vouchers. Compare this with the report as it appears in the Journal.

THE LESSON OF THE PASSING YEARS.

The days slip away like water in a running stream. Time's great clock never loses. Relentlessly, surely, the moments pass, and our eager hands are not able to detain them. We cannot keep back the flying years, but we can and should keep the blessings they bring. Hold fast the lessons they have taught. Keep the memory of their joys. Enrich every day of life with the garnered wealth of the days behind. The years pass, but they leave the treasure with us, if our hands and heart are open to receive them.—Anonymous.

THE ROAD TO LAUGHTERTOWN.

Oh, show me the road to Laughtertown,
For I have lost the way.
I wandered out of the path one day,
When my heart was broken, my hair turned gray,
And I can't remember how to play;
I've quite forgotten how to be gay,
It's all through sighing and weeping, they say.
Oh, show me the road to Laughtertown,
For I have lost the way.

Would ye learn the road to Laughtertown,
Oh, ye who have lost the way?
Would ye have young heart, though your hair be gray?
Go learn from a little child each day,
Go serve his wants and play his play,
And catch the lilt of his laughter gay
And follow his dancing feet as they stray;
For he knows the road to Laughtertown,
Oh, ye who have lost the way.

THE CHILDREN OF MT. VERNON.

By Mary F. Richardson.

"Oh, Mother," cried Janey, "what a lovely place to play!"

The little girl who uttered these words stood on the long piazza at Mt. Vernon looking over the broad lawns. Mother had brought Jack and Janey to spend the day at Washington's home, and in the charming old house they had gazed with awed eyes at the rooms where he had lived. They had seen his sword and camp kit, his desk and chair, and even the very bed he slept in! Now they were going to look into the out-buildings and gardens.

"Many children played on this lawn in Washington's time," declared Mother, smiling at Janey's eager face. "First of all, there was young George Washington himself. When he was a boy, the place belonged to his brother Lawrence and George often visited here. He was about thirteen when he first came, and I imagine he was a large boy, rather old for his years. You know at seventeen, he went out to the wild country beyond the Blue Ridge, to survey a tract of land for Lord Fairfax.

"After his brother died, George became owner of Mt. Vernon. He married a young widow, Mrs. Martha Custis, who had a little boy of six and a tiny girl of four. Although Washington never had any children of his own, he was as kind and tender to little John and Martha Custis as if they were his own.

"It was springtime when Washington brought his bride and her little ones home to Mt. Vernon. They all drove out from Williamsburg in a great coach with four horses. Can you picture the scene as the coach drew up at the door? The negro servants were all excitement, gathering to greet their master and the new mistress, while the dogs were barking a welcome! The children were lifted from the high coach, interested in everything, while Washington in his stately way, welcomed his wife to her home.

"Jack and Martha Custis were happy at Mt. Vernon. Washington was fond of them, and did all in his power to make them happy. There was a tutor who gave them lessons in the little school house in the garden. Washington sent to England for many different things and among the lists is an order 'For Miss Custis, 6 years old,' which includes such items as: 'one pair little scissors, one fashionable dressed doll, one box gingerbread toys and sugarcomfits, a small neat Bible bound in Turkey, and Martha Parke Custis wrote on the inside in gilt letters, a small Prayer Book, neat and in the same manner,' and also 'one fashionable Cap or fillet, with bib apron, and Ruffles and Tucker—to be laced.' So you see, 'little Patt,' as they called her, sometimes wore her best bib and tucker!

"Time passed, and the children grew up. Little Patt died and Jack Custis married. In 1781 he went with General Washington as aide-de-camp, and soon after died. Washington adopted his two youngest children, George Washington Parke Custis, who was only a baby, and Eleanor Parke Custis, two years and a half old. Mr. and Mrs. Washington were devoted to these two children. Before Washington came home, after the Revolution, he took time to stop in Philadelphia to buy toys for little Nelly, as they called Eleanor. Mrs. Washington taught Nelly to sew and knit and spin; I am sure she did not neglect her religious training, for Mrs. Washington was very devout. Every morning she retired to her room to pray and read her Bible for an hour, before she took up her household duties.

"The children must have enjoyed watching the workers in the Spinning House. In those days," explained Mother, leading the way to that building, "the flax was spun into thread and the thread woven into cloth in this building. Don't you imagine that the children loved to come in here, when the looms were busy and the wheels whirred? And now I want to show you the old coach. Come this way."

"Oh, Mother," exclaimed Jack, looking into the Coach House. "What a funny old carriage! Was that the one Washington used?"

"No, but it was one very much like it, but more magnificent. Washington's coach came from England, but it was destroyed after his death.

"In Colonial Days there were no steam cars, and whenever the Washingtons went away from home they travelled in their coach. On Sundays they drove to Alexandria to church, for Washington was a regular attendant, and a vestryman of Christ's Church, Alexandria. And they often rode to visit friends at Alexandria or even Baltimore. When Washington was made President, after the Revolution, Mrs. Washington went to New York, and then to the Capitol, to join her husband, taking Nelly and little George with her, accompanied by a small escort on horseback. The children must have enjoyed the trip, for at Philadelphia their chaise was met by a cavalcade of gentlemen and escorted into the town, where a band played, and, in the evening, fireworks were set off. All the way they were greeted with enthusiasm, and I have no doubt that the children were petted by everybody.

"The Custis children lived at Mt. Vernon until they grew up, and beside them were other children who came there. Both Mr. and Mrs. Washington had many nieces and nephews who made long visits to their Aunt and Uncle. They were always sure of a warm welcome, and Washington did all he could to make them happy.

"So you see, many children loved Mt. Vernon in Washington's day, and I always think of the beautiful old estate as a happy place for little ones."—American Messenger.

TO READ THE DATE OF A COIN.

Lying on a table in front of a numismatist was an old copper coin. It had experienced hard usage.

"Can you read the date and the inscription?" inquired the collector.

The visitor inspected the specimen, but although he had the aid of a magnifying glass, he confessed that the words and figures were illegible.

"Let me assists you," the collector remarked. Going to the kitchen range, he thrust an ordinary coal shovel into the fire and permitted it to remain there until red hot. Withdrawing it, he dropped the coin on the utensil, and it speedily became as red hot as the shovel itself. Immediately the date, 1794, showed brightly in glowing figures on the obverse side of the coin, and similar treatment revealed the words, "United States of America, one cent," on the reverse. This test, according to the numismatist, seldom fails with any coin, even when the inscriptions have been worn so perfectly smooth that they are invisible to the naked eye.—The New York Press.

GOD'S LOVE.

The soul has caught a new idea of God's love when it has not only been fed, but rescued by Him. The sheep has a new conception of his shepherd's care when he has not merely been made "to lie down in green pastures," but also has heard the voice of Him who had left the ninety-and-nine in the wilderness and gone after that which had wandered astray until He found it. The weakness of our own nature and the strength of that on which we rely; danger, and its correlative, duty; watchfulness, and its great privilege, trust—come in together, and are the new life of the soul, the active power in its restored peace.—Phillips Brooks.

Editorial

DATE OF THE "BIG DRIVE" CHANGED.

As probably most of our readers know, the date of the "Big Drive" has been changed from April 27-May 4 to May 18-25. This change was decided upon after the members of the Centenary Council had consulted freely with the Governmental authorities concerning the approaching Victory Loan. In order that there might not be the slightest conflict of interests, it was decided to postpone the Centenary Drive to the dates given above—May 18-25.

We are personally of the opinion that the postponement will work to the advantage of the Centenary cause. Every effort has been made to get ready for the earlier date, but on account of the epidemic of influenza and other hindering causes, it is possible that some sections of the Church have not been able to carry out all the steps in the preliminary campaign. The postponement gives the additional time necessary for the full presentation of the Centenary movement to all our people, and we believe that there will be a quicker response to the Centenary appeal than otherwise would have been possible.

We must not, therefore, imagine that we can afford to relax in the slightest degree our efforts to be fully ready for the "Drive" when it does come. These additional days should be the busiest of the campaign. As we suggested a week or so ago, we must work fast and hard to insure the complete success of the "Big Drive."

THE OPPORTUNITY OF LOUISIANA METHODISM.

In Centenary College, Louisiana Methodism has an institution that is capable of being made of incalculable value in the moral and religious welfare of the Church and State. It is admirably located in one of the most flourishing and progressive communities of the Southwest. It has a campus that, for natural beauty, can scarcely be surpassed, and that is large enough to furnish room for all needed enlargement. It is ideally situated with reference to the town itself—far enough out to escape the distractions of the city, and near enough, by means of a splendid street car line, to enjoy all the conveniences and advantages of a large commercial, social and religious center. We doubt if there is a better location anywhere in this country for the development of a first-class college than is to be found at Shreveport.

The present institution, as the heir of a noble name and inspiring traditions, has done, and is doing, creditable work. Under the presidency of such men as Weber and Hill and Wynn it has maintained high standards of scholarship and character, and has sent into the world a considerable number of graduates, both young men and young women, well-equipped for the responsibilities of life. The records of these graduates are of such kind as to reflect credit upon their Alma Mater, and to justify her claim upon the sympathy and good will of the people of Louisiana. Such of her students as have pursued advanced studies in other institutions have shown by their achievements that they were well qualified to rank with other students from colleges of more pretentious standing.

This work has been done under circumstances and against odds that no institution of the Church ought ever to have to contend against. Inadequate facilities, and an almost negligible endowment have imposed burdens upon the college authorities that they have been able to carry only through the consciousness that they were engaged in a work that needed to be done at almost any sacrifice. Their reward is the service they have rendered to the Church and to the young people who have been committed to their care. What has been done at Centenary demonstrates the fact that there is a place for such an institution in Louisiana.

Surely the time has come when the Methodism of the State should recognize the opportunity it has in Centenary to make adequate provision for the Christian education of its own youth and the easily accessible youth of many homes that are anxious to have the advantages of a Christian institution near home. Shreveport itself could easily furnish, and would probably do so, a large number of students of college grade if the parents of that city could see the resources and facilities of Centenary properly increased. Contiguous territory could supply additional students for an enrollment that would put Centenary in the front rank of our Church schools, so far as attendance is concerned.

Is Louisiana Methodism financially able to develop and maintain such a school as is, without doubt, needed? We are convinced that the answer to that question must be in the affirmative. It is true that our people in Louisiana are not supposed to possess great wealth; but many of them are able to make generous contributions to so great a cause, and some of them are able to do large things for Christian education. What is needed is for this matter to be placed upon the hearts and consciences of the ministers and Church members of the State, and for them to undertake the work of strengthening the institution in a spirit and on a scale that will be satisfied with nothing less than complete success. We know of nothing that would bless our cause more than putting Centenary College on a strong foundation. We are praying that some of those who have been blessed with wealth will see here an opportunity to immortalize themselves in the service they render humanity by giving the money that is necessary for the proper endowment and equipment of this vitally important school. Louisiana Methodism has many opportunities; but we do not know of any that are suprior to the one she has in providing for the Christian education of those who are to be her strength and mainstay in the years to come. If she does not take advantage of the opportunity, she will carry a heaven burden of responsibility that can never be shifted from her shoulders.

PROGRESS ON THE METHODIST HOSPITAL.

The report from Memphis, that the first big contract in connection with the erection of the Methodist Hospital has been let, will be good news to Methodism in general, and to the Church in our patronizing territory in particular. A great institution under the auspices of our Church is in process of establishment, and it is gratifying to know that, in the judgment of competent business men, the assets in hand and in sight are sufficient to justify immediate steps toward the realization of large plans. Those who have already contributed to this great work, and those who intend to do so, will rejoice, we are sure, over the prospect of the early completion of so great an undertaking. We trust that those who have made subscriptions to the hospital will heed the request of the financial agent, Mr. T. B. King, to make their payments as soon as possible.

Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo is expected to attend the Sardis District Conference, which will meet at Oakland, Miss., on May 27 and 28. The opening sermon will be preached by Rev. E. G. Mohler, of Sardis, on Monday evening, March 26.

Rev. J. T. Abney, of Scooba, Miss., attended the Y. M. C. A. War Work Conference, at Blue Ridge, N. C. He is enthusiastic over the work done there. We thank him for sending us a beautiful post card showing an interesting scene at Biltmore, N. C.

The New Orleans Methodist Preachers' Meeting has unanimously endorsed the movement of the New Orleans Pharmaceutical Association to close all drug stores on Sunday except one in each section of the city. We earnestly hope the movement will be successful.

Rev. A. Joe Beasley, of Camden, Miss., writes that material is being put on the ground for an addition to the parsonage, and that plans are being perfected for a new church on his charge. He is serving his second year on that charge, and he is happy in the work.

A third large edition of Bishop Thirkield's "Service and Prayer for Church and Home" has been called for in less than a year. Bishop Thirkield derives no personal profit from the sale of the book, all proceeds from royalties being turned over to benevolent objects.

The Minutes of our three Conferences, the Louisiana, the Mississippi and the North Mississippi, have come from the press in a most attractive and interesting form. We congratulate the editors upon the highly satisfactory manner in which they have performed their laborious duties.

Brother Jno. P. Rembert, of Longview, Texas, but formerly of Mississippi, has been taking the Advocate for forty-three years. He began taking it in 1876, through the good offices of Rev. Wm. Wadsworth. He remembers with affection many of the older Mississippi Conference preachers.

Whitworth College, Brookhaven, Miss., has enrolled for the session 1918-19, a total of 269 students. Dr. U. G. Foote, pastor of Rayne Memorial Church, New Orleans, La., will preach the commencement sermon on Sunday, June 1, and deliver the literary address on Monday evening, June 2.

Rev. A. S. Byrd, who serves the Eucutta charge, Mississippi Conference, has been greatly hindered in his work on account of bad weather, bad roads and other things, but the situation is improving and the outlook is now promising. Brother Byrd is making a special effort to carry the Centenary Campaign through successfully.

Rev. A. W. Turner, of Shreveport, La., superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League for Louisiana, was a caller at the Advocate office on Monday of this week. He states that the temperance forces of the country are thoroughly alive to the importance of continued activity in order to conserve the results of the great national victory.

Rev. W. L. Broome, formerly of the North Mississippi Conference, is serving his fourth year at Bristow, Oklahoma. Splendid progress has been made during his pastorate. A beautiful church has been built, and the salary has been increased from $800 to $1800. Brother Broome keeps in touch with his Mississippi friends through the Advocate.

Rev. H. W. Van Hook, who served our church at Biloxi, Miss., temporarily after Dr. La Prade was forced, by ill-health, to give up the work, did most efficient service in that charge. This work was in addition to his heavy responsibilities as president of the Seashore Camp Ground School. Since the appointment of Brother J. D. Ellis to Biloxi, he will devote all his atention to the school.

Texas Avenue Church, Shreveport, La., is making substantial progress under the leadership of Rev. F. R. Power. With the assistance of Dr. Geo. R. Sexton and friends of First Church, all indebtedness on church and parsonage has been paid, and more than $400 collected for improvements on the parsonage. A great service was held on Sunday evening, March 9, in celebration of the great work done. Thirty-two members have been received into this church since Conference.

Miss Lois Cooper, who is a graduate of Whitworth College, and of the Conservatory of Cincinnati, and who was taking a post graduate course in piano at the Peabody Conservatory, of Baltimore, Md., sailed for Europe on the Niagara, on March 12. A number of college graduates were with her. Miss Cooper is one of the leading pianists of the South. Hundreds of friends will follow her with their prayers. While abroad, she hopes to visit her brother who is in Germany—a member of 165th Brigade Staff (Third Army).

One of the most interesting and instructive publications dealing with the local Centenary campaign that we have seen is The Centenary Call, a folder signed by W. T. Reeves, District Campaign Director, and Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen District, North Mississippi Conference. It gives in detail the quotas for the charges of the district, the names of the charge campaign directors, suggestions for carrying on the campaign, and an appeal to the Church membership to respond heartily to the Centenary call. It will help the work mightily.

The MacDonell Home, of Houma, La., will be represented at the State Conference of the Woman's Missionary Society, at Mansfield, by Miss Ella K. Hooper. Miss Hooper has arranged an attractive and instructive exhibit of the two parishes of Terrebonne and Lafourche—a map showing the Protestant stations of work, and many photographs of different activities and points of need. Those attending the Conference will have an opportunity to get a real view of the needs of these people and the efforts of the Woman's Council to meet these needs.

Rev. J. R. Jones, presiding elder of the Seashore District, Mississippi Conference, authorizes us to announce that Rev. J. D. Ellis has been transferred from Bay St. Louis to Biloxi, to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of Dr. La Prade to Georgia. Rev. O. C. Seevers has been appointed to the Bay St. Louis charge. Brother Seevers was originally a member of the Mississippi Conference, but was transferred to the Florida Conference three or four years ago. During the war, he was engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in the S. A. T. C., at Meridian College, from which place he goes to Bay St. Louis.

Freckles

There is a very effective way to remove freckles and make the skin clear and beautiful. It is in this way that Kintho Cream gradually gets rid of the old, freckled skin, and gives a soft, clear, white, youthful and beautiful skin, which of course should have no freckles.

Just get a box of Kintho Beauty Cream at any drug store and apply it night and morning as directed, and your freckles should begin to disappear in a day or two. It is well to get a cake of Kintho Soap also, as this helps to keep the freckles away, once Kintho has removed them.

Rev. KENNITH P. FOUST, son of Rev. D. C. and J. L. Foust, was born on February 16, 1883, and was converted and joined the Methodist Church when 9 years of age. He graduated from Okolona High School in 1903, and entered Millsaps College that fall (taking special examination) in the Sophomore year. He attended Millsaps two years. He was married to Miss Eva Myers, of Mahned, Miss., in April, 1906. Two children were born to them. He joined the North Mississippi Conference in December, 1906, and took the correspondence course. Dr. Cuninggim wrote him upon completion of the fourth year, "None had excelled him in his examinations." He traveled six years in the North Mississippi Conference, and two years in the Virginia Conference. He was honorably located in Virginia, and returned to Mississippi, where he has been teaching; was principal of Beaumont High School when God took him. He died of influenza and pneumonia at the Infirmary in Hattiesburg, on January 3, 1919, and was buried at Mahned, near Hattiesburg. He was an earnest, forceful, eloquent preacher, had many friends who loved him, and many whom he loved, but he had a fondness and tenderness for his children which was unsurpassed. His whole thought seemed to be for their welfare. Kennith said to his wife, a few days before he died, "If it was God's will he would love to live, but if not, he was ready to go." He leaves a wife, two small children, father, mother and sister to mourn his departure. MOTHER.

Coldwater, Miss., March 5, 1919.

EUNICE SMITH, ten years of age, died of pneumonia at her home in Rayne, La., on January 30, 1919. She was one of our choicest little Sunday school girls. She was loved by her pastor, superintendent, teacher, all of her associates; and she was a joy in the home. She was charming in her manner, unselfish in her life and beautiful in her disposition.

During my pastorate at Rayne, I baptized her and received her into the Church. Her devotion to the Church and her simple faith in its teachings were impressive. This was due in a large measure to the godly example of a Christian home.

I, with the family, the doctor and a small group of sympathizing friends, was impressed for better living by her death. Her last thoughts were of others. During her illness, when friends would call, she would ask about other members of their family. She asked the doctor about his little girl just a few moments before the end came. As the little flower that blooms and gives its fragrance for a short time, her period of life was brief here. Her little spirit has gone to God who gave it. We miss her and the home is poorer without her, but Heaven is richer. Our loss is Heaven's gain. We shall, dear loved ones, see Eunice again in the eternal world where the spirits of the just are made perfect.

Rayne, La., Feb. 28, 1919.

Mrs. BIRDIE CLAIBORN MITCHELL, wife of A. M. Mitchell, was born at Merigold, Miss., in 1887, and died at her sister's home (Mrs. Tim Jones) in Moorhead, Miss., on October 24, 1918. By nature, she was of a joyous and kind disposition, and her life was a continual outflow of thoughtfulness and consideration for others; and no one was ever held in higher esteem and loved more by all who knew her than was she. This was in evidence by the beautiful floral offerings, and in spite of the inclemency of the weather and the "flu" epidemic, the large company gathered at the grave to pay their last respects to this beautiful character.

She and her splendid husband had just been married about seven months. The union was a happy one. They were to have moved into their beautiful home, just completed on their plantation, in a few weeks. We do not understand now; but we have this consolation. "In my Father's house are many mansions," and some sweet day there will be a gathering and a home eternal beyond the skies. The writer conducted the funeral service, whose organist she was when just a small girl.

Itta Bena, Miss., Feb. 27, 1919.

Mrs. CLARA MERCIER HARVEY was born in Copiah County, Miss., on May 5, 1886, and died on January 16, 1919. Mrs. Harvey professed religion in early childhood and joined the Methodist Church, of which she ever lived a faithful member. She was married to Joe Harvey on March 4, 1915, and moved to Texas to make her home. She, with her husband and baby, visited her old home Christmas and came back home sick with influenza, which developed into pneumonia. She has gone to rest from her toil. She was a devoted wife and mother, a true friend and affectionate sister. She leaves, besides her husband and little three-year-old daughter, six brothers, and two sisters, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. She was laid to rest in Garland cemetery in the midst of a host of friends and loved ones by her pastor, Rev. J. J. Cooper, to await the general resurrection. Farewell, dear friend, we shall meet again in that glad, sweet day to rejoice forever and forever. J. J. COOPER.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, on Saturday, November 16, 1918, God in His infinite wisdom called home by the hand of Death, Sister Julia McKeown, a beloved honorary member of our Society, therefore be it resolved by the Edwards Methodist Missionary Society that

1. In the death of Sister McKeown this Society and the church lose one to whom both were dear, and for whom the members of each cherished a reverent and sincere affection.

2. To the members of her family who sadly miss the sound of her voice, the touch of her hand and the love-speaking glance of her eyes, we tender our sincere sympathy; and our prayer is that they may find comfort in the conviction that she is of those who have "Passed over the highlands of heaven

As calm as the day at its close;
Floats over the peak of the mountain,
Whose spirits with Jesus repose."

Signed: Mrs. C. N. Harris, Miss Mary R. Henry, Mrs. T. W. Hackler, Committee.

Ginners:
We Advise You!

With depleted stocks at our factories, high priced material on hand and contracted for, and labor still on the high-priced level, it is not possible to expect any reduction in the price of ginning machinery during 1919. Such being the case, it is not wise to delay ordering improvements for old outfits or the installation of new and complete Munger System outfits, especially as it will cause more delay in deliveries.

Order now for early shipment and insure getting what you want. Wait—and you may be disappointed. Write to the Continental Sales Office nearest you.

CHARLESTON (MISS.) METHODISM.

It was some seven or eight years ago that I first looked upon Charleston. I was here then in behalf of Missions, as Conference Missionary Secretary. Brother John Park—now in heaven—was here also and spoke in behalf of Education. I remember well two stories that Brother Park told in his speech. One of them ran thus: Away out in the sticks a seventeen-year-old girl walked into her mother's room and was standing by the fire, barefooted. Her mother was sitting beside the fire. Within a few minutes the mother said: "Sal, I smell meat cooking." Sal said: "I do, too, Ma." "What you reckon it is, Sal?" "I don't know, Ma." Then the mother looked down and drawled out: "Why, Sal, you are standing on a red-hot coal." Sal said: "Which foot, Ma?"

Now for the sequel: the next morning I took the train for Clarksdale. A young, unsophisticated man from the country near Charleston rode on the same train. We were seated together. In the course of our conversation I asked him if he attended the district conference. He said, "Yes, I was there the night that man told about Sal standing on a red-hot coal." He said the above very solemnly, then looked at me with an innocent kind of expression, and said, "Say, that fellow haint very bright, is he?" Of course all who knew Brother Park know that his conclusion was wrong.

I remember with much pleasure that first visit to Charleston and am glad to be here as pastor and preacher to these people. If the readers of the Advocate will bear with me a little, I will tell them something about Charleston and our great body of Methodists here—I mean great in quality, not quantity.

About fifteen years ago Charleston was a country village of something like 500 citizens. The population is around 3500 now, and it is steadily growing. Three industrial institutions are located here: the Lam-Fish Lumber Co., the Unit Construction Co.—a chemical plant—and the Ball-Clay Co. The present monthly pay-roll of these institutions is something like $40,000. Besides this, Charleston is on the edge of the great Delta and is the trading place of many plantations of that great farming section of our State, besides being the metropolis of a large hill section of our State.

Under the leadership of Brother W. H. Mounger, our congregation built a concrete parsonage, and just about completed, except the furnishing, a church that will have cost between $30,000 and $35,000, when finished. Since my arrival we have installed beautiful pews at a cost of something like $1700—all of which has been paid save about $500. Our congregation is planning to cover the floor and put in a pipe organ, which they purpose completing by the fall of 1920.

Within the past five years, this congregation has developed from a $1200 circuit to a $2000 station. We still have one afternoon appointment which we may, or may not, give up this fall. We are confidently expecting to do all that is expected of us along every line this year. I have never had a more appreciative and agreeable congregation to deal with in all my ministerial experience. We have no fossils in this congregation—that I know of—who seem to think that God created them to put brakes on the wheels of progress. Nor have I yet discovered a stingy, narrow-minded steward who acts as though he thought he was God's special representative to keep the ministry in a state of poverty. My good father used to tell a story like this: A young preacher went to spend the night with one of the pillars of his church, on his new appointment. That night, after he had gone to his room, he heard the good sister praying, and here is what he heard: "Lord, keep him humble, we'll keep him poor." I heard of that same good old sister at camp meeting. In a testimony she said: "I have been a member of the church nigh on to forty years, and it haint cost me but two-bits." Well, thank God, we have none of the descendants of that good old sister in Charleston, and I trust none will ever settle here. I pity with all my soul the poor preacher who has officials and members of that kind to deal with. Sometimes I think that kind of co-workers was what constituted Paul's thorn in the flesh. I know well and good that I have had such irritating thorns to endure in my ministry.

Charleston Methodism has suffered much through the ravages of the "flu." The noble and good superintendent of our Sunday school, Brother W. T. Marshall, left us for heaven in January. Then, just a few days ago, another faithful and efficient worker in our Sunday school went home to heaven—Miss Clara DuBard. Those, however, who are left behind realize that the "King's business demands haste," and are prayerfully giving themselves to the work of the Kingdom. We covet an interest in the prayers of all God's children to the end that we may be and become all that God desires of us.

Fraternally,

J. TILLERRY LEWIS.

SHE SAVED 200 CHICKS.

Mrs. G. Hancock, Sturgis, Ky., writes "I hatched 200 chicks and didn't lose a single one with White Diarrhoea. I give Ready Relief the praise." Mrs. H. L. Sutton, of Ramona, Kas., writes: "My chicks were dying 20 and 30 a day. I got two packages of Ready Relief and now I don't lose any."

You can get the same wonderful results. Reefer's Ready Relief put in your baby chicks' first drinking water will help save them from the dreadful White Diarrhoea plague. THE EPWORTH LEAGUE IN NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

Dear Brother Carley: Will you please let me say through the Advocate that the Executive Committee of the Epworth League Board of the North Mississippi Conference met at Holly Springs, Miss., March 6? We had with us J. O. Tyson, district secretary of the League Conference, and Rev. J. H. Holden, P. E., of the Holly Springs District, and president of the League Conference. We accepted the cordial invitation extended to us from Holly Springs and fixed June 10, 11, 12 for the League Conference at Holly Springs. We expect fine speakers and program, and the best Conference ever. Mr. Editor, we would appreciate your presence at this Conference. Mr. Tyson, as well as the secretary of the board, were authorized to sow the North Mississippi Conference down with circular letters and literature from the Parent Board. Our church, as well as the pastor, must be aroused to the importance of our Epworth League work, especially in connection with the Centenary move. Your humble servant, as secretary of the board, will get out some letters to the brethren soon, and I thank you in advance for publishing those as well as this in our Advocate. With best personal regards, Cordially.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $2, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Ugh! Calomel Makes You Deathly Sick

Stop using dangerous drug before it salivates you! It's horrible!

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone to-night and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

Sunday School

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES

Since writing last, I have been in Sunday school work with Rev. W. W. Graves, at Hazlehurst. They have a good Sunday school there. Their Elementary Department is in mighty fine shape and they are doing good work. They had already accepted their Centenary allotment. A set of teacher-training books was ordered for the teachers of the school and they were certain that more than enough would take the course to make them meet the Standard for Teacher-training.

I was with the Seashore District in the Centenary Group Meetings and with the Hattiesburg District also.

I had the pleasure of spending one day with the Meridian Workers' Conference. It was much better than last year. It is hoped by such meetings as these to build up a leadership that will lead.

Last Sunday was spent at South Side, Meridian. This Sunday school is in fine condition and they bid fair to come up to the Standard of Efficiency before long. A set of teacher-training books was ordered and they promised the necessary number to meet the requirements for the Teacher-training Standard. They accepted their Centenary allotment.

The Centenary is reaching the minds and hearts of many. As Brother Gladney well says, it is spotted, but there are some glowing spots. One of the most hopeful signs that I know is the fact that all of those who are interested and almost every speaker says that this great movement will bring the hoped-for revival.

I was in the Group Meeting at Laurel. Brother J. H. Moore made the point that the Centenary had called upon the preachers to present the most vital topics to their people and that from this would come the great revival.

Don't forget to pray for the workers and the work.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Brother Superintendent, have you received the World Map sent you by the Missionary Educational Department of the General Sunday School Board? If you have not, write to J. L. Neill, Nashville, Tenn., and ask him for one. That map has a great missionary message for the people. Put it up and let it talk for you.

About a dozen superintendents have signed the card, accepting the five cents per month allotment. Hundreds of letters have been sent out asking that this be done. Please sign the card and mail it to J. L. Neill, Nashville, Tenn. Then we will begin to get ready to do something.

Every day we delay we suffer loss; the world suffers loss. The devil uses delay and ignorance; God uses energy and information. May we let God have his way with us moment by moment and see what he can do for us. The big things of the Centenary Movement are these—let God have you to pray, to work, to think, to give.

Several men have sent for their Sunday School Day programs (it is hard not to say Childrens' Day programs any more). The Publishing House will begin printing them in a few days. Send in your orders to me and the Sunday School Board will pay for them. If you order them, they will be charged to your account.

Nearly all the teachers at Houston agreed to study one of the books of the Teacher-training course. Mrs. Busby's class expects to begin the course for Leadership at an early day. When the teachers make progress, the school makes progress. When the teachers stop, the school goes backward. When the teachers do the work as God wants it done, the Kingdom of God will come in power. Brother Shaw has put the entire Centenary program on in his church. He is not behind the movement, but he is leading the movement.

The missionary program was put in the schools at Vardaman, Derma, and Calhoun City. Two of the teachers at Vardaman agreed to take up the course of study for teachers. Brother Nolen is a busy man; the people of his circuit love him and follow him.

WESLEY BIBLE CLASS FEDERATION.

The third annual meeting of the Louisiana Conference Wesley Bible Class Federation convened in Ruston La., Tuesday, March 11, at 2:30 p.m. and closed at high tide Thursday at noon, March 13. Mr. R. T. Moore, the president, was in the chair. After the opening exercises, consisting of devotional, welcome words and responses, the first session opened in full blast. Dr. Charles D. Bulla, the arch-champion of our cause, delivered the first address on "The Adult Bible Class—Its Present Great Opportunity." And at almost every session of the Conference Dr. Bulla spoke, to the delight and edification of his hearers Dr. George R. Stuart, of Montgomery, Ala., delivered two strong and impressive addresses Wednesday evening and Thursday morning, the first on "Service," and the other on "The Sick Sunday School." Mrs. J. M. Henry's demonstration of Young People' work, with her large Adult class, wa an inspiring feature of the Federation

In the main the program was carried out as printed, except the after noon session of Thursday, which wa sandwiched into former sessions nothing being lost in the fine progran of the occasion. All the speaker, were at their best, and showed evidence of much concern for the work

Throughout the Federation, there was a tone of deep, serious earnestness. Seldom do we have such a wealth of good things put into so short a time. Our efficient Field Secretary, Rev. Alonzo Early, was on his job, the busiest man of the Federation. Dr. Wynn and the good people of Ruston are past masters in the art of entertaining. An auto drive was given the Federation out to our Orphanage and through the grounds of the L. I. I.

With almost one hundred delegates in attendance, the Federation is growing in interest and power for good destined to be a mighty factor and a telling force for good in Louisiana Methodism. "It was good to be there."

Yours for the next Federation.

What Doctor Pierce Has Done For Humanity!

BY DOCTOR CRIPPS.

It has always seemed to me that Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., should be placed near the top when a list of America's great benefactors is written. He studied and conquered human diseases to a degree that few realize. Whenever he found a remedy that overcame disease, he at once announced it in the newspapers and told where it could be bought at a small price. He did not follow the usual custom of keeping the ingredients secret, so that the rich only could afford to buy the medicine, but openly printed the name of each root and herb he used. And so to-day the names of Dr. Pierce and his medicines are widely known, and they stand for better health and better citizenship.

One of this great physician's most successful remedies is known as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. These are little, sugar-coated pills, composed of Mayapple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap—things that Nature grows in the ground. These Pellets are safe because they move the bowels gently, leaving no bad after-effects, as so many pills do. Very often they make a person who takes them feel like a new man or woman, for they cleanse the intestines of hard, decayed and poisonous matter that accumulates when one is costive. If you are constipated, by all means go to your druggist and get some of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They may prove to be the very thing your system requires to make you well and happy.

GIRLS! MAKE A BEAUTY LOTION WITH LEMONS

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is truly marvelous to smoothen rough,

The distinctive flavor of Coca-Cola

The flavor of Coca-Cola is a composite of natural fruits so delicately blended that the palate is unable to distinguish any one of the component parts—the result is a distinctive flavor.

The art of compounding flavors has become a science which requires a lifetime to master. That is why it is so difficult to imitate the distinctive flavor of Coca-Cola.

The slightest deviation from the delicate balance of flavors reveals the imitation. When you ask for Coca-Cola demand the genuine by full name — nicknames encourage substitution.

The Ninth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council will be held at First Methodist Church, Memphis, Tenn., April 8, 1919.

The Workers' Conference will be held Wednesday afternoon, April 2, at 2 o'clock, and an inspirational service the evening of the same day.

Delegates and visitors should correspond with Mrs. T. G. Lowrey, 488 Edith Place, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee, who will furnish a list of hotels and boarding houses.

Signed: Miss Belle H. Bennett, President; Mrs. Fitzgerald Sale Parker, Secretary.

THE NEW STUDY BOOKS.

Advance notices of the new study books are very attractive. Both are prepared in view of the great Centenary Drive, May 18-25, and pastors also are being urged to form study groups to consider these splendid appeals. The book dealing with home mission problems is "Making America Safe." A questionnaire on each chapter shows itemized askings of the Centenary. "Adventures in Faith in Foreign Lands" is thrilling as well as instructive, and will hold the attention of both old and young. It contains historic and inspirational material which can be easily utilized for the three-minute speeches now becoming so popular at all of our services.

The price of each is 60 cents in cloth and 40 cents in paper. They are barely off the press; so of course they contain the "last word" on these vital subjects.

If copies of these books reach your Superintendent in time, they will be presented at the Conference in Mansfield. More Mission Study Classes are needed, and with such entrancingly interesting text-books, their formation will be an easy matter.

It is interesting to know that Miss Atkinson is the official delegate to the Council of the China Woman's Missionary Society.

THE OPEN DOOR.

A man who had grown old in prison sat and bewailed his imprisonment.

"Alas!" he said, "what a dreadful place is this in which I must stay! All around me are sighing and sobbing, pale sorrow and black wickedness. The loathly walls hem me in straitly; the window-bars are strong and heavy; there is no escape. Hateful is this prison, hateful are the days I pass in it, hateful the faces of men and women, prisoners like myself. Oh, that the door were open, and I a free man!"

By and by came One in white, who set open the door, and beckoned to the man, and said: "Come forth!"

But the man crouched down where he sat, and cried out: "No! no! I am not ready to go yet. After all, the prison is tight and dry, and not so very cold, save in winter. Outside it is strange and empty, and the wind blows, I know not whither. Moreover, my fellow-prisoners are friendly, even if they are not so very virtuous. Let me stay here, where at least I am dry and warm, and safe from the things that are not known."

And he turned to his fellow-prisoners, and laid hold on their clothes, and cried, "Save me! save me from him in white, and from the open door!"

ABOUT THE CLINIC OF ST. MARK'S

Not until the touch of Christ's hand was laid on suffering humanity were such institutions as hospitals and clinics known to the world. The physical is closely allied to the spiritual, and, indeed, it could not be otherwise when our souls are housed in our bodies. It would be hard to find a field richer in opportunity than the foreign quarter in which St. Mark's Hall is located. I wish I might take you on clinic day for a short visit to our court over a hundred years old. You would find it lined with people of various colors and representing the countries of Southern Europe, Mexico, Cuba, the Philippines, and this is the one department of our work that includes the Negro. We have always been particularly fortunate in the personnel of our doctors and nurses. They serve the patients with their whole hearts and have a splendid response. During the early part of the year, when we had a full staff of physicians, the attendance was phenomenally large. There were sometimes as many as eighty patients in a single afternoon. We had six clinics each week: one for ear, nose and throat; one for the eye, and four general clinics. One by one our doctors were called to the service of their country. The loss has been keenly felt, but again we have been fortunate in securing the services of a Methodist doctor who holds two clinics each week. He, too, is much beloved by the people and is deeply interested in our work. We have the privilege of taking our eye patients to the private office of one of the finest specialists in the city. In connection with our clinic, we have a laboratory, and adjoining the clinic is a Sickles Drug station. During the epidemic of influenza we had to abandon other plans and adapt our work to the needs of the hour. The workers visited in the homes, giving trained service in the absence of physicians. When the epidemic was at its height, two hundred calls were made in a single week. We co-operated with the Red Cross, Elks, Charity Organization and milk stations. Many of our people said they had never prayed so much before. The number of patients treated during the year was 3013. The amount received for dues was $298.33. The patients pay ten cents for a ticket which entitles them to the services of the clinic for three months.

We are planning to replenish our linen loan closet which has been a real boon to the work. We are in need of sheets, pillow-cases, layettes and night dresses for women and children. Our nurse acts as superintendent of the Home Department of St. Mark's Sunday school. This gives her a splendid opportunity for personal work and a spiritual touch. It is our prayer that the healing may never stop with the physical, but, like the Master's ministry, may reach the soul needs of our people.

The Romantic Story of Southland's Favorite Shoe, EzWear.

Some five years ago, a prominent citizen of South Carolina, visiting New York on important business, chanced to meet the maker of a shoe built on new and unusual lines: an enthusiastic admirer of its most distinctive features, ease and comfort, had suggested the name EzWear; it was promptly adopted. The business man from the South, knowing how welcome such a shoe would be in his part of the country, urged that its remarkable qualities, including not only comfort, but style, durability and economy, be made known there. That this has been effectively done is proven by the enormous demand that has sprung up in the South for EzWear shoes. It is said that its sale there during the last twelve months has increased fully three hundred per cent. The distributor, Mr. I. R. Simon, of 1539 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., says that all who wish to know about a shoe that combines all worth-while shoe qualities, may have a copy of his money-saving shoe book for the asking.

RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION.

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is a close relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid diseases, such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache. All of these diseases are probably related and all are probably due in whole or in part to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimilation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

FROM HOUSTON, MISS.

Dear Advocate: May we say that our second year on Houston charge is beginning with new life and zeal? This is a delightful charge to serve, and splendid people. The parsonage has not been forgotten, but has been the recipient of many good things.

The Young People's Missionary Society, under the leadership of Mrs. A. M. Harley, has newly papered the dining room. We are all delighted with the work Mrs. W. L. Hill is doing with her half a hundred Juniors. They are so zealous, good-humored, and ready for any good work.

The Sunday school is taking on new missionary activity. Rev. R. H. B. Gladney will pay us a visit Sunday. We are expecting a big day.

Nothing pleases us more than the growing spiritual interest of the Church; our Church is praying more. This is due to the Centenary program. My special prayer is that the "League of Intercession" may be the beginning of a Holy Ghost revival in the entire Church.

Yours for Christ and the Centenary.

Mr. Reefer guarantees to refund every cent of your money if you are not entirely satisfied and a million dollar bank backs up this statement. Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. Aren't your baby chicks worth five for a penny? That's about the cost of Reefer's Ready Relief. A PASTOR'S REPORT TO THE QUARTERLLY CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: The past three months have been months of sorrows mixed with joys. In fact, there has never been a sorrow without a joy, not a bitter without a sweet. After all, these things are in mercy sent by our Heavenly Father, who doeth all things right.

During the last quarter, the living of our people has been good; many new resolutions have been made. We are looking for a great year spiritually and financially. So far we have been handicapped; because of sickness, rain and bad roads, congregation are small.

One person has been received this quarter, Miss Annie McKenzie, by certificate; one person has been dismissed by certificate, Guy Barrer.

Five persons have gone to their reward: Mrs. Lizzie Bender, the oldest of our members, 84, a very devout and liberal member, a typical English woman; Mrs. Beulah Gertrude Foreman, nee Herran, a very fine young woman, wife of W. M. Foreman; James T. Boyles, a strong, able-bodied young father, whose future was bright for usefulness; Hal H. Boyles, brother of one just mentioned, another strong young man whose future was bright, who bade fair to make us a useful man we loathed to see these young people go away; John L. Windham, a bright, brainy, portly young man, was killed in the battle of Argonne in France. His body was buried near Verdun. News comes to us from his captain, that he died with his face to the enemy, his rifle in his hands, in front of machine guns.

This bit of history may be of use some day: We note that 30 Methodist boys went to the camps at the call of their country from Homewood Circuit—Henry Brown, Hewie Wicker, Vergil Wicker, Lawrence Tadlock, Dan Boyles, Lonnie Boyles, Ira Alford, John L. Windham, and Oscar Lane went into Franee and Germany. Ira Alford, John L. Windham, and Oscar Lane were in the thickest of the battles. Preston Thomas crossed the Atlantic and spent a while in Liverpool. Summed up, nine out of the 30 went across the waters; John L. Windham was the only one killed in battle; Oscar Lane was wounded several times—will be home soon; Walter L. Herran and Malcome Herran died in camps of pneumonia—Walter in Camp Pike and Malcome in the State of Washington in a small camp. Soon all the boys will be home but these three.

We have no Epworth Leagues. We have the five Sunday schools, yet have been much hindered by the epidemic, but will soon be at ourselves again. As I have opportunity, I delight in the instruction of the children. We have many things in our hearts; we want to do this year our full duty in the Centenary movement, since our boys have opened up missionary territory to us in answer to our prayers that the kingdom of God would cover the earth as the waters cover the great deep. Now we have an opportunity to help God answer our prayers; God help us to do it!

It is our purpose to have the teacher-training course going again. We are expecting to see a great spiritual awakening this year; if this does not happen, we shall be disappointed. I call upon the officials to pray and help to this end.

Last, we are asking our people to adopt the tithing system; if we will, we shall never lack for anything, God says. This is the lowest motive. There will come a great revival; our sons and daughters will be born again, and they will be better in their generation than we in ours. They will need to be, because greater opportunities, greater fields, greater responsibilities, will be theirs.

M. L. WHITE, Pastor.

IS YOUR BLOOD STARVING FOR WANT OF IRON?

Iron Is Red Blood Food—It Helps to Put Strength and Energy Into the Veins of Men and Roses Into the Cheeks of Women. Why Nuxated Iron so Quickly Builds Up Weak, Nervous, Run-down People.

Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

Thousands of men and women are impairing their constitutions, lay themselves open to illness and literally losing their grip on health, simply because their blood is running out and possibly starving through lack of iron. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of the virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable.

Iron is absolutely essential to enable your blood to transform the blood you eat into muscular tissue and brain. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the body, that life-sustaining oxygen enters the body. Without iron there is no strength, vitality and endurance to combat obstacles or withstand severe strains. Contrary to general opinion, lack of iron in the blood does not necessarily mean you do not have enough blood, but it means your blood is not of the right kind. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded people there is nothing better than organic iron. Nuxated Iron. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. No matter what other tonics or iron remedies you have used without success, if you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people have written after using all the while have increased their strength and endurance in two weeks time while taking iron in the proper form. Nuxated Iron is now being used by over three million people annually, and the manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

RAISED ENTIRE INCUBATOR HATCH.

Mrs. Dan Holycross, Silverwood, Ind., writes: "Reefer's Ready Relief is all it is said to be. I have not lost one of my last incubator hatch and they are now four weeks old." And G. W. Miller, of Pittsburg, Okla., writes: "Hatched 175 chicks and haven't lost one."

You can have the same success. Ready Relief in your baby chicks' first drinking water will save them from dying off with that dreadful plague, White Diarrhoea. Reefer's Ready Relief is the invention of a famous scientist. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 5253 Poultry Building, Kansas City, Mo., for a package that will positively help save your baby chicks. Aren't your delicate, downy baby chicks worth saving? You take no risk. Mr. Reefer will refund every cent of your money if you are not entirely satisfied, and a million dollar bank guarantees he will do it. Send for a $1 package today, or better still, send $2.35 on special discount for three regular $1 packages and insure every hatch you get. Aren't your baby chicks worth five for a penny? That's about the cost of Reefer's Ready Relief. If you don't want to try this bank guaranteed chick saver at least write today for Mr. Reefer's free valuable poultry book that gives the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

A CORRECTION—MISS. CONF. JOURNAL.

Dear Brother Carley: In the Mississippi Conference Journal just received I notice an error on page 104. Table 3, that needs correction. The statistical figures for the Woodville Circuit are placed opposite the name of Woodville Station, and vice versa. I am, in part, responsible for the error. I made a correction while at Conference, but my correction was not observed by the printers. If the brethren will scratch out the word, "circuit," and insert it in the line above, the correction will be made.

FROM GLEN ALLAN, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Please give me space in your paper to report our labors on the Glen Allan charge. We arrived on the 30th of December, and were met at the train by auto and soon we were at the parsonage and found a warm supper ready for us; and after an 850-mile trip, we surely enjoyed the occasion. After supper, we found the key to the parsonage pantry and found lots of good things for eating: ½ barrel of flour, ham, groceries, etc. And, by the way, they have not let up on pounding us yet.

I have made 100 pastoral visits and find a noble people to serve, ready to co-operate with their pastor. We have received 8 by letter into the Church. They have well provided for their pastor's support by raising the salary $213 above last year. And the Glen Allan board of stewards have adopted a new financial plan, that is, to collect and pay in two installments, paying in January and June, and the new plan works well. The outlook is good for the entire charge.

We have been hindered by bad roads and "flu," but we hope by the coming of spring we will get our work well organized. We expect to go over the top on all lines this year. We are proud to be in the Greenville District and shall help to keep the good spirit and record she has had in the past. We are happy in the parsonage and we are all well pleased to have our lot cast with such people to labor.

Yours for the Master,

C. T. BARTON.

DRUGGIST'S! VICK'S VAPORUB SHORTAGE OVERCOME AT LAST

The Deal Scheduled for Last November, Which was Postponed on Account of the Influenza Epidemic, is Now Re-instated—Good During the Month of March.

OVER ONE MILLION JARS OF VAPORUB PRODUCED EACH WEEK

It is with pride that we announce to the drug trade that the shortage of Vick's VapoRub, which has lasted since last October, is now overcome. Since January 1st, we have been running our laboratory twenty-three and a half hours out of every twenty-four. Last week we shipped the last of our back orders, and retail druggists, therefore, are no longer requested to order in small quantities only.

NOVEMBER DEAL RE-INSTATED

This deal, which we had expected to put on last November and which had to be postponed on account of the shortage of VapoRub, is re-instated for the month of March. This allows a discount of 10 per cent. on shipments from jobbers' stock of quantities of from 1 to 4 gross. Five per cent. of this discount is allowed by the jobber and five per cent. by us.

We advise the retail druggists to place their orders immediately, so that the jobbers will be able to get prompt shipments to them.

THANKS OF THE PUBLIC DUE THE DRUG TRADE DURING THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC

The thanks of the American public are certainly due the entire drug trad—retail, wholesale and manufacturing—for what they accomplished during the recent influenza epidemic. The war caused a shortage of physicians—nurses were almost impossible to obtain—the demand on the drug trade was unexpected and overwhelming, and to this demand they responded nobly. Retail druggists kept open day and night and slept where they dropped behind the prescription counter. Wholesale druggists called their salesmen off the road to help fill orders—hundreds wired us to ship Vick's VapoRub by the quickest route, regardless of expense.

A TREMENDOUS JOB TO INCREASE OUR PRODUCTION

In this emergency we have tried to do our part. We scoured the country for raw materials—our traffic manager spent his days riding freight cars in—we shipped raw materials in carload lots by express and pleaded with manufacturers to increase their deliveries to us.

But it was a slow process. Some of our raw materials are produced only in Japan—supplies in this country were low and shipments required three months to come from the Far East. Then we had to recruit and train skilled labor. We brought our salesmen into the factory and trained them as foremen. We invented new machinery, and managed to install it on Christmas Day, so as not to interfere with our daily production.

143 JARS OF VAPORUB EVERY MINUTE, DAY AND NIGHT

By January 1st we had everything ready to put on our night shift, and since then our laboratory has been running day and night. To feed our automatic machines, which drop out one hundred and forty-three jars of VapoRub a minute or one million and eighty thousand weekly, has required a force of 500 people. Our Cafe Department, created for the benefit of these workers, served 7,000 meals during the month of January alone.

13 MILLION JARS OF VAPORUB DISTRIBUTED SINCE OCTOBER

An idea of the work we have accomplished this Fall may be given by our production figures—13,028,976 jars of VapoRub manufactured and distributed since last October—one jar for every two families in the entire United States.

During the Influenza epidemic, Vick's VapoRub was used as an external application in connection with the physician's treatment, and thousands of people, unable to obtain a doctor, relied on Vick's almost exclusively.

Literally, millions of families all over the country, from California to Maine, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, have found Vick's VapoRub the ideal home remedy for croup and cold troubles.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE PASSING OF BISHOP McCOY.

Press dispatches announced on Sunday morning, March 23, the passing away of Bishop James Henry McCoy at his home, in Birmingham, Ala., on Saturday evening, March 22, of cancer of the stomach. This news came as a great shock to the Church at large, which had hoped that recent reports of the Bishop's condition indicated that he was regaining his health. Only a short time ago it was announced that he was preparing to go to Southern Florida for a period of recuperation. In the providence of God, he has been called to his eternal reward, in "a land that is fairer than day." The Church has lost one of its trusted and most greatly beloved leaders, whose warm sympathies, brotherly counsel and inspiring gospel messages had given him a large place in the affections of his brethren.

Bishop McCoy was fifty-one years of age, having been born in 1868. He was elected to the episcopacy at the General Conference of 1910, which met at Asheville, N. C. Bishops Denny, Kilgo, Murrah, Lambuth, Waterhouse and Mouzon were elected at the same Conference—a notable company, of whom Bishop McCoy is the first "to cease from his labors." He had thus served nine years in his high office.

It is difficult to estimate the value of a good man's services to his generation, but we know that he sets in motion forces and influences that will continue to bless the world throughout the years, and that his name is enshrined in the memory of thousands who have been helped in the difficult places of life by his ministry. Bishop McCoy was such a man. Although he was stricken in the prime of life, when, humanly speaking, many years of usefulness were before him, his services were not in vain, and he will not be forgotten. He had the heart of a prince and the voice of a messenger from Heaven. His messages stirred the souls of men and lifted them to high places of vision and hope. In his manner, he was a brother to all men.

We join in the general sorrow at his death, but we rejoice over the rich heritage he has left to the Church. At the time of going to press, we have not learned the details of the funeral services.

BUT SCIENCE HAS ITS LIMITS.

We saw a notice recently to the effect that a distinguished French surgeon has been invited to make his future home in Chicago by a philanthropist who offers to finance an "institute of life" for the exercise of the skill of the great surgeon. The offer was brought about by the fact that he is reported to have operated on the heart of a soldier who was apparently dead, so skillfully that he was brought back to life by artificial respiration and is now alive and strong. We have great confidence in the ability of science to produce marvelous results in dealing with the vital forces, but it has its limitations. Only God can produce life, and only God can raise from the dead.

FORGETTING UNTIL IT IS TOO LATE.

The chief of the United States Forestry Service has announced that his investigations show that the supply of virgin timber in the United States will be practically exhausted by 1929. We shall then have to depend upon reforestation for our supply of timber, or find some other suitable material to take its place. Only a few years ago, such a state of affairs was almost unthinkable, so great were the undeveloped stretches of magnificent forests. But with characteristic American lack of foresight, we have recklessly used up our resources until it is too late to repair the damage. We are prone to forget a good many things until it is too late.

UNKNOWN HEROES.

All the heroes of earth are not known by name to men. Many of them are not known beyond the narrow circle of their own communities. Indeed, many who are cast in heroic mold are not known as such at all. But they are heroes and heroines just the same. Bravely and uncomplainingly they carry heavy burdens and endure heart-breaking sorrows and undergo agonies of suffering that would overwhelm those of weaker frame. They even sing a song along the way that cheers the world, and their smile helps many another weary one. They hold fast the faith, and do the works of mercy and justice gladly and unobtrusively. The names of many timid, shrinking women will emblazon the pages of the annals of heaven.

THE SLEEPING SICKNESS.

The medical fraternity of the country seems to be somewhat perturbed over the appearance in New York of what is called "the sleeping sickness." Forty cases have been reported, with two deaths. It may be that the disease is spreading to this section of the country; we have seen some suspicious symptoms in congregations to which we have had the privilege of ministering, although we have heard of no fatal results thus far.

PURE IGNORANCE.

The story is told of the great Dr. Johnson that when a lady asked him why he defined "pastern" as the knee of a horse he replied, "Ignorance, Madam, pure ignorance." We offer the same excuse in behalf of the writer of the following sentences which we take from the Red Cross Bulletin of March 10: "Missionaries as a rule are very set in their ways, very tenacious of custom, very insistent upon theology. Fortunately this brave monk, who had faced alone the suspicious ignorance of men who fought with bears and walked the treacherous glacier, was of larger mold." The quotation is taken from the article, "Origin of Swiss Flag," on page 7 of the Bulletin. Ignorance, pure ignorance, explains the writer's glaring inaccuracy of statement concerning missionaries "as a rule."

COTTON AND OTHER THINGS.

We have no sympathy with the policy which, in effect, penalizes the South by restrictions upon the export of cotton. The growers of cotton have not been protected by the Government by a minimum price, as were the wheat growers, and yet the markets of the world have been largely closed to this great crop by Governmental action, with a consequent loss to Southern planters of millions of dollars. The point we have in mind, however, is not the importance of the cotton crop, but the value of other things that may be raised in the place of cotton. Agricultural experts have insisted for a long time that the soil and climate of the South furnish a combination for diversified farming that cannot be beat anywhere else in the world. And now it seems to be a demonstrated fact that the South is the best place in the United States in which to produce meat of high grade at low cost. Cotton will probably remain the staple crop of the South for a long time; but many wise business men who are engaged in agriculture are safeguarding their resources and increasing their prosperity by an intelligent system of diversification.

A HARD JOB.

The representatives at the European Peace Conference are having a hard time in formulating a treaty that will satisfy the demands of all the parties at interest. This is necessarily so, since the issues at stake are so great and of such far-reaching importance. It would be unreasonable to suppose that the wisest men could, in a few days, reach satisfactory conclusions concerning measures that are to affect the welfare of the world for centuries to come. A realization of all this, however, does not prevent our expressing the hope that these eminent statesmen will not allow questions that are not essentially fundamental to delay their bringing about a permanent peace settlement as soon as possible.

NO TIME TO STOP.

A good many friends of prohibition throughout the country may feel that the victory was won finally and completely by the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment. There is some justification, perhaps, for the feeling, but we need to be on our guard just at this point. Many battles have been lost by failure to follow up initial success. The liquor forces are bending every energy toward finding some way by which to make the amendment ineffective. Congress still has to pass laws for the enforcement of the amendment, and the State legislatures will have to enact suitable measures for carrying out its provisions. These laws must be drawn in such way as to make it impossible for the brewers and their allies to evade the plain purpose and intent of the amendment. This will be done only if the prohibitionists are vigilant and active. The temperance army has won the great war—but the troops have not yet been demobilized.

ONE SECRET OF CONTENTMENT.

By S. J. Herben, D.D.

A profound secret of contentment lies buried in the exhortation, "Be anxious for nothing." If one has put that secret into operation in his daily life, he has found the pleasant highway of happiness. For many people the Christian life is just about spoiled because of their constant fret and worry. They have never learned how to let go and to trust completely. To them the fruits of the Spirit are not love, joy, peace, and the other refreshing and sustaining graces. These things are withheld from them because they are overborne with anxiety about matters over which they have no control or responsibility, and which they ought to leave entirely in the hands of God. The windows of heaven are closed, because they will not let them be opened. They do not bask in the sunshine of God's presence, because they stay where the shadows are. They do not enjoy the sweet delight that comes as a rich reward to those who work for God, because as they fret they close their hands in idleness. They do not sing praises, for their souls are full of lamentations. They look into the future, not with rapture, but with dread.

To the Christian all this is wrong. It is so contrary to the teaching of Jesus that it is difficult to understand how any one who professes to put implicit faith in His word can yield to its influence. The child of God should be glad in heart. He should rejoice always. He need not be boisterous, but his spirit should be content, and he should be refreshed from the springs of inward joy. And these springs are found always on the sunny slopes of the land of Sweet Contentment.

Of course life is full of things that seem contradictory. We cannot have everything as we would like to have it. Events do not fall out always according to our ordering or to our preference or convenience. The work we do frequently fails to produce the results we expect and desire. There are clouds—heavy and portentous—in our sky. The darkness does descend upon us as a pall. The minor notes are mingled with our songs. Sin does flaunt itself defiantly. Sorrow does flap its black wings in our faces.

But that is not the whole story of life. God is still upon His throne. He is in our hearts. He is the director of our lives. The world is not all bad. There are men and women among us who are worthy of crowns. The cause of righteousness is advancing even though it seems to be standing still here and there. A look along the whole battle front will be enough to convince even the skeptical that the hosts of Jehovah are going forward in triumph. The better day is dawning. It is here; for to-day is better than yesterday was; and to-morrow will be better still.

Trust in God and do your daily task, however humble it may be, in full assurance of faith. Have a part in the doing of the great things that God is accomplishing in and for the world, enterprises in which He needs your help. Don't be anxious; be hopeful. Don't be doleful; be cheerful. Don't be faithless; be faithful.

Fret not, my soul,
For things beyond thy small control.
Do thou thy best and thou shalt see
Heaven will have care of thine and thee.
Sow thou thy seed and wait in peace
The Lord's increase.
So many shrines, so many creeds,
So many paths that wind and lead,
While just the art of being kind
Is what the sad world needs.

THE CENTENARY IN EUROPE.

By Rev. W. W. Pinson.

The two deputations sent by the two Episcopal Methodisms to Europe were, by a good providence, permitted to travel and make their observations together. The utmost harmony and good fellowship prevailed and the co-operation was as complete as could be. We had extraordinary opportunities for making our observations. The leaders in State and Church gave us every consideration and encouragement we could have asked. Through the courtesy of the French High Commission, we were accorded audiences with their leading officials and men of affairs. Under official escort we were conveyed to the battle front, where we were permitted to see the scenes of the most intense fighting and of the most complete devastation.

Many interviews and public meetings were had with Protestant bodies and individual leaders. In every instance our purposes were given cordial consideration and a generous welcome. The deputations reached some definite conclusions which will in a short time be jointly given publicity in the two churches represented. In the meantime, I am, in this communication, making observations for which I alone am responsible. While my opinions were formed in conjunction and co-operation with the other members of the two Commissions, I do not presume to speak for them until a joint statement, which is in course of preparation, is ready to be given to the public.

The facts are sufficient to convince one that Europe is a ripe missionary field. Whatever doubts one may have had of the wisdom and timeliness of Protestant work in these countries have been dissipated by first-hand investigation of the situation. The right type of service at this crucial hour in Europe will tell mightily for centuries to come—Europe for centuries with a vital center of evangelical influences. The Gospel came to America from Europe. In this hour of Europe's need and crisis, when the plough-share of war has cut great furrows through her heart, and when she is on the eve of a reconstruction of her political and social life, it would be an act of ingratitude and of disloyalty for the churches of America to withhold their spiritual and moral help. This conviction is emphasized by the unparalleled popularity of America and Americans. Our part in the war has welded the hearts of these people to us. Nothing is more conspicuous or more universal than this high valuation of everything American. It would be a chilling contradiction of the whole-hearted and unselfish contribution we made to the winning of the war for the liberties of the world, if we should now withhold the same co-operation with the spiritual forces of these nations for the winning of that greater victory for the Prince of Peace.

The need is apparent. The people are not receiving adequate spiritual ministry and nurture. The people are not being reached by any Church, Catholic or Protestant. It is sadly evident, and can be demonstrated by a vast array of incontrovertible facts, that a very large proportion of the people of France and of Belgium are either confirmed rationalists or indifferent to religion. The antagonisms of a hundred years between the governing classes and Catholicism are well known and have made a wide breach between a large part of the population and that Church. Protestantism, never strong, is now weaker still by the loss of leaders and churches, and through the necessary demoralization of war. They need help and will welcome it if given in the right spirit and in the right way.

Work undertaken by our American Churches should be done with the fullest recognition of and completest sympathy with the existing Protestant bodies. There should be the closest co-operation with them in all our plans, such as will strengthen their institutions and second their efforts in behalf of their people.

There should also be full and hearty co-operation between the two branches of Episcopal Methodism. This has been taken into account in all our studies of the field and in all the plans to be set forth later. It is to be hoped that such plans may be wrought out as will be satisfactory to both Churches and give to both the fullest opportunity for the largest service to the Kingdom. This well accepted policy of modern missions is more emphatically demanded by the situation in Europe than in other mission fields where conditions are different.

The situation demands a pronounced evangelical appeal. It is a mistake to suppose that such an appeal will not win. These are a warm-hearted people. They respond to the Gospel of the warm heart. It is well known that the French are a highly idealistic people and that their emotions are capable of being set aflame by great moral truths. As with other people, so with them—the greatest need is the spiritual need, and the truths that will wield the greatest power are those that concern the spiritual life. It is equally certain that a successful evangelical program for the purpose must be a large social element. It must carry ministry to the total life of the people. The war has necessarily wrought demoralization. The whole social and moral life of the people will need strengthening and upbuilding from their foundations. The evangelical appeal will need to be fortified by Christian life in action, even as Christ fortified his spiritual ministry with the helpful and healing ministries to the bodies of men.

Everywhere it was made manifest that the opportunities were greater and the difficulties fewer than we had thought. There will be difficulties and opposition, as in other fields, but not by any means to the extent I had supposed. The conviction grows, as the observations of these weeks are thought upon, that the hour is ripe, the call imperative, and the possibilities inspiring. Indeed, there is no money for which we are asking in the Centenary that can be more wisely and more effectively used than that which the Church is expecting to devote to missions in the war-torn countries.

While the commission of our deputation was limited to Belgium and France and our observations mainly centered in these fields, we were by a strange providence permitted to get first-hand information concerning the needs in Poland. With the pathetic appeal that comes from this great people that has suffered so much and so long, we were greatly impressed. The Church should seriously consider entering Poland at the earliest moment possible. The recommendations which will be made to the two Churches will include Poland, together with Russia and other contiguous fields.

These statements are made pending the joint statement, which we shall issue in a very short time.

MEMPHIS MEETING OF THE METHODIST EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

By Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr.

The first session of the organized Educational Association of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was held in the city of Memphis, Tenn., March 4-6, 1919. This Association is composed of the various educational institutions of Southern Methodism and also of the different Annual Conference Boards. Representatives from many of the Institutions and boards were in attendance upon the meeting at Memphis. The program was of interest and profit to those in attendance.

The formation of this Association was ordered by the last General Conference. Its organization is in keeping with the spirit of co-operation that is so largely characteristic of the present time. The Methodist Episcopal Church has had such an organization for a number of years. The State universities of the country have also maintained an association of this nature for some years past. In the system of public education, teachers have their associations and organizations for the development of efficiency and for meeting their common problems. Business enterprises of all sorts and professions have their associations and organizations. Why should not the educational interests of our Church also have an Association for mutual benefit and for advancing the educational interests of Southern Methodism?

However, this Association was not formed merely for the purpose of being in style. Neither is this paper an argument for the existence of such an organization. It has come into being to meet a real need in the educational work of Southern Methodism.

On Wednesday morning the general topic of discussion was "Christian Education." Different phases of this subject were discussed by President W. P. Few, of Trinity College; President J. H. Reynolds, of Hendrix College; President Snyder, of Wofford College. No man who heard the discussions of these leading educators of the Church could doubt but that these men are guided by certain very definite and well defined convictions in their work as Christian educators. None who heard them could question the fact that the Church has a well defined mission to society in the work of Christian education.

On Wednesday afternoon group meetings were held for those representing different classes of institutions and the Conference boards. The purpose of these group meetings was that those in attendance who were at work in more closely allied departments of education might confer with each other with reference to their peculiar problems and enterprises.

The general topic for the Wednesday evening meeting was "The Promotion of Higher Education." President C. P. Jenkins, of Wesleyan College discussed the work of the educational foundations showing the real benefits of their work to higher education in this country. President W. T. Wynn, of Martin College, gave a historical review of the work of the National Government in this direction. Dr. R. E. Blackwell, of Randolph-Macon College, made a strong plea for the establishing in our universities of departments for the study of the great branches of philosophy, history and literature in such a way as to challenge the attention of the leaders of thought everywhere. His idea was that in the world of thought and investigation these departments of human learning had been too greatly dominated in recent times by men who were hostile, or at least unfriendly, to Christianity. The universities of Southern Methodism have here an open field of usefulness to Christianity and society. This field of usefulness should be entered by establishing strong departments of original research. These departments should be under the leadership of men whose Christianity cannot be doubted and whose ability as scholars and thinkers will challenge the attention of the world of scholarship and of thought. They should be men who are able to produce books themselves that will become standards and also men who will be able to produce in their departments scholars to go out and mold the thought of other schools. By this means, it will be possible for the departments of history, literature and philosophy in our colleges to be able to cease calling upon independent and State institutions to train the men who are to be at the head of these departments in our Church colleges. The colleges will also be able to secure up-to-date text books from the hands of Christian thinkers who interpret their departments of investigation in the light of Christianity. What he said might well apply to all the departments of human learning. This is the best argument that can be advanced in favor of the founding and the controlling of universities by the Christian Church. This is at the very center of the purpose of Christian education, namely, to mold the thought and the life of the people of the nation in a Christian mold.

Thursday morning the general topic was "Christian Leadership." Different phases of this topic were discussed by Dr. Ed. F. Cook, Prof. H. L. Gray, of the West Texas Conference, Dr. C. C. Jarrell, of the Emory University Correspondence School, Prof. J. L. Cuninggim, of the Southern Methodist University Correspondence School, and Dr. R. H. Bennett, of the department of Ministerial Supply and Training. The address of Dr. Cook presented the idea that the Church now does not furnish any special training for equipping our men as foreign missionaries. He called attention to the fact that men entering other occupations in life have special training for the work that they are to do—engineers, physicians, lawyers. The missionary is sent out to a new country where he has to lay foundations for Christianity and for Christian civilization. He is given no specific training for this purpose. Dr. Cook pleaded that something should be done in order to make it possible to give these men an adequate training so that they could go to work as soon as they reach the field. They should be taught the language of the country where they are to work and know something of the life and habits of the people before they go there. They should study the whole system of the nation to which they are to go before they are sent out. Dr. Bennett pleaded for recruiting the ranks of the ministry. He called attention to the fact that all activities are now calling for men. In the face of crucial conditions the Churches are met with a condition that gives us many vacant pulpits over the land. These recruits need to be secured and trained for the work that they must do.

The final meeting of the Association considered the general theme of co-operation among our institutions and boards. The discussions were made by President Watkins, of Millsaps College; President G. F. Winfield, of the Meridian College, Texas; President J. M. Williams, of Galloway College, and Rev. R. G. Mood, of the North Texas Conference.

Such a report as this is necessarily meagre and has limitations such as cannot be better understood by any other than the one seeking to give the report. The whole session gave to those in attendance upon this conference the impression that the men who are leading the educational enterprises of Southern Methodism are men of conviction, of vision and of consecrated purpose. Another impression given is that many of our preachers and the great mass of our people do not realize the vast importance of Christian education to the home, to the Church and to society. Something must be done to bring to the minds of the preachers and the people a definite conviction as to the vast importance of Christian education. The Church must address itself to this problem or suffer because of a failure to do so. Humanity will also suffer and the advance of the Kingdom will be hindered unless the Church maintains herself in Christian education. The definite impression left by attendance upon this conference is that the Church has a distinct mission to society in her educational system and that the men who are leading this work in our Church are men altogether worthy of our support and confidence.

Homer, La.

THE MISSISSIPPI WELFARE LEAGUE.

Dear Brother Pastor: The day has come, the hour has struck, for the followers of Jesus Christ to go forth and possess the land. "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit," saith the Lord.

A great change has come into the minds and hearts of the people of the world. The sacrifice and suffering caused by the world war have brought about a new era of altruism, and men of broad vision and great sympathy and with adequate material wealth are realizing, as never before, that they are their brothers' keepers.

Mr. Beecher was once asked if Christianity was a failure. His reply was that he did not know, as we had never tried it. We are of the opinion that if Beecher were on the earth now, he could answer in the negative, as the principles enunciated in the Sermon on the Mount, which have been proclaimed by President Woodrow Wilson, helped to defeat armies and changed the thought of a great portion of the people of the world. "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me," is being realized as never before.

The ministry is recognized as the most potent force in the world in creating public sentiment and leading the minds of the people in the right direction. The proverb, "Like priest, like people," is true and will remain so. The recognition of this truth should increase our sense of responsibility, and is a challenge to us. Let us, at this hour, give our people an ever more intelligent, earnest and consecrated leadership. The world is looking to the ministry as never before. We must measure up. We must not disappoint our people who are depending upon us to guide their minds and hearts aright during the new era. We must realize that if Christianity fails in this generation, it will be our failure. We must pray as never before. We must follow in the footsteps of Jesus. We must think as He thought about the human family, and thereby receive greater power. We must have the spirit that was in Jesus Christ, then we will not leave out of our scheme of philosophy, ethics or religion any one of God's creatures. We must realize that the only relationship big enough for any man is all the rest of mankind.

We are enclosing herewith form of organization of the Mississippi Welfare League, with statement of aims and objects of the League. We shall enlarge upon this only to add the following: Nothing that relates to the spiritual, moral, intellectual and physical well-being of our people is foreign to our purpose. We wish especially to emphasize that this means all of our people regardless of race, color, place of birth, religious belief, social or industrial status. They are all created in the image of God and should receive brotherly consideration.

We believe that when you have looked over the personnel of our organization you will realize that it is not a product of the radical theorist, but a conservative and sober effort of God-fearing men who are ready and willing to measure up to their responsibility. As members of the Ministerial Committee, we appeal to every minister in our State to join our forces and have a part in our great undertaking.

This is the first series of letters that will be mailed to you from time to time. We believe the contents of same will be beneficial and worthy of your time and consideration.

Fraternally and sincerely yours,

WM. MERCER GREEN, Episcopal.
CHAS. W. CRISLER, Methodist.
H. M. KING, Baptist.
JOS. RENNIS, Presbyterian.
L. E. LAKIN, Christian.

A CHURCH-WIDE REVIVAL.

By Rev. Carroll Varner.

Could there be a more opportune time for a church-wide revival than during this Centenary movement that has been launched with such thoroughness? In fact, does not the tremendous undertaking to raise $35,000,000 on the material side demand an equally great effort on the purely spiritual side to maintain a just balance? A quotation from the Wesleyan Advocate compels attention:

"Has a Church fulfilled its mission in the world when it reports an increase in contributions and practically no increase in those added to its membership? Can increase of dollars be for a Church any compensation for the lack of conquest over the kingdom of this world? It is possible for God's people—those who call themselves the people of the Lord—to increase in wealth and at the same time lose the conquering stride that characterizes the hosts of the Almighty."

While this editorial is not entirely apropos of what I have in mind, yet it is suggestive. Perhaps a quotation from Mr. W. E. Doughty, of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, in his excellent little brochure on the Centenary, is more to the point: "More tragic than not to receive the millions of money asked for would be the tragedy of not coming into fresh, vital fellowship with Christ." And a little further on he cries out, "Mobilize the spiritual forces!" Well, how can we do this better than by inaugurating at once a church-wide revival effort? The highest welfare of our great Church demands that simultaneously with the "drive" for these millions shall be put forth a "drive" for souls. May not the Church, like the individual, gain the whole world and lose its own soul?

A happy combination of circumstances makes this a most opportune time for a church-wide revival—the logical time. The turmoil and confusion of war is over and the time of readjustment is on us, a time of calm and serious thought. What a grand time for the Church to speak out in no uncertain terms in behalf of Christ's claims over the hearts and minds of men! In addition to this, we have just enlisted the praying men and women in a league of intercession for a manifestation of God's power just now in behalf of His Church, while we are just completing a campaign in behalf of Christian stewardship. With this splendid preparation, this unparalleled opportunity, is our Church going to fail to put forth a mighty effort to reach the souls of men? I do not believe that during the lifetime of this generation, at least, Methodism has had such a chance for a great church-wide revival as now. Everything points to it and God will not hold us guiltless if we do not at least put forth the effort. I, for one, earnestly wish that when our leaders set for the Church a goal of $7,000,000 a year for the next five years they had also set a goal of something like a million souls a year for the same length of time. However, we ought not to wait for any body of men to call us to a task of this kind; as ministers and disciples of our Lord we are here primarily for just this, and if we will but resolve in our hearts to take advantage of this unprecedented opportunity and put forth our best effort for a revival in every church throughout Methodism, God will surely pour out His spirit upon us to an unusual degree. Brethren, why not do this?

I am not sure but that our great and beloved Church needs to do something just along this line as much as anything else. Methodism used to be almost synonomous with revivals and evangelical fervor in the minds of people everywhere, but of late years this has not been true. Mr. Doughty, to whom I referred above, has called our attention to this fact in a striking phrase when he pleads for "the recovery of her ancient passion for souls." After running over soberly in one's mind the history of our Church in recent years, one fears that we are about to lose this ancient glory. We can point with pride to our marvelous increase in wealth, to the magnificent church buildings we are erecting, to the great colleges and universities we can call our own, to the splendid increase in the support of the ministry—and all these things are occasion for pride—but what about our great revivals and the number of conversions reported annually? Well, to say the least, there is room here for serious reflection. I believe God is going to reward our Church graciously in this Centenary movement because of its great faith; likewise do I believe He will reward us with a great church-wide revival if we will but have faith enough to ask it.

AFTER-WAR WORK IN RURAL DISTRICTS.

By J. S. Chadwick.

The National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. has a program of after-war service to returned soldiers, sailors, and marines that can be carried out in the small towns and rural districts as well as in industrial communities and in the cities. This fact alone should make plain that it is not a program of "Y" activities, for it is not proposed to establish Young Men's Christian Associations in the towns and rural districts. The National War Work Council wishes to make some after-war contribution to the returned soldiers, and hence it is seeking to place at the disposal of the Churches the results of its war-work experience and some of its resources of men and money.

Some publicity has been given to the plan of the Southeastern Department of the Army Y. M. C. A., a plan that was submitted to representative ministers of nine religious denominations and from seven Southern States at a conference held recently in Atlanta. These men were asked to study the plan, to criticise, to suggest changes, and to approve or disapprove, as their judgments directed. They gave two days to frank discussions and to a study of the plan, and with a few suggested changes, which were promptly accepted, the plan was endorsed by unanimous vote. The Army Y. M. C. A. of the Southeastern Department has not only suggested a plan but proposes to make other contributions to the Churches which must have the leadership in this work. It will carry to its Training School at Blue Ridge, N. C., some fifteen hundred ministers and laymen, each of these men to spend eight days in study of the present economic, social, and religious conditions in our Southern States, what work should be undertaken by the Churches and the various welfare organizations, and how the needed work can be done. These men are to come from every county in the seven Southeastern States, some two hundred to be cared for during each school period of eight days. There will be classroom work, lectures, and open forums for the free discussion of the various problems and methods of work. These men are to go back to their home communities, and, not as "Y" men, but as churchmen and citizens, to enlist other workers in carrying out the program of service to all the needs of the returned soldiers and sailors and all the people of their communities. The Y. M. C. A. will make an additional contribution in furnishing a number of trained men who will be in the field to give to the churches and other organizations for community service such help as may be needed in putting over the program of community service. Each of these trained workers now being sent out will have a territory of some fifteen counties. The "Y" proposes not merely to co-operate with the churches, but in all its contributions of suggested plans of work and furnishing trained workers to insist that the churches are to have direction of all the work.

This article presents the Program of Rural Activities, and hence touches the interests of the larger number of the people in our Southern States. The National War Work Council in making the appropriation for the work in country and in city has had in mind the men it has served through the months of the war, but it is understood than in continuing its work for the soldiers, sailors, and marines it is seeking to serve all the people of the communities to which these men of the Army and Navy return. The larger number of these men from the Southeastern States return to homes in the rural districts (including the small towns). What will the churches offer them and others of their communities as they come from participation in the most momentous struggle in which humanity has engaged? The faith of the leaders in "Y" work is that the churches will give them needed help and will offer them the chance to make their lives count for more at home than ever before. Because of that faith, the following program of church activities is offered:

What Can Be Done in the Rural Districts?

Let there be in each community a group representing the various churches to study their community conditions; a study of resources and weaknesses of the community, with special reference to the soldiers, sailors and marines, who have come back with at least some new outlook along religious, educational and service lines. The individual church should offer to every Christian soldier (and of course to every other individual) the opportunity for such training as would strengthen him in Christian character and fit him for Christian service. This will call for study classes in Bible teachings, concerning world conditions, and in various Christian activities. The advantages of such study classes all will readily acknowledge; the experiences of the men who were engaged in religious work in the Army and Navy testify that the men are more interested in such activities than was generally thought to be the case. The study group plan made strong appeal to them. The church in the country and small town should not let this opportunity pass unused.

There should be recognition of the fact that these men of the Army and Navy (and the people back at home as well) have been moved as never before by the thought of participation in a great, unselfish task. It has been the mighty appeal of the old word to which Jesus gave a new meaning—"Service."

Through some special effort to provide opportunities for Christian service, appeal to the returned soldier to have some part in helping to bring in the Kingdom of God, a part in the Christian uplift of his own community. Set before him the following tasks worth while: Winning his comrades to the Christian life; leadership of the boys of his church and communities in the Sunday school and other organized activities; use him in places of responsibility in the church for which he is qualified, enlist him in the promotion of missionary studies and activities.

There can be in our rural districts a larger program of inter-church activities. The following features of such a program are suggested: Inter-church gatherings at regular periods for the promotion of Christian fellowship; a community organization of all young people for fellowship, definite co-operation, and training for service; the organization of representatives of the several churches in a Boys' Work Council for the conservation and leadership of the boy life of the community.

The churches should have leadership in such community service as extends beyond activities that are commonly designated "religious work." Let the schoolhouse, the church building, or a community hall be utilized as a community center where there can be discussed and promoted the community program. There the people can meet for fellowship and for a study of the following suggested activities under Christian leadership: Community singing—religious, patriotic, and recreational songs; athletics, and play (and in those the participants not to be restricted to the young people of the community); provision for the motion pictures, and the other community entertainments.

In the program which touches economic conditions, it is suggested that there be close co-operation between community leaders and Government Farm Demonstration Agents in outlining plans for community betterment, in studying agricultural conditions and possible means of improvement. The Department of Agriculture at Washington will give its aid to any organized community effort in furnishing valuable pamphlets and to a limited extent in sending field workers into the rural districts. The community organization should give its attention to conditions of home life and how these may be improved; study educational conditions and work for their betterment; give special consideration to the questions of community health, sanitation, water supply, causes and methods of treatment and prevention of tuberculosis, malaria, typhoid fever, etc.
